Viet Nam May Underline Lesson of Anti-Communism

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Nobody could claim that United States policy in Asia is a many-splendored thing, but the humiliations of Viet Nam may ultimately serve a useful purpose.

They may underline the lesson, already absorbed in the years of containment, that automatic anti-communism is not necessarily the only criterion for supporting a particular regime. However desperate the strategic situation, some thought should be paid to what the people of the country want.

For years, critics have found fault with the leadership of Ngo Dinh Diem, not so much because this lonely, monastic man happens to be aloof and unpopular, however inspectable his integrity may be; but because of the influence exerted by his brother, Ngo Dinh Nhu, and his beautiful sister-in-law Madame Nhu.

Mme. Nhu, seen in French and English television interviews, emerges facinatingly as both frail and self-confident, charming and possibly dangerous.

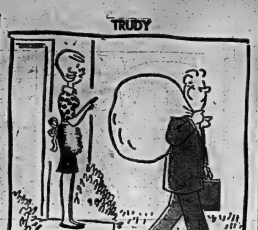
SHE CAN'T RESIST

She says looking after her four children including one only four years old, precludes her from intervening in politics; but her decisive statements leave little doubt that this is just what she cannot resist.

With her striking oriental features, like some villain in a comic strip, she has been called the dragon lady and likened to Lucrezia Borgia.

By coincidence, the risks of unstable anti-communism are currently emphasized by Conor Cruise O'Brien in reviewing for London's New Statesman a new book by John Mander, Great Britain or Little England?

One of Mander's themes is the need for British and French nuclear deterrents in view of the "co-ordinated strategy" of international communism to destroy the free world. Mander seeks to show that such a co-ordinated campaign was particularly acute from 1957 to 1962. O'Brien denies the validity of the specific points Mander adduces to support his thesis.



O'Brien, the controversial Irishman who was in charge of the United Nations operation in the Congo, writes that Mander is so preoccupied with the "great game of international strategy" that he fails to take into account such factors as the feelings of peoples, classes and sects.

Communism spreads, argues O'Brien, not because Khrushchev or Stalin presses a button but because of Western ineptitude in corrupting the ruling classes.

"When the West pins its faith to a Bao Dai or a Madame Nhu the Kremlin needs no strategy—just time."

O'Brien's indictment of oversimplified anti-communism embraces two other books, Random Thoughts of a Fascist Hyena, by Constantine Fitz Gibbon, and Britain and the Beast by Peter Howard, now regarded as the leader of the Moral Re-Armament movement founded by the late Frank Buchman.

TRUDY

"Now, don't forget, Ted—on your way to work, drop that off at the cleaners."

"Just a Second"

"I think it's lovely, except that this isn't the room I wanted decorated."

Thousands of Refugees Told to Return Home

PORT ARTHUR, Tel. (AP)—Hurricane Cindy slammed into the Texas coast at 8 a.m. today with winds of 80 miles an hour and then began disintegrating as it moved inland.

Cindy—third hurricane of the year and the only one that has reached the mainland — hurled high winds and tides at the Texas and Louisiana coast all night. The hurricane sprang up quickly and unexpectedly Monday and diminished as rapidly today.

Less than an hour later, civil defence authorities at Port Arthur - Beaumont - Orange area told refugees to go home.

The storm spawned tornadoes that was minor, although considerable loss in the pecan crop appeared certain.

An estimated 13,000 persons—most of them in Cameron Parish (county), La., fled ahead of the storm, as 300,000 did ahead of hurricane Carla two years ago this week. Carla killed 34 and did $500,000 damage.

The hurricane evacuation was spurred by memories of hurricane Audrey in 1957, when more than 500 died in that low-lying section which was battered by tornadoes.

NO MAJOR DAMAGE

"There is no major damage or flooding of homes anywhere in Texas as we know it," civil defence authorities.

Deputy Sheriff Carl Roux said at Cameron that Cindy failed to bring as much rain or as high tides as had been expected. But he said he did not want refugees to return to Cameron until Cindy had passed inland.

In addition to the estimated 10,000 who fled Cameron Parish, Port Arthur sheltered 1,500 refugees, Beaumont 825 and Galveston 1,078, civil defence authorities said.

At least five boats were reported in trouble at one time or another in the Gulf of Mexico during the storm.

Weathermen predicted that rains as great as 10 inches would fall.

Strong winds spread out 100 miles from the eye.

The storm sprang up suddenly in the Gulf of Mexico on Monday and did not reach the power of a hurricane until late afternoon.

During the night Cindy turned slightly to the west after first

G. Drew To Retire Jan. 1

OTTAWA (CP) — Resignation of George Drew as Canadian high commissioner in London has been accepted, but he will remain at his post until Jan. 1.

The announcement, made by Prime Minister Pearson's office today, said Mr. Drew had told the former Conservative government at the time of his appointment that he wished to retire in August, 1963, when he completed six years as high commissioner. Mr. Drew is 69.

The former Conservative national leader's letter of resignation, addressed "my dear Mike," said he wished to resign "at the earliest date convenient to you.

"May I say how greatly I have enjoyed the very cordial relations which have at all times existed between us."

IT'S 'MIKE' AND 'GEORGE'.

The letter of resignation and Prime Minister Pearson's letter of acceptance both were dated last Friday, Sept. 13. Mr. Pearson's letter, addressed "dear George," said:

"I have received your letter of resignation consequent on your completion of six years' service as high commissioner to the United Kingdom, for the period during which you originally agreed to continue in that post.

"In accepting this resignation, I would like to thank you most sincerely for the distinguished and devoted way in which you have represented our country in the United Kingdom during these years. Our gratitude should also go to your wife who has been of invaluable help to you in the fine work that both have done for Canada.

"I would be grateful if you could continue in your post until the end of the year, if that is possible, your resignation could take effect on Jan. 1, 1964."

The prime minister's announcement said Mr. Drew

Day-Old Malaysia Cuts Relations With Indonesia and Philippines

KUALA LUMPUR (AP) — Newly - born Malaysia severed diplomatic relations today with its two largest neighbors, host Indonesia and the country's new Philippines, a screaming, rock-throwing mob stormed the Indonesian Embassy.

The anti-Indonesian violence broke out shortly before Malaysia's cabinet in Singapore announced the break in relations.

More than 1,000 Malays marched on the Indonesian Embassy and 200 surged into the embassy grounds. They set fire to some buildings, smashed windows and furniture, tore up a picture of Indonesian President Sukarno and denounced him as a liar.

The riot was revenge for an similar attack earlier Monday against the Malaysian embassy in Jakarta, the Indonesian capital.

Indonesia bitterly opposed the new Kuala Lumpur federation of Malaysia — union of Malaya, Singapore, Sarawak and North Borneo — which was launched Sunday night. All are former British colonies.

No one was injured in the 35-minute demonstration here.

Tunku Abdel Rahman, Malaysia's prime minister, said in a statement his government took its diplomatic action because Indonesia "has interfered in domestic relations with Malaysia without any provocation or cause. We have no choice but to do likewise and to recall our ambassador and the embassy staff."

He said the Philippines had asked that the Philippine Embassy be reduced to consulate status. Rahman called the re-

Russia Drops Pep Pill

OTTAWA (CP)—Soviet Russia dropped a pep pill into the Canadian economy Monday, signing to buy nearly $300,000,000 worth of wheat and flour by July 31.

The unprecedented order poses a great challenge to Canadian transport and handling facilities, Trade Minister Sharp said.

But the economic benefits were seen spreading out from the Prairie grain belt into auto, farm machinery and other durable goods industries as well as transport and port employment payrolls.

The contract, largest 'single' one in Canadian history, was finalized in renewal of a three year trade pact with the U.S.S.R. The first was signed in 1956 and extended most-favored-nation tariff treatment to Russia, plus providing for some wheat deliveries there.

The new agreement resurrects that trade accord, ending the conditions of the expired—or second—pact which called on Russia to buy from Canada —including wheat—for every $1 spent in Russia by Canada.

WILL BE SHARED

By July 31, Russia will take 196,000,000 bushels of wheat and 29,200,000 bushels of flour in wheat equivalent—about a third of this year's near-record wheat crop of an estimated 600,000,000 bushels.

Canada is providing credit up to $200,000,000 and the Soviet is to

Claims Lawyer Was Her Father, Gets $160,000

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Mrs. Gladys Stevens, of Los Angeles Negro was awarded an estimated $160,000 Monday from the estate of Ernest L. Torregano, who led a distinguished civic and legal career here for years.

Mrs. Stevens, not named in Torregano's will, claimed he was her father in the suit she left her mother in New Orleans in 1913 and came to San Francisco to become a lawyer herself.

Her seven-year legal fight ended in Superior Court Monday when Superior Judge Byron Arnold approved a compromise settlement between Mrs. Stevens and Torregano's brother, Alfred. Under the contract the woman will get 40 per cent of the $325,000 estate.

Arnold declined to rule on Mrs. Stevens's request to be declared Torregano's daughter. She has introduced a New Orleans birth certificate in support of her claim.

Torregano was a prominent lawyer here.

Queen Expecting Fourth Child

May Chart Trend to Larger Families

LONDON (CP) — Congratulations poured in from around the world today following an announcement Monday that the Queen is expecting a fourth child early next year.

Some of the messages were sent directly to Scotland's Balmoral Castle, where the Queen and her family now are vacationing, and by today they were received at Buckingham Palace, her London residence.

Crowds of people were grouped around the palace early today to watch for official visitors.

The Queen was expected to accompany her vacation Thursday to accompany her 13-year-old daughter, Princess Anne, to Benenden School, just south of London, where she will study this year.

She is not expected to undertake any more official engagements after returning from Balmoral at the end of October.

Canada's Wheat Sale to Russia Makes U.S. Envious and Uneasy

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States, grappling with a huge and unwieldy wheat surplus, showed some signs of envy, mixed with uneasiness as Canada announced an unprecedented $500,000,000 wheat and flour sale to the Soviet Union.

An immediate right - wing Republican move to accuse Ottawa of gain of profiteering — because some wheat would be shipped to Cuba—was clapped down by the state department which pointed out there is no embargo against the sale of food and medicine to the Caribbean island.

More important to the U.S. administration and to some members of Congress, it seemed, is whether restrictive policies on trade with Russia should be changed in the light of possibilities that the Soviet Union may be facing another major wheat production calamity.

Senator Robert H. Humphrey, Minnesota Democrat, urged the U.S. to "come to its senses" and allow American farmers to sell wheat to the Russians. Describing the Canadian deal as "good," Humphrey maintained the U.S. is being by-passed in market opportunities because of curbs against doing business with the Communists.

A source close to Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman, who was in Russia last July, agreed with Humphrey that a Soviet drought may be far more serious than generally known and that Russia may be forced to seek even more wheat—above the amount purchased from Canada.

However, the U.S. government has decided to make no move of its own to deal with export policy in the light of whatever moves Russia may make.

So far, there has been no Soviet explanation to buy wheat from the U.S., the informant added.

The possibility of another agricultural crisis in the Soviet Union was also reported in Moscow dispatches which said bread is being rationed in Soviet restaurants and Russians have been warned against bread waste.

A different approach was taken by Senator Kenneth Keating, New York Republican, who noted Canada also agreed to ship $33,000,000 worth of wheat and flour to Cuba. This, he said in a statement, is "shocking treachery" of cooperation in the Western hemisphere to isolate Premier Fidel Castro economically and politically.

Ontario Secretary's Office Under Opposition Attack

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The provincial secretary's department was the target Monday for continued attack by opposition leaders as Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer charged there was a friend of gambling syndicates in the department.

Provincial Secretary John Yaremko denied the charges and challenged Mr. Wintermeyer to name the person he was talking about.

The new assault came with the province's general election rites as ever and Mr. Yaremko's department already at the centre of political storm touched off Friday by the resignation of its deputy minister, Robert J. Cudney.

Donald C. MacDonald, New Democratic Party leader, said Monday in Galt Mr. Cudney was the victim of a "war of nerves" that was condemned by members of the Conservative government for telling the truth when he testified before the Roach royal commission on organized crime last year.

Premier John Robarts, meanwhile, made a coffee-and-cakes

Liberals and PCs Vying For Prairie Vote in Sale

OTTAWA (CP) — Will the Prairie provinces cast the vote to whichever government sells the most wheat?

This is a question that both the Liberal and Conservative parties in Ottawa would like to have answered clearly. But present indications are they want the answer to come out gradually in the form of mounting public opinion.

Neither party is believed to be really anxious at this juncture to put the question to the test of an immediate general election.

The Daily Mail, commenting on the announcement, rejoiced that the 37-year-old Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh, 42, were continuing the old tradition of big families."

The Daily Express also drew attention to the modern Royal family trend under the front-page headline "now fourth baby for the Queen—the best kept secret."

Royal aides said the Queen will be attended by Sir John Peel. The 58-year-old Peel, surgeon gynaecologist to the royal household, brought into the world the Queen's other children.

A maternity ward will be set up soon in Buckingham Palace, aides said.

The news of a fourth child is expected to have a personal meaning for many young British couples who look to royalty to set a pattern for family life.

The Queen's great great grandmother, Queen Victoria, had nine children, a common average for British families

Birmingham's Negroes Plan March To Capital

Leaders Address Rally, Warn Against Violence

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Birmingham Negroes, incensed over the bombing deaths of four of their children, plan to march on Montgomery to day directly before Governor George C. Wallace their feeling that he is to blame for the slayings.

At their first gathering since the Sunday dynamite blast, an estimated 1,200 Negroes took a unanimous standing vote Monday night to endorse a march on this state House of Representatives.

The vote came after three integration leaders called for nonviolence and accused Wallace of causing the racial tension that led to the dynamiting of the 16th Street Baptist Church. No date for the march was set.

Funeral services for the 14-year-old Carol Robertson, one of the four girls killed by the blast, will be held this afternoon at St. John's African Methodist Episcopal Church.

FUNERALS ON WEDNESDAY

Rev. Fred Shuttlesworth told the rally that mass services for the other three victims will be held Wednesday at the Sixth Avenue South Baptist Church—before the rally was held. The three were Denise McNair, 11, and Addie Mae Collins and Cynthia Wesley, both 14.

Negro leaders here and across the U.S. called for use of more federal power in Birmingham, but a government source in Washington said there was no legal basis to call additional troops in the city now. There are 300 federalized troopers on alert here.

Sheriff Melvin Bailey said two white teen-agers were arrested on an open charge in the slaying of one of two Negro boys shot to death Sunday hours after the death - dealing dynamite blast.

City police said the other youth was killed when they fired buckshot at fleeing Negroes after a rock-throwing incident.

PRESIDENT GRIEVES

In Washington, President Kennedy expressed "a deep sense of outrage and grief" over the bombing and called on all Americans to put aside prejudices and to unite in working for justice and peace.

"Words and actions" of Wallace and the segregation system caused the bombing, Rep. Martin Luther King Jr. said at the rally.

He said Wallace "had allowed

Quints Get May Gifts

ABERDEEN, S.D. (AP)—The Fischer quintuplets went into their fourth day at 3 a.m. today, breathing easily and with reported good color on all of them.

Dr. James Berbos, who brought the four girls and a boy into the world between 1 a.m. and 3 a.m. Saturday had termed the first 72 hours crucial. He left St. Luke's Hospital shortly before midnight, apparently satisfied his charges were doing well.

But he warned that the premature quints born to Mrs. Mary Ann Fischer, 29, still could have hurdles, saying, "There's no magic number for any danger period, it just depends on their day-to-day conditions."

The quints took their first formula Monday — about a teaspoon of artificial milk every two hours—and were reported to be assimilating it well.

During the time, the babies got their full names and an array of gifts informally assessed at more than $35,000.

The photographers, permitted in her room only 10 minutes to shoot still pictures, television tape and movie film on a pool basis, reported Mrs. Fischer rather cheerful.

Monday night Mrs. Fischer and her husband, Andrew, 36, made a final decision on the names for the four girls.

Mary Ann, Mary Catherine, Mary Margaret and Mary Magadalene. The lone boy had been named James Andrew earlier.

However, the babies will continue to be identified in their isolettes as A, B, C, D, and E on plastic bracelets because the names are too long for the bracelets.

Kennedy Says Foreign Aid Cuts Will Damage U.S. Export Trade

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Kennedy told a group of United States businessmen today that "disastrous" cuts by the House of Representatives in the foreign aid fund would damage U.S. export trade as well as its security.

In a speech before 400 executives at the White House Conference on Export - Expansion, Kennedy made a bid for industry support in the administration's push for restoration of the aid money in the Senate.

"If you will join us now in seeking to reverse these disastrous cuts," he said.

Although the two-day export conference was called to enlist business co-operation in the government-wide effort to eliminate the balance of payments deficit, Kennedy devoted a third of his address to what he called "our much abused foreign aid program."

The White House foreign aid request was $4,900,000,000 but the House-approved cuts by the House foreign affairs committee and the House itself, the authorization bill now calls for

Kennedy said the U.S. will strike out for "bold but inevitable involvement in expanding world trade."

He was challenging the other nations of the world to join in unlocking new wealth and new energies for a task "as large as the task," Kennedy added.

"We now are committed in the Trade Expansion Act to full participation in a world market of vast dimensions," he said, urging American exporters to "meet more than ever before in world competition—including price-cutting.

"The new World war is a land of competitive pricing. The Old World will be called upon arms and rigid price maintenance. Now I read that the exports of Japan have been increasing expanded more rapidly than ours because their businessmen have been more competitive—because European producers, unlike American producers, regard production as inevitably producing prices in order to maintain production by maintaining prices by production to maintain

Car Hits Pole, Driver Suffers Broken Jaw

TRENTON — A patch of fog and a hydro pole last night combined to put a Bloomfield man in Trenton Memorial Hospital, Eric Rowe, of Bloomfield, is in satisfactory condition in the hospital, suffering from a broken jaw.

Mr. Rowe was driving on the Redeserville road about 10 p.m. yesterday, when he went through a patch of drifting fog. Blinded, he lost control of the car, which struck a hydro pole. Rowe was thrown from the car, onto the road.

Russell ambulance of Trenton, took Rowe and a passenger, William Delabois of Trenton, to Trenton Memorial. Rowe was admitted, and Delabois examined and released. Damage to the car has not yet been estimated.

Bridge Swinging Hours Talked Over in Council

TRENTON — The question of bridge swinging hours for 1964 occupied a considerable amount of Trenton council's time last night.

On August 20, council wrote to the bridge swung at roughly two-hour intervals next summer. For the past year or so, the bridge has been swung at the bridgemaster's discretion. This method, claims council, has caused endless traffic tie-ups and worked a real hardship on the motorist.

In Mr. Farmer's reply, read to council last night, it was suggested that the bridge be swung every hour, (roughly), starting at 8.30 a.m. and ending at 5.30 p.m. and including the hours of 12 noon and 5 p.m. Mr. Farmer commented that the two-hour swinging schedule, suggested by council, would be extremely detrimental" to the boating public, which, he said, had increased rapidly in numbers in recent years.

Council will reply to Mr. Farmer that other factors, such as the hold up of fire crews and ambulances also enter into the picture.

Councillor C. V. Graham told council that recently a motorist aside resident almost bled to death while awaiting an ambulance held up by the swinging of the bridge.

Councillor Ross Burtt asked that the Mayor be notified that if anyone died as the result of an ambulance or a fire engine being delayed by the bridge, the department officials could have it on their conscience.

All councillors were agreed that the department should be reminded that if Trenton had a second bridge, council wouldn't care of the present bridge were swung every 15 minutes." (Councillor Graham).

A copy of the letter to Mr. Farmer will be sent to Robert Temple, MP for Hastings West.

Objection to Town Engineer Attending Meet in Montreal Raised by Councillor Burtt

TRENTON — During a stormy two-and-half hour session of Trenton council last night, Councillors Ross Burtt, Edward Todd, Duncan McDonald, James Duncan and Claude Graham discussed traffic problems, parking problems, hedge trimming and whether or not the town engineer should attend a convention in Montreal. Councillor Gerald Werrer and chairman Councillor C. W. Larry were absent, attending another meeting in town and tax collector Alan Weaver and Mayor James MacDonald conducted the meeting and acted in the role of peacemakers from time to time.

Councillor Burtt objected to town engineer Eric Alderesy attending the Montreal convention as he claimed that there was a by-law on the books to the effect that town officials and the engineer in particular they are held in the province of Ontario.

"If we're not going to adhere to our by-law, we might as well rescind it," said Councillor Burtt.

"But what if it's for the good of the town?" asked the mayor. "Mr. Alderesy has been down back a detailed report of conventions and he has asked for subsidies for the town by things he found out at such conventions."

"I've been to lots of conventions which were no good," interjected Councillor Burtt, "everyone had a heck of a good time, tho'".

"If that's the way you feel about it, why not do away with conventions?" snapped Councillor Duncan. "We agreed at the committee meeting (public weeks) to let him go, and you're not at the committee meeting."

"How the heck can I keep track of when you have committee meetings?" queried Councillor Burtt. "You have them Tuesday one week and Thursday the next. One time they're in the afternoon and the next time at night."

ON VACATION

Mayor MacDonald interjected that, instead of having extra committee meetings for times when the majority of committee members could attend.

"What about the fire chief?" Councillor Duncan insisted, "He was off to a convention in Winnipeg."

"He was on his vacation," replied Councillor Burtt.

"I think we should make a new resolution restricting the rate of pay for town employees to conventions rather than the area where they are held," suggested Councillor McDonald.

"I agree," said Councillor Todd, "Sometimes the people from the conventions can't even get hotel accommodation in certain cities."

In the final analysis, Mr. Alderesy was given the green light to attend the Montreal convention.

Councillor Burtt also took umbrage at a council decision to defer a building permit to Glynn Jones, to get permission from the Committee of Adjustment for a building he wished to erect. Mr. Alderesy, Dr. Jones, had not done this and had actually gone ahead with the building, without the approval or consent of the committee's approval.

Mr. Alderesy's building on his own property," said Councillor Burtt, "You've given letters of tolerance to persons in his newer areas. But this seems to be a horse of a different color."

The Committee of Adjustment has the power to allow Dr. Jones to extend his building," said Mr. Alderesy, "He just chooses not to go before the committee."

It was decided that Mr. Alderesy, as zoning administrator, should write Dr. Jones and ask him to cease all operations before continuing with his addition. The building inspector will also be asked to visit Dr. Jones.

Later the councillors agreed to revert to the original plan for widening Dufferin Ave. Originally, it was proposed to be installed along the west side of the street. A resolution to delete the sidewalk and keep the plans will be revoked. By the original plan, 21 trees will be removed, 10 of the 21 Dufferin Ave. residents objected to the plan when it was first proposed. Council has decided that the trees can be replaced by new ones, although the mayor backed up the parks board he asked to arrange for the planting of "good" fall-proof trees (new ones planted after the old ones were removed, (the work won't be done this fall, Mayor said the town engineer).

"I think we'd agreed to save the tree," he said, "Who's changed the plans now? Remember the people to save the trees. New trees will cost $25 or $50 or more apiece."

BUY TREES THIS FALL

It was noted with some of the residents and they said, 'for gosh sakes do it right when you do it'." (Councillor Burtt).

"But we should ask the Parks' Board to set aside the money for good young trees this fall and plant them at the earliest opportunity," insisted the mayor.

Councillor Lloyd Wesse had written to council asking that he be relieved of his duties as chairman of the parks committee and as a member of the traffic committee. Mr. Wesse explained that he and his wife are taking an extended vacation away from Trenton. He said he'd like to enjoy the winter and would be glad to serve at another time. A letter of commendation will be sent to Mr. Wesse and council will "think about" replacing him on the committees. Possibly, the seats will be left vacant until after the first of the year.

"How much can your community afford this year?" started off a letter asking that the Ontario Provincial Police to 16 as Fire Prevention Week. Nine out of ten fires are preventable, said the letter. Council was asked to co-operate with the local fire department in marking fire Prevention Week. Fire Chief Cecil Ellis and his men will conduct inspections of schools, factories, stores and other buildings during the week and the object of the special week will be to give publicity in newspapers and on radio and TV.

On the subject of traffic control, Councillor Edward Todd and the local police department are both dissatisfied with the markings on Dundas Street west at Division which direct those motorists who wish to proceed westward to stick to the right hand lane and those wishing to make a right hand turn to keep to the middle lane.

LEAVE STREET ALONE

"This isn't normal traffic procedure," said Councillor Todd, "I feel that someone's going to be killed there. Whose responsibility will that be....the town's?" It was agreed to town solicitor Roderick Campbell.

Mr. Campbell said it would only be a liability on the town if a motorist, obeying the townmade directives, slammed into a brick wall or ended up in the opposite traffic lane.

Technical engineer Aris Hoogeveen, who has recently passed examinations in connection with traffic control, said that no motorist is obliged to follow out the town's directives at this corner, as other rules and regulations are included in the traffic control manual.

"Other cities mark their streets in the same way," said

President Norm Storms and about 10 club members went to the meeting in Huntsville, to state the club's case. The affiliation had been planned since the inception of the club, but C.A.S.C. regulations provide that a new club must operate for one year before affiliation can be granted.

The 10,000 residents of the parish moved inland, most to Lake Charles and Sulphur.

"Take me to any city marked like that corner," retorted Councillor Todd. "Such corners are rife with light directing motorists."

However, the corner will stay marked as it is, until the widening of Division Street, takes place. Council took no action to change the flow of traffic on this street by agreeing to buy 4 signs from the Centre Theatre for $500 last night.

Two other town employees, Carl Charlton and Douglas Jaggey, were commended by the mayor and council for past, past exemplary service. Each citation was presented with a passing certificate from Queen's University to the mayor. He is now a qualified assessor. Mr. Jaggey was complimented for passing his chartered accountant's examinations.

Rotarians Urged To Attend District Meet

Members of the Rotary Club of Belleville were honored with the presence of distinguished persons at their noon-hour luncheon on Monday.

The first of the two prominent guests to be introduced was Miss Elizabeth Appeal 1963 Miss Gail Walker. After being introduced to the members by Rotarian Norm Keith, Miss United Appeal said she would like to take the opportunity to ask all those present for their support during the United Appeal Campaign. She also thanked the club for their invitation.

The second prominent figure to be introduced to the club was guest, speaker, J. Caulder, speaking on behalf of Rotary International.

In opening, Mr. Caulder said he was ordered by his superiors to visit all of the clubs and make sure that they would be attending the District Convention being held in Toronto in June, 1964. Mr. Caulder said when he said yes, he didn't know he was going to have to call on over 80 clubs.

Mr. Caulder's life in Rotary has been both strenuous and interesting. He was first introduced to Rotary some 56 years ago when he joined the Rotary Club in Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan.

He said it was intriguing that Rotary now has 11,500 clubs, being the largest organization in the world, spread untouched by any other organization.

The speaker stressed the importance for Belleville club members to attend the forth coming convention.

NEED ENTHUSIASM

He says the excuse, "I am too busy to go" is rather hard to believe and that he refuses to believe it. "I don't think it is because you are too busy I think it is because a lot of the enthusiasm isn't there."

"The Rotary butterflies have to be recharged" he said, and I believe we have lost much of the enthusiasm that was there 40 years ago."

Mr. Caulder went on to say that when he was elected governor two or three years ago, the district convention was being held in Fort William. "There were 90 members in the Moose Jaw club and 60 of them travelled a total of 1,600 miles where they attended the convention for three days."

"I wish you could get to these different countries and see the way that Rotary is looked up to", he said.

"It is a tremendous organization and is quickest way to get you to realize this is to get you to the convention in Toronto", said Mr. Caulder went on to explain the program that has already been mailed to the members.

In closing, Mr. Caulder told a short story about a great man in Rotary, Jim Davidson, one of the first members of Rotary. He said Mr. Davidson spent $10,000 of his own money in an attempt to put Rotary around the world. After accomplishing his great ambition, he returned home where he died a short time later.

"Fellows, that's something wonderful in Rotary and if you will just come to the next June, you can't help but come back a better man."

The speaker was introduced by charter member, O. H. Scott and thanked on behalf of club by Rotarian Joe Deneau.

Visiting Rotarians and guests were introduced by A. Stalker. The meeting was presided over by vice-president Stan Reston, in the absence of president, Ronald Case.

Dead Girl's Sister Says Accused Told Her 'I Had to Kill Her, She Didn't Love Me Any More'

The prosecution today neared the end of its case against Joseph Leonard Coombs charged with the capital murder in the stabbing of his girl friend, Deceased Sharon Margaret Frost.

Yesterday, as the trial of the 22-year-old Peterborough parking lot attendant opened before Mr. Justice E. G. Moorhouse, testimony was heard from:

The dead girl's married sister, Mrs. Norma LaCroix who testified Coombs told her: "I had to kill her. She didn't love me any more."

A woman in on the jury for the first time on known record a woman juror has been impanelled to hear a capital murder in Hastings County.

Yesterday the accused man's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Coombs, sat in the front row of public seats, immediately behind the dock. Coombs is being defended by Ronald Cass Q.C. assisted by Thomas Lally.

Mrs. LaCroix was the third witness called to the stand yesterday by prosecuting. Crown Attorney John Pringle. Her testimony was interrupted at times by efforts to control her emotions, which at times rendered her testimony almost inaudible in the court room.

ALLOWED TO SIT

Mr. Justice Moorhouse took her place on the witness stand she was given permission to remain seated throughout her testimony by His Lordship.

She said her sister and Coombs had their first visit together at the LaCroix home about Labor Day. They returned together about three times after that. The weekend before Thanksgiving they stayed Friday night.

Mrs. LaCroix said an argument developed between the two as they played cards and Coombs struck her sister, saying she didn't want to return to Toronto.

Then he said: 'If that's all you think of me' — or words to that effect — 'then you can get back the hell to where you know how."

Continued Mrs. LaCroix: "I said 'Sharon, are you going to stay?' and she said 'Yes — I don't want to go back with him.'"

Between 9.30 and 10 p.m. that night, Mrs. LaCroix said, Coombs phoned and she told him her sister was not returning to Toronto.

In the following days, she testified, Coombs phoned every day. "He was quite persistent." About 11.30 a.m. the day of the murder (Sept. 5 Thursday) he phoned again and asked if Sharon ready to talk to me."

"I said she was not," she replied: "She doesn't want to talk to you and she doesn't want to hear anything you have to say to you so will you please leave her alone."

She said: 'I want to hear her say that.'"

Mrs. LaCroix said she then asked her sister to "say it loud enough so he can hear."

QUOTED GIRL'S WORDS

She quoted the girl's words as: "I don't want to talk to him and I don't want to see him again."

"He said: 'Yes that's all I want to know'."

Later that afternoon, Mrs. LaCroix said she was in the kitchen when she saw a strange car pull into the driveway.

"There was this awful — like a bang — at the door," she testified, and her sister came into the kitchen. Mrs. LaCroix said she ran to the phone to call the police but Coombs followed her into the kitchen. He told her to "stay away from the phone" and grabbed her by both hands.

She recalled her sister saying: "You haven't got any ties with me. He said: 'What do you mean'"?

Coombs pulled her sister into the dining room where Mrs. LaCroix said she hammered on the door. Her voice halted by sobs, she described the scene.

"And I said 'Please let me in' and he wouldn't let me. And I could see I had been in there.

"So I went back to the phone and phoned the police."

Then, she said, she grabbed her baby and ran to a neighbor's across the road. On told the court "I went to go in the house and he was coming down the stairs and then the kitchen door was open. She said she told him: "Please don't hurt the child, Coombs."

Then, at the witness should be sitting here," he commented.

Mrs. LaCroix continued: "And I said 'don't hurt her and don't hurt the children.'"

"She quoted Coombs' reply as: "I had to kill her Norma. She didn't love me any more."

FOUND ON FLOOR

She said she went in the house to the bathroom. "I went down there and she was lying on the bathroom floor. . . ."

Mr. Cass retired the case to the first time the accused man and Miss Frost first came to the LaCroix home in 1962.

"At the time I gather they were going out together in Toronto."

"Yes."

"I take it that you didn't disapprove too seriously because he came back again - - and your sister he was obviously a nice person?

"He never did anything wrong at our house," Mrs. LaCroix replied.

"Up to this last occasion he never acted abnormal, did he?"

"No. He did not."

She admitted she did not know the girl had left after the argument the weekend preceding her sister's death.

Mr. Cass again queried if Coombs' alleged final statement to her was: "I had to kill her. She didn't love me any more."

He said he was not sure.

Coombs' car, a white Chevrolet Impala, was then introduced as an exhibit.

Mr. Cass asked if the witness had ever been in the car.

"Yes."

Mr. Cass examined the car and found a blood-stained overcoat and pants from Coombs. Majority of the blood stains on the coat were classified as "group O" with several identified as group A.

Said Mr. Pringle: "Lady and gentlemen of the jury it is an agreed fact between counsel for the defence and myself that Leonard Joseph Coombs' blood is of type A and Sharon Frost's blood is of type O."

18 STAB WOUNDS

In cross-examination, Mr. Cass queried the officer on the car stuck in the driveway.

"My recollection is that Leonard Coombs arrived in that vehicle. is there any evidence that you have that Leonard Coombs entered the vehicle or tried to enter the vehicle at any time?

"Not that I know of."

"This is not something now related to you that you have had deliberate situation — to get out of a car one knew to be stuck?" Crown Attorney replied.

As the officer pondered his answer Mr. Cass said that "in a planned and deliberate situation" some plan of escape would be made.

Corporal Howting agreed had, he himself been involved, he would "have given up the idea."

Coombs had been counted on the girl's body.

"It would be fair to say there were 18 stab wounds counted on the girl's body.

He recounted a list of toilet articles he noticed undisturbed in the bathroom — with the exception of a razor blade.

"I assume from that — in any event, generally speaking — there appeared to be no struggle of any nature?"

"Generally speaking, sir," agreed corporal Howting.

WANTED HEAVIER CAR

In cross-examination, Mr. Cass noted to the officer the accused man had been examined by Dr. H. S. Johnson.

"And I suggest to you that Dr. Johnson at that time was able to smell the odor of alcohol on his breath?"

"Well, I have heard about that," answered the constable.

He agreed "in all the circumstances" of first meeting the accused man about the store in the child.

Want Slice of Pension Boost

Homes for the aged, both publicly and privately operated, are considering increasing their maintenance rates. Old age pensioners are soon going to have more money and the homes want some or all of it.

It is understandable that the United Ontario Council of Senior Citizens should view such a development with distaste.

Still, a case can be made out for the operators of these homes. If they are privately-owned institutions, dependent in the past on charity to meet the deficit between what they charge a pensioner and what it costs them to house and feed such a person, they are under no obligation to ignore the fact that pensioners may no longer be in need of charity.

The case for an increase of rates in publicly-owned homes is even stronger. There is no reason why taxpayers should provide double support to, some but, not all, aged and destitute people.

At the same time, it behooves the boards operating such homes to make certain the inmates are getting full value for their money, that the fact pensioners have more money is not made an excuse for accepting higher costs as inevitable.

The majority of pensioners, though, are not inmates of homes. They, too, fear that a major portion of their $10 increase may be absorbed by higher rents. It is, of course, impossible to judge all cases. There may well be instances where landlords are now accepting a lower rent from pensioners that they could obtain on the open market. In the majority of cases, though, rent has required a high portion of pensioners' income. They need the increase to offset higher prices for food and other necessities, and to provide, if possible, a few simple comforts.

It will be unfortunate if a widespread round of rental increases deprives them of the major portion of the coming increase. Without rental controls, however, this can only be prevented by consumer resistance. Senior Citizens groups would be well advised to give every possible assistance to pensioners in seeking new accommodation if increased rentals are demanded. Municipal councils might well instruct their welfare departments to aid by compiling a directory of suitable accommodation available at reasonable rentals. The federal government, which has announced that rents in government-controlled housing projects for elderly people will not be raised, is setting a good example.

Not Two But Three Pension Plans

As the provincial election campaign draws to a close, more and more is being heard about the issue of pensions, despite the repeated attempts of Premier John Robarts to have this question out of the realm of electioneering.

Some of the comment can be misleading.

For instance, the Toronto Globe and Mail said: "The Quebec plan will provide development capital and Mr. Robarts must consider the effect this would have on Ontario's capacity to compete with Quebec in retaining and attracting industry."

The inference is that Ontario may have to match Quebec's policy, in order to assure that it maintains pace with its neighboring province in economic development.

If this is true, it would probably require a radical change in the Ontario plan.

We say "probably" because the details of the Quebec plan are not yet known. There is good reason to believe that Premier Jean Lesage envisages some plan which would require the investment of pension contributions within Quebec. No such requirement is contained in the Ontario plan, which would merely utilize existing facilities for the purchase of pensions from private firms, with these firms investing the premiums in the normal way. With the Federal plan there would be no contributions to invest, since they would be used to pay current pensions.

In a very real sense, therefore, we have not two but three pension plans, the Federal plan whose original details we know but which may be revised, the Ontario plan the principles of which have been drafted in full detail but which Premier Robarts has expressly stated he is prepared to revise to make it compatible with the Federal plan and a Quebec plan the likely details of which can only be guessed from a study of the inferences of statements by Quebec politicians.

Combine Parliamentary Post Offices in Efficiency Move

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Don't look now, but a small measure of "reform," after all these years, finally is in the Parliament Hill works for the Senate . . . "reform," that is, of its own private post office service.

In the interest of efficiency and economy, Senate Speaker Maurice Bourget and House of Commons Speaker Alan Macnaughton have agreed to pool the "Red" and "Green" post offices, which, ever since Edward Windsor, Prince of Wales, tamped in the cornerstone of the Peace Tower at Centre Block, have sat side by side, without so much as a chalk-mark dividing them, on the ground floor of the great rambling sandstone home of Parliament.

Oddly, too, since the Senate traditionally has liked to consider itself a scratch above the less exalted Commons, the initiative came from Speaker Bourget.

As with the two Centre Block barber shops, some Senators do business with the Commons rather than their own private post office.

The simple reason is service. In the Commons post office, some 50,000 daily in and out tap for money orders, while in the Senate, the postal bank seldom carries as much as $1,000.

But this did little to eliminate the many unnecessary duplications of costs . . . among them, for example, the $3,200 the Commons and the $1,500 the Senate spend in hauling their mail from the Capital's main postal office for federal government Hill, in separate trucks, of course.

Now that after 94 years, the two branches of Parliament are going to make do with the single post office, some duplication will be erased, except, naturally, as these things are always done, for federal government circles, the double payroll.

Nobody will be discharged or even laid off, but instead, all hands will be allowed to work out their 35 years of pensionage when the unnecessary doubling up on jobs will be abolished.

THAT GAL JUDY:

The day the federal provincial conference on pensions convened here in the Capital, the all - male Parliamentary press corps was waiting outside the door of prime minister Pearson's office for his big announcement and spelling out of the details of that $10 increase and, as the pay-off, went in to old age pensioners.

But instead of the prime minister emerging, out came Health and Welfare Minister Judy LaMarsh who has been handling all the federal-provincial negotiations with the provincial governments.

Without a word, she picked her way through the visit-keeping correspondents, and went tripping on down the hall.

"Excuse me, Judy," said one of the newsmen, obviously suspecting another scoop that Judy LaMarsh had the official announcement of the pension increase, "where you going?"

"In here," grianed Judy as she pushed on a door marked "Ladies," vastly amused at the look of confused consternation and embarrassment flushing the reporter's face.

LAMARSH ON A DIET

Health minister La Judy has been putting on weight since she kicked the cigarette habit.

Friends knew it, but of course, did not like to say anything about it.

It was left to a young cub reporter the other day to do the undiplomatic thing.

"Been putting on weight off cigarettes?" he asked bluntly.

"Frald so," allowed Miss LaMarsh, realistically facing facts.

"Like how much do you weigh?"

"Is it is a lady's own business," beamed La Judy, "but I guess I don't have to tell you like too much."

"Diet?"

"Frald so."

The last minister of national health and welfare to go on an diet was External Affairs minister Paul Martin Sr. in the days of the St. Laurent Cabinet.

He had climbed well over a far-too-roly-poly 200 when suddenly, he went on black coffee, melba toast and un-sugared fresh strawberries.

Cut right back to a relatively trim, slim 180, and by dint of a daily summer swim in the Rideau River - - the Chateau pool a couple of times a week in winter - - has remained there ever since.

Keep Functions Of Landlord, Tenant Apart

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A couple dropped in for tea last Sunday afternoon, and during the conversation the wife mentioned that they had been shopping for an apartment, but with no success.

Knowing that she owned a handsome building in a most desirable location, I asked her why she didn't take an apartment in her own property.

"It would drive me crazy," she shrugged. "As the tenant, I'd expect the owner to pay for all the repairs and decorating — but as the owner, I'd insist that the tenant take better care of the apartment. My nervous system couldn't stand such a strain!"

We all laughed, of course, but her jest was rooted in serious fact. She was really saying that she prefers to keep her functions as landlord and as tenant quite separate — because combining them might force her to give up a viewpoint she now finds comfortable and profitable.

The tremendous size and complexity of our society has given each of us a specialized task and role to play; and it has become dangerously easy for each of us to consider his separate function as the whole person.

We are the landlord, the tenant, the banker, the workman, the stockholder, and so on. These roles are usually so demanding, in their specificity, that we forget ourselves as a human entity, and become only part of a person. The part that is directly engaged in making a living and protecting our possessions.

Perhaps we can see the problem more clearly with an everyday illustration. When the average man is driving his car, he is a motorist, and pedestrians are menaces or fools who owe it to his sworn enemies; when he is walking, however, he becomes a pedestrian, and then the motorist is seen as the lunatic foe.

Yet, above both the motorist and the pedestrian is the higher concept of the good citizen, who wants justice and fair treatment for walkers and drivers alike, and whose attitude does not depend on whether he happens at any given moment to be walking or driving.

The lady who refused to move into her own home, thereby denying her unity as a person, is preferred to think of herself only as a separate function. Her attitude, while understandable, is the greatest single stumbling block in the way of a decent and flexible social order — for, until we are willing to put ourselves in another person's place, to incorporate his view in ours, we selfishly obstruct any vision of a better world.

20 YEARS AGO

Ever awake to the possibilities of keeping Ontario lakes in the limelight as fishing resort for tourists and vacationists, the Department of Game and Fisheries has been placing lake trout fingerlings in the lakes of North Hastings. The fingerlings were placed at the request of the Belleville and district Game and Fish Protective Association. No estimate as to the number of fingerlings was given.

Following a spring and summer of unprecedented high levels, the water in the Bay of Quinte is slowly but surely lowering toward previous normal levels, a visit to the Belleville waterfront this morning revealed. For the past three or four weeks waterfront interests have noticed a gradual lowering of the bay water until it is now approximately eleven to twelve inches below the all-time high recorded during the spring months.

When inmates commenced removing entire window frames from the cell block at the city police station Chief R. W. Prefontaine thought it was about time to make the building more secure and assure the incarceration of inmates. Last week members of the city police department found an entire window frame in the men's cell block had been dislodged, but fortunately had not been removed from its position in the wall. At that time no serious attempt had been made to effect escape.

Cosmetic Plastic Surgery Is Sometimes Complicated

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My problem is a large nose. I hope you can recommend a plastic surgeon in my vicinity? I've heard that the price for a nose operation ranges from $500 to $900. Is this true? What about the surgery we have in B. C.

If the size or shape of your nose is annoying enough to warrant an operation, consult a plastic surgeon.

Your estimate of the cost is reasonably correct, but it may vary.

This is not minor surgery. It entails problems far beyond the removal of some tissue.

Cosmetic plastic surgery demands careful study of the face, from the sides and the front, with photographs and sketches. Then measurements are made to determine how much bone and other tissue must be removed to give the desired effect.

Some people with an oversized nose (or some other feature they don't like), jump to it to conclusion that correcting the fault will change their appearances completely. It won't. It will change just the nose. In short, they expect too much, and the only safe and sensible course is to make sure that they know the limitations in advance.

I am not saying this to discourage plastic surgery, but to try to avoid disappointment and to increase satisfaction afterwards.

The best way to find out how much any type of surgery will be is to discuss it with the surgeon. He can give you an accurate estimate.

I can't recommend a surgeon. Ask your own regular physician. He knows your circumstances.

You can also inquire at a good hospital, or else consult your county medical society.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a cyst on my head about the size of a hickory nut. It doesn't hurt but it obstructs when I comb my hair. If I have it removed, is it liable to give me trouble or pain, or become malignant. — P. G. I.

A cyst like yours doesn't tend to become malignant. If it is a nuisance, have it removed. The surgery is usually (not always) a simple and safe procedure.

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes my skin to be extremely sensitive after shaving? I am 63 and have only been bothered with this in recent months. — S. D.

Skin texture can become more sensitive with age. This condition doesn't always occur, however.

Consider the more frequent possibilities that are found for such sensitivity:

1. Have you changed your shaving soap or cream recently? If so, go back to the one you formerly used.

2. Is your razor adjustable? If so, changing it to a lighter setting may be helpful. (You might also note whether you have switched the brand of blades. A keener blade, which may cost a bit more, may be a profitable investment, comfortwise.)

3. Consider changing from a razor to an electric shaver.

4. Wash the face with warm water before applying shaving soap or cream. This will soften the beard and permit shaving with less irritation.

5. And last of all, what about after-shave lotions? The skin may be sensitive to something in one brand and not in another.

Note to Lady Aged 85: Discontinue sodium sulfocreosiate, a stool - softening agent. It is not toxic so far as we have been able to determine after use by millions of people.

Are you bothered with ringing in the ears? If so, write to Dr. Molner, in care of the Chicago Tribune, Tribune Tower, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing 25 cents and the request 15 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed envelope.

Progress Alliance Stalled

Detroit Free Press

The Alliance for Progress is to be everything required in a man of affairs.

The really big barrier to the progress which the United States envisaged for the Alliance lies in these things.

At Punta del Esta they either were not noticed or were underestimated.

But they are recognized within the State Department now — and recognition of a problem is at least some progress.

The answer, however, doesn't seem to be arrived at and the Alliance for Progress is destined to have slow and discouraging going until it is.

Meanwhile, as one State Department man explained to us, the tough part is to be guilty neither of foot dragging nor of pouring money down a sinkhole.

It's a situation calling for great discernment, discretion and finesse — not to mention excasioning frequent resentment among Latin Americans whose standards for progress are low.

Changed Times

St. Thomas Times-Journal

Times have changed. People go not now about the time they used to come in.

Wage Boost Annoys Union

Fredericton Gleaner

A most unusual case has come before the courts in British Columbia which involves a union which is seeking an injunction against a Burnaby firm in order to prevent it from doing the wages and working conditions of its employees.

The union position is that these improvements constitute "bribes" intended to dissuade the employees in question from joining the union. This attitude is considerable doubt as to whether the union is genuinely interested in the employees' welfare or is only interested in furthering its own power and control.

Indeed a question which may well be asked is whether in this instance, unionism is a means to an end or, therefore, in point of fact, it has become an end in itself.

Killing Itself

Ridgetown Dominion

Years ago about ten ships a week sailed from Collingwood. Two of them ran direct to Fort William. The others took freight and holiday passengers through different sections of Georgian Bay's thousand islands. Today there is only a vestige of that traffic left. It was killed by the same $4.2 in the rail travel — the motor car. And the motor car now seems bent on killing itself by over growth.

PAA Holds First Meeting Of Fall Term

The Purchasing Agents' Association of Eastern Ontario recently held their first meeting of the season at the Tops Motor Hotel, presided over by H. Casselman of Brockville.

Mr. Casselman presented Mr. W. Templeton with his past president's pin. During the session, the Association held a plant tour of the H. Corby Distillery Ltd., at Corbyville.

Mr. R. H. Davis of Kingston announced plans for the annual spring conference to be held at Queen's University on April 4th, 1964.

W. K. Templeton gave a report on the educational program being outlined by C.A.P.A. This plan is designed to attain an academic recognized professional status such as P.C.A. (Professional Canadian Purchaser.)

Guest speaker for the evening was Mr. F. Balliatt, assistant distillery manager at Corby's Limited, and he spoke on the production of distillery industry. He dealt mainly with the process in the manufacturing of alcoholic beverages.

The speaker was introduced by J. Hunter and thanked on behalf of the Association by D. Laundry.

Two new members were accepted into the Association, introduced by J. Dowell of Brockville. New members were S. Walters of Brockville and L. Ling of Picton.

Attending from the Belleville area were J. Hunter, L. McBrien, K. Peoples, H. Hurley, S. Laundry, A. Stacey and B. Sheffield.

Between 1951 and 1960 the Soviet Union bought 20 times more goods from New Zealand than she exported to that country.

Water Tower Finally Ready For Re-filling

Belleville's water tower will hold water again, starting tomorrow. The repainting, begun last May and planned to be finished by the end of June, was finally completed last Thursday, according to PUC assistant manager H. N. Britton. Refilling of the tower should start tomorrow, Mr. Britton adds. The week's delay became a consideration of the painting and refilling of the tower was to give the paint on the outside time to dry.

The tower holds about 750,000 gallons, and it will take most of the day to fill it. The valves will be opened, and so long as pressure is maintained in the mains, the tower will fill, slowly, during off-peak periods. A sensing device inside the tank will indicate, at the pumping house, when the tower is full.

Since the end of May, when the tower was drained, the city has been operating on direct pressure from the pumphouse. This made little or no difference to the individual householder, but it was hard on the pumps, and on the pumphouse staff. With the tower back in operation, however, the weight of water in the tower will help maintain pressure in the mains, and even out the load for the pumps.

Commenting on the delay in completion of the job, Mr. Britton noted that the contractor had apparently not realized the full amount of work to be done in the repainting. "We feel we have a good job though," he added.

Bounty, Beauty of Garden County to Be Seen at Fair

PICTON — Unique among agricultural fairs in Ontario is the Prince Edward County Fair at Picton which opens Thursday and runs through Saturday. With the exception of horse classes, all entries are open only to the County with the idea of encouraging local exhibitors and eliminating the professionals who travel from fair to fair.

As a result of this limitation, more than four hundred persons in Prince Edward will participate in the week end show, contributing to a scene which reflects the bounty and beauty of the garden country.

"This is more than a Fair, it is a ball a dozen shows in one", said Leland Dorsser, president of Prince Edward Agricultural Society which was organized 118 years ago. He was referring to the fact that the Fair includes horse shows, cattle shows, a Garden Club exhibit and competitions, a poultry show, as well as the usual fair exhibits.

Boasting one of the finest fair grounds in Ontario, with modern buildings, directors of the Society have set an example of dramatizing exhibits which is being copied by many other fairs.

"Most Fairs rely on entertainment to draw the crowds, and while we have a good deal of that, our agricultural displays are such that thousands come to see them. We feel we are really serving the real purpose of fairs, that of promoting agriculture and encouraging the skills of the homemakers and others", said President Dorsser.

7,000 ENTRIES FILED

Busiest member of the executive is secretary-treasurer Phil Dodds who reports more than a thousand entries up to the week-end. "They are still pouring in", he said.

The Fair grounds is ready for them. Buildings have been painted and repaired, attractive settings have been arranged for each department and Wednesday night will see the hundreds of exhibitors converge on the building to place their exhibits so that they will be ready for public viewing on Thursday.

Unique also at Picton Fair is the opening parade, on Thursday. It is one of the biggest in Ontario with 3000 school children participating.

"While we hope that the weatherman will be kind: we are prepared for all sorts of kind of weather. Most of our attractions are inside and neither cold nor rain can stop us", said President Dorsser.

Chairman of the entertainment Committee, Creighton Lockyer reported today that plans are complete for some outstanding attractions. These include a horse show under the lights Thursday night; an old time fiddlers' contest also Thursday night; great variety show Friday night, and the Doc Williams show, with dance, from Wheeling, West Virginia, the final night. A parade and display of antique cars and horse cars are Saturday afternoon features.

It is expected that more than twenty thousand people will visit the County Fair at Picton during the three days this weekend.

Odd Fellows Hold Memorial Service

PICTON — A colorful parade featured the annual memorial service sponsored by Bay of Quinte Lodge and Macpelah Rebekah Lodge, IOOF, in Picton Sunday afternoon. Headed by the Odd Fellows band in their scarlet dress, the members, with flags flying, and wearing colorful regalia, paraded from the lodge hall to Glenwood cemetery.

At the entrance to the grounds, several hundred local members and visitors from other district lodges, and members of the Cantons from the wide area, gathered around the monument which the local lodges erected in memory of deceased brothers and sisters. The service was conducted by local and district officers, including Grand Master Earl Fox of Stirling and Ross Jeffery, DDGM.

At the County war memorial, a wreath was placed in memory of those who gave their lives in the world wars.

Later, there was a social time, with refreshments in the lodge hall.

Combine Forces Seeking Funds For Projects

PICTON — A two-in-one blitz was held Saturday night in Picton. When it was found that two different groups had scheduled canvasses in the area, a canvas of homes, it was decided to combine forces and have the canvassers do both jobs at the same time.

So, when the bell rang in town homes last night residents were asked to contribute to the Canadian National Institute for the Blind campaign to raise funds to aid the blind in Prince Edward County. They were also asked to sign cards pledging to give blood at the Red Cross blood donors' clinic being held in Picton, Oct. 7.

"We feel that people will appreciate having fewer calls and it helps solve the problem of finding sufficient canvassers," stated Mrs. Harry Slaven who heads the Blood Donors Committee which is sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary of Prince Edward County hospital. "During the summer holidays there has been a decrease in donations of blood and supplies are low. It is urgent that, for our own sakes, that as many as possible contribute at the next clinic," she added.

School Bd. Seeks Approval For New Sidney St. School

The Belleville Public School Board will seek approval from the Ontario Department of Education for the construction of a new seven room school in West Belleville to accommodate burgeoning school enrollments in that part of the city.

The proposed construction would be the first stage of a new senior building and would include kindergarten and play room as well as home economics and industrial arts and crafts.

Need for the new school accommodation was emphasized by an unexpectedly large enrolment for the five classrooms at Avondale School with school opening in September. Eighteen grade 6 pupils from this school are now being transported to Prince Charles School on a temporary basis.

OTTAWA, SEPTEMBER 16, 1963.

P.M., Cabinet Hold Talks With Companies

OTTAWA (CP)—One by one, Prime Minister Pearson and top members of his cabinet successively faced leading American corporation executives Monday for closed-door talks described by one official as "down to cases, with no time for platitudes."

The discussions, kept secret by agreement on both sides, were arranged by a private organization called Business International whose membership list includes such corporations as Ford, U.S. Steel, Boeing, Singer, Standard Oil, Sears Roebuck, Kaiser, and the big banks.

Seventy-four of the executives had separate talks Monday with Mr. Pearson, Industry Minister Drury, External Affairs Minister Martin, Health and Welfare Minister LaMarsh and a group of labor leaders including Donald MacDonald, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Labor Congress.

Other government officials will meet the visitors today while the business talks between and bankers will be on hand Wednesday.

Information said discussion ranged broadly over Canadian economic policy, the export drive, the balances of payments situation, unemployment and the role of U.S. subsidiary companies operating in Canada.

It was learned that Mr. Pearson and his ministers met heavy questioning on two subjects:

1. Mr. Gordon's June 13 budget announcement of a shift in the 15-per-cent withholding tax on dividends going abroad. The tax would be lowered to 10 -per cent for firms with at least 25-per-cent Canadian ownership, and raised to per cent start-ing Jan. 1, 1965, for others.

2. Trade Minister Sharp's speech last week in which he said "it may be necessary to seek new ways" to assure that U.S. subsidiaries in Canada do their utmost to increase their exports to the U.S. as well as to other foreign markets.

Western Farm Heads Welcome Big Wheat Sale

WINNIPEG (CP) — Western farm leaders welcomed the record Russia wheat sale Monday as a boon to the farmer and a shot in the arm to the national economy.

Other officials feared the sale would attract Canadian transportation and shipping facilities to the limit.

Alf Gleave of Saskatoon, president of the National Farmers' Union, said it will be necessary to allocate every transport available to the Canadian wheat board for the transportation of the grain."

Roy Atkinson, president of the Saskatchewan Farmers' Union said boxcars may have to be diverted from other uses to handle the load.

A. M. Runciman of Winnipeg, president of United Grain Growers, a co-operative grain handling firm, said the sale is the best news for western farmers in a long time.

It was "a lot bigger than we dared hope for when negotiations first began."

IN BIGGER QUOTAS

Another grain - handling official, President W. J. Parker of Manitoba Pool Elevators, said the wheat sale will result in bigger delivery quotas for farmers.

Herb Andersen, president of the Manitoba Farmers Union, said the big sale averted what would have been a serious grain storage problem for Canada.

Farmers may benefit additionally, he said, by getting a start earlier - than - usual final federal payment next year for wheat delivered to elevators.

himself to defy the law of the land and to deal with Negro citizens in Alabama as if they didn't live in the state."

The governor declined comment on the proposed march on the state capital and on King's accusation. He had said earlier he deplored the bombing and hoped the perpetrators would be caught.

They have not been caught. Neither have the persons who staged 21 other bombings in the last eight years.

Russia

paying—probably in dollars—25 per cent down and the rest over 18 months.

These financial conditions are the same as in the second long-term agreement with Red China for a maximum 186,700,000 bushels of wheat up to July 31, 1965.

Canadian wheat and flour exports are certain to hit a record 550,000,000 bushels—worth more than $1,000,000,000 — by next July 31, Mr. Sharp said. The record is 408,000,000 bushels in 1958-59.

Wheat and flour exports in the calendar year 1962 ran about 357,000,000 and totalled 333,000,000 bushels for the year ended last July 31.

Mr. Sharp indicated Monday at the public signing of documents that Canada might have sold more to Russia. But the physical demands of moving wheat and other grains into position—for domestic use and for regular customers abroad —limited the size of the sale.

WAS UNAWARE

Negotiations began Sept. 3 with Canada unaware of the magnitude of the Russian order. It followed the straight - cash purchase worth $22,000,000—for unspecified amounts—of Canadian wheat now being shipped.

After April 17, 1965, Russia will pay not under 18,700,000 bushels of wheat.

S. A. Borsosr, first deputy minister of foreign trade, signed the trade and wheat deals Monday—as he had done in 1956—when Canada sold flour to import wheat on adverse weather. Normally, the U.S.S.R. has enough wheat, plus considerable exports, he said.

More purchases might be made—but not in time, suppliers gather eastern Russian areas. But Canada must note that trade is a two-way street and that Russia has a wide variety of saleable goods.

More than half the wheat will be shipped from eastern ports although some will go to Cgapsla will be used, Mr. Sharp said. But Vancouver—a "serious bottleneck" during the record shipping—was being given to expansion—already is busy with Red China's and other Asian shipments.

This means a race to move enough wheat from the Prairies by winter's official end to avoid of seaway navigation Nov. 30.

After that, rail transport is needed the wheat by rail and this is more expensive. However, given a late fall, seaway shipping can continue past Nov. 30 date.

SHORT STOCKPILE GRAIN

But while laying down wheat and flour for Soviet - chartered ships, the Canadian wheat board must meet the needs supplies to regular customers and stockpile its usual amount of feed grains for Canada's farmers.

In a strictly cash deal, Cuba is getting $33,000,000 worth of the wheat and flour. Communist other amounts can go to other Communist countries in Europe.

Mr. Sharp said he hoped all concerned would co - operate to harden the wheat prices in the export terminals. The heads of the railways had been approached about the arrangements made about seaway shipping.

The Candian wheat board, Crown sales agency for Prairie wheat, oats and barley, would not be seeking any customers until the supply position had stabilized.

A new look has been created, meanwhile, for the prairie wheat pools—politically, which seemed headed back toward some surplus headaches.

This had been noted in a speech July 29 at Edmonton by Mr. Sharp, cautioning against expectations in the light of demand as seen then—of a substantial Prairie wheat acreage.

With the new crop and a carryover of 491,000,000 bushels, supplies totalled about 1,185,000,000 bushels — higher than for more than 10 years.

WILL TAKE ALL CROP

Exports of an anticipated 550,000,000 bushels plus domestic use of 150,000,000 bushels will absorb all the new crop and—if European crop damage is heavy enough everywhere—stimulate additional demand that may induce equally-heavy Prairie plantings again next spring.

In years of surplus, Prairie farmers have been restricted by mandatory delivery quotas. Now the market appears wide open—limited only by the capacity of the rail and seaway facilities to haul it into export position from small country elevators.

The farmer gets the main part of his price on delivery of his wheat. The rest comes in a final payment—or sometimes an interim amount as well—after the wheat pool calculates the full value of the sales.

In the last two years, this final payment has been paid in early March.

Party Leaders on the Hustings

Gamblers Have 'Friend' Inside Govt. Dept.

- - Wintermeyer

By CARL WOLLITS

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Ontario Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer charged Monday night that gambling syndicates have a friend inside the provincial secretary's department despite assurances of reform by the Conservative government.

The Liberal chief, leading his party's campaign for election Sept. 25 into the hometown of Premier John Robarts, concentrated his fire on the premier's cabinet colleagues, particularly Provincial Secretary John Yaremko. He referred to Mr. Yaremko as "a snarling rather horrible, something disgusting."

Mr. Wintermeyer said Liberal party leaders have seen files from the provincial secretary's office on social club charters which had been the subject of complaints by the police. The files were obtained for use before the Roach royal commission on crime last year over "strenuous objections" by Mr. Yaremko and on assurance that they would not be used outside the commission.

"The examination of those files shows clearly what the gambling syndicates have had, and still have, a friend inside the provincial secretary's department," Mr. Wintermeyer said.

"I do not—I repeat I do not —charge that this man is in the pay of gamblers. I simply do charge that there is wide gap between the police and on the side of the gamblers. . . .

KNOW WHO HE IS

"The people know who this man is. I feel, however, that the release of his name would be a violation of the commissioner's oath." Yaremko forced upon my representatives during the crime probe."

The Liberal leader said he would release the name if Mr. Yaremko would agree to waive the assurances of last year and permit Liberal watchdogs to safeguard the confidentiality of his department.

The friends of gamblers has not been demoted or reprimanded in any way since the crime probe, Mr. Wintermeyer said. He has been widespread trafficking in social club charters by the government, Mr. Wintermeyer said. "Indeed, he enjoys more influence and favor with the government before."

Mr. Wintermeyer suggested that the continued presence of the gamblers' friend in the government office was one of the things that led to the resignation last year of Premier Yaremko's deputy, R. J. Cudney.

"Mr. R. J. Cudney resigns and says he just can't take any more, I think we're dealing with something more than just a two-bit politician," Mr. Wintermeyer said in reference to Mr. Yaremko.

ARE FOUR RIDINGS

Mr. Wintermeyer pitched his speech to a four-riding rally in central collegiate here on the alleged failure of the Robarts regime to clean up corruption in the government.

He warned neighbors of Premier Robarts that support for him means also support for "sharpies in this tiny machine" in Mr. Yaremko. Lands and Forests Minister Kelso Roberts, Attorney-General Frederick Cass, Reform Institutions Minister Leslie Rowntree, Municipal Affairs Minister J. W. Spooner and J. R. Simonett are others without portfolio.

"You can't get one without the other," Mr. Wintermeyer said, "and the price is too high."

"We will not get the truth out of this Tory crew. All we will get is more cover-up and whitewash, more distortions and perversions."

Mr. Wintermeyer flew here from a television taping session in Toronto to support Liberal candidates in four Conservative-held ridings—lawyer Campbell Calder in London North, Premier Robarts' seat; leather manufacturer Harry Quigley in London South, held by John White; lawyer Ronald Caldwell in Middlesex North, held by William A. Stewart, and farmer Ronald Macfie in Middlesex South, formerly held by the late Harry Allen and being contested for the Conservatives this time by Neil Olde.

All four seats were won by the Conservatives in 1959 by margins of more than 2,000 votes. Mr. Quigley is married to the Liberal leader's sister, Lucy.

Robarts Asks For Full Term As Govt. Head

TORONTO (CP) — Premier John Robarts asked Monday for a full term at the helm of the Ontario government, as he made a coffee - and - cakes tour of five Metropolitan Toronto ridings.

Campaigning for the Sept. 25 provincial election, the premier rejected the "tired and seedier" label used on his Progressive Conservative administration by the opposition parties.

"This government is less than two years old," he said, referring to the date when he took over from former Premier Leslie Frost.

"All that we want is an opportunity for a full term," said Mr. Robarts. "Give us a chance and we'll show you what we can do in four years."

The premier campaigned through Eglinton, a traditional Conservative stronghold, and four new Metro ridings of Don Mills, East Scarb, York Mills and Armourdale.

In Eglinton, he cited upgrades of plans augmented by the administration in two years—the design of provincial aid for the east - west Spadina subway, grants for hospital construction, and provincial redistribution adding 10 ridings to the metro area.

SEES PROBLEMS

He said he recognized the mounting problems flowing from the greater concentration of population in urban areas.

At a press conference with editors of Toronto's ethnic press, the premier also declared that he was trying to sabotage the federal government's proposed contributory pension program.

He emphasized that the Ontario government is prepared to sit down and integrate its portable pension plan with the federal program.

But he said he wants to protect the interests of the 1,000,000 persons in the province now enrolled in private plans and to prevent the imposition of double levies on those who receive higher benefits.

"Is this a challenge?" he asked. "It just doesn't make sense to me that when the Ontario government was elected in North America in the field of portable pensions."

He said progress was being made on co-ordinating the two plans and hoped that the provincial election was called.

Then, said Mr. Robarts, his opponents had failed to portray his legitimate questions as the rejection of the federal Canada-wide plan.

"We want portability from the Atlantic to the Pacific, but a pension scheme that will last for generations," he said. "Let's get it right in the first place."

quest unacceptable and recalled its ambassador from Manila.

In Jakarta, Indonesia's government and military leaders affirmed their full support of President Sukarno's so - called policy of confrontation against Malaysia.

SEES AS FRONT

The Sukarno government, which is believed to have designs on Britain to maintain colonial influence in Southeast Asia.

Despite the tensions, diplomats believe the hostility is not likely to lead to war. Indonesia has the largest armed force in Southeast Asia, much of it Soviet-supplied, but appears unwilling to risk a direct clash with British forces that are pledged to defend Malaysia.

The Philippines opposition to Malaysia is based on Manila's claim to part of North Borneo.

'War of Nerves' Used Against R. J. Cudney

- - MacDonald

By DAVID DAVIDSON

GALT (CP) — NDP Leader Donald MacDonald said Monday that a "war of nerves" has been conducted against Robert J. Cudney who resigned Friday as deputy provincial secretary.

"It is strange that a Tory government, or so many in it, should condemn a man for telling the truth under oath," he told a press conference before a round of grass roots campaigning in the traditionally Progressive Conservative riding of Waterloo South.

"This is another example of the persistence and calculated effort on the part of the Progressive Conservative government to keep things from the public."

Mr. Cudney was a witness for the royal commission under Mr. Justice W. D. Roach, studying illegal organized crime in Ontario.

"He (Mr. Cudney) was determined to tell the truth whether or not it was embarrassing to the government."

The NDP leader said, it is "difficult to predict" the effect of Mr. Cudney's resignation on the Sept. 25 provincial election.

FAILING FUTURE

At an evening meeting here, Mr. MacDonald said that Premier John Robarts' government is "failing future generations," because it has done enough to deal with the crisis in education which "has moved" with the warning of tables through our education system during the last 15 years."

The NDP leader spread off smugly dwelling on the fact that there has been a great expansion of our university facilities, and inserting high priced education ads across the province claiming "university education available to all," as the Tories have been doing, must face the fact that there is a desperate shortage of university facilities.

Mr. MacDonald told an election meeting in support of Waterloo South NDP candidate Max Saltsman that as a result of this shortage entrance requirements have been raised so that many young people who should be entitled to a university education have been admitted.

The NDP chief said that the solution to the problem "obviously lies in a greater expansion of both university and institute of technology facilities."

He said that there is a great amount of capital required for expansion of higher education and the federal government should press Ottawa to "meet its 50 per cent capital assistance grant that has made the great expansion possible in the technical and vocational facilities."

Health Minister Defends Canada Pension Plan

TORONTO (CP) — Health Minister Judy LaMarsh said Monday night that under Ontario's proposed pension scheme, "the government is selling insurance on behalf of the companies, which only have to sit back and collect the premiums."

"The Canada Pension Plan is a scheme for the people, not for the insurance companies," Miss LaMarsh told a campaign rally here for the Sept. 25 Ontario election.

(The Globe and Mail said the health minister had "ignored advice from Liberal Ministers Lester Pearson to stop further specific comment" on the federal plan and "has entered into the campaign. The newspaper said Mr. Pearson was "perturbed" about previous comments by Miss LaMarsh directed at Premier Robarts.)

Miss LaMarsh flew into Toronto to begin a week of campaigning for the Ontario Liberals. She told two Liberal rallies here that if Ontario does not join the government plan, eight other provinces in Canada will be unable to support it.

WILL BENEFIT

The Minister said those who will especially benefit by the federal Liberal plan will be "persons who are not employed by large industries; those who cannot afford private plans; those people who have no pensions now."

She quoted Premier Roberts as saying that the insurance plan has to be funded—that is, built up financially before payments are made.

"But there is not one solitary dollar in the government plan in the world today," she said. "Under a government plan, it is the contributions in your country that is the fund."

Miss LaMarsh said some people are complaining that she is intervening in a provincial matter by speaking during the Ontario campaign, but, she added: "I have rights as a citizen of Ontario and I am particularly interested in this field."

She represents Niagara Falls in the House of Commons.

Boy Reads 100 Words In Second

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Teachers say a Pittsburgh boy can read 10,000 words a minute, has been clocked at 30,000 on several occasions and once hit 40,000 words a minute.

The ability of Bill Carmack, 17, of the city's Mt. Washington section was uncovered last spring while he was taking a speed reading course at South Hills High School.

"He's just one of those people who can glance at a page and tell you what's on it."

Last week, Bill demonstrated his reading ability for a reporter. The boy was handed a magazine story about Alexander the Great.

Bill started reading. The reporter just opened his notebook to record the time Bill started and the boy said:

"I'm finished."

Fifteen seconds had elapsed. The article was 1,500 words long. The boy then correctly summarized Alexander's military strategy and even the dates correctly.

The 10,000 words a minute is about 60 times faster than normal. At top speed, Bill could breeze through a 200-word newspaper column in one minute.

agreed to carry on until the first of the year.

Mr. Drew became national leader of the Progressive Conservative party in 1948 and headed the party in two unsuccessful general election attempts to "oust" the Liberal government of Prime Minister St. Laurent.

He resigned as party leader in 1956 after a series of illnesses and rigorous parliamentary sessions left him weary and in poor health.

Before entering national politics he had been premier of Ontario for five years.

Owen Sound Farmer Refused His Release

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Court of Appeal dismissed an attempt Monday to secure the release from mental hospital of an Owen Sound district farmer who has refused to pay taxes on a 100-acre farm of former Crown land for 16 years.

Farmer Frederick Wilmer Fawcett, 64, was certified insane by Mr. Justice W. F. Hills High School.

Lawyer Walter G. Williston, who promised to take the case to the Supreme Court of Canada if necessary, contended that Mr. Fawcett was illegally sent to an Ontario Hospital by an Owen Sound magistrate in October, 1961, for mental examination—an offence of conspiracy—including assaulting and pointing a firearm at a tax assessor.

Mr. Fawcett was never returned to court and the charges have been adjourned sine die.

Mr. Williston challenged the validity of the Mental Hospitals Act, contending that parts of it conflict with sections of the Criminal Code.

It was on these grounds that the three-member appeal court rejected the appeal, ruling that abundant testimony existed to Mr. Justice Spence's conclusion and sustained the issue of Mr. Fawcett's sanity was not raised in the appeal. They said it was the judge who complied with, and it did not conflict with the Criminal Code.

tour of five Metropolitan Toronto ridings and appealed for a full term at the helm of the Ontario government.

Today the premier heads to Sault Ste. Marie to begin a campaign swing in Northern Ontario. Mr. Winterseyer also goes north to Earlton, New Liskeard and Cobalt, while the NDP leader will stump his own suburban Toronto riding of York South.

Mr. Winterseyer, speaking in London, said confidential files of the provincial secretary's department showed that gambling syndicates had and still have a friend inside the department.

He said that an agreement between Mr. Yaremko and Liberal counsel made at the time of the Roach commission was what limited him from naming the man involved.

SHOULD NAME HIM

Mr. Yaremko, in an interview in Toronto, said the Liberal leader "owes it to the public to cast innuendoes on the whole department but to name names."

He said rules concerning the reading of confidential files into the record of the crime commission were made by the commissioner, Mr. Justice W. D. Roach.

In Toronto, Premier Robarts, in a statement issued by Mr. Yaremko suggested that Mr. Cudney had felt the Roach commission report had reflected on him.

Mr. Yaremko denied he had accused Mr. Cudney. "I deny flatly that I have harassed him. I deny flatly that I have insulted him. If anything, my attitude to him at all times has been kindly sympathetic and understanding."

Mr. Yaremko said there was no basis for Mr. Cudney's claims in his letter of resignation that reforms promised within the department had not been carried out.

NDP Leader MacDonald told a press conference that Mr. Cudney's resignation was "another example of the persistent and calculated effort on the part of the Progressive Conservative government to keep things from the public."

the United States to survive this long, were deluged with gifts, ranging from diaper service to college scholarships.

The offers included a four-year scholarship for James Andrew to St. Joseph's College in Philadelphia, scholarships to all five at Northern State College here, and scholarships for all four girls to two girls' schools, Presentation Junior College here and Mount Mary College at Yankton, S.D. The latter two are operated by orders of Catholic nuns.

MAY MOVE

The Fischers also faced a decision on whether to move to a different home when things settle down.

Their landlords, Mr. and Mrs. Elroy Herrington, offered to give the family the house now occupied, or land for a new home. The local Chamber of Commerce promised either to build the Fischers a new home, or buy them one. And there was an offer of free labor to build a new house.

Others gave new kitchen and laundry facilities for a new house, free landscaping and free moving service.

The babies themselves received insurance policies, stock certificates and every item of clothing and baby accessories possible.

There also was a year's supply of milk and five large teddy bears. Cash gifts ranged from $5 to $250.

Liberals

and Liberal leaders were interviewed Monday.

Gordon Churchill, Conservative Leader Diefenbaker's chief lieutenant from Western Canada, said he was pleased that the Liberal government was carrying on the Conservative drive to sell more wheat abroad. He expressed pride that "the policies pursued by our party now are bearing fruit."

Told of this, Prime Minister Pearson said: "I didn't know Mr. Churchill had such a sense of humor."

Asked whether he now suggests, as he did in Edmonton in July, that farmers curb expansion of wheat acreage, Trade Minister Sharp said: "I believe the comments I made then might still be useful."

And, asked what part if any former agriculture minister Alvin Hamilton had in negotiating the new Russian trade agreement, Mr. Sharp said: "I don't know what he will claim."

In Regina, Mr. Hamilton said in an interview the wheat sale to Russia is "a tremendous vindication" of the former government's policies.

Mr. Hamilton said he maintained last year that there was a market for at least 200,000,000 bushels a year of Canadian grain in European Communist countries.

He said that to allow Canada to move into this market, the federal Conservative government before its defeat last April 8 took certain steps including amendments of the Export Insurance Trade Act. The Russians "started to negotiate with us last February."

Mr. Hamilton added that he still feels there are more markets available for Canadian wheat behind the Iron Curtain in Europe.

Liberals Want Pension Increase By November

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—The government wants Parliament to approve the promised $10 increase in basic old age pensions in time for the new $75 cheques to go into the mail before the end of October, an official spokesman says.

The universal old age pensions, paid to everyone monthly at age 70, are mailed from provincial headquarters of the federal treasury in time to reach pensioners before the last banking day of the month.

Officials are hopeful that the new increase, announced last week by Prime Minister Pearson, will be approved by both houses of Parliament and given royal assent before mid-month, in order to complete the administrative machinery for mailing the cheques at the new rate.

Parliament resumes its session after a two-months summer recess Sept. 30. The old age pension increase bill is one of the first measures the government intends to introduce.

It will be an amendment to the Old Age Security Act, which is also the authority for levying special three-per-cent taxes on personal incomes, corporation profits, and manufacturers' sales for the old age security fund.

MEANS HIGHER TAX

The $10 increase is to be paid out of the fund through higher taxes.

While officially no firm decision has been made on the nature and extent of the tax increase, cabinet sources indicate an extra one per cent will be charged on personal incomes and corporation profits. At present the tax on personal incomes for the old age security fund is limited to $90 a year for each taxpayer.

No opposition to the increased pension is expected in any party in the Commons. Rather, there may be some demands that the increase be made even greater than $10.

But a political fight is likely, with the Conservatives and other opposition parties claiming victory in exerting pressure on the government to raise the rate earlier than the government originally planned, and the Liberals claiming credit for the increase, now or later.

Some opposition sources expected the pension increase bill would be used by the government as a parliamentary carrot, dangling it in front of the opposition as an enticement to pass other government legislation and give the minority Liberal administration further life insurance.

However, official government spokesmen indicate the government is more concerned about seeing the $10 increase reflected in the October pension cheques than about playing games with the opposition in the parliamentary timetable.

Montreal Designer, 78, Returns to Work After Six Years in Retirement

MONTREAL (CP) — Alfandri, a witty, 78-year-old Montreal designer who has been called the "old master" of Canadian fashion, has returned to work after six years in retirement, time with nothing to do."

ply "tired of retirement and time with nothing to do."

Born in Marseilles, France, the vigorous Mr. Alfandri has been involved in the fashion world for more than half a century. His views are as strong today as when he began designing in New York at 18. Later in his career he moved to Montreal where he ran a boutique for 29 years.

Now he designs exclusively for a firm that specializes in bridal fashions.

Alfandri is well known for his convictions — which hasn't changed since he began designing—that a woman should look like a woman.

In the 1920s against the advice of other designers, he introduced low - decolletage evening wear to the Canadian fashion scene.

"I wanted women to look indecent," he says with an impish grin, "I created dresses that had sex appeal. I still do."

He admits that his views aren't entirely shared by the majority of high - fashion houses in Canada. "They're afraid of clothes with sex appeal," he says. "That's why stores have to import such gowns."

WHIM IS KEY

The designer believes that the whims of women still determine fashion trends, "with a little push from European designers."

"You can make the most beautiful dress ever created, but if it isn't accepted, it isn't worth a damn."

He disagreed with the idea that Paris is "slipping" as the world's style centre. "Never," he said emphatically. "The New York designers certainly aren't the style-makers. Paris is the controller of style and always will be."

Alfandri, who says he came to Canada "for 30 days and stayed 38 years," still sticks to his former work habits. He is in his studio by 7 a.m. and back home by 7 p.m.

But "inspiration"—a word he says he dreads—might come at any time of day or night.

He recalled that he had been reading a photo - story on the coronation of Pope Paul VI and noticed cardinals walking with flowing trains.

"I thought a cape like that would be lovely for a wedding gown," he said. The result of his idea was a gown with a train patterned on a cardinal's cape—by Alfandri.

ANDERSON — PLANE

Christ Church, Belleville, was the scene of a recent summer wedding when Phyllis Eileen Plane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melville Plane, Belleville, was united in marriage to Clifford Ernest Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Anderson, Madoc. Rev. R. G. Fleming officiated before a background of pink and white carnations at the altar. White satin bows designated the guest pews.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a ballerina-length bridal gown of white rayon brocade, having a fitted bodice featuring a scalloped neckline, short sleeves and full skirt. Her headdress was a beaded band of white peau de soie which held a shoulder-length veil of nylon chiffon. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses.

Mrs. James Brooks, Owen Sound, sister of the bride, as matron of honor, wore a light blue peau de soie sheath dress featuring a knee-length overskirt. The bridesmaid was Miss Myrna Anderson, Ottawa, sister of the bridegroom, who wore a royal peau de soie sheath, identical to that of the matron of honor. Both wore white wimsey headdresses of rayon veiling, held in place with a garden, and carried bouquets of the white nosegay mums.

The demure little flower girl was four year old Miss Lynda Alexander, niece of the bridegroom, who wore a dainty frock of blue Switzerland cotton, having a full skirt accented by a light blue satin sash and bow. Her headdress was a circular band of tucked white nylon. She carried a basket of white mums.

The groomsman was Mr. Murray Johnston, Oshawa, cousin of the bridegroom. The ushers were Mr. Jack Alexander, Queensboro, brother-in-law of the bridegroom and Mr. James Brooks, Owen Sound, brother-in-law of the bride.

Following the wedding, a reception was held in the Canadian Legion Hall, Belleville, where the bridal table was prettily appointed with a three-tier wedding cake and bowls of pink and white carnation. The bride's mother, in a printed beige and brown silk jersey sheath with matching accessories and 'mum corsage received the guests, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a pink linen sheath with matching three-quarter length duster, white accessories and a corsage of white mums.

For the wedding trip to Cape Cod, Mass., Boston and other Eastern points, the bride chose a pale green linen sheath with matching overskirt, white accessories and a corsage of white mums.

Ann Landers

Even the Post Office Won't Accept Fifth-Rate Husbands

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Please print this letter for the woman who signed herself "Gypsy." She is the rich widow who is trying to buy a husband. She says she is miserable and lonely and her money is not bringing her happiness. She wants a husband and is willing to pay for one.

Well, Gypsy, you can have my lummox if you will pay for the divorce. He is exactly what you are looking for. Ed is in his middle fifties, nice looking, enjoys a good time and would just love to relax and let somebody support him.

Maybe for you, Gypsy, he would bathe and shave and get dressed up once in a while. For me he figures it's good enough to look like a bum. And you would never be lonesome with Ed because all he does is talk talk talk talk. But don't try to say anything, because his opinions are the only ones worth listening to.

Let me know if you want him. I'll send the jerk C.O.D. — MRS. HAD IT.

DEAR MRS. IT — Sorry, but when I checked with the postal authorities recently I learned it is against the law to send dead dogs in the mail. The same rules apply to fifth rate husbands.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My husband's oldest sister was widowed seven years ago. Her children are grown and she has a beautiful home, a nice income and a complete life. She has been the head of numerous charity drives in the community and she is considered a leading citizen.

We just learned that she is serious about marrying a man who clerks in a department store. They've been keeping steady company for several months but we never dreamed it would blossom into anything like marriage. To say we are shocked is putting it mildly.

This man is very ordinary in looks and his personality is nothing to write home about. If my sister-in-law marries him he will certainly damage her socially and she will be dropped by some of her better friends. I don't think she sees how this marriage will change her life totally.

Please print this letter. She needs your advice badly. — LAKE FOREST.

DEAR LAKE — She didn't ask for my advice and I'll bet she didn't ask for yours either.

You are right when you say this marriage might change her life, It could change it for the better. So why don't you get busy with a charity drive yourself, Toots? I don't think you have enough to do.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'm 16 years old, no great beauty but not what you'd call ugly either. I've a nice figure, look well in my clothes and I'm neat. I'd give anything if I could be popular with boys, but guess I never will because I don't know how.

My girl friend has fellows running after her all the time. I can't figure out how she does it. She isn't beautiful — in fact, she's far from it, but she has a way with fellows that really clicks. She gets three or four phone calls every night. Boys ask her to help them with school work; although she almost flunked math and science. They flock around her after class and date her up for school parties months in advance.

Why does she succeed with what seems like no effort? And why do I fail when I try so hard? — MISS BLAH.

DEAR MISS — The prettiest girl has no lock on popularity and neither does the ugliest. Your friend has learned how to make boys comfortable. They enjoy themselves when they are with her. She is both interesting and interested. Listen to her and watch her when she is with boys. You'll learn something.

Following opening procedures reports were given by the various convenors. The Guild will attend Corporate Communion in October. A rummage sale is planned for a future time.

The devotional was given by Mrs. R. Hickey and the meeting closed with the president giving the benediction.

Afterwards the members enjoyed a few games of euchre with Mrs. W. Dawson, Mrs. W. Ashton and Mrs. R. Hickey winning the prizes.

The hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. M. Thompson and Mrs. A. Dack who served tea and fruit bread.

U.C.W. Meeting

COLLEGE HILL U.C.W.

On Wednesday afternoon Mrs. R. Verney opened the manse to the College Hill U.C.W. for their first fall meeting.

A good number were in attendance and 33 sick calls were reported in answer to the roll call. Until then Mrs. Dack's ears dealt with the business at hand and the general meeting was announced for September 25. "Thank You's" were extended from Mesdames Belcour and Mawhes, for cards received while in hospital.

Mrs. R. Neal in charge of devotions took for her theme "Praise Ye the Lord for His Wisdom."

The study period of the meeting was taken from a section of the book "Signals for the Six-Use" and dealt with church and community which asked the question "Is the church a social centre, or the power house?" Different portions on the subject were read by Mesdames L. Bailey, N. Walker, N. Greenwood C. Gutwater and L. Belcour. Throughout the full discourse the different parts the church has to play in the different types of communities was pointed out. One item stated that psychiatrists are finding that new suburbs are "neurotic" places. Despite beautiful homes and all the worldly possessions which go with them women are still not happy because churches have not been established and until they are, these communities will not be able to put down proper roots.

Following the meeting refreshments were served by Mesdames C. Moore and H. Clarke bringing a pleasant afternoon to a close.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

MAIL CALL

Question: Here's something that has always puzzled me. When an overnight guest sends a hostess gift along with a thank-you note after a visit, should the hostess, in turn, send a thank-you note for the gift? — Mrs. S.S., Troy, N.Y.

Answer: It's awfully polite, but not really necessary. However, if the gift was not a to a registered mail and it's the sort of thing the donor might worry about getting safely — like an alligator bag or a flacon of expensive perfume — then it would be considerate to let her know the gift reached its destination and set her mind at ease.

Question: My husband's employer sent our new baby a lovely sterling feeding set. The card enclosed was sent to him and his wife. Since we've never met Mrs. Boss, to whom should the thank-you note be sent? Chances are his secretary picked out and sent the gift and merely signed their card. This is my husband's theory, and h e should know, as he's rated a note by Mr. Boss at the office. What would you suggest? — Mrs. A. M., North, N. J.

Answer: Regardless of what your husband's theory is, since Mrs. Boss' name was on the card, a thank-you note for t h e gift should be sent to her at her home address. . .

Mr. and Mrs. J. Hollinger Happily Wed 50 Years

FOXBORO — Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hollinger of Foxboro observed their fiftieth wedding anniversary quietly due to ill health of Mrs. Hollinger who is a patient at the Prindle Nursing Home, Belleville.

On September 3rd, 1913, Mr. Joseph Hollinger, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Hollinger Fuller and Miss Inez Rodgers, youngest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Rodgers of Ridge Road, Sidney, were united in marriage at the bride's home by the late Rev. Tomatoes Are At Their Best

by Mary Moore

Because the commercial canners of tomatoes and tomato products tell me mid-September is the peak of the tomato season, I am featuring them today. As housewives we should make the most of them while they are at their best and cheapest.

On August 1963, I gave you the recipe for Baked Cheese Tomatoes. Now I am going to give you a recipe for a Tomato Casserole, a method for baking them topped with curry butter and an old recipe for Tomato Butter which is a specialty of my friend Marjorie Bates.

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

Casserole of Sausages on Summer Succotash (fresh corn kernels and shelled-out baby limas); Blueberry Bran Muffins; Generous Shredded Cabbage and Radish Salad with Old-Fashioned Cole Slaw Dressing; Banana Cream Pie in Crumb Crust; Tea.

TOMATO CASSEROLE:

6 large ripe tomatoes peeled, 1½ teaspoons salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ¼ cup sugar, 3¼ cups soft breadcrumbs, ½ cup melted butter.

Arrange the tomatoes in a buttered baking dish Sprinkle with salt, pepper and sugar. Mix in around the tomatoes with 1 cup crumbs. Mix the remaining 1¼ cups of crumbs with the butter. Sprinkle over the top. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. about one hour.

CURRY-TOPPED TOMATOES:

6 to 8 small tomatoes, 6 tablespoons butter, 1 teaspoon curry powder, 1 teaspoon grated onion, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ¼ teaspoon sugar.

Cream the butter with curry powder and grated onion. Wash and cut off the tops of the tomatoes, but do not peel. Season with salt, pepper and sugar. Put a spoonful of curry butter on top of each tomato and arrange in buttered baking dish and bake at 450 deg. Fahr. until tender but not soft, about 8 minutes.

TOMATO BUTTER:

10 lbs. ripe tomatoes (scant 5-qt. basket), 1 pt. (20-oz.) cider vinegar, Syrup: 1 qt. (40-oz.) cider vinegar, 1½ lbs. brown sugar, 1½ lbs. granulated sugar, 1 tablespoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon cayenne pepper, (optional), 1 tablespoon whole cloves, 1 tablespoon allspice, 1 tablespoon cassia bark (or 3 stick cinnamon).

Don't peel tomatoes — have your tomatoes weighed at a local store if you do not have scales. Scald tomatoes (about 6 them at one time) in boiling water for 2 minutes, drain and peel and with paring knife remove core. Cut into quarters into a large container (I used a clean dishpan) and pour the one pint vinegar over and let stand overnight. In morning drain well through colander, discarding the liquid.

Tie the whole cloves, allspice and cassia buds (or broken stick, cinnamon) in small double cheesecloth bag (no long string (for easy removal). Combine all other syrup ingredients, add spice bag, bring to boil. Add well-drained tomatoes. Bring to boil and boil slowly 3 hours. This boils down a great deal more than half but should be removed from heat before it is quite as thick as you think it should be, for it thickens a little more when cold. Pour into clean hot jars, cover tops with clean hot parkfin and put on lids. This is so delicious and the children in Marjorie's family eat it on bread and butter.

Conciliating Differences Between French and English Canada Job for Dunton

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP)—A. D. Dunton, who rose to the top in four successive careers, now faces his fifth and perhaps toughest challenge—helping to conciliate differences between French and English Canada.

As co-chairman of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism, he will help to explore some of the most emotion-charged issues in Canada's political and social life.

With co-chairman Andre Laurendeau, editor of Montreal Le Devoir, and eight other commission members, he will have a hand in shaping recommendations to federal and provincial governments.

Mr. Dunton, 51-year-old president of Carleton University in Ottawa, brings an unusually varied background to his new task. A well-known public figure for years, he has managed to stay out of controversies by keeping his views largely to himself.

The son of a prominent mineral notary, he has been in turn a newspaper reporter and editor, a wartime information official, a broadcasting executive and now the president of a fast-growing university.

As head of the CBC for 13 years, he directed the introduction of television broadcasting and was in daily contact with the applications of bilingualism and biculturalism.

FLUENT IN FRENCH

Besides being fluent in French and English, he has a working knowledge of German and Spanish. His studies took him to Cambridge, the University of Munich and the University of Grenoble in France.

With a reserved but friendly and informal manner, Davidson Dunton is described by associates as a skilful administrator and tactful mediator.

A rather short, handsome man with greying temples, he smokes a pipe, likes contemporary art and classical music.

His latest challenge came in an unexpected transatlantic telephone call. Prime Minister Pearson, an old friend, asked him at a Commonwealth universities conference at Cambridge if he would take the chairmanship of the royal commission.

"I was surprised," he says. "I had no idea I was being considered for the co-chairmanship although I knew I might be asked to help with the work of the inquiry."

He accepted after consulting university governors and arranging to delegate some responsibilities to Carleton's four deans during his absences on commission duties.

Mr. Dunton and his wife Kathleen spent their holidays in Paris and in Brittany before returning to Ottawa in mid-August.

PROBE IN DEPTH

The commission is expected to begin a series of public hearings in mid - winter and to launch various research projects this fall.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker has criticized the commission for making a slow start, but Mr. Dunton feels that two or three months should be allowed for the preparation of briefs by voluntary organizations, individuals and provincial and municipal leaders.

"We want above all that people think before they write their briefs," he says.

"We want to investigate in depth, not just the surface. We're trying to get what facts there are on these subjects."

The magnitude of the commission's job is seen from the terms of reference approved by the cabinet July 19:

". . . To recommend that steps should be taken to develop the Canadian confederation on the basis of an equal partnership between the two founding races, taking into account the contribution made by the other ethnic groups to the cultural enrichment of Canada and the measures that should be taken to safeguard that contribution."

UNIVERSITY GROWING

The terms outline three areas where biculturalism could be promoted: The federal civil service, broadcasting and universities and other "cultural organizations," and language instruction in schools and in special course.

Mr. Dunton's new occupation comes at a time when he is busy supervising the expansion of Carleton's airy campus in the city's south end. Five buildings were completed last year and two more are added this summer.

Since he was appointed president five years ago, the university has poured $7,000,000 into its new campus and doubled its enrolment to 2,000 full-time and 1,500 part-time students.

The early growing university presidents, he never taught and never bothered to collect a university degree, although he has received honorary degrees from four Canadian universities.

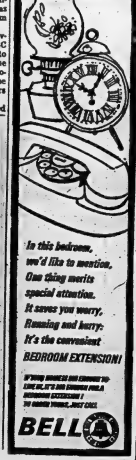
He joined Carleton after serving as chairman of the CBC board of governors from 1945 to 1958. After his resignation, the Conservative government introduced legislation setting up the Board of Broadcast Governors and abolishing his position.

The duties formerly exercised by Mr. Dunton were divided between the CBC president, who directs the Crown corporation, and the BBG, which has powers of regulation over the CBC and private broadcasters.

Mr. Dunton was appointed to his influential CBC post at 39 after catching the eye of Prime Minister Mackenzie King as general manager of the Wartime Information Board. He organized press and radio coverage of the two wartime conferences in Quebec City and of the United Nations founding conference in San Francisco in 1945.

He entered journalism in 1924 as a reporter for the Montreal Star. Three years later, at 23, he became associate editor. He was named editor of the weekly Montreal Standard, forerunner of Weekend magazine, in 1932. He served with the Wartime Information Board throughout the Second World War.

In 1944 he married Kathleen Bingay, a Vancouver-born lawyer then with the external affairs department in Ottawa. They live on Rockcliffe Pkwy. in Ottawa suburb with their two daughters, Darcy, 14, and Deborah, 11.



FACES NEW CHALLENGE — A. D. Dunton, 51-year-old president of Ottawa's Carleton University and former head of the CBC, faces a new challenge as co-chairman of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism. Mr. Dunton, fluently bilingual himself, will share the chairmanship with Andre Laurendeau, editor of Montreal Le Devoir.

Four Student Bodies Say Church Seeking Disguised Rule of Quebec Education

MONTREAL (CP) — Four Quebec student associations say amendments to a bill establishing a Quebec education minister suggested by the Roman Catholic Church hierarchy would lead to give the church disguised control of the entire Quebec education system.

Text of a letter sent Premier Lesage by the University of Montreal, Laval, (Quebec City) Classical College and Student Press student associations was made public Sunday night.

"The amendments," the letter said, "would open the door to arbitrary authority by the application of the law."

It would lead to "static legislation of a kind that would bully liberty of conscience and assume legal status to the system of education by non-elected persons."

The letter to the premier was written following a meeting of representatives of the four student associations.

The Roman Catholic Church hierarchy suggested the amendments in a letter to Premier Lesage dated Aug. 29 which also asked for insertion of "an explicit declaration of the liberties and basic rights in education."

The students' letter opposed in particular the church hierarchy's suggestion that the Roman Catholic and Protestant associate deputy ministers of education be "permissible" in the church - appointed bodies who would advise a new minister of education.

The letter said the government "could not, in a healthy democracy, delegate the power of naming civil servants as important as the deputy ministers" to non-elected persons.

Despite the criticisms, the letter said, the students represented by the organizations are Catholic by a large majority and strongly want to see the religious nature of schools upheld.

Martial Law Terminates in South Viet Nam

SAIGON (AP)—Martial law was lifted throughout South Viet Nam at noon Monday, 26 days after it was imposed in the wake of government raids on Buddhist pagodas Aug. 21.

Vietnamese authorities also announced that press censorship had been lifted.

The end of Viet Nam's "state of siege," as President Ngo Dinh Diem put it, came after the Saigon government had put down Buddhist opposition and student unrest.

But Saigon still bristled with soldiers. They guarded a dozen high schools, focal points of 10 days of anti-government demonstrations by students.

Under martial law, thousands of students were arrested. The government said they would be released.

Reliable sources said scores of Vietnamese school girls arrested in midnight raids on their homes are being detained in a military camp in a Saigon suburb.

Buddhists claimed the government of Diem, a Roman Catholic, discriminated against them. Diem denied the charge. His regime claimed Buddhist opposition was aiding the Communist cause and ordered the crackdown.

FOSTER WARD PARK — Boat ramp in Foster Ward bayside park now under development is busy place on weekends with up to 25 motorboats launched on fine afternoon. Harbor Commission is adding another ramp and hopes to extend roadway along bayfront area.

Quebec Govt. Accused of Discrimination

MONTREAL (CP) — John Boyle, Independent, and Luke G. Dougherty, running as an Independent Liberal in the Montreal Notre-Dame de Grace provincial by-election Sept. 23, Monday night accused the Quebec government of discriminating against English-speaking Canadians.

Eric Kierans, Quebec revenue minister, and official Liberal candidate denied the charges at a contradictory meeting held in the largely English - speaking riding. Henri Paquet, the other candidate running as an Independent Liberal, did not appear at the meeting.

Mr. Boyle, an insurance salesman, said the Quebec government is persecuting and being unfair to English-speaking residents of the province.

Mr. Dougherty, an advertising executive, said the Liberal campaign slogan in the November 1962 provincial election, "Maitres chez nous" (masters in our own house) resulted in terrorist bombings, a 25-per-cent reduction in tourist trade, more unemployment and decisions by a number of industries to quit Quebec.

"The maitres chez nous idea has pushed back English-French relations by 100 years," he said.

ASKS WHERE ABUSED

Mr. Kierans, former president of the Montreal and Canadian Stock Exchanges, asked:

"Where have our rights been abused by the Lesage government: Have they been abused by hospital insurance, by the Highway Indemnity Act, by Statutory grants to school commissions?"

He told the 175 persons at the meeting his appointment as revenue minister was Premier LLage's answer to the rash extremism and demagoguery now facing Quebec.

"We are in the midst of sweeping social changes in Quebec," Mr. Kierans said. "There is a tremendous wave of social unrest. A whole people is trying to carry forward its commercial and economic interests. We see a great leap forward in Quebec."

Crime Wave Worsening Says Judge

MONTREAL (CP) — Judge Marc Andre Blain of Sessions Court said Monday police and courts "seem powerless" to control a worsening crime wave in the Montreal area.

"People are being knocked out in their homes. The crimes of burglary and other kinds of theft are away out of control," he said in court. "If car-stealing continues at its present rate it is going to reach astronomical figures.

He said one solution may be the indeterminate sentence."

used in the United States, which provides that a definite proportion of a sentence must be served before a prisoner can seek release.

Harbor Commission Dream, Bayfront Drive and Park Commenced in Foster Ward

A long standing dream on the part of Belleville Harbor Commission officials for a park and waterfront drive along the Bay of Quinte in the Foster Ward section of the city is slowly but surely taking shape.

Much of the area was at one time a city dump and little more than a boggy marsh, full of cattails and underbrush.

Location of the city's new sewage disposal plant in the waterfront area last year has provided a clean up impetus and this year much of the bayfront area between George Street and the Ontario Cheese Producers building south of the hospital has shown marked signs of development.

Hundreds of loads of fill have been dumped along the marshy water's edge and the beginning of an eventual parkway has taken shape.

Already the nucleus of the waterfront roadway extends for more than half a mile.

WANTS JOINT PLANNING

"The Bay of Quinte waterfront is one of the city's greatest assets," commented Harbormaster Mac Smith, "and I think the development has now gone far enough to warrant joint planning and consideration by the city planning board, the parks board and the harbor commission."

He says the local waterfront for years has badly needed development and now something is being done about it.

He noted that Zwick's Island is in the initial stages of development by the parks board and the city public works department is continuing its policy of sanitary land fill on the east side of the Bay Bridge Road.

This work on the west side of the river ties in with that being carried out by the Harbor commission in Foster Ward, he says.

Eventually Mr. Smith foresees a developed park area and paved driveway along the entire waterfront to the extreme eastern end of the city.

MUCH FILL DUMPED

The initial stages of the Foster Ward development is seeing full co-operation from the city public works department and from officials of the city water pollution control plant and the Ontario Cheese Producers which already has spent thousands of dollars on waterfront development in front of its own property.

Mountains of fill from the city's sewer installation program have been pumped along the waterfront and bulldozed level. Many small weed infested inlets are being filled in.

"Everyone is co-operating 100 per cent," Mr. Smith said

In the George Street area a bayside park area is undergoing development. Trees have been trimmed, picnic tables set out and two boat launching ramps have been provided.

BIGGER RAMP NEEDED

On a fine Sunday afternoon Mr. Smith says it is nothing unusual to see as many as 25 boat trailers parked in the area and a real bottleneck develops when homeward bound boating enthusiasts await their turn to get their boats out of the water.

The boat jams have gotten so out of hand that a second larger ramp is being developed a few hundred feet to the east.

This, it is expected, will be the main launching ramp next summer, when even more boating enthusiasts take to the water to get away from traffic jammed highways.

In the meantime the harbor commission is looking forward to continued co-operation from city departments to make the bayfront parkway a full reality.

Over Quarter Of Immigrants In Toronto Area

OTTAWA (CP) — The extent to which post-war immigrants have concentrated in Ontario, particularly the Toronto area, is illustrated by new 1961 census figures issued today by the bureau of statistics.

Of the 4,147,444 families in Canada June 1, 1961, there were 945,774, or one of every 10, in which the head had immigrated to this country between 1946 and 1961.

More than half of these families—253,373—or 56.8 per cent were in Ontario, with 127,043 or 28.5 per cent living in the Toronto area.

There were 26,799 immigrant families in Hamilton, 6,454 in Kitchener, 7,086 in London, 9,190 in Ottawa, 3,969 in Sudbury and 6,281 in Windsor.

The second largest number of immigrant families—73,875 — were in Quebec. British Columbia was next with 50,820, followed by Alberta with 35,425, Manitoba with 17,789 and Saskatchewan with 7,258.

Relatively few immigrant families found their way to the Atlantic provinces. Only 1.5 per cent were living in this area.

Railway Companies Open Bid to Win Back Bigger Share of Public's Dollar

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's two major railways are opening a determined — and possibly last-ditch—bid to win back a bigger share of the travelling public's dollar.

New promotional plans, based on sharply reduced fares, are in the offing for travellers after Oct. 27 under programs announced by the CNR and the CPR.

The CNR program was announced Monday at a special closed - circuit television network press conference at which reporters from 12 cities across Canada sat in.

The CPR said Saturday it, too, is going to reduce fares. Details of the CPR plan are to be revealed sometime before Oct. 27.

The CNR plan, outlined by Pierre Delagrave, general passenger sales manager, provides for fare reductions in the West of up to 56 per cent. Special schedules on key trains across Canada, bar cars and special attendants for coach passengers and improved service aboard trains.

What people see in passenger cars will decide how they feel about all railway services, he said. Although passenger service accounts for only 10 per cent of railway revenue directly, it could have a wide influence in other revenue sources.

AIMING AT CAR DRIVERS

He said the CNR is aiming at winning back a share of travellers who now use cars. About 80 per cent of the total of passenged-miles now is covered by car, eight per cent by train, seven by plane and five by bus.

The CN's fare reduction program is based on extending its "red, white and blue" plan, in effect in the Maritimes for 3 months, to its transcontinental service and passenger trains in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia.

The plan offers three levels of fares—lowest on days when travel is lightest, medium on busier days and highest during peak travel periods such as weekends and holidays.

The eventual aim of the new programs is to fill up the railway's operations into the black.

Other aspects of the CN's passenger drive include free meals for passengers holding sleeping car space, games for children and adults on long trips to "play the miles away," cutting three hours off the schedule of the CN's crack Super Continental between Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver and, for the East, improved scheduling and service for The Scotian, operating between Montreal and Halifax.

Under the new fare plans, a coach-class round trip from Toronto onto to Winnipeg will cost $41, $49 or $57, depending on the day, compared with the present fare of $75. The all - inclusive fare with a roomette will be $75, $85 or $91, compared with $129.40.

BBC HANS RECORD

LONDON (AP) — The BBC has banned from its radio and television networks a satirical record titled Fool Britannia, made in the U.S. by actors Peter Sellers and Anthony Newley. The recording pokes fun at the prime minister and morals in British life. A BBC spokesman said: "We do not think it is suitable."

Sen. Symington Strongly Backs Test Ban Pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — The limited nuclear test-ban treaty drew strong support today from Senator Stuart Symington and strong opposition from Senator Strom Thurmond.

"Unless there can be some understanding among the growing number of nations that will have the weapon, a nuclear holocaust is only a question of time," declared Symington, a Missouri Democrat.

Symington, a one-time secretary of the air force, said the treaty banning all but underground testing "will not affect to any appreciable extent our capability to destroy the Soviet Union if a retaliatory strike is required."

On the other side of the debate—which shows indications of continuing into next week—Thurmond, a South Carolina Democrat, charged the treaty constitutes "major risks and hazards to the capability of the United States to deter a war or to win in the future."

The views of both senators were contained in separate speeches in the Senate.

The Senate appeared unanimous concert Monday to advance the proceedings from the debate on the treaty itself to consideration of the resolution of ratification, to which a series of reservations, understandings and interpretations has been offered.

EARLY VOTE DOUBTFUL

But even with the passing of this hurdle so many senators have signified their intention to speak on the issue that the bipartisanship leadership's goal of a final vote by Friday appeared to be doubtful.

So far, 71 senators are committed to or inclined to vote for ratification. Opposition has been announced by 13 senators and 10 are doubtful or undecided. Ratification requires a two - thirds majority of those voting—if favorable votes if all 100 senators should vote.

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican post office will issue a series of four stamps beginning Oct. 16 commemorating the coronation of Pope Paul VI last June 30, the Vatican announced Monday. Two of the stamps will show Pope Paul with the tiara, or papal crown. The other two will carry Pope Paul's coat of arms.

Leopold Le Couteur Paddling His Own Canoe on Trip From Ottawa to Toronto

From Bytown to York, via Fort Frontenac, Leopold Le Couteur is paddling his own canoe. He's been doing just that, in fact, for about 45 years now. He calls himself "The Lone Voyageur." The late Sir Harry Oakes, he claims, gave him the nickname when they worked together in the north. That was before the late Sir Harry was knighted, he adds.

He arrived in Belleville last night, 17 days out from Bytown, (Ottawa, according to modern maps), and spent the night at a local hotel. His route, south along the Rideau Canal to Kingston, (Fort Frontenac), then through the Bay of Quinte and the Murray Canal to Toronto, (York), will take about 25 days, he figures. He travels alone in a 15-foot canoe with a light sail, and camps out, most nights, along the waterways.

ONLY A BOAT

Claiming mixed Irish and French parentage, Mr. LeCouteur is 67 years old now. He took up long-range canoe trips for a hobby, he says, after he discovered that his great-great-er had been a voyageur for the Northwest Company, back in the fur trading days. Mr. Lecouteur has no furs to trade himself, but he expects to make "a few hundred dollars" out of the present trip, he says.

He travels about two months of the year, he says, the rest of the time, he works as a painting supervisor for the Foundation Company of Canada. He explains he usually has several mouths to spare between contracts, and he uses the time for travelling.

LEAVES WIFE BEHIND

Married to a woman in his home town, Sturgeon Falls, he leaves his wife behind on his trips. Travelling alone, he says, he has time to think. His wife knows on occasion, visiting her sister in Montreal. The couple have two sons, one an Army Provost NCO in Quebec, the other a student at Assumption University in Windsor. They one daughter, married and a mother, lives in Sturgeon Falls.

His immediate plans, on arrival in Toronto, include visits to relatives and to officials of his employers and the Foundation Company. His long range plans, he says, include more canoe trips. He would like to get a group of young men together, he says, to dress as the old-time voyageurs and go on a transCanada canoe trip. So far, he says he has canoed east as far as St. John, N.B., west to Fort William, south to New York City and north to Moosonee. Total of all his trips so far, he says, is about 25,000 miles. And all the way, he paddled his own canoe.

"THE LONE VOYAGEUR," Leopold Le Couteur of Sturgeon Falls has travelled about 25,000 miles by canoe in 45 years. His present trip, a 15-footer, is twelve years old.

Same Elements Being Used Says Union

SUDBURY (CP) — The same elements that ousted the leftwing Canadian seamen's union from Canadian waterfronts and brought in Hal Banks are being used against the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.), Mine-Mill's annual conference was told Monday.

The officers' report said Banks, president of the Seafarers' International Union (Ind.) "was the instrument used to destroy the CSU, as the United Steelworkers of America (CLC) is the instrument used against Mine-Mill."

The Steelworkers, Canada's largest union, won bargaining rights from Mine-Mill last October for 12,000 workers at international Nickel Company here.

Banks was brought from the United States to form the Seafarers' International Union and replace the CSU.

The recent report of Mr. Justice T. G. Norris, following a Steelworkers' union inquiry into Great Lakes shipping strife, was described by the Mine - Mill statement as a "damning indictment of the role of government, some of the top labor leaders and their Canadian labor relations board."

Mine - Mill's statement, opposed trusteeship for the SIU and other maritime unions in Canada, proposed by Mr. Justice Norris.

"It would be neither temporary nor restricted to the waterfront," the statement said.

Canadian trade unions were urged to take courageous action to demand and fight for their rights.

Laton A. Smith United Appeal's Rally Speaker

Guest speaker at the United Appeal's Rally for volunteer workers this coming Thursday night, at the Moira Secondary School, will be Mr. Laton A. Smith, executive secretary of the Community Funds and Councils of Canada, a Division of the Canadian Welfare Council in Ottawa.

Mr. Smith a native of Minnedosa, Manitoba, joined the Canadian Welfare Council in November, 1955. He holds degrees from both the University of Minnesota College of Business and the Harvard University School of Business. A former community chest executive director, he is also a past member of the National Executive Advisory Committee to the Board of Directors of the United Community Funds and Councils of America.

During his association with the Community Funds and Councils of Canada he has been involved with the creation of united campaigns, campaign procedures and techniques, service budgeting, public relations and united campaign administration. This has required coast-to-coast trips to both large and small cities and as a consultant he has been instrumental in the creation of some twenty-one community chests and united appeals throughout Canada.

Mr. Smith's remarks should prove most informative, not only to those who will be taking part in the United Appeal's forthcoming campaign commencing September 30th, but also to other members of the community who are cordially invited to attend this rally.

Southern Part Of Province To Have Service

TORONTO (CP) — A blueprint for a vast rail commuting complex in the Metropolitan Toronto, Oshawa, Hamilton and Niagara Falls area will be unveiled in the next few days by the provincial government.

Highways Minister MacNaughton requested a study last March as part of the government's over-all transportation study of the southern part of the province.

An intensive study of existing railway lines and rights-of-way in the area was completed by a Toronto consultant firm, Delcan, Cather and Company.

The study shows that there are more than enough existing railway lines and rights-of-way to transport 18 to 20 times the 1,500 to 2,000 commuters now using the rails into Toronto.

The government would propose an extremely fast service which would guarantee every commuter a seat. Luxury cars would be air-conditioned, possibly with cocktail lounges and the trains would make limited stops.

The present Canadian National Railways commuter system to Toronto is not considered fast or luxurious enough to attract enough customers and is running at a loss.

JFK ON TV

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy will make a country-wide television and radio speech on his tax bill at 7 p.m. EDT Wednesday, the White House announced Monday. Press secretary Pierre Salinger said the speech will be carried live on the CBS, NBC and ABC radio and TV networks and also on the Mutual radio network.

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

Although hockey on the intermediate and senior levels appears to be as dead as a dodo here, indications point to the district junior "B" circuit returning in all its six-team glory.

OHA executive member Jack Devine says that the group meeting slated for the Recreation Centre here next Tuesday night and has the strong hopes that all last year's clubs will be in attendance.

Those include Belleville, Kingston, Picton, Trenton, Cobourg, Napanee and Gananoque.

There is also a possibility that an intermediate league will be formed in the district made up of teams from Trenton RCAF, Picton, Napanee, Gananoque and Kingston. The Kingston team would be secondary to that entered in the Ottawa Valley District League.

The Eastern Ontario Junior "B" League last year was one of the best with the powerful Kingston team going to the "Big" finals before being eliminated by the St. Mary's club of Stratford.

The Napanee Red Wings junior "C" proved one of the better in the district defeating Picton in the eastern loop finals but bowing to New Hamburg in the provincial finals.

If the Eastern Junior League materializes with a six club entry, it may get a shot in the arm spectator-wise from the Ontario Hockey Association.

Jack Devine tells me the Toronto Metro Junior "B" League was asked to play games with clubs of the Eastern Ontario loop, points to count in the Metro League are Brampton, Etobicoke, Georgetown, Lakeshore, Neil McNeil, St. Michael's, Schomberg, Weston, Whitby and Markham.

The eleven clubs of Metro agreed to make one trip to the Eastern clubs on a divided basis. Brampton, Lakeshore, Schomberg and St. Michael would come to Belleville, Dixie, Neil McNeil, Georgetown and Whitby would go to Peterborough. Etobicoke, Markham, and Weston would play with Kingston.

Previously the OHA Sub-committee at a meeting last week ordered all the Metro League clubs to play home and home series, points to count with the six Eastern clubs.

Such an interlocking schedule, big as it is, would add greatly to spectator interest in the Eastern arenas and possibly in the Metro rinks. Belleville and Kingston clubs in particular could do with added box-office business. And if memory is correct, apart from playoffs, I don't believe the Metro clubs had to put out the "Standing Room Only" signs.

However in view of financial positions of the clubs with no guarantee of box-office potential, the transportation problem may prove to be a stopping-block to the home-and-home series suggestion.

This would mean that each club in each league would have to make eleven road trips in addition to local transportation in their league schedule play.

It is doubtful if the added spectator interest brought by the Metro clubs would offset the added cost of transportation.

Personally, with hockey at its lowest cycle here since before the turn of the century, I would like to see all eleven Metro clubs in action here for the sport's sake, but the traffic costs are a heavy item and must be considered.

I understand the matter will be brought before the Eastern clubs after organization has been completed.

It is extremely doubtful after last season's box-office experiences that the Ontario clubs will go for the all-out home-and-home idea. They might, however, consider the Metro idea as similar to the four clubs playing at Belleville and Peterborough and three at Kingston.

Strange faces and new clubs in any phase of sport, it seems, have always proved an added attraction for fans. It may do so in this case — and again it may not.

TORONTO (CP)—A western flavor accented the feature race at Woodbine Monday when Galindo, owned by John Asanas, trained by Andy Smithers and driven by Gordon Lanoway, all of Vancouver, was an easy winner.

Galindo was also favored by the 6,965 fans at 4-5 odds. The Vancouver-bred horse reached the finish line two-and-a-half lengths in front of Cymar Stable's Mystery Guest, with Ben Steen's Ballinode coming in third. Galindo was timed in 1:41 in the mile turf event.

Defeat Cards 3-1 In Ninth ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Dodgers Snatch 'Showdowns' Starter

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

"They're just got to fold," said Leo Durocher. "They've been so hot, they're just got to."

Is the outspoken Los Angeles Dodgers coach right, or can St. Louis' Cardinals bounce back from Monday night's 3-1 defeat by the National League leading Dodgers in the opener of the three-game showdown that may decide the pennant winner?

That was the question today as the Cardinals made ready for round No. 2—against Dodger ace Sandy Koufax, $2.5 starting for St. Louis will be Curt Simmons, 15-7.

Leo made his comment before the game, with the Cardinals heading into the series at home only one game back of the Dodgers after rolling to 10 consecutive victories and 19 in 20 games.

ERROR HELPS

The tension-filled game moved into the ninth with the score tied 1-1 before the Dodgers put together a double by Ron Fairly a key single by Willie Davis and an error by the right man that gave them the vital victory margin in the two-game lead over the Cardinals.

Now, even if the Cardinals take the remaining games of the best-of-three series, the Dodgers still will be in first place.

"I am not the least bit pessimistic," said Cards' field manager Johnny Keane. "We've got two more with 'em. This pennant race is a long way from being over yet."

In the Dodger dressing room, manager Walt Alston was asking the questions of reporters.

"Well, we didn't play too badly, did we?"

Then came his answer.

"I would say we won a pretty good one. That first game is always a big one."

While they were playing the big one at St. Louis, two other games were played in the National League.

PIRATES EDGE CUBS

Bob Veale pitched a two-hitter as Bill Mazeroski drove in the game's only run with a single in the last of the ninth as Pittsburgh Pirates edged the Chicago Cubs 1-0.

Juan Marichal won his 23rd game with six-hitter and Orlando Cepeda hit a decisive homer to snap a 3-3 tie in the fifth and give the San Francisco Giants a 4-3 victory over Milwaukee Braves.

Philadelphia Dodgers scored first against the Cardinals, getting to Ernie Broglio for a run in the sixth on a double by Maury Wills, his steal of third and a single by Tommy Davis.

Stan Musial's homer — only one of three hits off Dodger Johnny Podres — tied it for the Cardinals even in the seventh.

Then in the eighth, Keane made the move that led to the Dodger victory. With Broglio tiring, the Cardinal manager sent in a pinch-hitter, he called on Bobby Shantz to hold the Dodgers in the ninth.

LINES WINNER

Ron Fairly lashed Shantz' first pitch for a double. Then Davis, who was hitting only .222 going into the game but had already collected two hits and stolen two bases, lined a single to right field as Fairly raced home and slid across the plate with the lead run, on a close play.

A throwing error by Julian Javier let in another run.

Ron Perranoski pitched the ninth for the Dodgers and set the Cardinals down 1-2-3 to preserve Podres' 14th victory against 10 losses.

Was Alston satisfied?

"Yes," he said. "I would have to say things look a little more bright. But there's another big one coming up. I'm happy, of course, but there's no need to laugh yet until it's over. We're just one game better off than yesterday, that's all.

"It's not over yet."

Change Will Do Good, Says Trimble

'Stephens Had Contract Trouble'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Coach Jim Trimble of Montreal Alouettes says quarterback Sandy Stephens' contract with the Alouettes "made the situation impossible."

In Vancouver for the Alouettes' game against British Columbia Lions Monday night, Trimble said on a personal basis, he and Stephens "got along fine."

The coach reaffirmed the crux of the problem between Stephens and Montreal was the contract.

"Imagine a kid that young making that much money with no conditions. He couldn't be cut, he couldn't be traded and he couldn't be waived.

"He couldn't play anywhere but quarterback and there was even some wording that said he couldn't be fined," Trimble went on.

"There was nothing anyone could do to motivate him and he had no incentive."

Montreal paid Stephens the equivalent of two years' salary in a lump sum and waived him to Toronto for $350.

"I see where he is doing fine with Toronto, which makes me happy because sometimes I had a hell of a time getting him out to practice," Trimble said.

"But make no mistake, he has a lot of ability and a change of scenery and a change of pay may be just the thing to map him out of it all."

Shamrocks Whip Green Gaels

By PAUL RIMSTRAD

WHITBY, Ont. (CP) — To see Norm Nestman on the street, you would never think he was an athlete.

He wears spectacles and weighs only 125 pounds.

Yet, Nestman, goalkeeper for Victoria Shamrocks, was the key figure Monday night as the westerners dumped Oshawa Green Gaels 9-7 to even the best - of - seven Minto Cup lacrosse series at two games each.

Knocked cold by a drive late in the first period, Nestman returned to the game to play brilliantly as Victoria was outshot 45-28.

"I was woozy," admitted Nestman after the game. "And my legs felt rubbery."

However, when coach Tom Druce tried to replace him with Bob Fisher, Victoria's regular goaltender throughout the season, Nestman objected. He went all the way.

The Gaels who had won the first two games 10-7 and 11-4 and needed the third game Friday 10-9, now find themselves in a new series—best-of-three for the Canadian junior lacrosse championship.

Record Now 7-1

By DENNIS ORCHARD

VANCOUVER (CP) — The head-hunters have saved another game for British Columbia Lions and it's getting to be the most successful habit in the Canadian Football League.

Head-hunting is a local term for the work of the B.C. defence. It was about 7:8 per cent of the grand total that went into a 20-9 victory Monday night over Montreal Alouettes.

The defence took credit for 10 of B.C.'s points.

The victory meant a three-point first-place lead over Calgary, and a record of 7-1, as Lions enter the second half of the Western Conference schedule.

Defensive end Dick Fouts and offensive end Pat Claridge scored the B.C. touchdowns, and Canadian rookie Peter Kempf wrapped up the rest of the scoring by converting both and kicking two field goals.

George Dixon shot 21 yards around right end for Alouettes' only touchdown. Gino Berretta punted for a single, and Bobby Jack Oliver scored two points on a convert and 40-yard field goal attempt that fell short for a single.

TWICE IN FIRST

Lions scored both their touchdowns in a first quarter that ended 14-1 and gave up Montreal's only touchdown in the second quarter as the score went to 17-8 at halftime. Only a field goal and a single were scored in the dull second half.

When end Marvin Luster got through to harry Kapp on a second-quarter pass play, Kapp fumbled to set up the Alouette touchdown.

Montreal's Mike Dalatri recovered on the 22-yard-line and Dixon took a pitchout all the way from the 21 at 13:19.

Marriott's receivers were well-covered and he made only five of 16 passes good for 67 yards. Montreal rolled for 249 yards rushing. Total Alouette first downs were 18.

Kapp completed 13 of 21 passes for 157 yards and Lions gained 132 yards rushing for a total of 17 first downs.

Mann Cup Series Opens Today

VANCOUVER (CP) — Coach Alex MacKay is confident of returning to the West Coast with the Mann Cup, despite a manpower shortage in his lacrosse squad which bested east Monday for the series with St. Catharines Athletics.

The Vancouver team will go into today's opener at Cornwall with a patched-up lineup. Only 14 players are available for the opening game.

However, MacKay says: "We're well - versed on St. Catharines' calibre."

The Inter - City Lacrosse League champions lost star Ron Bodner, when he suffered torn ligaments in Friday's league Final against New Westminster. Vancouver won the best-of-seven final in six games.

Other Vancouver players couldn't get time off to travel east for the opening game.

However, the coach arranged to fly Pete Black, Doug Carter and a spare goalie to Cornwall for games Saturday and Sunday.

Arrangements were made to choose Miss Mann Cup and two princesses from the Iroquois Indian reserve, where the factory, totally manned by indians, is located.

The Cornwall Arena was painted for the occasion as positive publicity committee began mailing daily releases to news outlets. The city undertook to sponsor a banquet and parade, and downtown stores put on lacrosse displays — one window with the glittering Mann Cup.

DAZZLED PLAYERS

It was all guaranteed to dazzle the players, most of whom had never before been to Cornwall. It was by far cry from previous cup finals.

The series is usually treated as a necessary evil rather than a legitimate sports attraction.

Until several years ago, whenever the east champion was in the East, Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens was the site although the Eastern representatives was usually from the suburbs or some other Ontario city.

The Gardens lent the event a certain amount of prestige. But lack of attendance put it out of the picture. When the final was moved to smaller cities and towns, there seemed to be a decline in national interest.

But there seemed to be a ray of hope in the way Cornwall welcomed the national final and there were some who felt it might be the start of the long road back for the country's national sport.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids ... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing so that sufferers enjoy relief indeed.

In case after controlled case history after another reported "very satisfactory" results. Most got relief promptly and pretty solidly — several reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief was even reported in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that they suggested permanency months.

- This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Shark Spray) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Shark Spray is also used in treatment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H relieves pain. It also relieves itching. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Trophies Presented

"TO THE VICTOR" — Cy Gardner, president of the Quinte Trap and Gun Club, receives the Kelly Trophy from Clifford Hart following the club championship shoot yesterday. Gardner won the Kelly Trophy as well as the 16-yard trophy and one of the team championship trophies.

Gun Club Annual Success

"A complete success, from start to finish," was the way members of the Quinte Trap and Gun Club described their annual club championship shoot held yesterday.

"It was the best annual shoot we have ever had, with plenty of shooters taking part, a good turnout of fans and some excellent scores turned in," said club president Cy Gardner.

Competitions were held for a number of line trophies, eight in all being presented at the conclusion of the meet.

Cy Gardner walked off with two individual trophies as well as a share of the team championship. Gardner took the 16-yard trophy with a score of 46 out of 50. He also won the Kelly Trophy, for high gun over all, connecting on 107 of 124 shots on the day.

George Hammell won the Labatt Trophy in the handicap event, with a score of 40 out of 50.

Jim Cole topped the doubles field and took home the Canadian Legion Trophy, scoring 21 out of 24.

The J. Doddon Trophy, awarded to the top junior, went to Ron Hutchinson, with an excellent score of 22 out of 25. Junior shooters enjoyed their best year since the club was organized, this summer.

Earl Marvin was presented with the Cranston Trophy for compiling the top average in the club this year. Marvin owned a high 93.96 average.

Earl Boldrick was awarded the Ralph Nelson Trophy as the Quinte club's most improved shooter.

Refreshments and a social draw helped make the day an enjoyable one for competitors and spectators alike.

Mann Cup Series at Cornwall

By PAUL RINSTRAD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

One of the bigger boners pulled by Parliament, as things turned out, was in 1867 when it passed an act to designate lacrosse as Canada's national sport.

Today, almost 100 years later, the sport is nearly as close to extinction as the whooping crane.

Neglect was one cause of its downfall.

In a Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press, the comment of one man reflected a fairly general feeling. Red Storey, a former lacrosse and football star who later became a National Hockey League referee, said simply: "The executives did not grow with the game."

Without effective promotion, organization and leadership, lacrosse has become but a shadow of its former glory. And it's particularly sad because, as the game's boosters will tell you, lacrosse is one of the best of spectator sports when played by physically fit athletes.

TWO-PROVINCE SPORT

What is the state of lacrosse today? As has been the case for a strong minor setup in the sport, British Columbia is the hotbed and Ontario, which has a strong minor setup, is floundering at the intermediate and senior levels.

Some schools in Quebec list it on their athletic programs, and Manitoba has a weak city league in Winnipeg. Alberta hasn't had lacrosse since the early 1930s, Saskatchewan has never played the game seriously and the Maritime provinces are only vaguely aware of its existence.

A reporter in St. John's, Nfld., seeking information on the game there, wrote:

"One veteran sports fan in Newfoundland vaguely remembers seeing a game here during the war between two navy teams, but he can't remember how it was played."

The best example of the state of the sport, however, lay in the decision to hold the Mann Cup this summer as if the series for the $30,000 gold cup emblem would have to be shelved for the first time since 1925, the year it became a symbol of the Canadian amateur title. Sir Donald Mann, builder of the Canadian Northern Railway, had donated it originally, as a challenge cup.

The series, which usually alternates annually between east and west, has always been played in the West this year. But the West, which has won it five times in the last six years—and always by a clean sweep in the best-of-seven series—had no interest. Fans on the West Coast found the East-West clash a letdown after thrilling finals in the powerful Inter-City Lacrosse League.

In Ontario, where St. Catharines Athletics emerged as eastern representatives, none of the four teams in the league felt able to take a chance on the $10,000 guarantee the host city must put up.

PLAYS IT BIG

Cornwall, a member of the active but weak Eastern Lacrosse Association, was the last hope. And this, however unwittingly, may have been the most significant move in years to restore lacrosse's annual classic.

The Chisholm Lacrosse Manufacturing Company, which supplies 97 per cent of the world's sticks and is situated on Cornwall Island, three miles south of the city, helped raise the guarantee.

The city itself took on a carnival-like atmosphere. Gigantic lacrosse sticks were set up at three entrances to Cornwall to advertise the event. Arrangements were made to choose Miss Mann Cup and two princesses from the Iroquois Indian reserve, where the factory, totally manned by indians, is located.

The Cornwall Arena was painted for the occasion as positive publicity committee began mailing daily releases to news outlets. The city undertook to sponsor a banquet and parade, and downtown stores put on lacrosse displays — one window with the glittering Mann Cup.

'Legs Don't Have It'

Dickie Moore Hangs Gear

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dickie Moore, Montreal Canadiens left winger who reverted the National Hockey League record book just five years ago, decided Monday that his legs really don't have it any more.

Moore, 33, had said after last season that he would retire. But he showed up at training camp this year to try out his ailing legs for a couple of days.

Monday he told team officials he felt his legs were too far gone and that he would not be doing the team or himself justice if he tried to keep on playing.

Moore, who scored a record 96 points—on 41 goals and 55 assists—in the 1958-59 campaign, has been bothered throughout his 12 - year NHL career with various leg injuries, especially during the last three seasons.

At the same time, another veteran announced he would "temporarily" retire to contemplate his hockey future.

LEAVES CAMP

Defenceman Bob Turner, with Montreal for five seasons before 1961, left the Chicago Black Hawks in 1961, left the Chicago camp in St. Catharines when the team apparently couldn't guarantee he would play in the NHL.

In Peterborough, Toronto manager - coach Punch Imlach said he is moving veteran forward Ron Stewart, to defence as a replacement for all - star defenceman Carl Brewer. He is still recuperating from a broken wrist suffered in the last game of the Stanley Cup finals last spring.

Stewart is not new to the position. He was a regular defenceman with Leafs in the 1957-58 season.

In Boston, Bruin coach Milt Schmidt said he thought the team was stronger at centre than it has been for years.

He listed Murray Oliver, Bob Leiter, Forbes Kennedy, Orland Kurtenbach and veteran defenceman Doug Mohns, who has been switched to centre ice during training.

Lorne Benson, Forced Out Of Football by Game Knee, Now Flower Shop Owner

By IRA DEYSDALE

WINNIPEG (CP) — It was mid-summer 1956 and fullback Lorne Benson had a feeling he was heading for a "banner" football season with Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

He weighed 205—the heaviest of my career—and I was hard as a rock."

Bombers were playing Tiger-Cats in an exhibition game in Hamilton and Benson had just been sent in as defensive end. He promptly cut down a Ticats running play for a seven-yard loss.

It was a good play but the cost was high. Benson was hit on the inside of his left leg. At the same time two men hit him from behind.

He got up and tried to trot off the field. He almost made it to the sidelines before collapsing.

"It felt like someone had a hot knife in the joint of my knee."

Benson, who had earned the nickname "Boom Boom" for his rough, driving type of play, never guessed it at the time but he had just played pro football for the last time.

The dark-haired, six-foot native of Winnipeg, Icelandic by origin, was 23. He had played five years as a pro, all with Bombers.

In 1963 he was rookie of the year in the West, the same year he set a league playoff record that still stands when he scored six touchdowns in a game against Saskatchewan Roughriders.

It wasn't until after three months in hospital that Benson realized what trouble he was in. He had a wife and four small children and was paying for a house. And he was accustomed to living on a salary of $6,000 to $7,000 a year from Bombers plus about $4,500 earned as a railway pipefitter.

He conditioned his game leg until it was stronger than the other one and figured on getting back to football in the 1957 season. But it never regained its agility and he still can't bend it as far as the good leg.

Finally realizing that football was out, he began a grind of long hours of work that turned him from a gridiron terror into a florist—a polite, friendly man with a gentle touch.

Dressed in a dark suit and fresh white shirt, he talked the other day about how the change took place.

"There are a lot of kind and generous people . . . . While I was in hospital here a lot brought flowers. Being a tough type, I was taking them and I was chucking them.

"This was a lady-like thing. Flowers suggested softness, and this one wasn't soft."

OPENED OWN SHOP

Then one day his wife Betty brought him scissors and he gradually changed his mind about flowers.

When Benson got out of hospital and learned later that his football career was over, he got a job as a flower delivery man. During the day and stayed with his pipefitting at night.

He watched the florists work and became more and more impressed with their skills.

In 1958 he opened a florist shop of his own. He didn't have much money to start and it was a "two-by-four" store. He got his first job when "one of my friends allowed me to do his wedding."

With the Benson family now increased to five children, Betty went to Chicago and took a course in floral art while Benson's mother took care of the children.

Today the Bensons have a medium-sized store that last year did $30,000 gross.

Boom Boom now weighs 225. He's still trim but he towers over a basket of flowers. As his big, bony hands work deftly among the blooms, he tells why it's a "darn tough job."

"In football," he says, "you have to remember 250 plays; in the flower business 2,500 items and names."

EAGLE SUSPENDED

Both have three touchdowns for 18 points. Montreal lineman Bobby Jack Oliver booted a convert and a single for two points, but remained in eighth place with 22 points.

Place des Arts To Be Opened

MONTREAL (CP) — After much uncertainty, Montreal's costly Place des Arts, a concert-hall-opera house is to open Saturday with a makeshift program far from the gala opening it had let show originally planned.

However, ticket sales to the opening at the 3,000-seat auditorium are still selling at from $15 to $100 dollars a seat. The centre says they are going fast.

A union dispute had placed the $10 million complex and opening program in doubt until the unions agreed to a six-month truce in their jurisdictional battle Sunday night.

The first piece of the Place des Arts centre in downtown Montreal has cost an estimated $22,500,000 or twice as much as originally predicted. The piece includes the concert hall-opera house and two underground garages to accommodate 800 cars, and appreciation of most of the land needed for the next phase.

The second phase, not yet started, calls for a 1,250-seat theatre and a concert hall for chamber music seating 500 as well as a convention building to help defray the cost.

Is It Farm or Teaching?

By DORIS CLARK

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — I want to thank you for such a helpful letter. Many of the things you suggested about dating girls have worked out, although my father and I still don't get along. I supppose it will take time.

I have been on the farm now for four years. My mother told me to quit school after I failed my grade nine. I have hated her for that ever since.

I don't care for the farm because of the working hours. I was planning on being a teacher in the future. If I quit the farm I will get no money and my sisters will even fight me. My girl friend and a lot of my other friends figure I should leave my folks on the farm and attend this school where I can learn teaching.

My folks have a really respectable farm in this community and it is worth about $30,000. If I talk to them about leaving they just laugh at me and say I am crazy. — WOULD-BE TEACHER.

DEAR WOULD-BE — It doesn't help when the family discourages you without even hearing your point of view. Does your mother really think you can't make it?

Find out first whether you are more of a practical man than a student. Try to know why you failed grade nine. If you have the gray matter to finish high school and take up teaching, the prosperity of your farm should not keep you from your chosen field.

Your teacher or vocational counsellor holds the key. Consult him. My article on Choosing a Career will explain this; it is on its way to you.

DEAR DORIS — Since the Near Eighties appear to be in the limelight just now, I would like to add my nickel's worth with the hope you can give some helpful hints. I have two daughters and two sons, all married, and nine grandchildren. I love them all. I have spent my life for them, giving as my means allowed: baby sitting, ironing, mending, etc.

All have come to me with their problems and mending, etc., but now all have outgrown the need. No one even bothers to phone me. I live alone, and the only time I am in contact with them is when I phone them. Should I happen to go to any of the homes, they don't even bother to say hello. They sit watching TV — more like deaf and dumb statues than intelligent people. I do not want anything from any of them except perhaps a little company now and then or just a little chat.

If I could only turn back the time — my 30 years — to when I was happy knowing I was needed and helpful! — JUST ANOTHER NEAR EIGHTY.

DEAR NEAR EIGHTY — Want to know something? You are needed! Just the one to give a lift to some of the folks who are having a rough time of it.

Wouldn't you like to help with the fun in a Seniors' Club, or with the work in a Child Care centre? Some volunteers mending can give an overworked mother a lift. There are shut-ins who would give anything for a friendly chat with you. Reach out beyond the family of yours to embrace a little of the larger world. For clues see the Children's Aid Society of Belleville, Hastings County and Trenton, 63 Moira Street, Belleville.

DEAR DORIS — I was very impressed by the letter which appeared in your column from the lady who was a teacher in India. I wonder if you could send me some information about the World Literacy Inc., that you mentioned.

I am very interested in making teaching my life's work, but want to teach in a foreign country, as this person is. I am 17 years old. — BROAD HORIZONS

DEAR BROAD — Good for you. The rewards of such work can be tremendous. To learn more, write to Mr. Hadley C. Perrin, President, World Literacy (Canada) Inc., 33 Jackes Avenue, Toronto 7, Canada.

(Write to Doris with your question. Enclose a five-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope for a private reply.)

Beware of Rabid Animals

A healthy, handsome specimen of the fox family, but this animal is more prone to be found rabies infected than all others, and therefore is its greatest carrier.

By Matthew B. Dymond, M.D., Health Minister for Ontario

Rabies is an infectious disease which attacks the wildlife in Ontario and may at times assume serious proportions. It may affect any warm blooded animal and may be contracted by humans. When this happens it is often fatal. Your Ontario Department of Health suggests that through knowledge and understanding of the danger, unnecessary deaths may be avoided.

In Ontario rabies is spread principally by the red fox, although other wild animals, skunks, bats etc. may become involved, and domestic animals such as dogs, cats, cattle, horses. It is spread from one animal to another through the saliva. The virus may be present in other tissues of the body, but it cannot be transmitted except through the broken skin, hence the danger from animal bites.

The incubation period, that is from the time the virus enters the body, until the appearance of symptoms of the disease, varies from as short a time as two to three weeks, to longer than six months. The period of infectivity is the most important, that is the time during which the virus may be spread in the saliva. It may last from four or five days before the symptoms of rabies appear, until the the death of the animal.

There are two types of rabies, but both types show a change in disposition and behavior of the animal. Furious rabies is particularly marked by the period of great excitement which sets in after two or three days, causing the animal to run about in a wild, aimless manner, and to attack and bite anything in its path. Paralysis of the limbs sets in and the animal finally becomes unconscious and dies. Dumb rabies is marked by early nervous symptoms, but without the great excitement and viciousness which is the furious type. The course of the disease is rapid and death usually occurs within three or four days.

If a person is bitten or scratched by, or comes into contact with the saliva of a suspected rabid animal, the affected parts should be thoroughly washed with soap and water immediately. A physician must be consulted without delay, so that if treatment is necessary, it may be begun without delay. This may be lifesaving. If anti-rabies vaccine is required, this will be provided to physicians without charge by the Ontario Department of Health.

To avoid the serious dangers of rabies, parents should teach their children to observe wild life at a safe distance and to stay away from an unusually tame, wild animal. Do not coax, play with or handle any wild animal or bat, or touch any animal found dead. Have family pets, cats and dogs, vaccinated against rabies by your veterinarian. And remember to be constantly mindful of the possibility of infected animals when camping, hiking or on vacation.

'Outer Limits', New Horror Show, Said Quite Boring

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — It has been obvious for some time that evening television lacked one type of program. We got it Monday night:

A horror show.

The program was the first of a new series, The Outer Limits heralded as science fiction and complete with a chrome-plated, three-fingered monster from a distant planet, somehow pulled down by radio beams to southern California.

It was reminiscent of old horror movies, but with modern refinements.

The creature lumbered around like a Frankenstein monster but was preceded by gale winds. He also dispatched enemies with electrical charges. Quite amazingly he spoke and understood English.

Because the series comes at an early hour (7.00 p.m. 6.30 p.m. EDT), it is apparently aimed at a youthful audience. That's gonuse it is likely to bore anyone older than 21.

Breaking Point, a new series dealing with psychiatric patients, took over ABC for a late evening hour (10-11 EDT).

This series, judging from the initial program, will serve up one long and one short case history each week. Last evening, the long case concerned a truculent, stammering clarinet player. The short one involved a Hollywood sex symbol who couldn't love anyone because she hated herself.

Paul Richards plays a resident psychiatrist in a hospital-wise, patient and dedicated. In future episodes, Edouard Franz will appear as an older psychiatrist.

The program seemed clinical, unnecessarily painful and failed to prove anything very much.

JAPANESE VETERAN

Yasuo Hayakawa has made movies and appeared in several Broadway plays in 40 years of acting.

Your Car

Steer Clear Of Back Road Blues

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

The thruway, turnpike, expressway or parkway may not offer you the straightest line or the shortest distance to your destination, but on a long trip, it's usually the safest, quickest, most economical route to travel. You avoid the slowdown-and-accelerate patterns which cut gas mileage, wear away tire treads, overwork brake linings, encourage engine heat and a greater wear on parts. You don't have to maneuver over rough roads which are especially hard on tires, alignment, steering and shock absorbers. If your car has a standard transmission, you can save a considerable amount of gear shifting and clutch wear.

You gain from a safety point of view, too — especially at night. No blind curves and sidroads, no narrow 1-or 2-lane paths to lessen through, no unexpected pedestrian traffic to delay you or cause you to swerve off the road. You might also look at it in this way: If your car breaks out or has a breakdown without warning, wouldn't you hate to be on a lonely back road?

• • • •

From P. L.: "Can a 12-volt battery be used as a booster to start a car that has a 6-volt electrical system?"

Yes, but keep all lights and accessories switched off.

• • • •

T. L. writes: "If radiator water is hot but not at the boiling point, will it boil up if the radiator pressure cap is suddenly loosened or removed?"

The pressure cap holds the boiling point down by keeping the water under pressure. Taking off the cap drops the pressure to normal and the water can actually boil violently. That's why caution is urged when removing the cap.

• • • •

C. B. asks: "How does engine oil get on the distributor points?"

Excessive crankcase pressure will force oil vapor up into the distributor. Such pressure is often the result of a clogged breather cap plus abnormal piston ring blowby.

• • • •

M. S. writes: "Unless it becomes damaged in some way, or is defective to begin with, why would there be any need to replace a radiator pressure cap?"

Long service can affect the cap so that it loses its efficiency. Specifically, the spring weakens and no longer able to withstand normal pressure build-up.

Sally Rand's Ideas Run Counter to Head of Fair

By BOB THOMAS

GLENDORA, Calif. (AP) — What New York's World Fair needs is a Sally Rand, so says Sally Rand, an expert on fairs, fans and other matters.

Chicago's Century of Progress in 1933 is remembered more for Sally than any of its attractions. Something similar should be done for New York in 1964, she said, admitting that it probably won't be. Her ideas run counter to those of the fair chief, Robert Moses, veteran city planner.

"Mr. Moses is very set in his ways," observed Sally. "He is entertained, in his inimitable wisdom, that there will be no midway at the fair.

"He is a good bridge builder and no doubt expert in matters of landscaping, but I doubt if he has the know-how to put on an exciting and successful fair. Fairs need to fairs for fun. Part of the fun and excitement of fairs is the midway.

"All the traditions for fairs to be characterized by the female image of one exciting woman. The first Chicago fair had Little Egypt. The early ones in San Francisco had Stella. I was at Chicago in 1933, then at San Diego, then the Centennial and at San Francisco in 1939-40.

"I understand Mr. (Leon) Leonidoff of the Radio City Music Hall is training 60 rockettes to appear at the New York fair. That's all right, if you like to watch 60 girls kicking their legs in machine precision. But it's rather impersonal. There's not much feminine appeal."

Sally doubts she will be invited to the New York fair—"but there's always a chance; people do change their minds." Since she readily admits to having been born in 1904, the year of the fair would see her behind the fans at an amazing 60 years of age.

Amazing she is, for she still tours the country for more than half the year, performing the act that made her famous. She works most of the time with the fans, which are pure ostrich and run $200 a pair. But with all that waving, they must be replaced three or four times a year.

Burlesque Comedy Dying At Hands of Strippers

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Burlesque comedy, valuable training ground for such illustrious comedians as Jackie Gleason and Red Skelton, faces inevitable extinction in the United States today — destroyed by barely talented girls wrapped in G-strings.

That is the verdict of two men who go to burlesque shows and get paid for it—by a university. They are college professors who want to record for posterity the art that once was to night club entertainment what late-night television shows are today.

Burlesque comedians feel they are nothing more than a bridge between two strippers," said Dr. John Ulrich of the University of Pittsburgh.

Ralph Allen, Ulrich's colleague in the school's speech and theatre arts department, offered a similar appraisal of the art he's following since his early teens.

DYING ART

"Burlesque is dying," he noted sadly. "Men are no longer important. They frequently aren't even billed. The people performing in burlesque now are old and they aren't being replaced. There's no future in burlesque for a man.

"It's too late now. They can never bring back the old burlesque show. The image of burlesque they've sold to the public has ruined it. Managers couldn't turn back the clock even if they wanted to."

Allen, 36, and Ulrich, 38, both married, started their study under a $1,500 fellowship from Mellon.

"Burlesque comedy once was family entertainment," it attracted family groups," Allen said. "It was folk comedy, the workingman's theatre. In those days it was a more reliable indication of popular taste than the literary theatre. Burlesque was a movie, vital theatre, less pretentious."

Allen, who has a dramatic criticism and theatre history, said burlesque comedy enjoyed its greatest period immediately before and after the First World War.

Ontario House in London In Midst of Renovations

TORONTO — Ontario House, the province's show window in Europe, is in the midst of extensive renovations and will enter 1964 as a spanking new "home away from home" for Ontario businessmen and tourists.

The $400,000 renovations, which began this summer and will be finished at the year's end, include complete reconstruction of the interior of the seven - storey building on Charles. II Street. Just down the street is London's famous Haymarket and not far away is Piccadilly Circus.

In order to consolidate all Ontario government offices in the United Kingdom, the Agent General for Ontario had to find space at Ontario House for the provincial immigration office, the trade and industry branch of the Department of Economics and Development and representatives of the provincial Departments of Agriculture and Travel and Publicity. This meant clearing the office tenants from the top five floors and taking possession of the entire building.

Official representation in the U.K. is nothing new to Ontario. As early as 1873, immigration agents were sent on periodic visits to the British Isles to recruit labor for the province. In fact, since the Second World War, the immigration office has been instrumental in the movement of nearly 350,000 British immigrants to Canada.

FIRST OFFICE IN 1908

The first official Ontario government office was established in London in 1908. It moved to another address in 1930, closed in 1934, and reopened at its present location in 1944.

Since the war and the subsequent growth of Canadian industry, Ontario House has directed much of its activities to aiding businessmen, although a selective immigration service is still provided, based on the needs of Ontario industry.

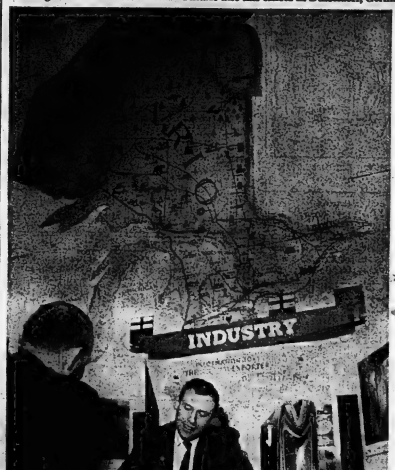
As a result of the province's energetic trade crusade, mastermided by Economics. and Development Minister Robert Macaulay, Ontario House is now carrying out an aggressive trade and industry program to find new industry and foreign investment for Canada, bring foreign and Ontario firms together for licensing arrangements, locate sales agents for Ontario products and help Ontario manufacturers in the export market.

The province's new trade and industry offices in Dusseldorf, Germany, and Milan, Italy, work closely with Ontario House, supplying industrial leads and following up others.

Of the 14 government-sponsored sales missions which have gone to foreign countries in the last year, eight have used Ontario House as headquarters, fanning out from London to the other countries of Europe. These missions accounted for some 80 per cent of the $30 million of new business that has been brought to the province by the Sales Opportunity Mission Program. One other sales mission will go to Europe this fall.

TOO TIMID

According to Ontario House officials, the biggest problem in increasing Canadian exports to Europe is complex — many Ontario businessmen.



Mr. Macaulay likes to tell the story of a manufacturer who visited Ontario House and said he was prepared to sell at that time, but thought he might "look around" to see if there were possibilities for his products.

After being prodded, the manufacturer agreed to let the trade and industry people at Ontario House arrange a series of business appointments for him. The man returned to Toronto with $35,000 worth of firm orders.

With more than 50,000 Canadians living in the London area and a growing number of branch offices of Ontario firms establishing in Europe, the new Ontario House has its work cut out for it for many years to come. But despite its new look, this "show window of Ontario" will continue to be a home away from home for all who come.

MINISTER'S VISIT — Economics and Development Minister Robert Macaulay, at right, is shown with Web Thompson, senior trade and industrial counsellor at Ontario House, during his recent inspection of Ontario government offices abroad. Ontario also has offices in Dusseldorf, Germany, and Milan, Italy.

PROVINCE OF OPPORTUNITY — Web Thompson, senior trade and industrial counsellor at Ontario House, discusses business opportunities in Ontario with a client. Eight government-sponsored sales missions to Europe have used Ontario House as headquarters during the last few months.

INDONESIANS BURN BRITISH EMBASSY

Canadian Youths Incited To Riot At Birmingham

Toronto Boy Charged With Intent to Murder

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (CP-AP) Negroes prepared to bury three more young victims of racial violence here today while sympathy demonstrations were staged in other parts of the United States.

Appeals were issued in several cities to make Sunday a day of mourning for the four Negro children killed in the Birmingham church bombing.

In Birmingham police court Tuesday, two Canadians who took part in a pro - segregation group were sentenced to 180 days in jail and fined $100 each for inciting to riot during recent demonstrations led by the National States Rights Party.

However, the sentences were suspended on condition they leave Birmingham. They were Dwyer Stoner, 20, Montreal, and David Stanley, 18, Toronto.

MUST REMAIN

J. B. Stoner, militant lawyer for the party, said Stanley could not leave because of other court commitments.

These include a preliminary hearing on a charge of assault with intent to murder on a charge growing out of a rock-throwing incident at recently - integrated Ensley High Elementary School, and an appearance before a federal grand jury.

Stoner said Stanley has been subpoenaed by the grand jury, which is an special session to investigate activities to block federal court orders.

Dwyer and Stanley both told Judge Karl Langley they came to Birmingham recently and have been actively engaged in activities of the National States Rights Party.

The party is a pro-segregation group that has advocated boycotting sales with Negroes and forming private schools.

YILE CHARGES

Further charges were filed here against two 16-year-old white boys—Michael Lee Farley and Larry Joe Sims, both Eagle Scouts—in the Sunday shooting of Virgil Ware, 13-year-old Negro.

An investigation continued into the shooting of a 16-year-old girl, Carole Rosamond Robertson, who was killed Tuesday with hundreds of others gathered for a paying silent tribute before she was buried in the red clay beneath cedar trees.

National Negro leaders, including Roy Wilkins of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, were en route to join in tribute to Denise McNair, 11, and Addie Mae Collins and Cynthia Wesley, both 14.

JUBILANT FARMERS — Prairie farmers, already grinning at the prospect of a bumper wheat crop this year, had added cause for joy in the announcement of a gigantic sale of wheat to Russia. Will Not Return To Politics

OTTAWA (CP) — George Drew, 69, will retire as Canadian high commissioner in London next Jan. 1, and intends to travel, write his memoirs, and stay out of active politics.

"I think I have had a fairly good run at it," he said in an interview after it was announced he will stay in his London job at Prime Minister Pearson's request until the end of the year.

Mr. Drew was premier of Ontario from 1943 to 1948. He became national leader of the Progressive Conservative party in 1948 and led the party in every unsuccessful general election attempts to unseat the Liberal for St. Laurent.

He resigned as party leader in 1956 after a series of illnesses and rigorous parliamentary sessions left him weary and in poor health.

Mr. Drew was named high commissioner in June, 1957, a few days after the government of former Prime Minister Diefenbaker took office. He said it was clearly understood from the outset that he would take the job for only six years.

WROTE LETTERS

Mr. Pearson and he exchanged letters last Friday in which Mr. Drew sought retirement as soon as possible, but Mr. Pearson asked him to remain until the end of the year.

This appeared to indicate that the prime minister has not yet picked a successor. External affairs department sources said that of the senior departmental personnel, no one appears to be a front - running candidate for the position, Canada's oldest diplomatic posting abroad.

Mr. Drew told reporters his six years in London have been "one of the most interesting periods in the long association between Canada and Britain." Highlights included three prime ministers conferences organization of a Commonwealth education body, and a series of international conferences on the law of the sea, in which he was Canadian delegate.

His term also saw Britain's preparation of an application to join the European Common Market, and its rejection by France. During this period there were repealed reports of declining Canadian prestige in London. Drew blamed these Tuesday on partisans working for Britain's Common Market membership.

Her Swiss lawyer, Eugen Curti, told reporters Mrs. Porumbeanu, 22, is seeking a divorce on grounds of misconduct. She has also asked Curti to be executor of attorney her husband has held on her behalf.

In April 1960, Gamble, then a 19-year-old heiress to a $20,000,000 Remington typewriter fortune, defied a New York court and her grandmother-guardian, Mrs. Katherine Benedict, by eloping with Porumbeanu and marrying him in Hendersonville, N.C.

28 Die, Bus Hit By Train

SALINAS, Calif. (AP) — A speeding freight train shattered a makeshift bus jammed with Mexican field workers Tuesday, killing 23 and injuring 35 in the worst vehicle accident in California history.

Seventeen of the injured were in critical condition.

Bodies were strewn for half a mile along both sides of the track after the crash at a farm road crossing near the town of Chualar, eight miles south of Salinas.

"Both just flew all over the place," said Tony Vasquez, 29. He was working in a nearby lettuce field and saw the converted truck ripped into pieces.

Vasquez called the California Highway Patrol and then went back to do what he could.

"Two of those men died in my arms," he said.

UNDER THE ENGINE

"One body was hooked under the engine," said Coroner Chris topher Hill Jr., after visiting the scene.

Shoes, hats and cutting knives were all around.

"Everywhere you could hear the injured moaning."

Twenty - two died by the tracks. Others died as 15 ambulances rushed them to three Salinas hospitals.

Party Leaders Save Fighting Words for the Hustings

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Party leaders saved their fighting words for the hustings Tuesday as they campaigned for Ontario's general election, one week from today.

A pre-recorded television program on the CBC featuring Premier John Robarts, Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer and Donald C. MacDonald, New Democratic Party leader, was broadcast but turned out to be a calm review of platforms with an absence of political fireworks.

Ground rules for the first such broadcast in Ontario history ruled out direct debate between the leaders. Each made a prepared statement, then answered questions from four reporters.

Mr. Robarts and Mr. Wintermeyer, both while campaigning in the North accused each other

Television Debate Largely Recapitulation by Leaders

TORONTO (CP)—Leaders of Ontario's three political parties faced each other on one television program Tuesday night. The result was largely a recapitulation of the platform each has placed before the electorate for the Sept. 23 election.

The format called for the leaders — Premier John Robarts, Progressive Conservative party head, Liberal Chief John Wintermeyer and New Democratic Party Leader Donald MacDonald—to make an open ing statement, answer reporters' questions and then have an opportunity to sum up.

Norman Campbell of the Ottawa Citizen, Milt Carman of the Toronto Telegram, Wilfred List of the Toronto Globe and Mail and syndicated columnist Don O'Hearn were the questioners on the pre-taped, hour-long CBC program.

The lightly drawn rules laid down for the three-way confrontation lessened the chances of any possible personality clash and there was none. No occasion was allowed where any one of the leaders could lock horns directly with either of his opponents, each answering only question from four reporters.

UN Meets in Mood of Optimism

Agenda Is Crammed With Hot Issues

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Encouraged by the mood of optimism generated at its opening session Tuesday, the 18th United Nations General Assembly turned today to an agenda crammed with hot issues, including the Buddhist conflict in South Viet Nam, African racial quarrels and the admission of Communist China to the UN.

The UN's 21-country steering committee had an agenda of more than 80 items. It was expected to approve all controversial questions for debate during the session.

Prime Minister Pearson of Canada worked on the final drafts of the speech he will deliver to the General Assembly Thursday.

Informants said Pearson is not expected to make any dramatic statement, but that he will make an appeal for a further thawing of East - West tensions in light of the nuclear test ban.

Pearson will deal solely with UN problems, including peacekeeping operations and their financing. He attended the opening of the assembly Tuesday after experiencing a little difficulty finding Canada's place on the floor. Seating arrangements have changed since Pearson represented Canada last at the UN in 1958.

Pearson is expected to pledge once more Canadian co-operation in UN peacekeeping missions. He has been sounding out other delegations here on creation of a UN peace force of a more permanent nature and has indicated Canada is willing to improve the quality and mobility of its UN contingents.

Pearson is having a sort of "old home week" at the United Nations where he initiated action in 1956 which resulted in creation of the UN Emergency Force for the Middle East and the award of the Nobel Peace Prize for him.

He spoke Tuesday at a luncheon in memory of Dag Hammarskjold, late UN secretary-general, in whose name a fund has been started to train civil servants in underdeveloped countries.

Pearson said Hammarskjold had "died in the front line of the battle of peace" and that support for the fund was "little enough for the Canadian government to do to show its respect" for him.

The General Assembly opened its session with a spark of hope generated by the limited nuclear test-ban treaty. But the first meeting had some surprises.

Albania seized the initiative and made a surprise call for assembly debate on giving Red China the UN seat held by Nationalist China.

The Soviet Union had been expected to make the proposal despite its ideological dispute with Peking.

The Russians made clear, however, they will support the demand for seating Red China, even though it came from Albania, Peking's ally in the party dispute.

Jobless Total Cut 23,000

OTTAWA (CP) — The back-to - school movement of teenagers helped reduce the number of Canada's unemployed to 270,000 in mid-August, a drop of 23,000 from July and 10,000 from the year-earlier total, the federal labor department and the bureau of statistics reported today.

The mid-August jobless count represents 3.8 per cent of the labor force, compared with 4.1 per cent in July 1963, and 4.8 per cent in August, 1961. In July the unemployment rate was 4.2 per cent.

The monthly report is based on a survey of 35,000 households across Canada during the week ended Aug. 24. Since it is a sampling survey, all figures are statistical estimates and are not given as precise totals.

Employment was estimated at 6,746,000 in August—hardly

The labor force also increased over the year, rising by 154,000 to 7,016,000. This total, however, was 19,000 lower than in July, reflecting the move back to school which pulled teenagers out of the labor force.

Jakarta Rioters Stone And Club Staff Members

Mob Protests Forming Of Malaysia Federation

CP from AP-Reuters

JAKARTA, Indonesia — Indonesian demonstrators protesting creation of anti-Communist Malaysia looted and set fires to the British Embassy and attacked homes of embassy personnel today. The three-storey embassy was left a burned-out shell.

Indonesian troops were reported moving tonight to quell the rioting, the most savage in a three-day outburst of mob violence directed against the new federation, created Monday with Britain's backing of four former British colonies.

Reports said at least 12 members of the embassy staff had been injured by flying stones or clubs.

The demonstrators terrorized the staff for two hours.

The crowd, completely out of control, looted the building's interior, moving from floor to floor and hurling furniture and other equipment out of windows.

The attack started in the early days, came as the Indonesian government ordered left - wing unions to hand back control of British companies which the unions seized here Tuesday.

SAY BE DESTROYED

(Diplomatic sources in Singapore said reports indicated the Jakarta Embassy was burning "fiercely." Demonstrators stood around outside the building and looted it, they added.

(Reports reaching Singapore said demonstrators also attacked the home of British Ambassador Andrew Gilchrist, who was forced to take refuge in the home of United States Ambassador Howard P. Jones.

(The demonstrators also set fire to Jakarta's British Cricket Club, a social centre for Britons living in the Indonesian capital.

(The diplomatic sources said there was no report of any concerted effort to put out the embassy fire and it appeared likely the building could burn to the ground. A number of children of British diplomats, including Gilchrist's two young sisters, were slated for evacuation from Jakarta tonight aboard a scheduled flight of the Australian airline Qantas, the sources said.

In Kuala Lumpur, capital of Malaysia, the government announced it was putting the country "in a state of preparedness" because of Indonesian and Philippine hostility.

Indonesian Defence Minister Gen. Abdul Haris Nasution called on his country to enhance its physical alertness to prevent

Urged To Go After Union

CHICAGO (AP) — A federal judge has called the Seafarers International Union a "violent" organization and urged a government agency to "go after it.

Judge James B. Parsons spoke out in U.S. District court Tuesday in the case of the Howard L. Shaw, a Canadian freighter. The ship, caught in the middle of a dispute between the independent SIU of Canada and the Canadian Maritime Union (CIC), has been idle and empty in Chicago for almost five months. A dynamite blast knocked a hole in her side Sept. 7 in an unsolved bombing.

The judge board arguments on a motion to remit fines on Local 418 of the Grain Elevator Workers Union. Members of the small unit have refused to load grain on the Shaw.

Judge Parsons denied the motion to wipe out the fines. He announced that the fines will stand, and that, moreover, they will be increased from the current $500 a day to $500 a day.

WON'T PRESS

However, the judge said he will not press for immediate payment. Lawyers for the local planned to make an appeal to a higher court.

The judge commented that the president of the local, Jack Conner, had proved himself in contempt of court by recommending that the members persist in their jobs. But the union itself, he added, has done nothing to purge itself of contempt of court as directed or in course of refusing to put grain aboard the Shaw.

"If I ordered these men to work and they didn't work, I think I'd fire them," the judge said.

The Shaw is owned by Upper Lakes Shipping Limited of Toronto. The company once drew its sailors from SIU ranks but since last year the crews have been represented by the CMU.

Judge Parsons told a lawyer for the U.S. National Labor Relations Board that the "other union is the violent one" and responsible for continuing secondary boycott of the Canadian ship.

Patrons of Three B. C. Cafes Participating in Food Straw Vote

VANCOUVER (CP) — It's enough to make a grown politician cry.

While party leaders are stumping the hustings for votes in the Sept. 30 British Columbia election, patrons of three Vancouver restaurants are participating in a gastronomic straw vote.

John Dyes, general manager of the "three convenient polling stations," has all the signs up and one downtown, plans to continue his straw vote despite what he says is court action from election officials.

Straw votes have been illegal in B.C. since before the war.

But each morning Mr. Dyes puts in the restaurants windows the results of sales of these 49 - cent hamburgers, each containing about three ounces of meat.

Bennett Burgers—named after Social Credit Premier Bennett, contains lettuce and cheese, "plus us credit for thing one, my friends," says the Mr. Fulton Burgers — after Progressive Conservative leader Davie Fulton, contains cheese only, "a solid meal at a Conservative price;"

Perrault Burgers—after Liberal leader Ray Perrault, contains lettuce only—"a Liberal portion done as you like it";

Strachan Burgers—after New Democratic Party leader Robert Strachan, contains cheese and tomato. "Never Have Recommended by your doctor."

Mr. Dyes started his promotion stunt last Thursday and said he was told by election officials to take down the signs in his windows. On his lawyer's advice he refused and has heard no more of the matter.

"I'm not conducting a straw vote on these names but on these hamburgers," he said.

"I hope they do take me to court, just to see what happens. The maximum fine is $250."

He admits that the gimmick has been worth more than $250 already.

"We had a tremendous weekend . . I just about killed myself."

Liberal Candidate Calls For More Aid to W. Hastings

Too many areas in Ontario have fallen into neglect for want of government attention among them Hastings West, Liberal candidate Frank Follwell said in Marmora last night.

Keynote speaker in a party rally at the town hall here, Mr. Follwell pointed out the north-ern end of the riding as a typical example of government inattention — "Highway 14 for reasons I can never figure runs all the way to Marmora and then stops dead. Yet the country north is well populated and offers tremendous opportunities for tourist business" he said.

The highway should extend to hook up the Cow Hill road. "This should have been done years ago." Mr. Follwell added

"But like everything else here, this has been a safe riding for the Conservatives for 20 years. They haven't had to do anything, so they haven't bothered doing anything."

He made a pledge that, if elected, he would work for the extension of highway 14 through an area he said normally would have been serviced with a good road years ago.

"After 20 years in power the government has become a club that seeks safety in numbers, concentrating in areas where they weren't so safe". This has resulted in many "have not" ridings, foremost among them Hastings West.

Mr. Follwell re-iterated Liberal policies on pensions, sales tax and education, reminding his audience of John Winters-mayor's promise in Belleville last week of a University of Ontario College for Hastings West and the Liberals were returned.

Mr. Follwell was welcomed to Marmora by Reeve William Shannon. Among the speakers were Robert Temple M.P. Hastings South. The rally climaxed a full day's activities for Mr. Follwell at Marmora, during which he toured the Marmora-Deloro area. One stop, speaking with the workers, the village of Deloro, coffee parties organized by party supporters in Marmora and Frankford.

Kindergarten School Gets Another Teacher

TRENTON — The Trenton Board of Education met briefly Monday night to approve the hiring of an additional kindergarten teacher for Glen Elizabeth public school. The new teacher, Miss R. Briggs of Eagland, a fully qualified teacher by Ontario department standards, will assist Mrs. Audrey Arbuckle. There are 74 kindergarten pupils in all at the school; 37 attend in the morning, 37 in the afternoon. The hiring of Miss Briggs brings to 70 the number of public school teachers for the town's 2,158 elementary students. This year, Trenton has three public schools and two high school teachers overseas with the Department of National Defence educational establishment.

Colborne Man Pleads Guilty To Charge Laid

TRENTON — A Colborne man, Donald Cummings, 23, yesterday pleaded guilty in magistrate's court in Trenton to assaulting Mrs. Marie Martin of 1 Balsam St., on Aug. 19 and was remanded for one week for sentence by Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

Sgt. Gordon Steenburg told the court that Mrs. Martin had made a statement to police, charging Cummings had attacked her as she walked along Fraser Drive at the back of Dundas St. W. at 1:30 a.m., Sunday morning, Aug. 18. Mrs. Martin said that she was on her way to the back door of the Boston Cafe, where she worked, when the man jumped out of the park area and grabbed her. He was said to have "put a head lock" on her and when she attempted to scream, had put his fist in her mouth. Then, the couple rolled around the road, Mrs. Martin still struggling to free herself. She was rescued by a passing car. Her assailant then ran away, Sgt. Albert St.

Sgt. Steenburg said that he had seen the accused run out of Albert St. at the time while he was on another call, but had been unaware of the circumstances. At 2.10 a.m., the sergeant got a phone call from a Bannockburn man, who said that he and his wife had given a lift to a man who said he wanted to go to Belleville. The Bannockburn couple had decided to stop for lunch in east Trenton and the man had then jumped from the car and ran away. Sgt. Steenburg then charged Cummings on Dundas Street a short time later.

Yesterday, a record of convictions for assault breaking and entering and wilful damage was read to the court.

"Am I supposed to be proud of this or something?" Cummings asked the magistrate as the convictions were read.

"The court has a right to hear your record read and you have a right to deny anything read that isn't true." the magistrate told him.

When asked if he had anything further to say, Cummings said that he had been "pretty drunk" when the episode occured.

"I'm all right when I'm sober," he said, "anything I do is when I'm drunk".

"Nobody's forcing you to drink" the magistrate reminded him.

Another School Guard Will Be Hired

TRENTON — The Trenton Traffic Committee, of which Councillor Glenda Graham is the chairman, has recommended and town council has approved the hiring of a school guard for the corner at Dixon Drive and Byron St. Mothers of children who cross at this corner to go to St. Mary's School, Queen Elizabeth School and Marmora St. Senior Public School have complained to the traffic chairman about the lack of protection from speeding motorists at this intersection. School guards are paid $18 a week.

Council has also approved the committee's recommendation that all municipal employees who receive car allowances be issued with permits allowing free parking at meters during working hours.

The Ontario Department of Highways will be asked to trim the hedge at the intersection of Fourth Ave. with Highway Two, as a Trenton by-law calls for all hedges to be trimmed to a four feet. The hedge on the province - owned land at this corner has not been trimmed a traffic hazard in the past.

A sign, reading "No Left Turn," at the Dundas St. corner, removed because of its unattractive appearance, will be replaced by a more suitable sign, because directional signs placed high above the street fail to arrest the attention of motorists.

Meantime, the traffic committee is faced with a problem. Recently, signs reading "No Parking," were placed in the vicinity of the Cold Storage plant on Albert St. Now, the Trenton Parks' Board says that the signs are on its land and wants them removed. Town engineer Reg. Aldersey will check to see if the parks' board says is a fact and if so, will order the signs removed.

OFFERED TO SHARE COST

Car dealer, Carl Weese, has offered to share the cost, $50.00 with the town to place a planter type wall between his carlot and a lower-grade parking lot in the riverside of Front Street, subject to the necessary funds being available. ("Ill of course" Councillor James Duncan wanted to know at Monday's council meet). The Parks' Board will be acquainted with the specified plan but the proposed wall as will council before any decision is reached. Meanwhile, the Trenton Chamber of Commerce will be asked to look over plans of the town parking lot and rule as to whether or not it would be suitable for the location of a permanent chamber office. It is unlikely that the parking lot itself will be finished this year because grading operations were more extensive than contemplated when the new parking lot was first started and council's 1964 budget for this type of work are running thin.

Illustrative of democracy in action is council's decision to ask the contractor (Harvard of Toronto) now engaged in re-construction work on North Street to do some ditching work into the vicinity of a home owned by Mrs. Annie Beattie in order that a water main may be installed, Mrs. Beattie and several other area residents have been getting water from a well on her property. Now, says Mrs. Beattie, the well has run dry. In the meantime, she said, the office will be asked to supply Mrs. Beattie with water by means of overland pipe.

Councillor Ross Burtt has asked the town engineer to check the sources of "very strong odors", in the vicinity of the east side of the town bridge and the municipal offices and in the general area of the east side pumping station on the riverbank.

well, Trenton firemen and police will be on hand.

"The Tattoo would not be taking place if it were not for the wonderful assistance of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment," Secretary Mayor D. James MacDonald, said. "I think everyone in Trenton should be aware of their fine work and co-operation in this affair."

Project Would Not Be Costly Meeting Told

TRENTON — Municipal government representatives from Trenton, Belleville, Frankford, Northumberland and Durham, Prince Edward counties and Sidney township met in Trenton Monday night to discuss the proposal of the idea set forth his thoughts on the subject for the delegates.

It has been proposed to locate the school east of Trenton but this suggestion does not meet with approval from the communities west of the town. On the other hand, areas east of Trenton seem not to be interested in having the school located close to Trenton. Trenton itself has offered to donate a site north of the town on the west side of the river but the general feeling is that this site would be too small for the purpose.

The project would not be costly from the viewpoint of the areas concerned and the province would pay for the cost of the provincial and federal government's share in great deal of the cost of the building of the school.

Jury Retires to Consider Verdict In Murder Trial of Joseph L. Coombs

By HARRY MULHALL

Joseph Leonard Coombs this afternoon walked a lonely beat on a capital murder charge against him in the Valentine's Day stabbing of his 18-year-old girl friend.

The jury — 11 men and one woman — this morning began reviewing the evidence behind closed doors in the death of Sharon Margaret Frost last February 14th, at L'Amable.

The 23-year-old Toronto hotel employee, was charged after the girl was found dead at the Deitor Road home of her sister, Mrs. Norma LaCroix.

The jury retired at 10.50 a.m. and was briefly recalled by Hon. Justice Moorhouse for further instruction 13 minutes later.

Earlier, in a 40-minute address, His Lordship reviewed the case and instructed the jury on the law.

He warned them that "sympathy for anyone should not be allowed to influence your judgment."

"Credibility and weight of the evidence are entirely matters for you."

He also cautioned them: "Above all, use your commonsense and human experience."

The trial neared its conclusion yesterday afternoon after chief defence counsel Russell Cass announced he would call no witnesses on behalf of Coombs. Instead Mr. Cass concentrated his main defence in a plea to the jury to return a verdict of non-capital murder.

He based the details of a 40-minute address on the plea that stabbing was not deliberately planned and was committed while Coombs was the victim of "uncontrollable passion."

Earlier, Crown Attorney John Pringle called on the jury to uphold the capital murder charge, as he contended Coombs "planned this murder and deliberately carried it out."

"What his motive was we don't know. Apparently he had been frustrated in love. That is for you to decide," the prosecutor told the jury as he summed up the testimony of 20 witnesses called in the two-day presentation of his case.

KEY WITNESSES

Among key witnesses summoned yesterday were:

Gerald Lawless, Toronto sports store manager who recollected selling a hunting knife the day of the stabbing to a man whose identity he could not recall;

Inspector Harry M. Sayeau, OPP Criminal Investigations Branch, who discovered a purchase order for a 13-ounce bottle signed by Coombs the same day in a Toronto liquor store;

Dr. H. S. Johnson, Bancroft practitioner who agreed he detected alcohol on the accused's breath three hours after the stabbing;

Mrs. Hazel Parks, L'Amable store employee who served Coombs purchases of cigarettes and watched him buy bubble gum minutes before the stabbing.

Mrs. Patricia Therne, at whose Toronto home Sharon Frost boarded while being courted by the accused man, and who believed they were "very much in love."

The knife, liquor bottle, a key owned by Coombs, relationship of the victim to the accused man were the crucial points in the opposing claims of prosecutor and defence counsel in their final summations to the jury.

NO MATCHING SHEATH

Mr. Lowdon said when he sold the knife he could not find a matching sheath and fitted it with a different scabbard. Factory numbers on both articles did not co-incide. The numbers on the knife found near the girl's body and those on a sheath taken from Coombs corresponded with the numbers noted at the time of purchase. The knife, he sold also had a loose handle, recalled Mr. Lowdon. So did the weapon found at the scene, police testified.

A bottle found in the glove compartment of Coombs' rented car contained three ounces of liquor bearing Coombs' fingerprints. The hired automobile driven by the accused, struck in a snowbank outside the LaCroix home.

Crown counsel seem to be any dispute that Sharon Margaret Frost came to her death by a knife-in the hands of the accused," Mr. Pringle told the jury as he began his summation.

Evidence showed the incident occurred at the LaCroix residence. He asked the jury to consider Coombs' deliberations as he drove 100 miles to L'Amable in the borrowed car ". . . and I respectfully submit to you he had armed himself . . . he perhaps during the trip stress fortified himself with liquor." Coombs' first words after the stabbing (to Mrs. LaCroix) were "he had to kill her."

"He was sorry. There is no doubt about that. The remorse he had after this act — that is for you to decide."

It might be said that Coombs hired the car to impress his girl. Yet he apparently backed it up into the LaCroix driveway, immobilizing it in a snowbank.

STRESSED EVIDENCE

"Is it reasonable to say this is the way to take his young lady for a drive — or is it reasonable to say, in his mind, this factor did not enter into it."

Mr. LaCroix was on day shift at Faraday mine at the time, a fact earlier mentioned to the accused. Thus when Coombs arrived there were only two "defenceless" women and three children in the house.

"Perhaps nothing turns on it perhaps it is a coincidence."

Mr. Pringle then stressed evidence regarding the murder weapon.

"But surely, members of the jury, this mis-matching of the knife and the sheath and the loose handle — is more than chance happening. More than chance happening you might say, in Toronto, considering the population there."

After Coombs dragged the Frost girl into the bathroom the door was locked.

"Did he lock that door so he could attempt reconciliation?"

"Or did he lock that door to complete a plan of murder and frustrate the rescue attempt of Mrs. LaCroix?"

Of the stab wounds on the body only one was slashed. The others were "deliberate . . . businesslike."

The prosecutor pondered if Coombs drank all the liquor in the bottle found in his car. To veteran OPP constable John Hawkins who arrested him, the accused did not show signs of too much whiskey consumption. He also purchased cigarettes and gum in a normal fashion immediately prior to the stabbing.

ASKS QUESTION

"There is one question you may well ask yourselves," said Mr. Pringle. "Did this accused person in this planned and deliberate attack get buy a bottle of whiskey to give him courage or did he buy it to give him a defence?"

Coombs, he asserted, also "knew enough" to lock the bathroom door. While there were no signs of a struggle at the scene, this might well indicate that the first blow was fatal.

"On all the evidence you have heard here, the only reasonable conclusion you could possibly come to in this case is that the accused is guilty as charged," concluded the prosecutor.

Mr. Cass began his appeal for a reduced verdict after a brief adjournment of the court.

"It is my submission to you that your proper verdict in this case — and a verdict which all the evidence cries out for — is 'not guilty' of capital murder, 'guilty' of non-capital murder."

The crime was no: one of planning and deliberation and the accused's guilt must be proven beyond a reasonable doubt.

It was not an unlikely explanation, said Mr. Cass, that Coombs, "in the bad graces of his girl friend" had rented a car that would impress her.

NOT PART OF PLAN

The murder was alleged to be part of a plan.

"It was part of a plan to go and make up with his girl friend, yes. It was not part of a plan to go and murder his girl friend."

Had the hiring of the car been part of a plan, a name other than Coombs' would have been signed to the rental vouchers produced by police.

"It has not been proved beyond reasonable doubt that the knife—was the knife that came from the liquor sportshop (in Toronto).

Coombs had phoned the LaCroix residence the morning of the stabbing and learning the Frost girl didn't want to see him again, "That's all it did want to know." This also was alleged part of a plan.

"The sensible and rational explanation is — that's all he wanted to know because he was going to come up to L'Amable and talk to her."

He noted the fact Coombs had unsuccessfully phoned the girl several times earlier that week.

"He wanted to talk to her. He wanted to reason with her," said Mr. Cass.

"He hoped he would be bringing her back to Toronto with him to resume her job in Toronto."

The liquor store voucher also was signed with Coombs' name and the witness "with no attempt to cover it up."

COOMBS WORRIED

Coombs, he added, unfortunately was worried about his girl friend "and unfortunately he got into the rye. He got probably nine ounces of it in him". On arrival at the LaCroix home he found the door locked.

He was seized by "uncontrollable" passion "and all the circumstances point to that beyond a doubt".

He pointed out the accused was known at the L'Amable store from previous occasions and queried if he would go through there he was known if he were deliberating a crime.

Mr. Cass described the purchases Coombs made there as "peace offerings" for his visit to the LaCroix home.

"Would anybody who was planning and deliberating murdering his girl friend get three packages of cigarettes and bubblegum?"

"At this stage what he had in mind was to go up and talk to Sharon".

The prosecution suggested he was lying in the rented automobile as a getaway car.

"Would anyone get a getaway car stuck in a snow bank? All evidence shows you that that car was stuck when he got out of it and he knew it was stuck".

Mr. Cass submitted when Coombs got out of the car his intention was to talk to the Frost girl and perhaps "save the knife around", and threaten her. The accused man also probably had consumed liquor on an empty stomach.

WENT BERSERK CLAIM

He got to the door, found it locked "and just went berserk. What other word is there for it? He just went berserk." In his passion Coombs gained "superhuman strength."

The bathroom door might have been locked "voluntarily or involuntarily."

"There is no doubt this man was just seized by superhuman strength — this little fellow was just so strong in his passion Coombs just no struggle. It was just uncontrollable."

After his arrest, Dr. Johnson said Coombs got the impression that he had intended to threaten her, perhaps, but not to harm her.

"I am not suggesting there is no fault here, or no very, very serious fault in the criminal sense," concluded Mr. Cass and he emphasized again the stabbing was not deliberately planned.

The last witness called yesterday before the summations began was Mrs. Therne, a onetime resident of the Tweed area. She said Coombs drove the Frost girl to work each day and called every evening.

"Were they very much in love in your opinion?" asked assistant defence counsel Thomas Agnew.

"Yes, I think they were."

She recalled the weekend before the stabbing, the couple left for L'Amable; Sharon did not return and Coombs phoned the defence conference during the next three days.

MORE WOUNDS THAN NECESSARY

"Did he ever state he would harm her?"

"No".

"Or hurt her in any way?"

"No."

Bancroft coroner, Dr. O. W. Anderson, who certified the girl was dead, agreed her body had more wounds than necessary to cause death.

"Is it fair to say, doctor, these wounds were made by someone in a frenzy who just stabbed and stabbed?" asked Mr. Lally.

"It would appear to me that it was a frenzied type of attack — let me qualify that — a deliberate type of attack, and a business-like type of attack."

Regan — provincial pathologist. Dr. Alex Eots, of Helleville, said the girl's wounds indicated the stabbing "would be determined —and perhaps in a frenzy."

Mr. Cass queried if the wounds appeared the result of an attack in sudden passion, rather than of planning and deliberation.

"I think you could draw this conclusion yes — as one conclusion," replied the pathologist.

OPP constable Dave Brown took Coombs from the scene to police cells in Bancroft after the stabbing.

SMELLED ALCOHOL

In the cells "he asked me if I wanted to know why he killed her. I told him he didn't have to tell me anything", said the officer. "He asked me if I thought she was dead. I said 'Your guess is as good as mine.'"

Coombs also stated: "I stabbed her twice in the throat, twice in the heart and twice in the back".

The officer added he smelled no alcohol on the prisoner but admitted he never smelled Coombs' breath.

Dr. H. S. Johnson said he was called the same evening to treat Coombs for two cut fingers. While he was in the cell, the accused man started to sob. The doctor quoted him as saying: "I didn't mean to — but she had only phoned me or I could have talked to her on the phone".

The doctor gathered from further remarks that Coombs expected to be married but the girl insisted he take night school to improve his job opportunities. Coombs seemed in doubt his ability to learn and felt this was futile.

Dr. Johnson could not remember if he smelled alcohol on the accused man but agreed with Mr. Cass when a statement he made police shortly after his visit to the cell, stated he had detected liquor on Coombs.

"He could very much have been intoxicated three or four hours earlier?"

"Three or four hours earlier, yes", said Dr. Johnson.

ASKED TO CALL POLICE

First witness called yesterday morning was Mr. Lowdon who testified on the sale of a hunting knife and oddly numbered sheath the day of the stabbing.

However, he could not remember the identity of the buyer.

He confirmed for Mr. Cass he had told police later the man had blonde or light coloured hair and was "at least" five feet, eight inches tall.

He was closely questioned on the mismatched sheath and the knife, by Mr. Cass.

"I suggest to you this is something that could have occurred in many other sporting establishments selling sporting goods in Toronto, or elsewhere?"

"Yes," said Mr. Lowdon, agreeing it was a "common" knife.

Shown the weapon found beside the body he added: "The only reason I say it's the one I sold is the loose handle and the sheath (numbers)".

"You couldn't swear that it was the one you sold?"

"No I suppose not."

"But it is similar to the one you sold," commented Mr. Cass.

Mrs. Parks, employed at Adams' store in L'Amable, told selling cigarettes and gum to Coombs that afternoon. He then drove off up the Deitor road. Shortly after she saw him walking toward the store "very slow with his head down." His hands were bloodstained and he asked her to call the police.

CRUISER CAME

Jack Adams, also in the store, said Coombs told him he'd had an accident. As Mrs. Parks lifted the phone to call police, an OPP cruiser pulled up outside.

Mr. Adams said Coombs went out to the officer.

"When he went out to the cruiser he said something to the effect: "I'm the man you want."

Other police witnesses called briefly yesterday were OPP detective sergeant Lloyd Lyle, who took charge of investigations at the scene; Dieter Von Gemlingen, and Mrs. Rita Charlebois, Attorney General's Department analysts.

Terror in the South

At Birmingham, Alabama, four innocent children have been blown to bits.

Strange though it may seem, there must have been somebody who rejoiced at that news, for it is difficult to suggest any reason why a person would plant a bomb in a church basement on a Sunday morning if he did not wish to kill.

The lesson this bombing teaches is easy to read at this distance from the scene, but that will do no good. What is needed is for the lesson to be learned in the South — and even the blood of four dead girls may not be enough to write letters large enough to be read by the blind.

The lesson is that a communally cannot treat a hard, specific, factual and concluded in terms of percentages.

Take the field of public health, for instance. Every week the American public is bombarded with "statistics" from different sources, some of them agreeing, but all of them readily believed by the mass of people who think that anything with a number in it is a "fact."

We are told that one fourth of the nation's population is overweight; that 40 percent of school children are afflicted with their eyes; that one out of every four persons in the United States will be hospitalized this year; that 25 percent of cold compound sold is due to allergy; that more than 20,000,000 Americans suffer from impairment of hearing.

Each of these figures is given by some "authority" — and each combines with the figures given by other authorities. We rarely look for the face behind the fact — to determine whether it is the face of an objective tabulator, a social propagandist, a marketer, or simply an irresponsible doctor seeking some personal publicity.

Nothing can be more dangerous than a fact that is improperly understood. When a health organization tells us that 750,000 persons will die of heart disease next year, which is about half of all deaths annually, we forget that this figure includes many persons over 70, whose heart failure is indeed by old age.

In our passion for the "cold facts" we overlook the most important fact: namely, that a fact is not a fact at all if it is downright harmful, unless you know how to interpret it, and how to make it fit into a larger body of knowledge. When a man throws a fistful of facts at me, I am almost always sure he is deficient in understanding.

What Is a Man Worth?

"You may be surprised to learn how much you're worth," says a life insurance company in an advertisement.

This is true. In a sense, most of us would be better off dead.

But those we left would not. In most cases they would receive only a small portion of what the breadwinner in the family would earn if he lived until retirement.

Few of us realise how much a man earns during a life-time. A university graduate, commencing work at 24, could reasonably expect to average at least $7,000 to $8,000 a year for forty years. Dollars of present-day value. During his lifetime, approximately $300,000 will go through his hands — slip through his fingers is often a more accurate description. Even in a low-paid job, starting after high school, the total for a lifetime of work will be well over $100,000.

The monetary worth of a well-trained, healthy man and woman is much higher than most of us realise, even if the total is reduced by the amount necessary to keep the worker alive and active.

This ought to help us decide whether it is worth while to spend so much money on education, whether it is worth-while to spend so much money on health services, whether it is worthwhile to open our doors to immigrants, whether it is worth-while to endeavor to keep our trained young people at home instead of letting them seek better-paid jobs south of the border.

The two infinities that Blaise Pascal trembled to think of are today the familiar ground of science. The infinity of bigness is the province of astronomers; that of smallness falls to the physicists. The biologist stands midway between; yet it is he who, without ever quitting the realm of living matters, comes in touch with the prodigious. Man has no need to plunge into the two Pascalian abysses in order to be appalled by what he is: Let him merely scrutinize his own substance.—Jean Rostand.

Women Own 80 Per Cent of Our Wealth

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Sitting in a restaurant the other day, I overheard a man remark to his friend in the course of a conversation: "It's a fact that women own 80 per-cent of the wealth in America. I read it somewhere just a while back."

"You don't say so?" His friend accepted this nugget of information with delighted surprise, and for a minute digested in terms of percentages.

Take the field of public health, for instance. Every week the American public is bombarded with "statistics" from different sources, some of them agreeing, but all of them readily believed by the mass of people who think that anything with a number in it is a "fact."

Kildare Keeps Doctors Busy

"Health"

A global system to speedily warn nations about the adverse reactions of drugs of the kind caused recently by thalidomide will be set up under the World Health Organization.

The system calls for WHO's 120 member states to notify the health agency of any ban or withdrawal of a drug, and for WHO to immediately send the information to all other members.

This was one of the main decisions taken during the health agency's 16th annual assembly that recently brought to Geneva, Switzerland, some 400 MDs and public health specialists from throughout the world, including those from every Western Hemisphere country.

In another important decision, delegates adopted a resolution calling for the study of the influence of television on teen and pre - teen youngsters.

Sponsored by Belgium, France, Holland, the Soviet Union and the United States, the resolution noted that TV programs in part, which rely on murder, theft, arson, sexual offences, and scenes of violence, are said to encourage people, and especially young people, to undertake similar offences in actual life."

But the delegates also pointed out that TV serials with medical themes have brought more people to visit their doctors more frequently.

Gazelle Boy In Sahara

UNESCO Features

The story of a boy living with a herd of gazelles in the Spanish Sahara — just as Rudyard Kipling's Mowgli lived with a pack of wolves in India — is published in a recent issue of "Notes Africaines," a quarterly review produced by the University of Dakar.

The "gazelle-boy" is described by a Frenchman, Jean-Claude Auger, who was traveling alone in September and October of 1960 through the desert region of Smara, Edu de Oro, in the Spanish Sahara. One morning he saw a young boy leaping and running at tremendous speed with a herd of white gazelles. He started after them and noticed human footprints among the hoof-marks left by the animals. Mr. Auger followed the gazelles to a small oasis surrounded by desert sand and almost leafless date-palms.

The youth, hiding in a bush, was about five feet four inches tall, very light, sunburned skin and long, straight blue-black hair. At the stranger's approach, he looked away, his eyes filled with terror and plunged into a nearby thicket.

During the next few days while he camped near the oasis, Mr. Auger had several chances to observe the gazelle-boy. Using a small Arab flute he always carried with him, he managed to overcome the boy's fear and arouse his curiosity. He noted that the boy and the gazelles used certain signs and gestures to communicate with each other, as well as little grunts and cries.

After 10 days, Mr. Auger's food supplies ran out and he had to strike camp and head for civilization. His report is one of the rare eye-witness stories of a human being living with wild animals.

No Powered Ash Tray!

Wall Street Journal

The other afternoon a friend picked us up for a drive in his new air-conditioned car. It not only has all the main supplementaries, like an engine and four wheels, and gadgets like pushbutton windows. You can also flick up the steering wheel to escape stooping while getting in the driver's seat, and there's a button to adjust the outside mirror without having to stick your arm out in the summer heat.

At his house we had a push-button martini over ice cubes that came out of a spout; none of this wrestling with trays. Later the prepackaged dinner came out of an automatic oven and rang a cheerful bell and out leaped all.

Over the coffee, while still at the dining table, we watched a couple of television programs selected by our host from a little switch in his armchair. The dessert dishes, incidentally, didn't even have to be put in the automatic dishwasher machine; the dishes themselves were edible.

It was all pretty impressive for a fellow who sometimes has cutting up firewood for the kitchen stove and hauling in drinking water from the outside pump. But on the way home in that shiny new car we discovered we had to reach across the dashboard and pull out the ash tray by hand. Inferior. It just about spoiled the evening.

Will Teach Sky Parking

Winnipeg Tribune

Drivers who have trouble backing into parking spaces will be greatly interested in the program sponsored by the United States Air Force, Aeronautics and Space Administration at Houston, Texas. NASA is spending $1,400,000 to build a trainer to teach astronauts how to park in outer space.

In 1965 the U.S. hopes to send up two space vehicles which will dock with each other and join to form a space platform. This kind of parallel parking is known to the orbital trade as space docking. It will be tricky business. The trainer at Houston will consist of a huge darkened hangar in which there will be full-scale models of a Gemini capsule and an Agena target rocket. Both models will be able to move in any direction to simulate the last 100 feet of the space docking manoeuvre.

Funny thing how the parking problems of earth are moving into outer space. It could be that the Houston trainer will be the key to success in the drive to the moon. Unquestionably it would be a devastating blow to national pride to send up Gemini and Agena and then to have them back into each other and bash it fenders hundreds of miles from nowhere.

Rail Travel Will Change

Memphis Commercial Appeal

The general sales manager of the Canadian National Railways and the Canadian National Railways Historical Association in Montreal says that train travel will be the way to go anywhere in style.

He predicted trains that would provide dancing, free food and beverages, potted palms in a lounge car, dens for executive conferences and steam baths.

His forecast is most attractive and he may be right that this may be the "comfortable way" to travel because highways are bringing new problems that they can be solved.

Certainly mass transportation must return to the metropolis. But as the Canadian National experience has shown it must be travel with an imagination factor added — and good scheduling to make it convenient.

The railroads have been making great strides in the last few years in getting the management developed in line with the potentials of rail service. If they will ride the wave of the new economy of passenger service, they surely will find that this can be a lucrative business too.

Right But Wrong

To Your Good Health

Heat Helps Circulation And Relaxes Muscles

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

An alternative for those with tender skins would be to apply a partially-filled hot water bottle to the area in the impression system you describe. Heat, as may give the same relief, but the water should not get scalding hot and avoid the possible risk of injuring the skin while the wearer is asleep.

Dear Dr. Molner: My grandaughter is two months old and has started sucking her lip. I fear this will tend to deform the shape of her mouth. — Mrs. C. K.

No, I wouldn't worry. The little ones are full of odd tricks, and usually discard them promptly.

Dear Dr. Molner: My teenage girl friends consider ordinary drinking water out of style. They are now averaging 3 to 5 cokes of pop a day. Because we are weight conscious, we have been buying only low calorie types, but pop seems to be sweetened with sugar substitutes. Is there any harm in teenagers drinking this beverage? What is the limitation, if any? — Mrs. Veronica

No particular limitation, for health reason, except that it's not good to encourage the palate so that everything has to be flavored or sweetened. That can be the start of the habit of overeating! For that reason I'd stop buying so much pop.

Shingles can be a painful disease! To receive a copy of the pamphlet, "All About Shingles," write to Dr. Molner, in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 128, Dundee, Ill., enclosing a long, self-addressed envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover printing and handling.

Be Careful With Bears

Thunder Bay Press

Nobody gets hurt by a bear. They're cute. They're really friendly and when you see a man they move away; especially if the human starts to move away, too.

This is a philosophy that is deeply entrenched in the North Country and has led to a trusting that beggars argument. Usually, the speaker consciously or unconsciously gives the impression of harboring the belief that he is an expert on the subject. Just toss a rock at a bear if it doesn't start moving away. It will run from it like its mad. So say the bush-wise hunters.

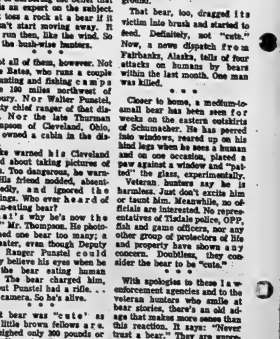
Not all of them, however. Not Mike Bates, who runs a couple of hunting and fishing camps up into the Lake Nipigon country at Sodbury. Nor Walter Punstel, deputy chief ranger of that district. Nor Jim Punstel, Thunder Bay Township of Cleveland, Ohio, who owned a cabin in the district.

Mike warned his Cleveland friend about showing pictures of bears. Too dangerous, he insisted. His friend nodded, absentmindedly. He ignored all the warnings. Who ever heard of a man-eating bear?

That's what he's now the "late" Mr. Thompson. He photographed one bear too many; a mean-tempered one. Deputy Chief Ranger Punstel could hardly believe his eyes when he saw the bear eating Thompson's flesh. The bear charged him, too, but Punstel had a rifle. . . not a camera. So he's alive.

That bear was "cute" as other little brown fellows are. He weighed only 300 pounds or so, medium size. But he certainly not "cute." He smashed the visitor's neck, mauled him into a hiclot and then proceeded to eat him his body.

Nor was the bear "cute" that mauled the three - year - old daughter of forest ranger in Marquette National Forest in the upper peninsula of Michigan. The girl's mother heard her daughter scream. She saw her race toward the bear, back door of their home, reach for the screen door then fall back as the bear leaped and clubbed her to the ground.



That bear, too, dragged its victim into brush and started to feed. Now, a new dispatch from Fairbanks, Alaska, tells of four attacks on humans by bears within the last month. One man was killed.

Closer to home, a medium-to-small bear has been seen for weeks on the eastern outskirts of Schumacher. He is served into windows, reared up on his hind legs when met on a human and on one occasion, placed a paw against a window and "patted" the face of a woman inside.

Veteran hunters say he is harmless. Just don't excite him or bother him. Game and fish officials are interested. No representatives of Metals police, OPP, fish and game officers, nor any other group of protectors of life and property. Only known enemy concern. Doubtless, the coroner the bear to be "cute."

With apologies to these law-enforcement agencies and to the veteran hunters who tell us all bear stories, there's an old adage that makes more sense than all the rest. It says: "Never trust a bear." They are unpredictable, wary and shy one moment, in a fury the next. Soldiers grow with familiarity with humans.

Moira Secondary Students Are Granted Permission to Construct New Building

Students at the Moira Secondary School are in the building business again.

A couple of years ago the construction-minded students of the school built an agricultural building on part of the campus and now it is found that extra accommodation is required.

So members of the Quinte District School Board have granted permission to the students to erect the required addition. The building addition will be as large as the school agricultural budget will permit.

Although a lengthy affair, the September meeting of the high school board saw little more than routine business with much of the time being taken up in the purchase of equipment for the new addition at Quinte Secondary School.

Most of the new school addition is now in use although work is not entirely completed. The rooms are used for classes during the day while at night tradesmen come in to complete wiring and other construction details.

RUSH ORDERS GIVEN

Higher enrolment than was anticipated at the opening of the school term saw rush orders for new desk equipment at the Moira Secondary School. Total high school enrolment at the beginning of the term for all three high schools was 3342.

Two high school teachers, Mrs. Norma Grant, Guidance director, and Mrs. Jeanette McIlhbon, English teacher, were authorized to attend a Windsor convention in October where discussions will centre around the exceptionally bright student and what curriculum may be arranged for his or her advantage. The two teachers will attend the convention at no expense to the local school board.

The caretaker at Moira Secondary School was directed to construct a barrier against children climbing the "cyclone" duct and gaining entrance to the roof.

The board was told that small children have been in the habit of gaining access to the school roof after school hours

BOARD WILL ASSIST

The Mathematics head at Quinte Secondary School, Mr. H. Gibbs, has been named a member of the Mathematics Teachers Association of Ontario and the board will assist him with expense money in conferences which he may be required to attend.

A special committee was set up to arrange details of extra wiring necessary at the Quinte Secondary School.

Additional parking around the school entrance made necessary by the million dollar addition is in course of completion, while the driveway to the entrance of the board administration office has also been paved.

Have Already Sold Tenth of Play Seats

Mail order sales of tickets to the Crest Repertory Company's Belleville production of "June and the Paycock" on Oct. 8 opened Monday, and by Tuesday night, about ten per cent of the house was sold. Of the 100 student's seats available at a dollar each, 65 have been taken for by groups from Quinte Secondary School, Belleville Collegiate Institute and Northumberland High School, in Brighton. Not all these seats are sold yet though, because not all the orders included payment, according to Don Thomas of Belleville, who is handling ticket sales for the Belleville Theatre Guild, sponsors of the performance.

Mr. Roberts was asked whether the proposed federal pension plan, announced after his provincial government had signed papers toward a provincial plan, had become the prime issue in the provincial campaign.

He replied that it had been "pole - vaulted into the campaign" and there would have been little stir if the provincial election had not been called for Sept. 30. He said he had no fear that negotiations with the federal government to settle on some form of plan would prove successful and added that the matter was too serious to be subject to pressure.

Also questioned on the pension issue, Mr. MacDonald plumped for the federal plan rather than the proposed provincial program. He had supported the provincial plan at first because there was no other.

"But now we've got something that is infinitely better," he said. The federal plan would cover everyone in the province, is contributed, and the provincial program only half. His party favoured the federal plan because "it is a single plan rather than a private plan and we don't think that this should be handled through the private insurance companies."

Mr. Whitemeyer said his party had supported the provincial program because the Conservative government in Ottawa had taken no action on one. "But the whole picture has changed," he said. The provincial government should clarify its position and Ontario should back the federal program as a vital issue in Confederation.

Tuesday of dishonesty on the portable pension issue, but the liveliest political event of the day was a three-party meeting in Mr. MacDonald's suburban Toronto riding of York South.

BLAMES PROMOTION

Mr. MacDonald said an NDP government would include drug costs in its medical care program, but that this would not mean "a use of public monies to underwrite the present high costs of drugs created in good part by . . . excessive promotional costs."

Today the NDP leader campaigns in Hamilton, the premier in Sudbury and Copper Cliff and Mr. Winternmeyer will visit Toronto and Brantford.

In Sault Ste. Marie Tuesday Mr. Roberts accused the Liberal leader of telling "outright lies" about the government's stand on pensions.

He said he agrees "heartily and entirely" with the principle of the federal government's program, and said the issue "should not be kicked around politically."

The government, he said, is willing to amend its plan in favor of the federal one "any day of the week."

In the television broadcast the premier said there could be an easy integration between the federal and provincial pension plans, with the Ontario program serving as an "upper deck" of extra coverage for Ontario residents if the federal plan were put through.

Mr. Winternmeyer, stumping through North Bay, Earlton and Haileybury, attacked "downright Tory dishonesty" and again challenged the premier to make clear before the election whether he would support the federal pension plan.

BROWN — CARTER

Bridge Street United Church chapel was the setting for the August wedding of Brenda Kathleen Carter, 238 Coleman Street, Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. R. Carter, Lucan, Ontario to Alan David Brown, Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Brown, RCAF, Germany. The officiating clergyman was Rev. H. Davis, minister of the church.

Baskets of pastel gladioli and satin bows on the guest pews were used to decorate the church. Traditional wedding music was played.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father was gowned in organza over taffeta, floor length, lace bodice with seed pearls and sequins around the scalloped neckline and long sleeves. The skirt of organza had small lace appliques on the front and sides. The headpiece had three white roses and white lily-of-the-valley with a bouffant veil of nylon tulle, shoulder length. The bride's bouquet was designed with red American beauty roses with fern intermingled, white streamers and rosebuds in a cascade.

Maid of honor was Miss Patricia Mulholland, Northwood Crescent, Belleville and the bridesmaid was Valerie Carter, sister of the bride, of Lucan, Ontario. They were gowned alike in yellow nylon over taffeta with a lace bodice, round neckline and short sleeves. The skirts were accented at the back by two bows and two panels of lace. Their headpieces consisted of a large yellow organza rose with short yellow veils. They were matching gloves and shoes and carried bouquets of large white 'mums sprinkled with gold glitter.

Groomsman was David Galloway of Trenton and the ushers were Angus Cameron, Trenton, and Robert Carr, Lucan, Ontario, brother of the bride as junior usher.

A reception was held in the Pinnacle Room of the Hotel Quinte. On the table was the three-tier wedding cake which the bride's mother had made and the bouquets of the wedding party.

The bride's mother received the guests wearing a street length sheath of blue lace over taffeta with matching short sleeved jacket, white accessories and corsage of pink sweetheart roses. The bridegroom's parents were likewise in attend as they are currently residing in Germany with the RCAF.

For the wedding trip to Lake Placid and the Adirondacks, the bride chose a three-piece suit of blue and white linen, all white accessories and corsage of blue and white carnations.

Out of town guests attended the wedding from Trenton, Lucan, Deseronto and Napanee.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown will reside at 87A Queen Street, Belleville.

Speaking Personally

By Gladys Ward

YOU BEAUTIFUL DOLL

Dolls are so realistic nowadays that they are almost people. It is a little frightening to pull a string in the back of a doll and hear it say, "I'm hungry," or "Tell me a story." In spite of yourself you almost begin, "Well, once upon a time there was this princess who lived in a castle . . ." before the glassy stare in the doll's eyes shows you it isn't even listening. There are bride dolls with satin dresses and nylon veils; and ballerina dolls wearing tutus and ballet slippers. There are baby dolls that drink water and wet; and teen-age dolls with earrings, brassieres and high heels.

What is left to the imagination? I wonder what the present generation would think of my collection of dolls when I was young?

They were cut out of last year's discarded mail order catalogue, and I had whole families of them. I kept them in a book with each family in separate pages. Some of them unfortunately had lost their legs in the picture where they were cut off by the caption printed below, and some had to be cut out together since their arms were entwined. But I could play school and church, have spelling matches and contests, and I let those dolls through all sorts of adventures. They became characters out of books and plays, and I had my favorite with heroines, heroes and villains.

So I didn't envy those little girls who had Eaton Beauty dolls, (well, perhaps just a little). But I figured mine were more versatile, and certainly more adaptable to the many situations I contrived for them.

DIAL E FOR EXASPERATION

One of the more exasperating things about living outside the city is the rural party telephone line. Surely with all the research the telephone company does with electronics, some better system than the old one which was used in horse and buggy days could be devised. Except that now we use a dial instead of calling the operator or winding a crank, the same old annoyances are there — people lifting the receiver and staying to listen, or using the line for interminable visiting, or even in the case of some teenagers playing records over the telephone to each other.

I suppose there are economical reasons why there must be four or more users of one line, and I am no electrical engineer, but why can't they devise a red light that comes on when the phone is in use, so that there would be no need to listen in to find if the line was busy? Or a button that one could press that would cut out other lines? Or a device that would cut off communication at the end of five minutes to remind users that their time was up. This might not eliminate the persistent talker, but at least they would have to dial again.

Surely a company which can bounce signals off the moon could spend some of that brain power in an invention that would alleviate some of the annoyances that party-line users suffer.

WEDDING

ELMS — METCALFE

FICTON—Standards of white gladioli decorated St. Mary Magdalene Church, Picton, for the wedding of Betty Anne Metcalfe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Metcalfe, Milford R. R. 2, to Scott Stuart Elms, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Elms, Hamilton, on Saturday, September 14, 1963, at four o'clock. Canon R. B. Wright officiated at the double-ring ceremony. Mr. G. A. Jenkins was organist and Mrs. R. B. Wright the soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of French satin, featuring a scooped neckline outlined with lace appliques. A three-tier veil was held in place by a rosette. She carried a bouquet of white poms and pink Sweetheart roses.

Maid of honor was the sister of the bride, Rose Marie Metcalfe, who was dressed in blue peau de soie with a headpiece fashioned in a rosette with matching shoes. The bridesmaids were the Misses Lynne and Jill Elms, sisters of the bridegroom. They were also dressed in peau de soie with shoes to match. Their bouquets were feathered white poms.

Mr. Robert Mutch, Hamilton, attended the bridegroom and the ushers were Mr. James Metcalfe, brother of the bride, of Picton, and Mr. Jack Juanzemis, of Hamilton.

A reception was held at the parish hall where the bride's mother wore a beige two-piece ensemble with a turquoise marabou hat, and a corsage of pink carnations. The bridegroom's mother was wearing a cranberry colored ensemble with matching maribou hat and a corsage of white carnations. The bride's table was decorated with a three-tier wedding cake encircled about the base with the bridal bouquets.

On their return the couple will reside at Hamilton.

Quinte W. I. Visits Black Diamond Plant

2ND THURLOW—The Quinte W.I. met at the Memorial Hall on Tuesday afternoon with 38 members present. Later about 24 proceeded to the Black Diamond Cheese plant where a tour arranged by the Canadian Interprovincial conveners, Mrs. Douglas Atkins and Mrs. Insley, was conducted.

The group was met by Mr. D. Ross and Mr. M. G. Weiser who supplied coats for the tour. The many spotless departments from the initial processing to the storage of the many types and sizes of cheese were shown. The ladies were also introduced to members of the office staff and later were invited to the reception room where Mr. Cook explained the mural on the wall which depicted the complete procedure of cheese production from the cows out grazing in the field to the finished product.

Before leaving everyone received a package of cheese, at which time Mrs. Atkins expressed sincere thanks to the gentlemen in charge, for a most enlightening afternoon in visiting the plant which is the second largest of its kind in the Dominion of Canada.

After the tour the ladies returned to the W.I. hall where the president, Mrs. C. Woods, conducted the business portion which opened in the usual manner. Mrs. M. Mitchell presided at the piano.

The area convention is to be held at the Club Canara from October 31st to November 1st. A letter from the department was read telling of the 4-H Club project "The Milky Way" with classes to be held in Stirling. Leaders were appointed with Mrs. M. Mitchell and Mrs. F. Jones assistants and Mrs. Robert Atkins to assist when necessary.

Two minutes' silence was observed in memory of Mrs. N. Montgomery. The president concluded this portion of the meeting with an appropriate poem.

Refreshments were served by Mesdames E. Vivian, C. Reid, M. B. Weese, G. McMullen and A. Greatrix.

Plum Jam

by Mary Moore

The country is flooded with freezers and I am flooded with requests for freezer foods.

The recipes we give here for strawberry and raspberry jams to be stored in the freezer were so popular that we receive requests for repeats or for copies of the releases almost daily.

So because there is a great plum harvest this year I made plum jam to freeze, too.

Because they are so pretty, in mine I used Shiro plums, commonly called yellow egg plums and it is a great success.

PLUM JAM:

(Uncooked — to be stored in freezer.)

3 cups prepared ripe plums (see below) 5½ cups sugar, ½ cup water, 1 box powdered pectin (certo crystals).

Wash the plums. (I counted the number I washed. I needed 30 to make 3 cups.) Cut plums and remove stones but not skins. Chop. You must chop them or the pieces of skin will be too big. I cut each plum into about 8 little pieces. Measure 3 cups well-packed. Add ¼ cup of the water to them and bring to boil, then simmer covered for 5 minutes. Remove from heat. Now add the sugar and ...r for 2 or 3 minutes to dissolve it. In a small saucepan mix together the remaining ¼ cup water and the fruit pectin. Stir over heat until boiling and stir until it boils 1 minute. Add to fruit and stir for 2 or 3 minutes. Pour into small freezer containers or jars, cover at once with tight-fitting lids or seals. Allow to stand at room temperature for 24 hours. Then store in freezer. This will keep well frozen all winter but if you will be using the jam up within 2 or 3 weeks it may be kept in the storage part of your refrigerator.

WEDNESDAY: (Guests)

Dinner Menu

Pot Roast with Vegetables (see Monday); Tomato, Head Lettuce and Cucumber Tossed Salad with Mayonnaise; Peach Crumb; 10% Cream; Coffee.

PURPLE PLUM CONSERVE:

4 lbs. Italian plums, 3 oranges, 1 lemon, 1 lb. seedless raisins, 1 cup broken nut meats, ½ cup hot water, 3 lbs. sugar.

Wash the plums, cut into halves and remove the stones. Squeeze the juice from the oranges and lemon and put the peels through a food chopper. Mix the plums and hot water in a kettle, cover and bring to the boiling point. Add the sugar, peel, juice and raisins. Cook slowly until the plums are transparent and peel is tender —about 30 minutes, stirring very frequently. Add the nuts and cook 10 minutes longer, stirring. Pour into small sterile jars and seal with paraffin.

Women's Institutes

SIDNEY SOUTH W.I.

Mrs. Douglas Reid was hostess to Sidney South Women's Institute on the evening of Sept. 3 with a good attendance and with Mrs. M. Nobes in charge of the meeting. Plans were made for a short course "Safety begins at home" to be held at Albens hall on Jan. 15 with Mrs. M. Douglas and Mrs. D. Reid as conveners. An invitation was accepted to Marsh Hill to attend a workshop on Sept. 26. Sidney South members are invited to visit the County Home during the week of October 6. Mrs. Fred Meens gave her report of the Guelph Conference which she attended as delegate in June.

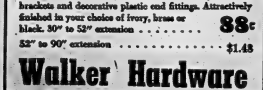
Mrs. D. Douglas introduced the speaker of the evening — Mrs. J. Marsh of the Canada Society Mrs. W. Donaldson who spoke on the proposed County Health Unit and Mrs. J. Bowdin of Eastminster Church.

Mrs. Marsh showed a film "Time and Two Women" which is a medical approach to the necessity of early diagnosis and treatment of cancer and stressing the need of constant vigilance of every woman in the care of her own health. Following the film there was a period of discussion of the work of the Cancer Society and was told of a workshop in Belleville where women gather and make dressings for cancer patients. Mrs. H. Holloway thanked the speakers for their interest and friendly approach to two problems of Health."

The hostess and Mrs. Roy Nobes and Mrs. Bert Meens conveners served coffee and refreshments and a social half-hour was enjoyed by all.

With the resumption of the Girl Guide activities in the city, Belleville Division Commissioner, Mrs. D. Stewart, announced that a basic training will be held for the benefit of new and inexperienced Brownie, Guide or Ranger leaders.

The program complies with a request from headquarters that an annual basic training be held purposely to raise the standard of Guiders in Ontario.



It is to the advantage of inexperienced leaders or those desiring to become a leader, to attend as the proper procedure for conducting meetings will be demonstrated, plus suggested methods and games, which will be followed by informal discussions. Kits will also be displayed containing all the equipment and material required by a leader.

A three-hour period has been reserved at King George School beginning the last Thursday evening in September and every Thursday until the training is completed in six weeks time.

Mrs. Diane Settle is in charge of the "Blue Training" for Guiders, while Mrs. Joan Watkin is conducting the "Brown" for those interested in Brownies.

Anyone desiring further information regarding these trainings is invited to phone Mrs. Dan Stewart at WO 8-7118.

MAIL CALL

Question: I've been asked to serve on a committee for a social group and it involves making a large number of phone calls. Do people serve mail concerning club activities. My name is listed on the roster as "Mrs. John Jones." Members might recognize me if I identify myself this way when I call, and I'd prefer to use it, provided it's correct. What is your opinion? — Mrs. M. M. C., Albany, N. Y.

Answer: Use of "Mrs. John Jones" would be correct if you were calling a store or some other firm in connection with a purely business matter. Although the calls you make on behalf of a club might be rather business-like in character, there is still a social connotation. It's more appropriate way to identify yourself would be to say: "This is Mary Jones," and then mention your connection with the club in the name above, doesn't register immediately.

HOSTESS GIFT

Question: When a guest brings a hostess a gift, should it be opened in front of everyone? We invited a number of friends to dinner recently, and one couple brought me a pretty little apron as a gift. I didn't have a chance to open the box when it was presented, as everyone was arriving in a rush. Indeed, I put it aside and forgot about it until the end day. After opening the package, I called the donor immediately and thanked her. I hope my seeming lack of appreciation at the time didn't offend her. However, I find the business of opening hostess gifts very awkward, especially when other guests don't bring anything, and would like to know how the situation should be handled diplomatically. — Mrs. W. L., Washington, D. C.

Answer: Hostess gifts are opened privately and without a lot of fuss. If it's not possible to open the package immediately, it may be set aside until the hostess has a free minute. But the gift should be opened at some point during the evening and the donor thanked on the spot, instead of waiting until a day or so later and treating the gift as an afterthought.

Wives of Three Leaders Keeping Home Atmosphere, Helping in Campaign

By PATRICIA RUSAK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

While Ontario's three party leaders have been battling for re-election, their wives have been dividing their time between campaigning and keeping a normal home atmosphere for their children.

The Sept. 30 election campaign, beginning shortly before the opening of the fall school term, came at a particularly hectic time for Mrs. John Roberts, Mrs. John W. Wintermeyer and Mrs. Donald MacDonald, all mothers of school-age children.

When interviewed in her spacious home in north London's residential district, the premier's pretty dark-haired wife Norah was in the midst of the unpacking, sorting and reorganizing involved in the annual switch from cottage back to school for her children Robin, 13, and Timothy, 11.

Helen Wintermeyer was caught between jaunts from her Kitchener home to Toronto where she was settling five of her six children—Mary Ellen, 18; James, 15; John, 12; Gretchen, 10; Sarah, 8—in private boarding schools. And since, she has been preparing for her 19-year-old daughter Judith for her first year at the University of Western Ontario.

Simone MacDonald had just sent three teen-agers—Sandra, 16; Jay, 14, and Brian, 14—off for their first day back at high school and was preparing to do a political broadcast for the New Democratic Party.

"A political career takes its toll of family life," said Mrs. MacDonald, a former child psychologist who has found that because of her husband's prolonged absences, much of her job as a mother has been to interpret their father to the children.

"But they harbor no resentment because their father is away so much and have been like regular troopers working for this election," she said.

Mrs. Wintermeyer, a social worker in her home town of Cambridge, Mass., before her marriage to the Liberal party leader in 1946, also speaks of a woman's heavy responsibilities when her husband embarks on a political career. "As a mother I am doubly cautious and do twice the worrying I normally would."

"And when John comes home on weekends, I feel as though a great weight has been lifted from my shoulders and I can relax."

The tall, charming, self-possessed woman is a strong believer in family unity and says a family functions best "when all live together in a normal fashion."

Mrs. Roberts, noted for softpedalling the role she has played in her husband's success with the Conservative party, says her youngsters have accepted their father's being away as a routine thing.

"It doesn't seem to affect them particularly"—and this is the way she would like it to be.

Because of the demands of their growing families and their husbands' careers, all three women have little time for hobbies or clubwork.

Running a home with six children has not left Mrs. Wintermeyer time for anything but a paying membership in many Kitchener organizations. But she says she'll have time to participate when her youngest child goes off to university in 10 years.

Mrs. MacDonald, the past president of her local home and school association in west-end Toronto and a former board member of the Elizabeth Fry society, also finds participation in activities outside of the New Democratic Party difficult.

Last spring she represented the party at the United Nations Conference on the status of women and attends as many meetings of local party women's committees as she can fit in, she said.

With only a week before election day, Montreal-born Mrs. MacDonald, who accompanied her husband and gave campaign speeches in French across Northern Ontario, has been canvassing door-to-door in their riding of York South.

Although Mrs. Wintermeyer does no public speaking on her husband's behalf, she has been joining him on his tour wherever possible and attending political teas, luncheons and other

WALLBRIDGE U.C.W.

With the opening of school the Wallbridge U.C.W. have commenced serving pot-luck dinners. There were 14 members present for the first meeting.

The president Mrs. H. Ketcheson opened the meeting in the usual manner, followed by a reading Mrs. J. Thomson provided literature. Dealing with Five Oaks Retreat programs for the near future. Mrs. Harris reported for the card committee noting that two cards had been received and seven sent. There had also been 19 visits made during the summer.

During the business it was decided to send in the allocation donation. A bazaar is planned for November with the committee in charge of preparation and plans.

There was a short program owing to the length of business and correspondence, at which time a reading was given by the president.

Next meeting will be held October the second.

social functions connected with the campaign.

And Mrs. Roberts, who does little active campaigning, calmly awaits election day when she and her husband and family will all be together in London.

Indonesia's policy of confrontation against Malaysia.

The Indonesian mob that attacked the British Embassy today was far bigger and more bent on destruction than the crowd of 5,000 that besieged the British embassy embassies on Malaysia's independence day Monday.

The crowd set fire to the ambassador's car and ripped up the British flag.

GUARDS STAND ASIDE

It swelled quickly from only several hundred at first and some reports estimated the mob at 10,000 persons. Crowds cheered as demonstrators broke into the Embassy and began throwing our furniture and papers. Indonesian guards appeared to be making no moves to break up the mob.

Embassy guards were caught by surprise but about 20 armed troops led a dozen British personnel to safety before the mob surged through the Embassy compound.

Several casualties were sighted among the demonstrators.

It was the third riot in as many days following the birth at midnight Sunday of the Federation of Malaysia, a union of former British colonies — Malaya, Singapore, Sarawak and North Borneo.

Car Insurance Rates Will Be Increased

TORONTO (CP)—Higher automobile insurance rates in Canada are expected to be announced later this year, following publication this week of statistics about accident claims by the Canadian Underwriters Association.

The so-called Green Book of auto insurance statistics, which the industry uses in calculating new rates, indicates a 15-per-cent increase in premium rates would be justified by the climbing accident claims in Canada during the 18 months ending last June 30.

Changes in insurance rates are usually announced in December.

Queen's Offers Three Tutorial Classes Here

KINGSTON — The Queen's University department of extension today announced times and dates for three tutorial classes that will be offered this winter to Belleville area residents.

Each of these courses carries full credit toward a Bachelor of Arts degree and prospective students are asked by the University to register immediately with the extension department.

Last year a record 3,294 men and women from across Canada and around the world registered for extramural credit courses at Queen's. Again this year, many of these courses are being offered by correspondence.

Belleville is one of six Eastern Ontario centres where tutorial classes taught by Queen's professors will be made available. The other centres are Brockville, Kingston, Peterborough, Oshawa and Port Hope.

All three tutorials in the city will be conducted at the Quinte Secondary School. Opening class for the first course, English 2, will be given Friday, Sept. 20, from 7 to 9 p.m. This course in contemporary literature will be taught by Professor D. O. Spettigue and demands English 2 as a prerequisite.

English 2, the basic introductory course to English literature, will also be offered in Belleville this year. The first class will be held Saturday morning, Sept. 21, from 9:30 to 11:30. It will be taught by Professor D. F. Crawley, Grade XIII English is a prerequisite.

The third course will be psychology I, an introductory series with no prerequisite. It will begin Friday, Sept. 27, from 7 to 9 p.m. and will be given by Professor James Inglis.

GUERRILLA KILLED

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Roberto Gonzalez Prieto, who boasted he was organizing peasants as Castro-type guerrillas, has been killed in his mountain hideout. Prieto and another member of his gang were shot to death by troops Monday in west-central Colombia, where he has been operating since returning from Cuba.

less. An estimated 30,000 had been seeking work from four to six months and 52,000 for seven months or more.

The seasonally adjusted unemployment rate was 5.6 per cent, compared with six per cent in July and 5.9 per cent in August last year. The report includes a cautionary note about the reliability of the seasonally adjusted rate because of gross work involved in its calculation.

The report said both farm and non-farm employment remained stable between July and August. However, within the total there was a mixture of gains and losses for individual non-farm industries.

In comparison with a year earlier, non-farm employment in August showed an increase of 187,000, or 3.2 per cent, to 5,972,000. The number employed on farms was down by 2.9 per cent, dropping by 23,000 to 774,000.

The largest employment gains over the year occurred in the service and manufacturing industries, the report said.

It also noted that the major year-to-year gains in employment were among persons 65 years or older — particularly among women in this age group.

Unemployment rates in the Atlantic, Quebec and British Columbia regions were higher than the national 5.8-per-cent average, while lower in Ontario and the Prairies.

Unemployment totals by regions in mid-August, with mid-July figures in brackets: Atlantic 35,000 (33,000); Quebec 108,000 (112,000); Ontario 72,000 (61,000); Prairies 23,000 (30,000); British Columbia 32,000 (35,000).

Jobless rates for August with July figures in brackets: Atlantic 5.6 per cent (5.5); Quebec 5.5 (5.7); Ontario 2.8 (3.3); Prairies 1.9 (2.4); British Columbia 5.0 (5.5).

Macaulay Explains

Is Automation New Name For Old, Familiar Process?

This is the first in a series of articles by Hon. Robert Macaulay, Minister of the Department of Economics and Development, as background to the Ontario Government's Conference on Automation and Social Change, which opened in Toronto yesterday.

What is automation? To the worker it represents an impersonal mechanical device which threatens to deprive him of his livelihood; to management it represents a more efficient and competitive way of doing things; to government it means assuming responsibility to ameliorate hardship which may result, and to society generally it poses either a threat or a promise of abundance and leisure.

HON. ROBERT MACAULAY

None of these descriptions is entirely valid. Dr. DuBridge, president of the California Institute of Technology, writes this on automation:

"In reality it is simply a new name for the current stage of development of the old process of mechanization."

Automation as thought of by the engineer or scientist usually implies something more than what is commonly called mechanization. It is mechanization of a refined variety which combines the elements of transfer devices, automatic controls and of a computer. By means of electronics the production process may be continuously controlled and monitored. Any deviations or past errors may be corrected without interruption and without any direct intervention by the operator.

Some experts hold that automation describes but one step in the long process of technological change. Others are of the opinion that automation is such a completely different technique that new criteria for evaluation must be established. Most of us consider the Industrial Revolution as having ushered in the new technology which was destined to have such a profound effect on the living and working conditions of man. The initial phase of this process of continuous change can be described as the substitution of mechanical energy, derived from chemical processes or water power, for that of animal or human energy.

The social and economic repercussions of the Industrial Revolution are well documented. The cottage industry was transferred to the factory. Effective classes of trades and skills became redundant. Craftsmanship and individual choice of product design were replaced by repetitive and monotonous tasks which could be done in many instances by children and other unskilled workers.

"In the late eighteenth century, a young inventor named Oliver Evans built an automatic flour mill near Philadelphia. Evans' mill processed grain into flour without any human intervention from the time the grain was dumped onto a hopper at the beginning of the milling operation until it emerged as finished flour, packed in barrels at the end. By 1813 millers were pleading before Congress for 'relief from the oppressive operations' of Evans' patent, and Thomas Jefferson was called on for advice. Jefferson dismissed the whole thing as an old story. The elevator, he said, after inspecting the mill, is nothing more than the old Persian wheel of Egypt, and the conveyor is the same thing as the screw of Archimedes." (Quoted from J. Diebold, Automation and its Impact on business and labor).

This quotation implies that automation is but one more stage in the process of technological development. In physical terms the fruits of automation have been a phenomenal increase in productivity coupled with a continuous increase in the general standard of living. Automation, however, is change with a difference. The difference rises from rate of change over time and the manner in which new techniques are applied. Problems of production are approached using entirely new techniques.

The process of automation brings together once again a multitude of individual tasks, often within a single bank of machines, that workers performed during the initial stages of the Industrial Revolution. The benefits of Adam Smith's division of labor are brought about not by employing a variety of skilled workmen at different stages of the productive process, but rather by combining these skills in continuous mechanized operation. The assembly line technique which required that the pace of the worker be equal to that of the machine is replaced by the automated processes which does not require that the parts be inter-related.

While the initial impact of automation was in those areas where simple repetitive tasks were being performed, the advent of computer technology and improvement of transfer devices meant that various techniques of production could be combined and in some cases rapidly altered. The worker may become divorced from actual contact with the machine. The machine may in fact take over both the production and the control tasks which the worker previously performed.

The introduction of automated processes has varied in different sectors of the economy, but we do know that special skills will be required, perhaps not so much for the operation of automated machinery but rather to design and service the equipment. The traditional role of management will also be profoundly affected by the introduction of the new technology.

While the processes and techniques of automation can be readily described and analyzed in engineering terms, the human factors so necessary to achieve public policy are not as easily resolved. It is this latter area with which the Conference on Automation and Social Change will be concerned. If an inventory of the social aspects of automation can be constructed from the contributions made by management, labor and government representatives, useful progress will be made. If new ways of examining old problems can be devised, the conference can be considered a success and a lasting and positive contribution to the knowledge and understanding will have been made.

LONDON (CP)—Sailor Malan, the fighter pilot whose fearlessness electrified the free world during the Battle of Britain, died Tuesday from pneumonia at the age of 52.

The man the Luftwaffe couldn't kill died peacefully in hospital at Kimberley in his native South Africa, and the tributes rolled in:

"If Sailor Malan's name means nothing to you, if you are too young to remember, let me tell this was the greatest fighter pilot of the war, the most famous of the few," writes Kenneth Passingham in The Daily Sketch.

And Wing Cmdr. R. R. (Bob) Stanford Tuck, Malan's old flying mate, reminisces sadly in The Daily Express of the old wartime days when pilots lived on their nerve-ends and Tuck bought beer with the "rounds" Malan paid when he borrowed Tuck's old Vauxhall car.

Malan, Adolph Gysbert (Sailor) Malan, born in the Huguenot country of Cape Province to an English mother and a Franco - Dutch - father, shot down 35 German aircraft in the Battle of Britain.

A MADMAN BEHIND

In those days, Malan once recalled, taking a Spitfire into the sky was like entering a dark room "with a madman waving a knife behind your back."

It was the time of There'll Always Be an England and Roll Out the Barrel, a time when Britain stood virtually alone and brash young pilots in rakish battle, breaking every rule regulation in the peacetime book, spoke casually of wizard prangs and knocked Goering's bombers out of the sky.

Malan, whose daring riveted the imagination, won two Distinguished Service Orders, two Distinguished Flying Crosses, the Croix de Guerre of Belgium and the Czech War Cross.

One night German aircraft circled Southend and Westcliff. Malan's wife and 45-hour-old baby were in a nursing home at Westcliff - on - Sea. Malan awakened his station commander, begged for permission to take up his Spitfire—and shot down two bombers.

His mother, Evelyne, emulated the fighting spirit of her two sons. In 1943, at the age of 50, she joined the South African Women's Air Force.

ONE WHO SURVIVED

Malan was one of the few pilots who survived the Battle of Britain in September, 1940, and lived to see VE-Day.

He contracted Parkinson's Disease after the war and his condition gradually worsened. He developed pneumonia and was taken to hospital Tuesday.

Malan was never shot down and never had to parachute to safety.

He was a fierce fighter who always took the offensive and often returned from combat with pieces of enemy wreckage sticking to his plane—evidence of his daring in fighting and deadly aim.

Sir Winston Churchill is godfather to his eldest son Jonathan, born during the great 1940 air warfare that decisively thwarted the Nazi assault on Britain.

It was typical of the sky hero that he claimed the bravest act of his life was to ask Churchill, then prime minister, to be godfather.

LED AT 32

Malan led the famed Spitfire aircraft of No. 74 Squadron during the Battle of Britain and commanded the legendary Biggin Hill Air Base in Kent County was the youngest squadron in southern England. At 32 he was the youngest leader in the RAF.

He returned to South Africa after the war and in June 1950, became national president of the War Veterans Torch Commando Group amid political ferment rocking the country at the time.

Malan waged a relentless campaign against the South African policy of apartheid, or segregation. He bitterly assailed the late prime minister Daniel F. Malan, a distant cousin. In 1951, he led a squad of his followers, the Torch Commandos, into Capetown to protest the franchise bill segregating colored blood voters.

He was cheered wildly by 30,000 spectators, but the bill was passed.

Rich Regions Get Richer, While Poor Just Hold Line In Today's Canada Is Claim

In Canada, the rich get richer and the poor just holding the line, Don Jamieson of Newfoundland told the Belleville Sales and Advertising Club last night. President of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters, and himself manager of three TV stations, Mr. Jamieson related his plea for unity in Canada to the broadcast industry. His speech was carried live by Radio Station CJBQ.

The intention of Confederation has been sidetracked, Mr. Jamieson said, by the "intellectual incest" of Canadians in the few wealthy provinces, and by Canadians' refusal to see Canada as a unit. He said any idea of a partial federal subsidy in all provinces helps increase the spread between the rich and poor provinces.

He declared that the rich provinces can raise half the cost of required public works, schools, roads, hospitals and the like — more easily than the poor provinces, which need more development. He spoke of the jealousy this inspires, in the poorer provinces.

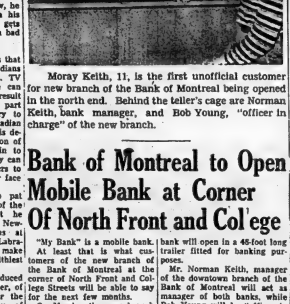
Before Confederation, (the 1949 Confederation of Newfoundland and Canada), Mr. Jamieson said, Newfoundland was Canada's third biggest customer. The provinces is still a major customer of Canadian industry, he said, and is contributing to the wealth of Ontario. And Newfoundlanders feel they should be getting some of that wealth back, he added, in the form of federal subsidies.

BROADCASTERS' ROLE

Relating his speech to broadcasting, Mr. Jamieson suggested that broadcasters and other communications media should spend less time mirroring their own community to itself, and more effort is reflecting the rest of Canada to the local community. He said the biggest task developed "a passionate dedication to the need to tell Canadians about each other", during his travels across the country.

He commented that before the 1949 Confederation, he had an emotional attachment" to Newfoundland as his homeland, and thought of the mainland as "good grey Canada, a bad carbon copy of the U.S." Now, he says, he considers Canada his homeland — but he still gets the impression that it is a bad carbon copy of the U.S.

UP TO LISTENERS



The problem, he said, is that about 75 per cent of Canadians are within range of U.S. TV stations, and still more can receive U.S. radio. The result is that any effort on the part of the broadcast industry to build a distinctive Canadian image over the airwaves, is dependent on the co-operation of Canadians. By tuning in to U.S. stations, he said, they can force Canadian broadcasters to follow the U.S. pattern or face bankruptcy.

Mr. Jamieson had no pat answer for the problems of the broadcast industry, but he claimed the solution to Newfoundland's poverty was at hand. Development of Labrador, he predicted, would make Newfoundland the wealthiest province in Canada.

Mr. Jamieson was introduced to the club by Paul Flagler, of CJBQ, and thanked after the speech by Frank Murray, of CJBQ.

ADJUSTING THE MICROPHONE for Don Jamieson of St. John's, Nfld., president of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters and first guest speaker of the year at the Belleville Sales and Advertising Club last night, is Gerry O'Connor, president of the club.

Moray Keith, 11, is the first unofficial customer for new branch of the Bank of Montreal being opened in the north end. Behind the teller's cage are Norman Keith, bank manager, and Bob Young, "officer in charge" of the new branch.

Bank of Montreal to Open Mobile Bank at Corner Of North Front and College

"My Bank" is a mobile bank. At least that is what customers of the new branch of the Bank of Montreal at the corner of North Front and College Streets will be able to say for the next few months.

On Monday the new branch bank will open in a 45-foot long trailer fitted for banking purposes.

Mr. Norman Keith, manager of the downtown branch of the Bank of Montreal will act as manager of both banks, while Bob Young will be "officer in charge" of the branch office.

The trailer will be used as branch bank quarters until permanent quarters are built. Construction is expected to commence shortly.

GREAT SERVICE

"I feel a branch bank in the College and North Front Street area can be of great service to the people of the district," Mr. Keith said.

He said new businesses were starting in the North Front Street area, 500 new homes are being built just to the west and there is a large farming area to the north.

Full banking services will be provided at the branch bank while customers will have the added convenience of ample parking facilities.

The mobile trailer bank which arrived in the city only yesterday has been in use in many parts of Canada. Temporary bi-lingual lettering on its exterior is being removed.

Mr. Keith said it was the first time that a mobile trailer bank has been used in this part of Ontario. The branch is being fitted with full burglar alarm equipment.

A staff of five — three men and two girls — will work at the bank.

Canada's Railways Will Be Streamlined, Freight Rate System Given Overhauling

OTTAWA (CP)—The government is going ahead with legislation to streamline Canada's railways and to overhaul the system of subsidies under which freight rates are established, a reliable source says.

To be introduced early in the parliamentary session starting Sept. 30, the new legislation will be aimed at:

1. Providing a series of federal subsidies that may amount close to $100,000,000 in the first year, with the payments designed to offset railway losses while uneconomic branch lines and services are scrapped. The subsidies would decline sharply after five years.

2. Creating a new federal agency to co-ordinate railway branch line abandonments over the next 15 years, thus spreading out the impact of railway closures on affected businesses and communities on a gradual, co-ordinated basis.

3. Scrapping existing freight rate controls and allowing the railways freedom to set all but the statutory rates on export grain traffic as they want, subject only to a maximum and minimum formula.

The legislation, to be piloted through the Commons by Transport Minister McIlraith, is based on the revolutionary blueprint for overhauling railway policy and regulation produced before the previous Conservative government by the MacPherson royal commission on transportation.

The cabinet is reported to have accepted the major principles advanced by the six-man royal commission in its three volume report delivered in 1961 and 1962. The Conservatives promised legislation based on the MacPherson report, but never brought it before Parliament.

Japanese Wins World Title In One Round

CP from AP-Reuters

TOKYO—Hiroyuki Ebihara of Japan tonight knocked out Thailand's Pone Kingpetch in the first round to win the world flyweight boxing title here.

The fight, scheduled for 15 rounds, lasted only two minutes, seven seconds.

The 22 - year - old challenger had knocked down Pone with a sharp left to the jaw for a mandatory eight count.

Ebihara swarmed over the groggy champion and battered him with a volley of lefts and rights that knocked Pone flat on his back.

Pone weighed 111¾, Ebihara 112.

The sudden ending brought a capacity crowd of 12,000 in Tokyo Metropolitan Gymnasium to its feet with a roar.

It was Ebihara's 30th win and 22nd knockout against one loss and one draw in a professional career which began only four years ago.

Parson Says Being Honest Does Not Pay

LONDON (AP)—A Church of England parson admitted today that honesty may be what the good book recommends—but it's no way to get rich.

"If I told a youngster just starting out to work that honesty is the best policy I should not be telling the truth," said Rev. William Smith, 43-year-old rector of suburban Stifford.

"Everyone in business, I'm afraid, knows this is true."

Writing in his parish magazine, the rector added that the moral is this:

"It is not good enough for a Christian to be honest just because it pays. A Christian should be honest because it is right. To be honest is a great and severe test."

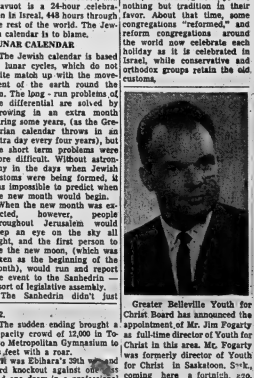
Sunset Tonight Will Mark Start of Most Sacred Days Of Year for All of Jewry

Sunset tonight marks the start of the most sacred series of holidays in the year for Jews — and the start of the only holidays of the year celebrated the same days by all Jewry. Staring about 7 p.m. here, Rosh Hashana — the Jewish new year—is celebrated for 48 hours. One week later, over Friday night and Saturday, is Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, marked by twenty four hours of complete fasting and prayer. This is the most solemn event of the Jewish year. The length of the holidays is the same for all Jews. Other holidays, such as Succoth, (the Festival of the Tabernacle), Pesah, (the Passover), and Shavuot, (a harvest festival and commemoration of the Ten Commandments) are celebrated twice as long by orthodox and conservative groups outside Israel as they are in the homeland of the Jews.

Succoth, for instance, is celebrated during the first two days and the last two days of an eight - day period, by Jews outside Israel. In the Holy Land, it is celebrated on the first and the eighth day. Pesah runs on a similar schedule, and Shavuot is a 24-hour celebration in Israel, 448 hours through the rest of the world. The Jewish calendar is to blame.

LUNAR CALENDAR

The Jewish calendar is based on lunar cycles, which do not quite match up with the movement of the earth round the sun. The long - run problems of the differential are solved by throwing in an extra month during some years, (as the Gregorian calendar throws in an extra day every four years), but the short term problems were more difficult. Without astronomy in the days when Jewish customs were being formed, it was impossible to predict when the new month would begin.



When the new month was expected, however, people throughout Jerusalem would keep an eye on the sky all night, and the first person to see the new moon, (which was taken as the beginning of the month), would run and report the event to the Sanhedrin — a sort of legislative assembly.

The Sanhedrin didn't just take anyone's word that the new month had come, however. The members questioned the witness about the size and shape of the new moon, and its position in the sky. When they were satisfied with his answers, orders were given and the Shofar (ram's horn), was blown to inform the city of the new month. At the sound of the Shofar, signal fires were lit on the mountain-tops, and the news was flashed across the country.

DUPLICATE HOLIDAYS

But the signal fires couldn't carry the word very far. Only within the present area of Israel could the news be spread within a day. Because of this, it became traditional for all Jews outside the country to celebrate each holiday in duplicate — on the assumption that this would decrease the chances of making a mistake in the celebrations. The custom was never applied to Rosh Hashana or Yom Kippur, however.

As the centuries passed and astronomy appeared, the need for two-day celebrations outside Israel diminished, but the tradition remained. With the advent of modern communications, the doubled holidays had nothing but tradition in their favor. About that time, some congregations "reformed," and reform congregations around the world now celebrate each holiday as it is celebrated in Israel, while conservative and orthodox groups retain the old customs.

Redrawing of Electoral Districts Causes Concern Among Members of Cabinet

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal cabinet is wrestling with the problem of what kind of legislation to place before Parliament to redraw the boundaries of Canada's electoral districts.

Nelson Castonguay, Canada's chief electoral officer, was summoned before cabinet twice in the last few days—last Thursday and again late Monday.

Informants indicated that his presence means the cabinet has reached the stage of attempting to frame the precise terms of redistribution legislation and to decide on the timing for its presentation to Parliament.

The next stage may be efforts to negotiate agreement among the political parties on an acceptable formula covering the basic points of redistribution.

There are three such points. One is the total number of Commons seats, now standing at 265. Another is the basic population unit—the number of persons which will comprise a constituency. The third is the tolerance or amount of leeway above or below the basic unit which will be allowed in reshaping constituency boundaries.

ENLARGE COMMONS?

Considerable discussion has already taken place behind the scenes on enlarging the number of Commons seats. A number of figures have been mentioned ranging from 308 up to 293.

A new factor seems to have entered to talk of a bigger House of Commons. Informants say doubts are being expressed about the wisdom of increasing the number of seats so soon after the August pay raise for members of Parliament.

The argument is that if the public disliked the pay raise—to $18,000 a year from $10,000—it would be less than enthusiastic about a government proposal to increase the number of MPs collecting the money.

The proposal for a bigger house stems from a desire to soften or offset losses of seat which some provinces would suffer under current constitutional requirements.

Nova Scotia and Quebec stand to lose one seat each and Saskatchewan one, using the present formula. Ontario would gain three and Alberta and British Columbia two each.

By provinces, the current allocation of seats is:

Newfoundland 7, Prince Edward Island 4, Nova Scotia 12, New Brunswick 10, Quebec 75, Ontario 85, Manitoba 14, Saskatchewan 17, Alberta 17, British Columbia 22, Yukon 1, Northwest Territories 1.

The government is committed to establishing an independent commission to do the actual map-drawing job. It will take into account such things as the big shift in population to urban areas from rural areas since the last parliamentary redistribution in 1952.

But the guide lines for the commission's task—total Commons seats, the basic population unit and the tolerance—will be set by Parliament.

HAVE BASIC UNIT

At present the basic unit is one MP per 71,175 population. But there are wide variations, ranging between one MP for 13,479 population in Rosedale-Madoleine and one for 347,353 in the Toronto suburban riding of York-Scarborough.

Mr. Castonguay visited Australia and New Zealand earlier this year at government request to examine their redistribution systems employing an independent commission. He found tolerances of between five and 20 per cent permitted.

In the last Parliament, the Progressive Conservatives proposed redistribution by an independent commission and included tolerancesy of 25 per cent from the basic unit, with higher ones in particular circumstances. But the bill was never passed.

Belfast Model Kisses Liston, Loses Job

BELFAST (AP) — Margaret Jameson, a 21-year-old model, lost her job today for kissing Sonny Liston.

It was not so much the kiss that made the boss angry. It was the place.

Margaret, winner of four beauty titles, models clothes for a Belfast store. She took time off from work to visit a rival store across the road where a party for Liston was in full swing.

To please the cameramen she sat on the world heavyweight champion's knee. Then, as the cameras clicked, she planted a kiss on his cheek.

Polaris Fleet Pact May Be Ready for Meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — An agreement to establish a Polaris-equipped surface fleet for NATO may be ready for signing when the alliance's ministers meet in December, U.S. officials said Tuesday.

Since August, U.S. officials have been meeting with representatives of West Germany, Italy, Greece and Turkey on the political, technical and legal problems involved in setting up the multilateral force.

Steady and satisfactory progress has been made, officials said, and the administration has been pleased with the results.

However, informants stressed that no formal agreement has yet been reached on such key issues as sharing of expenses or control of the nuclear force. Nevertheless, there was what an official called a broad meeting of minds on these points.

Although only four of the European allies have displayed active interest in the multilateral force, U.S. officials believe they can also count on Britain.

Of NATO's 13 members, only France rejected flatly the U.S. proposal for a fleet of 25 surface ships each carrying eight intermediate-range Polaris missiles.

Opposition Has Been Telling 'Outright Lies'

- - Roberts

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Premier Roberts said Tuesday the opposition has been telling "outright lies" about the Ontario government's stand on old-age pensions.

The government, he said, is willing to amend its plan in favor of the federal one "any day in the week."

Mr. Roberts told an election campaign audience that he agrees "heartily and entirely" with the principle of the federal program and declared the pension issue "should not be kicked around politically."

On his first day of the two-day visit to northern constituencies, Premier Roberts also told of plans for Ontario tourist development, particularly in the North.

He said he expects Ontario will have a $500,000,000 tourist season this year.

By automobile and plane, Mr. Roberts Tuesday canvassed two big constituencies — Sault Ste. Marie and Algoma - Manitoulin, both previously held by Conservatives.

He flew here from Toronto in the morning and spoke at lunch, then went by float plane 90 miles east to Elliot Lake, the one-time uranium boom town in Algoma - Manitoulin. He addressed a night meeting at Espanola in the same riding.

SWIPES AT JUDY

In his luncheon address to 200 persons here, Mr. Roberts said that the pension issue "has got into partisan politics" and took another swipe at Federal Health Minister Judy LaMarsh.

Miss Lamarsh has questioned his willingness to join the national plan.

The premier said that criticism of the Ontario stand made by Miss LaMarsh last week intended to "completely destroy any effort to solve the question in a co-operative way," but he reiterated his willingness to deal with Prime Minister Pearson.

Dealing with reports that Mr. Pearson has opposed Miss LaMarsh's attack, saying in the Ontario election campaign, Mr. Roberts said that "apparently Mr. Pearson agrees with me and Miss LaMarsh and Mr. Winternmeyer (Liberal Leader Winternmeyer) do not. It is a rather peculiar situation."

Discussing the tourist business — a $20,000,000-a-year enterprise in this area—Mr. Roberts said the government intends to take steps to enlarge the summer tourist season through the months of June and September.

It was planned also to develop the fall potential of winter tourism.

PROMISES CO-OPERATION

Speaking to about 50 people in Elliot Lake's nuclear museum, Mr. Roberts promised the full cot co-operation with the federal government in meeting the problems of the municipality, whose population has shrunk from 27,000 to 9,000 in the last few years and threatens to go down further as uranium orders run out.

"The fact that there is a difference of politics means nothing," Mr. Roberts said. The provincial government was very much aware of the difficulties faced by this community.

He said the government would continue to do its best to develop the tourist industry in the area and also to open up new roads.

From Elliot Lake, Mr. Roberts drove 70 miles to Espanola with candidate John Fullerton, member of the last legislature, stopping off to shake hands with small clusters of people at the villages of Spanish and Massey.

Tackling the pension issue for the second time Tuesday at the night meeting in Espanola, Mr. Roberts accused Miss LaMarsh of "throwing it right back into politics" and Mr. Winternmeyer of trying to set an artificial deadline—the Sept. 25 election date —for settling the whole matter.

"We can work out a good scheme but I don't think I can work it out in that time," the premier said.

Speaking to about 125 persons in the paper-manufacturing town of 4,000 people, Mr. Roberts said even if a national scheme comes into effect, Ontario legislation will be necessary to provide that additional amounts of pension above the national minimum should be fully portable.

"So these plans are not in opposition to one another, but are complementary to one another," he said. "Ontario's legislature should make the whole scheme fully portable."

Robarts' Stand On Pension Plan Under Attack

NORTH BAY (CP) — Premier John Robarts is playing "a dirty trick" on the people of Ontario by raising fears that their private pension plans are endangered by the federal government's contributory pension program, Ontario Liberal Leader John Winternmeyer said Tuesday night.

Attacking "downright Tory dishonesty" and lies in the current provincial election campaign, Mr. Winternmeyer hammered at Conservative party statements on pensions, medical care and crime control.

The Liberal leader challenged Premier Roberts to make clear before the Ontario election Sept. 25 whether or not he will support a pension program run by the federal government or persist with his own proposal for a limited system of pensions run by private insurance companies.

Referring to Mr. Robarts' statements that the premier first wants to find out what would happen to private pensions under the federal program, Mr. Winternmeyer said:

"Mr. Roberts is trying to scare people into wondering what will happen to whatever pension arrangements they may have now, in the hope that public support for the Canada Pension Plan will be undermined.

'NOT A CENT' LOST

"I say now that this is a dirty kick to try to play upon the people of Ontario. Mr. Roberts knows that not a cent of pensions earned by contributions to existing plans need be lost if the Canada Pension Plan comes into force."

The Liberal leader renewed a charge that Mr. Roberts is a hand-picked insurance company lawyer, who has been selected to lead the Tory party in Ontario." He criticized the premier for failing to co-operate with Federal Welfare Minister Judy LaMarsh.

Mr. Winternmeyer drew a standing ovation from about 300 persons in a hotel meeting hall —the same hall where about 150 persons heard Mr. Roberts speak at the start of his campaign here three weeks ago.

Mr. Winternmeyer attacked as "downright lies" Conservative claims that the Roberts administration has passed legislation to provide medical care for everybody and portable pensions for everyone in the province.

The limited medical care program — involving the private insurance companies" — and a pension plan, to cover only about half the working people of Ontario, both have yet to be worked out in committee hearings.

RENEWS ATTACK

Mr. Winternmeyer also renewed attacks on Provincial Secretary John Yaremko in the light of the secretary's reported denial of any knowledge that Deputy Secretary R. J. Cudney was dissatisfied about the state of affairs in the government department following last year's crime commission. Mr. Cudney resigned from the government last Friday.

"Mr. Cudney . . . was given assurances by Mr. Roberts himself last March that reforms would be carried out in the department of the provincial secretary. These assurances were given in order to induce Mr. Cudney not to quit at that time. These assurances were not carried out.

"Yaremko knew of this letter of resignation last March," Mr. Winternmeyer said.

The Liberal meeting was adjourned at 9:30 for an hour to allow the audience to watch the pre-taped CBC television confrontation of Mr. Roberts, Mr. Winternmeyer and New Democratic Party Leader Donald MacDonald.

TOURS NORTHLAND

During the day, Mr. Winternmeyer campaigned in the autumn - colored north country, chatting with farmers, old folk, sawmill hands and party workers from Earlton south to the Sturgeon River.

His schedule on a person-to-person tour for the Sept. 25 provincial election through Timiskaming and Nipissing dropped an hour behind after his arrival at Earlton by air from London, Ont., was delayed by fog.

His chartered DC-3 put down for an hour at Sudbury to wait for the fog to lift at Earlton—landing a few wingspans away from the fireswept aircraft under charter by Premier John Roberts. The Roberts plane landed 15 minutes earlier to await the Conservative leader's arrival in Sudbury today.

Despite the delay, about 60 party faithful cheered Mr. Winternmeyer on his arrival at Earlton airport. Timiskaming Liberal candidate Richard Taylor, proprietor of New Liskeard hardware wholesaler, accompanied his leader to a nearby cattle and produce auction.

Mr. Winternmeyer took the auctioneer's stand briefly—just after a dozen large cows were sold for 33 cents—to ask for the electoral support of about 50 buyers in the stands while lowing cattle awaiting their turn in the auction pen heckled in the background.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

This is the season of the Great Disappointments, the time when "many are called but few are chosen".

This is the time of year when many young hockey hopefuls recommended by scouts, coaches, etc., attend the various farm training camps of the National Hockey League clubs.

Potential Bobby Hulls of the minor and lower brackets junior clubs, heads held high in pride, leave for the big test with hope in their hearts and determination to give their best.

Proud parents write to newspapers saying that "Willie" has been selected to play with a junior "A" club. Some local newspapers go along with the idea and pay columnar tribute to the youngsters minor or other group ability.

But it is a far cry from being called to "try out" and the day when the youngster signs that elusive piece of paper.

The majority, and by far the greater majority get the familiar "You have the makings of a fine player, sonny. Now go on back home. Don't call us — we'll call you.

Clarence Campbell president of the National Hockey League once said that "one in 10,000 youngsters make the NHL charmed circle."

The ratio of a minor or junior "B" player being signed to a Junior "A" roster is much less than that but still the odds against are tremendous. And even if a youngster is selected to try out with a Junior "A" club he faces the huge roadblock of being retained as a playing member.

Jack Adams, formerly manager of the Detroit Red Wings once said was that the potential of a National Hockey League player shows at an extremely early age. "It is a natural God-given talent," he said, "which should be used — and not abused." He quoted such players as Gordy (Jay Bee) Howe, Maurice Richard, Bobby Hull, Stan Mikita and others who made the jump of the great abyss between junior and National Hockey League clubs.

National Hockey League players may be born but there is no doubt that fine coaching has had a lot to do with development. So has personal determination, and the desire to make good.

I think it was Bee Lalonde, the northern youngster who played junior "B" hockey in Belleville and successfully reached a National Hockey League club, if briefly, who did not learn to skate until he was thirteen.

Be that as it may. What is to become of the youngsters of the annual hockey crop who fail to make the junior grade — and for those who make junior "B" but are not good enough for the higher bracket?

Senior and intermediate hockey is deader than last years love affair in a great number of Ontario centres where the classifications were formerly played.

In western Ontario an unreasonable facsimile of the senior game will be played this season. In the Ottawa Valley, and, it is rumored, in this district some sort of intermediate hockey is planned.

Those clubs could be outlets for over-age junior players or pastured pros, but the vacancies will be pitifully small.

The new Central Professional Hockey League, successor to the defunct Eastern Pro Loop is a training ground for NHL clubs. The players are proven prospects, all over junior "A" age and none older than 23.

The hockey cycle in Belleville turned swiftly. It seems hardly possible that four short years ago the hockey-mad Ladies of the Modern formed her treason in wild support of a world champion club.

Her world hockey crown changed practically overnight into widow's weeds, for the next year Eastern Ontario junior "A" hockey met a violent death at the hands of professional malcontents.

True, we have a junior "B" club. But what of the graduates from juvenile ranks who cannot make the higher brackets? Commercial League rosters have no trouble getting filled with some very experienced players. Vacancies here, too, are at a premium.

The only answer I can see is the formation of a city league for graduate juveniles not good enough for junior "B" activities. But then again rises the eternal question. "Who will foot the bill?"

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Jockey Jim Fitzsimmons, 33-year-old Calgarian who now resides in Toronto, rode three winners for the second successive day and apprentice jockey Eric Walsh of North Sydney, N.S., and Ron Turcotte of Grand Falls, N.B., both scored doubles to tighten the race for leading rider honors at Woodbine's 42-day fall meeting.

Fitzsimmons has 15 winners, two behind Walsh who has 17 and one behind Turcotte with 16.

Walsh, 23, has been the riding sensation of the meet. He has already had one afternoon with four wins and also has a triple in 81 rides.

He got the opener Tuesday on Pink Jewel, which won by a head over Ritter Von Kar. Walsh took the third on Mrs. Les Lear's Hair Tearing.

Turcotte won the featured fifth race aboard Alias, an even - money favorite with the 5,665 fans. Alias won by 1¼ lengths from Unknown Factor. Impressionable was third.

Stephens Argos Top Quarterback

TORONTO (CP)—Sandy Stephens, 23, quarterback who helped Toronto Argonauts break a five-game losing streak in his first outing last Sunday, has been named Toronto's No. 1 quarterback.

"Sandy deserves to start at quarterback and he will," coach Nobby Wirkowski announced Tuesday night. The Eastern Football Conference Argos' next game is an interlocking game against Calgary Stampeders here next Sunday.

Stephens, claimed by the Argos two weeks ago from the waiver list of Montreal Alouettes, thus shunted aside the highly-priced Jackie Parker, who cost Toronto five players in a winter trade with Edmonton Eskimos.

Parker played quarterback as the Argos lost five of their first six games, and has now been moved to play both halfback and flanker.

With only 27 pitches Sandy Koufax has made St. Louis Cardinals as much of a long-shot as General Custer.

Making their last stand in a vital three-game series with the National League-leading Los Angeles Dodgers, the Cardinals lost for the second night in a row Tuesday as Koufax spun a four-hit, 4-0 shutout and posted record-setting 11th shutout.

The loss, only the third in the last 22 games for St. Louis, left the Cardinals three games back —four in the all-important loss column. Including the finals of the series tonight, the Cardinals have only eight games remaining to 10 for the Dodgers.

While Koufax gave the Cardinals with only a long-shot chance of overtaking the Dodgers, Koufax gave them a slight chance of triumph by becoming the first left-hander in major league history to post 19 or more victories in most prolific shutout pitcher since 1916.

BREAKS HUBBEL MARK

Koufax, who has a 24-5 record, broke the shutout mark for left-handers set by Carl Hubbell, who pitched 10 for the 1933 New York Giants. Koufax' 11th was the most by any pitcher since Grover Cleveland Alexander pitched 16 for the Philadelphia Phillies in 1916.

While the Cardinals and Dodgers were playing the big one, San Francisco Giants clubbed Milwaukee Braves 11-3; Philadelphia Phillies downed New York Mets 6-4; Chicago Cubs edged Houston Colts 4-3; and Chicago Cubs and Pittsburgh Pirates split, the Cubs won 3-1 and the Pirates 4-2.

The fireballing Koufax and the crafty Curt Simmons starred in key roles in the Dodgers' victory.

Koufax, of course, was the key man. He had a no-hitter until Stan Musial, the Cardinals' 42-year-old grandpa, lifted a single to centre leading off the seventh, and he allowed the Cardinals two hits only in the eighth inning.

At that point, Tim McCarver and Gillian Javier were on with singles, but Koufax didn't panic. Great, tied for the league batting lead with Jim Gentile, fanned Davis for the inning ending out.

Howard provided additional working room with a homer in the eighth following a single by Tommy Davis, and the Dodgers closed out the scoring in the ninth on an infield hit by Willie Davis, his steal of second and a double by Joseph Koseboro.

"Well," said a jubilant Leo Durocher in the Dodger dressing room, "I'm glad Simmons is cooled off the red-hot Cardinals."

It would say it looks pretty good, pretty good," the Dodger coach chortled. "With four games in front in the losing column I'd be willing to take my chances."

At the St. Louis manager Johnny Keane, he sang the familiar refrain: "We're, still in it."

Swedes Offered Pro Contracts

PETERBOROUGH, Ont., (CP) — General manager Punch Imlach of Toronto Maple Leafs says if two Swedish amateurs are willing to accept minor league assignments they can have professional hockey contracts immediately.

Left winger Carl Oeberg and goalie Kjell Svensson were loaned to Rochester Americans of the American Hockey League for Tuesday night's exhibition game with Leafs here.

When asked about prospects of the two 25-year-old engineers, Imlach said:

"Yes, I think I'd put Svensson in there ahead of other major league goalies."

There seems to be a gap between Imlach's expressed opinion and the actual signing of the first European players to professional contracts.

Oeberg says he would consider Rochester only if there is a "little chance I would move up to Toronto soon."

"And the game would be important. We're not interested in minor league hockey. I think that goes for Kjell too."

Both Scandinavians have improved in a week in training with Maple Leafs.

Discussing Oeberg, Imlach said: "When you see the improvement in an already good skater, you see why we can't say how good he might become."

NHL Training Camps
By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Canadiens opened six training camps in five nights Tuesday night and managed only a 5-5 tie with Rochester Americans, their AHL farm club, were blistered by manager-coach Punch Imlach.

He said that some of the team's regulars probably would not accompany the team when it leaves on an exhibition tour of Western Canada Friday.

"If they want to stand around instead of play, they can do it in this rink instead of out west," he said.

In Detroit, goalie Hank Bassen and right winger Jack McIntyre, veterans who were delayed through business commitments, reported to the Red Wings training camp Tuesday.

Mann Cup Opener

CORNWALL (CP) — Vancouver Carlings, Western Canada Senior Lacrosse champions, must be in a hurry to get home.

The Carlings showed nothing but impatience Tuesday night as they ran to a lop-sided 19-3 win over St. Catharines Athletics in the first game of the best-of-seven series for the Canadian Lacrosse Championship and the Mann Cup.

The Vancouver crew, who were "tired" according to their coach, dominated almost every phase of the game as they easily whipped the Eastern Canadian champions.

Showing why they were heavy favorites in the series, the Carlings scored two goals in the opening minute, and built up leads of 6-1, 12-1 and 15-2 after each of the first three periods.

Displaying a strongly balanced attack, the Vancouver team had nine players share in the scoring.

SIMPLE GETS FOUR

Defenceman Gordon Gimblo scored four goals, Wayne Peckald three, Fred Usselman, Bill Barbour, Bill Chisolm, Sid Warwick and Bob Blackburn two each, and Garry Stevens and Bob Marsh counted singles.

For the Athletics, defenceman Gary Hind scored a pair and Glen Lotten one.

The major differences in the one-sided contest seemed to be the goaltending and marksmanship of the two teams.

Vancouver goaltender Mervyn Schweitzer stopped 25 of 28 shots by St. Catharines' shooters, while the Western players launched just 28 shots, scoring on exactly half of them.

Fish and Game Club Told

Wildlife Sanctuaries Needed

The answer to the repletion of wild ducks and geese populations in Eastern Canada is the establishment of wildlife sanctuaries.

This is being proven more every year, Belleville-born George Brown told the Fish and Game Club at its first fall and winter meeting last night.

Mr. Brown, former alderman here, is a director of the St. Lawrence Wildlife Authority and president of the Que-Ont Ducks Project. He is a past-president of the Ottawa Fish and Game Club.

In a slide-illustrated address, Mr. Brown told and showed the club of the activities of the St. Lawrence Authority and the Que-Ont project. Fish and Game clubs and service clubs are entering in the sanctuary projects with whole-hearted enthusiasm, he said.

"Down east," he said, "the government advocated the propagation of pheasants but we discovered that wild ducks and geese propagate 100 per cent better than pheasant."

"If we are to maintain the ducks and geese population we must have small sanctuaries," Mr. Brown pointed out.

Five years ago the government presented his authority with 2,000 acres of land near Morrisburg for sanctuary purposes. Within a few years it will be a tourist dream.

There are game tracks on which roams buffalo, elk and deer. Ducks and geese of every type will be seen in ponds. Practically every kind of fish will be seen in big aquariums.

Mr. Brown showed slides illustrating the installation of duck boxes and geese nets. Planting of various feeds were shown as was the dynamiting of choked wetlands.

Evidence of the success of nesting and feeding of ducks and geese is seen in the fact that on one eight-acre field in the sanctuary from 4,000 to 6,000 birds were counted, the result of placing five pairs of birds there five years ago.

Outside the sanctuary are five acres of hunting ground. Ducks fly from the sanctuary to special feeding grounds thus providing good hunting.

The Que-Ont Ducks project, Mr. Brown said, in providing nesting grounds and various types of feed for duck and geese, is also helping fishermen and hunters. The whole thing develops into one big project of ducks, geese, fish and big game.

He urged co-operation between farmer and hunter. He said he did not want to see the day when hunters would have to pay $10 to hunt in a restricted area.

"We get fine co-operation down east," he said. "We give farmers pairs of ducks and geese and when the progeny returns we take some from him and put them on other farms. We are spotting them all over Eastern Ontario now. "

Mr. Brown said that in Zwicht's Island, Belleville has the greatest concentration in the world if such a project as Que-Ont Ducks was undertaken. "Your club would become famous if this were done."

Club director George Woodhouse the "lone ranger" of the clubs "Operation Greenheart" gave a detailed report on the season operation. This will appear later.

Mr. Brown was presented with a pair of wildlife plaques as mementos also a club membership.

Hunting and fishing films were shown. The main prize of the evening a handsome gun was won by Norm Post, R.R. 3 Carrying Place. The gift lighting struck twice in the same place. Nell Peck of the same address taking home the special prize of Belleview Glass mirror.

Firemen Eliminate Utilities

The Fire Department battled its way into the Belleville Interdepartmental softball league finals last night by defeating the Utilities 7-3 to sweep their semi-final set three games to none.

Firemen will now meet the Public Works in a four-of-seven series, for the championship. The series will open at the CNRA Park tomorrow (Thursday) night, at 6.15. O her dates will be announced shortly.

Ray Reid pitched the redshirt's victory last evening, stopping the Utilities crew on four hits and three walks. A. Ryan was his battery mate.

Grant Parks sparked the winners at the plate, collecting three hits, one of them a home run. Stan Pypke contributed a pair of safeties.

R. Sine and J. Uens formed the losing battery, Sine allowing ten hits and three walks.

The Utilities' hits went to Kiser, with a pair, Uens and Wright.

TRIPUCKA QUITS

DENVER (AP)—Frank Tripucka announced Tuesday his retirement as quarterback for Denver Broncos, who have led both their games this season in the American Football League. West Hill Hawks Win Tyke Title

Racking up their 16th straight victory of the season the West Hill Bears won the city tyke softball championship 10-3.

The score does not indicate the game. The Bears scored seven runs in the first innings behind the fine hurling of Brian Cousins. Then the Hawks settled away splitting six runs with the winners.

They swept through the twelve-game schedule undefeated, won the semi-finals in two straight and repeated against the Hawks in the finals.

"They are a fine young squad and I'm proud of them" said the coach. "All the boys played fine softball and deserved what they won."

He paid tribute to the Hawks from the East Hill. "They played an outstanding team and deserved a better fate. They played well throughout the season and were worthy finalists."

For Use Next Year

New Code Of Golf Rules

NEW YORK (AP) — How many seconds are a few seconds?

The question may arise under a new code of golf rules adopted for use next year and announced Tuesday by the United States Golf Association.

Some of the changes should save some strokes, and one is designed to save time. It's a rule about how long a golfer may wait for a putt to drop that is hanging on the lip.

The current rule allows a "monetary delay" in hopes the ball will drop. The new rules allows a "few seconds."

The Royal and Ancient Golf Club, which runs the game in Britain and many other parts of the world, rejected a couple of the rule changes.

RULES WILL DIFFER

Thus, there will be differences in the rules between Britain and the United States next year for the first time. Previously the two nations had differed only on the size of the ball, which is larger here.

The British rejected these changes, which go into effect in the U.S. on Jan. 1:

1. A ball striking an unattended flagstick from within 30 yards of the holes will entail a two stroke penalty, or loss of hole in match play.

2. An unplayable ball may be dropped within two club lengths with the penalty reduced from two strokes to one.

3. A provisional ball may be played only for a ball which may be lost or out of bounds, but one that may be in the water or unplayable.

Steeplechase Hunt at Woodbine

TORONTO (CP)—Horses and hounds will abound at Woodbine race track Sept. 28.

A steeplechase race involving 12 jumpers will be added to the usual eight-race card and a hunt with hounds and 25 horses will be held.

The steeplechase will be at 1¾ miles over jumps on the turf course. The hunt will be staged on the turf course and in the infield.

HEAR SUIT

FREDERICTON (CP)—Hearing of a $800,000 damage action against the New Brunswick Electric Power Commission opened here Tuesday as the Tobique Salmon Club Limited charged two commission dams interfered with passage of fish up the Tobique River. The salmon club, which operates guest lodges on the Tobique River, claims the dams reduced the number of fish in pools where the club claims fishing rights.

New Yacht Built By Britons

LONDON (Reuters)—A new 13-metre yacht is being built to compete for the right to represent Britain in the America's Cup challenge next September, the Royal Thames Yacht Club announced Tuesday.

Soccer Club Draws Suspension

TORONTO (CP)—The Toronto and District Soccer Association Tuesday night slapped a suspension on a third division team which may bar the team and its players from any organized league in the world.

Players from Sora had incited a disturbance two weeks ago in a game with Hearts. Some players and fans of the Sora team attacked the referee, who was forced to call the game with Hearts leading 3-1.

DROP BIKE REGISTRY

VANCOUVER (CP) — The city will abolish its compulsory bicycle registration system Dec. 31 in favor of a voluntary registration. It was decided the present system costs the city more than it is worth.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "Good pitching will always beat good hitting," Johnny Keane said sadly but wisely after Sandy Koufax of Los Angeles Dodgers overpowered his hard-hitting St. Louis Cardinals in perhaps the key game of the National League season.

"The Dodgers' pitching has been great and that's the story of this series so far," the Cardinal manager said after Koufax's four-hit 4-0 shutout victory Tuesday night. Johnny Podres and Ron Perranoski stopped the Cards on three hits for a 2-1 victory Monday in the opening game of the crucial series.

Walter Alston, Los Angeles manager, had high praise for the big left-hander whose 11th shutout of the season was a major league record for lefties.

"Koufax was great—he's the greatest pitcher in the game," Alston said. "You don't shut out the Cards very often."

Stan Musial, perhaps the great player of his generation had this to say about Koufax: "He's bold that club together, he's the reason they're up there in first place."

Koufax was amazed when told he had made only 97 pitches, 21 of which were balls. He struck out only four.

"I don't believe I've ever pitched a game when I made under 100 pitches," said the 27-year-old Dodger ace.

Chisox Nip Bosox, Tribe Clips Yankees

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Joe Cunningham doubled in both runs as Chicago White Sox tightened their grip on second place in the American Baseball League with a 3-1 victory over Boston Red Sox Tuesday night.

Cunningham's decisive double came off Bob Heffner with two out in the fifth inning and followed a walk to winning pitcher Joel Horlen and a double by Mike Hershberger. Hoyt Wilhelm protected the victory.

In other games, Cleveland Indians edged the league champion New York Yanks 3-2 in 10 innings, Minnesota Twins downed Detroit Tigers 3-1 and Kansas City Athletics nipped Washington Senators 4-3 in 10 innings. Washington at Los Angeles was rained out.

Max Alvis scored the winning run in the 10th inning on reliever Stan Williams' throwing error, giving the Indians their decision over the Yankees.

Alvis led off the Tribe's 10th with a single, was sacrificed to second and stole third before Jose Azcue bounced to the mound. Williams' high throw got by Joe Pepitone at first, allowing Alvis to score.

KACHE FAN 13

Pedro Ramos and Yankee southpaw Al Downing engaged in a brisling strikeout duel through seven innings, each fanning 12. Downing was lifted for a pinch hitter in the 8th inning when the Yankees got even with their two runs. Ramos went out for a pinch hitter in the ninth.

Manny Jimenez hit a sacrifice fly in the 10th inning, following singles by Jerry Lumpe and Norm Siebern, to lead Kansas City to its victory over Washington.

Battey's 20th homer in the eighth with a man on base broke a 1-1 tie and gave rookie Dwight Siebler his second major league victory. Killebrew hit his 39th homer in the sixth.

FREESE IS OUT

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds said Tuesday that third baseman Gene Freese has a fracture of a bone in his right wrist and will be out of action for the remainder of the season. Freese suffered the injury in a recent series in Chicago when he sought to break a fall after slipping.

'Never Felt Better'

Big Year For Beliveau?

MONTREAL (CP) — Big Jean Beliveau stretched to his full six-feet-three inches and made a remark that should reverberate throughout the National Hockey League this season.

"I don't know why, but I feel better than I've ever felt at this time of the season," the Montreal team captain said in a Forum rinkside interview where Montreal Canadiens are in training.

What this could mean is bad news for NHL rivals and a badly-needed shot in the arm for the sagging Canadiens.

For as Beliveau goes, so go the Canadiens.

The talented 32 - year - old centre hasn't had a good season—for him — since 1960-61 when he scored 32 goals and 58 assists for 90 points, only five points less than the league's scoring champion, teammate Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion.

TIED RECORD

That was the year Geoffrion tied the record for 50 goals a season and the year Canadiens lost their five-year hold on the Stanley Cup.

Beliveau scored only 18 goals in each of the last two seasons.

Jean thinks this may be his best season in 10 years in the NHL. "I've always been a slow starter but this year it's different. I'm in better shape and I'm skating harder and moving easier than other years."

After seven days of training camp scrimmages, Beliveau has scored 10 goals, the best output to date by any of the 60 regulars and rookies attending the tryouts.

He has amazed everyone with his early speed, accuracy and conditioning.

Home Training Far Better Than Neighbor's Influence

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — The neighbor's sons are 11 and 13 years of age. They are undisciplined, impolite and they use bad language. I don't mean their grammar is incorrect. I mean they use vulgar words.

Our son, Lawrence, who will be 12 years old next December, plays ball with these little hoodlums. Lawrence seems not to notice that they are roughnecks and enjoys being with them.

Children learn from association and I don't want Lawrence to pick up any of their nasty habits. My husband says he grew up in the toughest neighborhood on New York's East Side and it didn't hurt him one bit. He has asked me to stay out of this and to say nothing. I'm not so sure this is the best approach. What do you say. — M. W. D.

DEAR M. W. D. — If Lawrence is almost 12 years old he has heard all the vulgar words there are to hear — or he soon will.

It is the home training that counts. If your son's training has been good the neighbor boys will not corrupt him. Say nothing. Should Lawrence spring a little primitive Anglo-Saxon in your home, just tell him you will not tolerate such talk and there will be no more of it.

DEAR ANN — I know now that doormats don't always know they are doormats. They just go around unhappy, with a vague feeling that something is wrong with them.

I had my first big think on the subject when I attempted to discuss my unhappiness with my husband. He looked at me dull-eyed and said, "so you're unhappy. Now isn't that a shame." Then he walked into another room.

When I told him I was going to see a psychiatrist he became angry. He said there had never been anyone crazy in his family, and that I was imagining things. When I told him I was going to pay for the therapy with money I had saved from the years when I worked he was furious. He thought it was selfish of me to "squander our nest egg."

I asked him to please keep quiet about my treatment, but within the week he had told every member of his family and mine. My mother was outraged. She said I was blighting the family name. My sisters said they always suspected I was a nut.

I somehow found the strength to tell them all where to head in and now I feel myself growing stronger and more confident every day. I'm getting to know myself for the first time and to my astonishment I'm not useless and stupid as I once thought. Print my letter if you think it has value. — STRUGGLING UP.

DEAR STRUGGLING — I do indeed think your letter has value. Thank you for writing.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — If you think I am being silly, please say so and I will never bring up the subject again. But frankly I'm hurt.

In my family when someone sneezes we always say "God bless you." It is more than good manners, it is wishing someone a great many ways. But when I sneeze he never says anything. I always say, "God bless you" when he sneezes, and I have even made a point of asking him to do the same for me. Somehow he forgets.

Last night I sneezed three times in a row. He sat and didn't say a word. I finally said, "Bill, I sneezed." He replied, "Do you have a cold?" I gave up then and there.

Why is he like this? What can I do about it? — ROZETTA.

DEAR ROZETTA — Blessing the sneezer is a family custom which is learned early or not at all. The person who is not conditioned to this custom is virtually deaf to a sneeze. Bill will never be a gesundheiter because it is not a part of his training. So give up already — and forget it.

Garland Needles Allyson Into Going Back to Work

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"It was Judy who made me go back to work," said June Allyson, inactive except for a brief television drama since the death of her husband, Dick Powell, Jan. 3.

One night Judy Garland spotted her at a restaurant.

"She came over to my table and started to haul me out," June Vocalized. "She told me: 'You look terrible. You don't even look like a movie star. Your eyes are all red. Have you been spending all your time crying in the back room?'

"I had to admit that I had. 'All right,' she said, 'you're going to work on my show. I need you and you're going to help me out.'

I found June rehearsing for the Garland show at CBS, her hair in curlers and a new sense of enthusiasm in her voice.

"I didn't think I could do it," she said. "I've had two throat operations and I didn't know if I could still sing. I haven't done anything musical in 10 years. I started out in musicals, but then I cried in one picture, waving goodbye to Jimmy Stewart, and from then on I was typed."

She reminisced about the days when she and Judy starred at MGM.

JUDY VS. JUNE

"We didn't find out about it until later, but the studio used to work us against each other," she said. "They'd say to Judy, 'now don't you get out of line, because we've got this new girl Allyson ready to take over for you if you do.'

"Then they'd say to me, 'don't start thinking you're great, because Judy is the big star around here.' The reason we're both so short is that they kept beating us down."

June lost her gayety when asked about her plans to marry Glen Maxwell, owner of Newport Beach barber shops.

"Where is the engagement ring I'm supposed to have?" she asked, pointing to the wedding band and solitaire from her marriage to Powell. "And how could I find anyone good enough to marry after Richard?"

PAUL NEWMAN IS "HUD"

Paul Newman is "Hud" in the Hud, outstanding screen drama which opens today at the Belle Theatre. Already hailed as an outstanding screen achievement, "Hud" was filmed on location in the Texas Panhandle and tells the story of contemporary cattle ranching.

The plot revolves around the character of Hud, played by Paul Newman. Hud is a selfish, brutal man, dedicated to his own self-gratification and ignominious goals. Hud's attitudes conflict with those of his father, played by Melvyn Douglas. The nephew, played by Brandon de Wilde is confused over whether his loyalties should lie with his uncle Hud or his grandfather. Alma, the housekeeper, played by Patricia Neal is caught in the family warfare and when violence finally erupts, she is the one who suffers.

Directed and produced by Martin Ritt, from a novel by the 24-year-old Texan Larry McMurty called "Horseman, Pass By," "Hud" figures to be a strong contender in the next year's Academy Award presentation.

"Hollywood Spotlight" in color is included in an entertaining array of short subjects shown on the same program, at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

"Jest a Second"

"Geo I often wondered what these places looked like inside."

"OLD DARK HOUSE"

Opens Thursday

"The Old Dark House," Hindon's newest comedy-with-corpses and reportedly one of its best, opens Thursday at the Park Theatre for its first Belleville showings. Starring Tom Poston, Robert Morley, Janette Scott and Joyce Grenfell, "The Old Dark House" is a William Castle - Hammer production for Columbia release.

"The Old Dark House" is an ancient mansion in England, and central home of a happy family of eccentrics. The family head relishes his collection of weapons, until some person or persons unknown rigs one of his guns to blow him apart. There is an aunt who loves to knit, until her knitting needles are used to stab her to death. There is an over - protective parent, who would rather strangle his daughter's suitors than chase them away. There is an amiable old dodderer preparing for another Flood, by building an ark and collecting his animals two by two.

And there are two delightfully dissimilar young ladies—one sweet and demure, the other sensual and demanding—who have a common aim: they want to attract the reluctant automobile salesman who has wandered into their midst. Poston plays the American auto salesman in England. He becomes both favorite murder victim and favorite murder suspect; to save himself from either unpleasant eventuality, he sets out to find the killer, and, incidentally, to get the girl.

William Castle directed "The Old Dark House" from the screen play by Robert Dillon based on J. B. Priestley's classic novel of suspense. Castle and Anthony Hinds served as producers of the film.

SECOND FEATURE

The added thrill feature in color is the story of Thirteen Frightened Girls on the Run! Columbia Pictures presents "13 Frightened Girls," with international screen beauties, producer William Castle's warning to girls "The Fright May Straighten Your Curls." Complete shows are at 7:00 and 8:50 p.m.

Plenty of Action, Suspense In Two Series on ABC

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—There was plenty of action and suspense in two series that made their debuts Tuesday night on ABC.

The Greatest Show on Earth has colorful, authentic circus backgrounds.

Tuesday night's script centered on a self-pitying, hate-consumed lion tamer limping back on a wooden leg to the circus to punish the animals and the man he holds responsible for crippling him.

All this led up to a rip-snorting climax inside the cage with the snarling beasts goaded to attack.

ABC's other new entry was The Fugitive, a tent show about a man who was both hunter and hunted. David Janssen played an innocent man convicted of murder. En route to his execution, there was a train-wreck, and our hero was next seen six months later far away, with dyed hair, an assumed name and jumpy nerves.

Hunting a one-armed man he suspects of being the real killer of his wife, he gets involved with a troubled, pretty girl player in a third-rate saloon. She also is being chased, by her sadistic, psychotic husband. The thing wound up with a shoot-out and Janssen slipped away for another adventure next week in another town.

Some Facts About Nylons

By DORIS CLARK

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — If my daughter were ten I most certainly would not let her wear nylons just "because all the others are wearing them." Surely you must know that 10 and 11-year-olds are no longer little girls but women with bras, dates, low-cut dresses (some), kissing, even some necking. People like you should do all you can to change this.

Bobby sox are for these girls, not nylons. — MOTHER OF TWO.

DEAR MOTHER — "Women with bras"? You said it, I didn't! The dates, the sexy clothes, the necking — there's where I would clamp down.

Nylons in themselves are not a symbol of sexy behavior.

Sentences Passed in Two Trials

Coombs Will Hang Jan. 28; Caissie Is Given 8 Years

Coombs

By Harry Mulhall

The life of Joseph Leonard Coombs may soon be in the last-resort hands of the Minister of Justice.

It became dependent on state clemency yesterday, when his trial jury convicted him of capital murder in the violent stabbing of his girl friend — recommended mercy.

The jurors found him guilty in the bloody death of Sharon Margaret Frost at L'Amable, February 14th.

Ontario Supreme Court Justice Moorhouse sentenced the 23-year-old Toronto hotel garage employee to be hanged January 28th — but said the jury's recommendation would go to the Minister of Justice.

What became known as the "Valentine's Day slaying" thus entered its penultimate stage as the jury including a woman for the first time in Hastings County murder records — reached its verdict after four hours behind locked doors.

The jurors filed back to their seats exactly on the dot of 3 p.m. after reviewing a case that lasted two and one-half days. Minutes before, court officials, lawyers and police officers quietly hurried into the court room as the jury sent word outside its chamber it had finally decided the outcome of the case.

Officials were joined by a sprinkling of spectators who watched as the accused man, a slight, pallid figure in a dark brown suit was escorted back to the dock to hear his verdict.

It was announced by jury foreman Beverly Foster, who answered the formal request for a decision with "We the jury find the prisoner guilty as charged."

STOPPED BY JUDGE

The strict protocol of British jurisprudence intervened as the foreman started to add to the verdict.

"Wow, don't say anything more," commanded His Lordship. "Sit down."

He then quoted a recently-inserted section of the Criminal Code that permits a jury to add recommendation to its verdict on capital crime. Jus-

Bench Lauds Free Legal Aid

Hasting County lawyers yesterday came in for repeated commendation from Ontario Supreme Court Justice Moorhouse for defending persons without fee on murder charges.

Last week he commended Donald Templeman and Benjamin Hurley for defending Vincent Armand Caissie on a non-capital murder charge after prosecuting Crown Attorney pointed out both barristers had acted without remuneration.

Yesterday Mr. Pringle again revealed to His Lordship opposing counsel Ronald Cass and Thomas Lally had defended Joseph Leonard Coombs on a free legal aid basis.

"Certainly, on behalf of the court, we express our deepest gratitude to these men," said His Lordship. "This is the second time in this county, in this sittings that this has been done."

As he concluded the Coombs trial yesterday, His Lordship again said the court was grateful to defence counsel for "the service which they have gratuitously given in this case."

Caissie

By Harry Mulhall

Vincent Armand Caissie, six months ago arrested for capital murder after he shot his wife, this morning was sentenced to eight years on a reduced charge of manslaughter.

Imposing sentence on the 42-year-old Belleville man, Mr. Justice E. G. Moorhouse said the killing was one more in a lengthy succession of contemporary crimes which are caused by liquor.

Caissie, a small, sandy-haired man, was quiet and composed as he heard the sentence.

First charged with capital murder by city police after he killed his wife with rifle fire in their apartment kitchen on Bridge St. E., he was on trial last week on a reduced non-capital charge. The second day of his trial, the Justice halted the proceedings and directed the jury to return a verdict of manslaughter. Expert testimony had alleged excessive consumption of liquor rendered Caissie incapable of rational thinking. Sentence was deferred until this morning, after a report on Caissie's personal background could be prepared by county probation officer.

"I will have nothing to add to your remorse!" His Lordship told the convicted man as he passed sentence.

GOOD RECORD

"Yours is but another on the long list of crimes which may be attributed to the use of liquor."

His Lordship noted Caissie's character record was a good one before this killing. He now would have to work on his character credit with society.

"And above all keep close association with your church," his Lordship admonished. "People who keep close association

Negroes Stone Police

JACKSON, Mich. (AP) — A mob of Negro teen-agers stoned police Wednesday as helmeted officers tried to prevent racial violence at a new $3,000,000 high school in a predominantly-white neighborhood.

Later, police fought with several of an estimated 100 to 150 Negro adults who congregated at residential street corner. No injuries were reported in either incident.

A total of 14, including a white girl, were arrested after the hour-long disturbance Wednesday afternoon. Seven white youths were picked up later and released after questioning.

Police officers were at times assaulted by a mob of Negro students who also hurled rocks at the patrolmen and at passing cars. Police Chief Roscoe Gray, who said his "show of force didn't work," dispersed about 30 Negro youths at one point with a fire extinguisher.

'Old Boy' Welcomed

Gromyko to Follow Pearson, Who Says It's Tough League

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The United Nations General Assembly today welcomed back one of its "old boys"—Prime Minister Pearson of Canada.

Pearson, who last represented Canada here in 1957, spoke in the first day of the 111-member UN's general debate. His main theme was the strengthening of the UN, especially in the field of peace-keeping operations.

Pearson was immediately followed by Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko. President Kennedy will address the assembly Friday. He and Pearson will meet at a Friday luncheon to be given by UN Secretary-General U Thant.

Pearson said at a Wednesday press conference he was under no illusion about the speaking competition he was up against in Gromyko.

He said with a grin he hoped Gromyko would "pay some tribute to the co-operative action of Canada in helping to supply flour," a reference to Canada's $500,000,000 wheat and flour sale to Russia Monday.

The Soviet foreign minister was expected to spoil the usual Russian blasts against the West because of the atmosphere of

Channel Tunnel Backed

LONDON (Reuters) — British and French experts recommended today that their governments build a two-way railway tunnel under the 21-mile English Channel.

Their decision revived the 161-year-old dream of Napoleon Bonaparte.

Rejected as being "the least satisfactory" link between Britain and France was the idea of a channel bridge.

The report, issued after an Anglo-French committee examined rival proposals for a tunnel or a bridge, said the railway tunnel proposition was "satisfactory" from the technical point of view.

The bridge idea was described as "less favorable from the economic point of view."

The committee was composed

Urges Nations Train And Equip Special Forces

Canada Has Listed Aid It Can Readily Supply

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson of Canada appealed today for development of trained and equipped collective forces for United Nations peace-keeping service.

He told the UN General Assembly that Canada recently gave the organization's secretariat detailed information on what Canada can most readily provide to meet UN requests for assistance if called on again.

"We propose," Mr. Pearson said, "that there should be an examination by interested governments of the problems and techniques of peace-keeping operations," He added:

"This could lead to a pooling of available resources and the development in a co-ordinated way of trained and equipped collective forces for UN service to meet possible future demands for action under the blue flag of the United Nations."

Pearson also proposed an enlarged Security Council which could assume responsibility for many questions now dealt with by the General Assembly; correlation of activities of regional groupings such as NATO with those of the UN; lower world trade barriers; and a moratorium on political controversy in the UN's specialized agencies.

REJECTS PROPOSAL

Pearson rejected the proposal of some UN members that South Africa be expelled from the UN for its racial policies and that sanctions be applied against that country.

There were other UN nations which followed policies which violated human rights. Were they to be expelled, too?

"We should be seeking to increase the membership, not to decrease it," he said.

Pearson's main theme was how to improve UN peacekeeping operations such as in the Middle East and The Congo. Most of the criticisms in his speech—his first in the UN since 1957—were directed at countries that oppose such operations. He described their attitude as "negative."

Countries which were responsible for the necessity of crash action by the UN "are often the first to criticize when the results are disorderly, delayed and inadequate."

Pearson warned that "time

Prairies Won't Switch

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker says the Prairies aren't going to switch political allegiance to the Liberals because of the big new wheat sale to Russia.

The $500,000,000 Soviet wheat deal won't change the Prairie farmer's viewpoint, he said Wednesday night.

"It will just underline and emphasize that the policies (on selling wheat) of the Conservative government were the correct ones."

Mr. Diefenbaker touched on wheat, old age pensions, international affairs and the Social Credit party's internal split during an interview on his return from an 18-day trip to the Middle East.

The Conservative leader looked tanned and fit as he stepped from an airliner with Mrs. Diefenbaker.

He had marked his 68th birthday with a long flight home from Israel, and remarked that he had received good wishes at Tel Aviv, Athens, Zurich and Paris.

BIRTHDAY WAS BUSY

"It's the busiest birthday I've ever had," he said.

His office planned a belated celebration for him today.

Referring to a report that Prime Minister Pearson may offself not the beneficiary of his own idea."

Last-Minute Try to Settle Lakes Dispute Is Expected

OTTAWA (CP)—A last-minute attempt to bring about a private settlement of labor violence on the Great Lakes is expected to be made at a meeting either in Washington or New York next week.

If the meeting is unsuccessful, then the Canadian government intends to go ahead with plans to impose a trusteeship over the five Canadian maritime unions.

An informant said the men attending the meeting would be Labor Minister MacEachen, U.S. Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz, President Claude Jodoin of the Canadian Labor Congress, and AFL-CIO President George Meany.

While the Canadian government is known to favor a private settlement, Mr. MacEachen said Saturday he is not optimistic that this is possible.

The summit meeting is believed to have been inspired by Washington. Mr. Wirtz has been conferring there with key labor leaders in the marine situation in the hope of avoiding the proposed Canadian government action.

In Vancouver, Mr. Jodoin said Wednesday that the government's plan of putting all five maritime unions under trusteeship is unfair.

He said the only offending union in the Great Lakes struggle is the Seafarers International Union but removal of Hal Banks as the SIU head also isn't the answer.

Recommendation that the unions be placed under government supervision was made by Mr. Justice T. G. Norris following his one-man inquiry into labor strife on the Great Lakes.

May Avoid Diplomatic Break

Prodded by Anxious United States, Indonesia Apologizes to Britain

JAKARTA, Indonesia—Faced with a British break in diplomatic relations and prodded by Washington, Indonesia expressed regret today for the mob burning and looting of the British Embassy and other property.

Strong forces of Indonesian troops appeared to have restored order in this capital after Wednesday's rampage of about 10,000 Indonesians protesting against the new, British-sponsored Federation of Malaysia. But in the uneasy calm, British and local officials were quitting Indonesia.

President Sukarno's government issued a conciliatory statement deploring the mob violence, worst demonstration ever staged here against a foreign power.

British Foreign Secretary Lord Home had denounced "such uncivilized behavior" and threatened to sever diplomatic relations unless assured British subjects and property would be protected.

President Sukarno agreed to guarantee the further safety of British subjects.

Indonesian troops now hold the city in unofficial martial law.

Sukarno's peace announcement came after an urgent meeting with American Ambassador Howard Jones, who was struggling to keep Indonesia's clash with Malaysia from escalating into a full diplomatic break.

Britain flew wives and children out of the country during the day. Australia and Malaysia which has broken relations with both Indonesia and the Philippines—also flew out citizens.

British Ambassador Andrew Gilchrist, who stood with folded arms when struck twice by rocks hurled by the mob, recommended to London that the injured citizens be flown to Singapore and affairs left in American hands. But Sukarno's "apology" made a diplomatic break seem less likely.

Gilchrist, who is sheltering with Jones, described the situation as "explosive."

Sukarno said in the palace statement Indonesia "deplores yesterday's unjustified happenings" in Kuala Lumpur, the Malayan capital.

LONDON (AP) — Britain's Far East forces stood on the alert today ready to help the new Malaysian Federation if its dispute with Indonesia should flare into warfare.

"Our troops are there to assist the Malays should such an occasion arise," Foreign Secretary Lord Home said in a television interview Wednesday night.

"But if profoundly hope," he added, "that it will not do so, and that Indonesia will behave in a neighborly way toward the new Malaysia."

About 6,000 British and Commonwealth forces are believed stationed around North Borneo, federation territories that have rugged jungle frontiers with Indonesia.

Already this year 18 incidents have flared along these frontiers. The British fear that Indonesia may provoke guerrilla warfare in the jungle to boost its claim to the territories.

Other powerful forces are based on Singapore, long British naim Bastion in the Far East.

The commando carrier Albion, with Royal Marine commandos and helicopter transports, is assigned to Far East waters.

Election Bout in Last Round

Liberal, PC Chiefs Trade Punches As NDP's MacDonald Shadow-Boxes

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ontario's election race turned into the home stretch Wednesday with Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer accusing Progressive Conservatives of politics that promote bigotry and prejudice and undermine Canadian unity.

Premier John Robarts replied with accusations that the Liberal leader was following a course of "deliberate and calculated falsehood" in the election campaign.

Donald C. MacDonald, New Democratic Party leader, said Canada's economy has been sluggish and virtually stagnant for the last 10 years and it is time for the government to start doing something about it.

Voters will elect the provincial legislature next Wednesday.

Mr. Wintermeyer, Liberal leader and other in sing... n Mr. Robarts flew there late Wednesday and will leave for the Oshawa area in the afternoon. Mr. Wintermeyer, after a visit to Ottawa in the morning, will go to Kingston for an evening rally. NDP Leader MacDonald will campaign in Windsor.

Mr. Wintermeyer, stumping the Liberal stronghold of Brantford Wednesday attacked the Conservative government's policy of leaving the teaching of French in elementary schools up to the local school boards.

"The local government should have no option as to whether they will teach mathematics or English or history," he said. "Yet doing something about it.

At 71, Milton Gregg Is Shouldered With Toughest Job of His Career

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Milton Gregg, soldier, politician, educationist and international civil servant, is heading at the age of 71 into a job he admits could be one of the toughest of his career.

Gregg, a member of the Canadian cabinet for 10 years, was elected unanimously this week to head the administrative and budgetary committee of the United Nations General Assembly.

He takes over the job at a time when almost every UN problem revolves around money, at a time when political and constitutional issues are being fought out on a financial plane.

"It could be tough," he said in an interview. "It could also be embarrassing."

Gregg indicated his chief hope

Six Duck-Hunting Areas Are Closed by Mounties Because of Illegal Bait

That two - headed monster - greed and laziness has again reared an ugly countenance to spoil the opening days of the duck - hunting season for many hunters".

The season officially opens in the Tweed district and Ontario at dawn Saturday morning.

Pre - season warnings by Lands and Forests officials regarding illegal baiting apparently had no effect on those hunters or people who deliberately flaunt the law for personal gain.

As a result, Royal Canadian Mounted Police officers working with departmental conservation officials have posted and closed six hunting areas in the Prince Edward - Hastings district.

Three of these areas are in Prince Edward on East Lake one-half mile north of the Outlet village. The areas overlap Lynn's Pond three miles southwest of Tweed and one-half mile south of the CPR tracks has been closed.

Also posted in the Lost Channel on the Moira River four miles south of Tweed.

The southwest corner of the Bay of Quinte just north of the Carrying Place was also found baited and has been closed.

An RCMP officer said today that all these areas will be rechecked ten days after opening date and if found free of bait will be opened for hunting.

Another area said "west of Belleville" is being checked today and if found "pulley" will be closed. This will be announced tomorrow.

Hunters are reminded that the Migratory Birds Convention Act states that no one is permitted to hunt, "within one quarter-mile of any place where bait has been found or placed during the open season for ducks or geese or during the seven days proceeding the open season."

RCMP officers and those of the Lands and Forests Department at Tweed remind bait-placing persons that the act states that if further bait is found in any of the closed areas these will be posted for the remainder of the season.

The officers are maintaining a relentless check on all duck-hunting areas in this district.

"It is unfortunate that a few greedy lazy persons who want to sit and have the ducks come to them, spoil the sport for the many hunters who look forward to hunting." However," he said "the law is the law and it will be carried out."

Will Accept Men Only For Course in Acting

Men only will be accepted for a short acting course, to be offered this year by the Belleville Theatre Guild, the guild executive decided last night. The Guild has plenty of women for the cast, but not enough men.

The course will be conducted for two-and-a-half hours each Wednesday night, from October through December. Cost will be a $1.00 registration fee. Instructor will be Ivy Gould director, Jim Alexander, of Trenton.

Party Workers Hear Candidate, Frank Follwell

In a speech to campaign workers Wednesday night in Bellville committee rooms, West Hastings Liberal candidate Frank Follwell warned workers against taking anything for granted.

"That has been the trouble in Hastings for the past 20 years," he said. "The whole riding has been taken for granted by the Conservative government for 30 years.

Mr. Follwell interrupted a political city caravan to drop in at the meeting, and was given a standing ovation by the audience.

He stated that it was good to all party leaders and cars distributed to "get up" and state their claims to office.

"Mr. Whitermore has been doing it - remember his speech in Belleville two weeks ago?"

Mr. Follwell had been touring Hastings West in the past two weeks, and said that much to be talked about in this election and Liberal workers must make it their job to put across their Party's program.

We have everything to be proud of. "Let's talk it up," he said.

The meeting was attended by 120 Belleville party workers.

Thurlow PC Assoc. Host At Reception

Thurlow Progressive Conservative Association played host Wednesday night to Clarke Rollins and his supporters. Over 500 attended a reception and dance held at Club Cedara, Canniff.

Mr. Lee Grills, former M.P. for Hastings South, introduced Mr. Rollins and in his introduction described the candidate as "a vigorous hardworking member and urged those present to give him a tremendous majority on September 25th.

Mr. Rollins, in his address, made his opponent in the going to make long radio speals to the electorate such as the opposition Finlayson Mr. Rollins refuted a statement made by his o pponent in a speech in Tweed a few days ago. It was said that the East Hastings member had not aided a group in obtaining a co-op charter.

Mr. Rollins read from a copy of a letter addressed to the secretary-treasurer of the Co-Operative Union of Ontario. Permission was granted for the subject charter on August 8, 1963 to the name of Hastings Grain Co-operative Ltd. The speaker made note of the fact that his opponent was named on the charter as a director and should have had knowledge of the charter's issuance.

Mr. Rollins went on to say that he would make representations to the Department of Highways in the hope that the Department may take over several miles of the Hastings Road System so that the money presently spent for maintenance on these roads may be used for the betterment of the remaining county roads.

Mr. Floyd Henderson, president of the Thurlow Progressive Conservative Association, was chairman of the evening.

Twelve Persons Sent to Trial On Drug Counts

TORONTO (CP)—Twelve persons, charged with conspiring to traffic in narcotics following the scuttling by the RCMP of what they called Canada's largest narcotics ring, were committed for trial Wednesday.

Magistrate Joseph Addison, who presided over the nine-day preliminary hearing, said the evidence presented was so strong that had the hearing been a trial the 12 would have all been convicted.

Committed to trial are Douglas Frederick, 32, Michele Christine Poole, 20, John Meldrum, 43, Marion Amy Burns, 32, John James Edwards, 30, Geraldine Hughes, 44, Frank Edgar Pirie, 47, James Rose, 40, Orval Charles Hardy, Gloria Irene West, 38, and Joan Dickson, 30, all of Toronto, and Charles Joseph Cipolla, 30, of Fabius, N.Y.

During the hearing, court heard testimony from 30 RCMP and Metropolitan Toronto police officers.

The officers had kept the suspects under close surveillance for about 4½ months. The investigation had involved many simultaneous raids in Toronto and Brampton in which police seized more than $100,000 worth of heroin was seized.

Cpl. Donald Docker of the RCMP said that when he was arrested at Brampton, Cpl. Docker said Cipolla dropped the bundle of bills came from winnings in a crap game.

The Guelph police chief operator who claims to earn $4,500 a year, told the officer there were four cars in his fleet.

Asked if he was a drug addict, Cipolla replied: "I've never use the stuff." RCMP Cpl. Ellis Craig testified.

Testimony about clandestine meetings and suspicious packages containing heroin left under key holes and telephone booths was aired at the hearing.

And much testimony was taken up with the story of possible to link the 12 suspects. In one such scheme a young Toronto bank accountant was asked to watch one of the accused as he made deposits at his bank while another suspect lounged outside waiting for him.

Trial Lights On Front Street Are Taken Down

After more than a year's trial the mercury vapor and fluorescent lights on Front St. came down, yesterday and this morning. The lights were on loan from the manufacturers. PUC manager K. I. Burnham explained today, and no decision has been made to buy or not buy one or the other.

The fluorescent lamps, four of them, under the Bridge - Front intersection, two at Bridge and Front Streets. The Mercury Vapor lamps, two of them looking like lamp-in-the-pulpit flowers, were in front of the city hall. Loaned to the city a year ago, the six lights were erected so citizens and councillors could decide which they liked best.

The fluorescent fixtures were the most popular, according to Traffic Committee chairman Jack Ireland, but that doesn't mean the city will install them. The light fixtures on Front St. are far from worn out yet, he said today, and there is no provision for new lighting on Front St. in this year's budget anyway. Another year, perhaps the old Front St. lights may be moved to another street, and lighting installed.

Two Cabinet Ministers Will Tour Prairies

OTTAWA (CP)—A lightning swoop on Manitoba and Saskatchewan has been scheduled by Trade Minister Sharp and Agriculture Minister Hays hard on the heels of Monday's mammoth Russian wheat sale.

Mr. Sharp's office announced Wednesday that he will visit Winnipeg, Regina and Moose Jaw Monday. Mr. Hays' office said later that he will be going too.

The tentative schedule lists a Winnipeg press conference and a press conference and un address to a farm group in Moose Jaw.

Mr. Sharp's office said the minister was accepting an open invitation from the Saskatchewan Farmers Union for the Moose Jaw meeting. A spokesman said the press conferences are designed to provide information regionally about the sale of $500,000,000 worth of wheat and flour to Russia by next July 31.

Rightly or wrongly, the purpose of the trip is interpreted by observers here as one that might prove useful politically despite protestations by Mr. Sharp about using the Russian sales for that purpose.

Reformatory Tractor Missing With Prisoner

GUELPH (CP) — A prisoner and farm tractor have been missing from the Guelph Reformatory since early today.

Authorities believe George Lloyd Smith, 23, of Petrolia, Ont., was driving the tractor.

Superintendant Charles Sanderson said Smith was one of a small group of prisoners considered trustworthy enough to operate farm machinery. He had gone to the implement shed to prepare the tractor for plowing.

He was serving a term of 12 months of definite and three months indeterminate imposed at Cobourg and Port Hope of charges of break, entry and theft and car theft.

Is Prepared To Sell U.S. Wheat to USSR

MONTICELLO, Iowa (AP) — U.S. Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman told an audience of eastern Iowa farmers Wednesday that he would be willing to sell some of the U.S. surplus wheat to the Soviet Union, if the Russians pay "our price."

Freeman explained that he favors selling American surplus wheat to the Communists only at a non-subsidized price. American wheat currently moves into world trade with about a 70-cents-a-bushel U.S. subsidy, in order to compete with exports from other countries.

In New York, The Times says Soviet representatives are reported to have approached American traders with offers to buy wheat.

Town Must Increase Subsidy If All Ambulance Drivers Required to Know First Aid

TRENTON — At yesterday's meeting of the Trenton Board of Health, board chairman H. S. Pane reported that he had contacted Douglas Rushnell, operator of the locally based Rushnell Ambulance, regarding a board recommendation that men trained by St. John Ambulance personnel be placed in charge of all vehicles used in transport patients.

Mr. Rushnell was reported to have told the board chairman that the $3500 annual subsidy from the town would have to be raised if he were expected to employ fully-quaitited St. John ambulance drivers.

MOVED by E. W. Dow seconded if any fee were charged for St. John training and board Member Mrs. Mary Goldard said that she thought a small fee was charged for the course.

Contacted later, Mr. Rushnell told a reporter that he had received a letter from the health board chairman that it was expected a least two fully-trained men on each of his vehicles on a round-the-clock basis, it would mean more money than he could be expected to earn throughout the year, even with the town subsidy into account. Mr. Rushnell said however, that he disagreed with the suggestion that St. John personnel and that he himself had full knowledge of Provincial Ambulance regulations.

ANTI-SMOKING FILMS

Mr. Pane reported that the Board of Health office had said that films linking cigarette smoking with cancer were shown to school children in 1962. Dr. Dow, who had suggested the film be shown to them said yesterday that he thought it would serve a useful purpose if the films were shown annually.

Mr. Pane read reports of tests on ice, glassware, cutlery etc. from local restaurants, beverage rooms and institutions for July, August and September and noted that the report grew progressively worse with each month. In fact, said the chairman, places which had never had an adverse report or clean records were having them now. Mr. Pane said that this situation had occurred over time and that when he had visited the Kingston lab, where the tests were carried out, the fault had been found to be with the method of testing. He suggested that he and Miss Mitchell visit the lab and try to trace the source of the adverse reports. Mr. Pane said that he had cups and watched dishes washed in boiling water and disinfectant and that he felt sure the dishes were sterile, but still had reports coming back bad.

Dr. Dow told the board that next week is National Immunization Week and pointed out the importance of such treatment. Dr. Dow said that preschool children receive immunization against polio, whooping cough, tetanus and diptheria in one needle. The first pre-school clinic for the season will be held in the Community Gardens on Friday morning, Sept. 20, from 9 a.m. to 9.30 a.m.

Dr. Dow also commented on today's vital need for smallpox vaccination as there is so much travel from one part of the world to another the disease might very well be brought into the country. The first vaccination is given at six months. After that, the child should be vaccinated every five years. Those who travel a great deal should be vaccinated every three years.

WANTS FORMS REVISED

Dr. Dow also called for a revision of pre-school immunization record forms. The present forms, compiled by the Board of Education, overlaps in question content and also leads parents to believe that their children will not be admitted to school unless the forms are filled out prior to school's opening in September. He said, that causes a great deal of confusion among parents and doctors alike, said Dr. Dow. He suggested that the new forms ask the parents to have their children's records completed before the end of June for presentation at school in September.

Rats hanging around the sanitary landfill are in for a not-so-pleasant surprise if the board carries through with a suggestion from a pesticide firm that a new, powerful poison be placed in the area (in such a way that cats and dogs can't get at it.) However, in their letter to the board the pest exterminators suggested that if the garbage were packed down tight and covered adequately, there shouldn't be too much trouble from rats.

The health board has called for the installation of a sewer on Stella Crescent and Dufferin Ave., and Mr. Pane reported that work on the Stella Crescent sewer will commence next week, while the Dufferin Ave. sewer is scheduled for next year.

Will Explain Purpose Of Survey

TRENTON — Wednesday afternoon, J. F. Brown of the community planning branch of the Department of Municipal Affairs reviewed the progress to date of the urban-renewal survey presently being carried out in Trenton for members of the town committee set up to deal with the survey. The meeting was held in the municipal office and was also attended by R. L. Mersey, Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation's representative concerned with the rehabilitation plan.

Mr. Brown said that he planned to meet with various town groups to explain the purpose of the survey and to get opinions of what steps should be taken to renew certain housing areas of the town. The survey will also be concerned about the possible rehabilitation of commercial areas in town.

PUMPER ARRIVES

The fire department's latest piece of equipment — a 625 King-Seagrave pumper — arrived in town around 1 p.m. yesterday. The pumper has incorporated special features specified by Fire Chief Cecil Ellis. Cost to the town was $13,500.

Now that the pumper is here and in the fire hall, the aerial ladder truck will be sent back to the town sheds in east Trenton for action in the event of a large fire on the east side of the river.

ACCRA, Ghana (Reuters)—A Canadian school teacher working in Ghana who flew back voluntarily from Nigeria to face charges of careless driving and negligently causing harm was acquitted by a court here Wednesday. The Canadian, Alec Weiner, of Montreal, was involved in a road accident in which a Ghanaian pedestrian was killed last month.

Mrs. R. J. Lane Christens New Rescue Cutter

TRENTON — Saturday marked a special day for the Canadian Coast Guard and the Royal Canadian Air Force as the first 70 foot cutter, to be used primarily for search and rescue duties was christened at Penetanguishene, Ont.

The ship was officially accepted on behalf of the Minister of Transport by Captain E. S. Brand, OBE, the Director of Marine Operations at Ottawa.

The Canadian Coast Guard Cutter CCGC Spume, built by the Grew Boat Works of Penetang is one of three such vessels that will operate through out the Great Lakes.

The traditional christening with champagne was performed by Mrs. Barbara Lane, wife of Air Commodore R. J. Lane, DSO, DFC, CD, Air Officer Commanding Air Transport Command Headquarters, and RCAF Station Trenton and Department of Transport officials from Ottawa.

The Search and Rescue Organization which operates in the RCAF is actually a part of an integral scheme to provide SAR facilities for air carriers of eighteen countries, all members of the International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO).

FOUR AREAS

Canada itself is divided into four areas for search and rescue: Pacific, Central, Eastern and Atlantic areas. Each area is "controlled" from Rescue Coordination Centres at Comox, Vancouver, Winnipeg, Trenton, Ont., Halifax, and Sub-RCC Torbay, Nfld.

At Trenton, for example, the area Co-ordination Centre at Air Transport Command Headquarters had under its control 103 Composite (Search and Rescue) Unit, equipped with Yorktons, Dakota and Otter search aircraft, and a complement of fifteen search and rescue crews. In addition, RCC can bring more and different types of aircraft, as needed, into action.

At the Trenton Co-ordination Centre, Captain H. G. Bould is the Canadian pumper — representative and plays an active part in the organization of all search and rescue operations dealing with marine incidents.

The Trenton RCC's area of responsibility covers all the Great Lakes and Hudson Bay, each new shipping season means a busy time for the RCAF's Search and Rescue organization.

URGE HIGHER SALARIES

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Macmillan was urged Thursday to raise the salaries of higher echelon civil servants by 15 to 18 per cent to keep the best brains in government. A committee headed by Lord Franks, former ambassador to the United States, said the increases are necessary to put governmental salaries roughly on a par with industry.

Hospital Employees' Union Votes to Strike October 1 Unless Contract Is Signed

TRENTON — In a secret ballot, 28 of 32 employees of union local 183 of the Building Services Employees International Union, all employees of Trenton Memorial Hospital, voted to go out on strike at 7.30 a.m. Oct. 1. The ballot was held at a meeting in the Trenton Legion Hall last night. The union local has a membership of 75.

International vice-president of the union, Albert Hearne, told the members that he would send a telegram to the Ontario Minister of Labor, Hon. H. L. Rowntree and to the hospital board, headed up by S. G. Fairbam, advising them of the union local's decision to strike if necessary to force the board to sign an acceptable contract.

Mr. Hearne said that he would also advise both Rowntree and the union executive would be ready to meet at any hour of the day or night to resolve the dispute.

Union members have asked for a revision of the wage schedules at the Trenton Institution and recognition of the union in the checking off of union dues from regular pay by the hospital's administrative staff.

CLAIM WAGES LOW

At last night's meeting, Mr. Hearne said that hospitals at St. Catharines and Brampton and at the Toronto East, which is considered a "depressed area," starting wages for certain types of jobs (wait) are $172, $163 and $140 as compared to $90 for Trenton.

The union local was only asking that the wage scale be raised to that currently in force in the hospitals of comparable size, Mr. Hearne said.

Picket captains were chosen at last night's meeting. If a strike comes, picketers will start duty shifts immediately. A headquarters will be set up and arrangements made for the serving of coffee and sandwiches to picketers.

Mr. Hearne said that he was in no way trying to urge the members to strike, but he promised that the international would stand behind the Trenton local to the extent of $12,000 a month should a strike become a reality. Workers would receive strike pay comparable to their salaries, and part of the money would be used to pay rent on the union headquarters.

The findings of a three-man conciliation board, set up in May to attempt to resolve the impasse between the union and the official board at the hospital, will be published, so that the people of Trenton can judge for themselves whether or not the union has a just grievance.

Mr. Hearne said that the union had stood ready at all times to co - operate with the board but had met with a negative response from the board chairman, Mr. Graham, and the members of his board. Mr. Hearne said, however, that he was sure some members of the board were willing to listen to reason but were being held back by others. Members of the Robarts government, from Premier Robarts himself on down, also seemed to be disinterested in the plight of th. workers at Trenton, he charged. Numerous letters to government officials had gone unanswered, he said.

Because of this, and because of the fact that the report from the conciliation board had been in the hands of the Minister of Labor six weeks when such reports generally took only around 10 days to process, Mr. Hearne said that he was inclined to wonder just what kind of influence the union had with the Tory government.

Politics might play a part in the contemplated strike action, he said, as a change in government might r. it in a new approach by the in-coming government to the Trenton problem. He asked the workers to display tolerance if they were requested by the government to delay the strike for a short time while new negotiations were taking place.

OPPOSE DELAY

However, the general feeling at the meeting was that the strike should go on as set for Oct. 1.

In fact, one union member called out last night, "Let's strike tonight."

The strike, if it comes, could take two courses, said Mr. Hearne. It might be of short duration with the government agencies stepping in and forced arbitration and the hospital board yielding, at least partially to union demands.

On the other hand, the strike might be a long drawn out one and if the union members decided to keep other workers hired by the hospital from entering the institution, it might lead to a nasty situation.

Mr. Hearne said that he would be in the picket line and if trouble came and he was arrested and put in jail, it would not be the first time.

"No trade union leader can boast he's won his stripes until he's served time," he said.

It was suggested that if the workers strike, the ladies from the hospital's Women's Auxiliary might, for a time, attempt to serve tea and sandwiches to patients and even struggle with bedpans.

The union will, through newspaper advertisements advise Trenton area residents not to enter the hospital prior to the Oct. 1 deadline and will attempt to raise money to have patients already in the institution on the night date to hospitals in Belleville and Cobourg.

Uncle Sam Looks at Wheat Sale

Old slogans never die. They just change sponsors.

There was a time when "No truck or trade with the Yankees" won a Canadian election.

Today Canadians, generally speaking, are willing to trade or truck with anybody.

The Yankees, however, have taken an old Canadian slogan by the tail and given it a new kink.

Many of them want no truck or trade with Red in general and Castro-style Reds in particular.

They not only lay down this rule for the disposal of their own goods but they expect their friends and associates to adopt it too.

The sale of Canadian wheat to Russia would have been an unkind cut to Americans of this ilk in any case, but the fact that some of this Russian-bought wheat and flour will end up in Cuba appears to them to be adding insult to injury.

For instance, Senator Kenneth Keating, New York State Republican, calls the deal a "shocking breach" of co-operation in the Western hemisphere. Canadians do not have to worry about official Washington taking this kind of attitude. Administration sources immediately pointed out that there is no embargo against the sale of food and medicine to Cuba. But it does show how some Americans think.

Other Americans, more realistic or perhaps just as little more money-hungry, have taken a completely different stand — complaining because the U.S. did not get in on the deal.

In circumstances like these it is a pleasure — and a bit of surprise — to discover that one well-informed U.S. newspaper is quite happy about the whole affair.

The Washington Post considers that the Canadian deal with Russia "looks like good news in almost all respects."

Besides boosting Canada's economy, says the Post, the sale should improve the market for U.S. wheat, since the amount of wheat which Canada will be trying to sell to other countries will be substantially reduced.

The Post, however, sees one major task before Canada — we quote — "to give so much foreign exchange from Russia that we shall have to spend more with other countries and borrow less from them, as we have promised not to increase our exchange reserves.

Now there's the kind of problem any budget-keeper likes to find facing him. Just one suggestion though — let's wait until we have money in the kitty before going on the necessary spending spree abroad.

Canada to Lose Faithful Servant

"Dear George" and "Dear Mike" have exchanged letters — the net result of which will be that on Jan. 1, 1964, Hon. George Drew will cease to be Canada's High Commission to the United Kingdom.

Despite the fact that they have more than once faced each other across the floor of the Canadian House of Commons with something other than love and respect lighting up their eyes, there is little reason to believe that Prime Minister L. B. Pearson and Mr. Drew were insincere in their informal style of address to one another.

Whatever one may think of Hon. George Drew as a politician — and opinions on this matter are likely to be uniformly strong but far from strongly uniform — there is no question but that he has served Canada well in London.

His handsome figure, dignified mien and rather formal style of address, while not always the most appealing to Canadians, were admirably suited to win him a hearing with the more reserved Britons. His sincerity, ability and penchant for hard work thus got an opportunity for full play. The result has been that he has been able to keep Canada's prestige high at a time when the tide of international affairs has not always been in favor with the Mother Country in the political and economic arenas.

In his retirement — if it should prove to be really that and not just a transfer to another field of interest and endeavor — Mr. Drew will have the best wishes of all the citizens of his country, to which his devotion has never for an instant been doubted by even his bitterest political foes.

The ability to handle men is the most valuable thing in the business world. I will pay higher for that than any other qualification. — John D. Rockefeller, when asked about the qualities needed for success.

Nice Guys Do Win—Pearson Proves Power of Amiability

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Nice guys, they say — and not just the cynics, either — never win.

It takes the "hard case," they insist, to get to the political top.

Well, it looks like Prime Minister Pearson has been proving them wrong.

First he won the Liberal leadership, and they shrugged it off as just a fluke, certain that he couldn't last for lack of the tough stuff required for the long hard fight for Federal power.

And then, after two frustrating years, when it began to appear that they might be right, he made it — and against "Fighting John" Diefenbaker, one of the hardest cases in the business.

As a matter of fact, the hard-boiled Dief, for a time, refused to take Mike Pearson seriously, laughing him off as something of a creampuff.

Dief, a thunderclout of a man who could — and did — sometimes tear great bleeding strips off some of his friends, never really believed until the last moment that a diplomatist could have what it takes.

Capable of great warm bursts of affection for friends and associates, and of cruelly cutting enemies down to size and sugar, he often questioned the sincerity of a man who could turn the same pleasantly smiling face to everyone.

NEVER ON SUNDAY

For if the diplomatist-become-politician Pearson has dressed out a colleague, any member of his personal staff or even one of the 265 members of the Capital's ever-growing Press Corps, it has never been in public.

Perhaps he does have his bad moments — he must, for he is under the same heat — perhaps even greater pressure than any recent Prime Minister — but they are in the privacy of his own office.

They used to write off Pearson the politician as a professional nice guy, the smooth, unruffled, pleasant product of the External Affairs Department's "finishing school" for the careerists of the international Status Quo.

But it has to be more than that.

For he can be just as amiable scoffing his toe in the dust while lobbying for votes in the Manitoulin Island turkey farmer as he is hosting a Government state dinner in honor of a high-ranking visiting VIP.

And just as charming with a small newsboy on the 5th Saturday night-hop in Espanola as with Madame Vanier at the Governor General's ball in Rideau Hall.

Political leaders, particularly prime ministers, are a fair-to-middling bowl life, under the unrelenting scrutiny of press and public — and the steady pressure of understandably irritated by this endless intrusion into what they might like to be sometimes as their privacy, this annoyance invariably shows itself in a guilt-by-association, with the guilt-by-association, with the guilt-by-association, with the Caissie was then returned to his cell at Hastings County jail, where he will be transferred to Kingston penitentiary.

During his trial he was revealed as a war veteran with outstanding service records during the Low Countries campaign and later with the Princess Patricia Regiment in the Korean war. A one-time dry cleaning presser after he left the army, Caissie had been unemployed for some time before the crime. He was taking a job retraining course at Cornwall and commuting home weekends when the fatal incident occurred. Afterward he surrendered himself to the police.

United Appeal For Statement On Highways

OTTAWA (CP) — Working against time, about 20 organizations met Wednesday to devise a united appeal to the federal government for a statement of national highways policy.

Their object is to send a consolidated brief to the cabinet in time to leave it digested before the scheduled federal-provincial conference on highways policy this fall.

No date has yet been announced for that meeting, proposed last July by Works Minister Deschatelets. But informants said the most likely date now appears to be sometime in November.

The highways conference would be between Mr. Deschatelets and the provincial highways ministers. It would be separate from the main dominion-provincial fiscal conference expected to begin Nov. 18.

Brought into the meeting here Wednesday—it will continue today—are national and provincial groups interested in road - building, included were delegates from the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, the Engineering Institute of Canada and the Canadian Tourist Association.

Sponsor of the meeting is the Canadian Construction Association. Its president, Thomas A. Somerville, told the opening of the session:

"At the present time, Canada is one of the few leading nations without a national highways policy. We are suffering not only from a serious case of bardenosis of our traffic arteries but also from the related retarded development of our country and the expenses and delays of an unco-ordinated roads program."

Coombs

tice Moorhouse then suggested they retire.

Before doing so, leading defence Counsel Ronald Cass requested the jury be polled on the unanimity of its verdict. Each juror then was called in turn to approve the verdict of guilty. They were unanimous. The jurors then recessed.

Three minutes later they returned and were formally questioned if they had anything to add to the verdict. The foreman reading from a small piece of notepaper stated: "We the jury have unanimously agreed that a plea of clemency be entered."

Duly registering the recommendation His Lordship turned to the accused and said: "Stand up, Coombs." He then put the traditional request, asking the accused was if he had anything to say.

"No sir," answered Coombs, the first time he had spoken since Monday morning when he formally pleaded not guilty to the charge.

His Lordship then quietly enunciated the centuries-old phrases of the death sentence in capital crime under British law:

"You will be taken from the place where you are to the place from whence you came and there back to the place custody until the 28th day of January. On that date you will be taken by the sheriff to a place of execution and there hanged by the neck until you are dead."

"And may God have mercy on your soul."

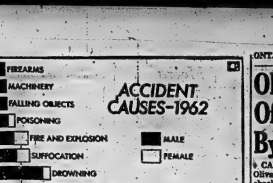
"Remove the prisoner," His Lordship then ordered and Coombs was taken out by court officers to his cell in Hastings County jail where he has been lodged since the day following the murder.

After his departure the Justice thanked the jurors for "a most distasteful" but simultaneously, the highest of civilian duties.

And he assured them: "My report to the Minister of Justice will not in any way disagree with your verdict. It will be by all means carry the unanimous recommendation which you have made."

JFK Carries Plea to People For Tax Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy—carried to the U.S. people Wednesday night his plea for an $11,000,000,000 tax cut as "insurance for prosperity"—coupled what he called ruinous amendments to curb spending.



In a U.S.-wide radio and television address Kennedy pledged "true fiscal responsibility, leading to a balanced budget in a balanced full-employment economy."

But he rejected—and called on the public to support his stand—a Republican party plan unveiled a few hours earlier to make the two-stage reduction conditional upon budget ceilings fixed by Congress.

The Republican National Committee quickly announced it will demand a special TV network time for a reply.

"This nation needs a tax cut now—not a tax cut 'if'—not a tax cut 'when'—not a tax cut in the future or a tax cut for before," said Kennedy.

He said he favors tax reduction instead of deficit federal spending "as the principal means of boosting our economy."

ACCIDENT DEATHS — Traffic deaths accounted for nearly half of the 10,084 accidental deaths in Canada in 1962, with males in the 15-34 age group almost one-quarter of the 4,224 victims. Males suffer more accidental deaths than females in a ratio of almost three to one, the one notable exception being fatalities caused by falls in the home.

Graph also shows male and female deaths resulting from fire-arms, machinery, falling objects, poisoning, fire and explosion, suffocation and drowning.

Work for Relief Opinion of PC Candidate

TORONTO (CP)—A Progressive Conservative candidate, who said he was speaking for the government, said Wednesday that men applying for relief should be required to work for it.

Alf Cowling, party whip in the last legislature and seeking re-election in Toronto High Park in the next Wednesday's election, also-told a symposium on work-for-relief that unemployment is the responsibility of business, not of the government.

The meeting was sponsored by the West Toronto-Swansea committee of Metropolitan Toronto's social planning council.

Mr. Cowling said he was speaking for the government when he said that any able-bodied man should work for his welfare assistance. It was wrong for men to take money for doing nothing, he added.

"The solution to the problems of unemployment is the responsibility of business, not the government," Mr. Cowling added.

His statement was opposed not by Liberal and New Democratic Party representatives. James Trotter, Liberal, seeking re-election in Toronto Parkdale, said work for relief is economically, politically and morally wrong. "It is forced labor," he said.

Stephen Dishobin, NDP candidate in Parkdale: "A flat, uncompromising, final no is the only answer to work for relief."

Tried to Push Live Snake Into Negro's Mouth

SELMA, Ala. (AP)—A white man has been jailed in this racially troubled city after he allegedly pushed a live snake into a Negro's mouth.

Sheriff James Clark said Dean Barber, 23, of Selma, is charged with conduct intended to incite a riot. A Negro was charged with assault and battery in the same incident.

Clark said Barber pushed the non - poisonous snake into the faces of four Negroes who were standing outside a church where an anti-segregation rally was in session.

One of the Negroes, James Gildersleeve, said Barber pushed the snake into his mouth, but he jerked his head away.

Quints' Parents Get Good News About Offspring

ABERDEEN, S.D. (AP)—The Fischer quintuplets squirmed and squalled in their hospital nursery today while their fortunes and chances for survival improved.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Fischer, parents of the four girls and a boy, got the news from several directions Wednesday:

1. They will some day live in a new house costing up to $150,000.

2. A pot of money (conservative say about $50,000) is coming their way for an exclusive contract signed with the Curtis Publishing Company.

3. Authorities at St. Luke's Hospital reported the quintuplets still improving, eating more, and showing lots of life in their plastic-enclosed isolettes.

4. The top tax man, Mortimer M. Caplin, commissioner of internal revenue, said in a press release that all the gifts they've been receiving are not taxable.

It is estimated that gifts and money received by the family so far total more than $50,000.

ACCEPT OFFER

E. C. Pieplow, president of the Aberdeen Chamber of Commerce, told a press conference Wednesday night that the Fischer family has accepted the chamber offer to sell the home that may cost up to the $100,000 mark.

The site and size of the home have yet to be determined.

A hospital bulletin reported the quintuplets were "still gaining their food well" and the formula has been increased beyond the household of ten. Artificial milk formula and water is being received every two hours.

The boy, James Andrew, remained the most active of the infants.

"He lets you know he's a boy," one nurse reported.

Also reported highly active and healthy were the four girls — Sharon, Sandra, Mary Madalene, Mary Catherine and Mary Ann.

The babies haven't yet been weighed or measured but unofficial estimates place their weight at between three and four pounds and their length at about 17 inches.

Oliva Dionne Says Article Of Homelife Revelations By Quints "Full of Lies"

CALLANDER, Ont. (CP) — Oliva Dionne, injured and shocked over homelife revelations by his famous quintuplet daughters in the latest issue of McCall's magazine, says the story is full of lies.

"There are two sides to every story," Mr. Dionne said in an interview early today in the rambling farm house here where the quintuplets lived, and Mrs. Dionne still have ours.

"We have no intention of getting into a big controversy over this, except to say the magazine article is full of untruths."

In their combined life story told to writer James Bough, the surviving four sisters tell of hardships, misery and persecution by their parents and brothers and sisters after they were transferred to the family's care at the age of seven.

The quints spent the earlier part of their lives in an Ontario government - run nursery as wards of the government to prevent exploitation.

SADDENS FATHER

Mr. Dionne said he was "sad and disappointed" over the article and said: "I cannot understand why the girls, who will be 30 next May 28 and Mrs. Dionne bringing us into the world.

Oliva Dionne said: "Our conscience is clear, Mrs. Dionne and I are proud to have been the best parents in the world and we undoubtedly made many sacrifices but we tried our best under very trying circumstances.

"The quints claim to remember everything from the day they were born, which is quite a feat for anybody.

FEEL BADLY

"We feel badly about this article but because Mrs. Dionne is ill and hospitalized at the home is a sacred thing, and should not be dragged out into the public. We do not intend to comment further."

Mr. and Mrs. Dionne and another of their children, Marie Therese, returned Wednesday night from a visit to another daughter, Mrs. Rolland Leroux of Ste. Agathe.

The father said he knew the surviving quintuplets were doing well and in fact spring but had no idea of the contents. He said he believed the girls were well coazed into doing the article by some outside influence and he hoped the sisters, when they were responsible for it.

He indicated there is little communication between the family and the quintuplets.

"I think the husbands handle everything," he said. "I don't think they are allowed to write us a letter. All we get is cards."

Mr. Dionne celebrated their 38th wedding anniversary last Sunday and they had "beautiful gifts from the girls asking for news," he said.

SICKENS HIM

In North Bay, Victor Dionne, 25-year-old brother of the quintuplets, said Wednesday the girls' revelation of hard work, misery and sadness at the family home at Callander is "rather sickening."

"Their charges aren't all correct although they seem to think so," he said.

Victor, a mechanic at a North Bay radio station, said: "There was certainly no friction between me and my sisters.

"It is unfortunate and surprising that something like this had to come up. Father's reaction was violent."

TRUE, TRUE, TRUE

Marie Dionne, one of the four surviving quintuplets and now Mrs. Florian Houle, says the story of the quints' unhappy upbringing is "true, true, true."

She made the comment in a telephone interview with the Toronto Telegram from her home in a suburb of Montreal and her statement was acted by the husband of Annette, Gerard Houle, 24, of Drummondville, who said the magazine article is "correct in every detail."

The Telegram quotes Mr. Allard, a finances company manager and spokesman for the quints, as saying they were not blaming anybody, but just "trying to set the record straight."

He said it is: "There's not more they could have said about their sad childhood but they felt it should be told."

Mr. Allard admitted a substantial sum was paid the quints for their story and entered into their decision to tell it.

"But mostly they did it to get it out in the open. Sometimes when you confess things you feel better."

STRESSES PROBLEMS

Mr. Allard said their story brings out the problems of multiple births.

"You wouldn't know my wife now. She's not depressed. Before, everything was bottled up. What if I'd known? Mr. Dionne I wouldn't have done any better. He did his best."

Three of the quints now are married — Mrs. Germain (Annette) Allard of St. Bruno, Que., near Montreal; Mrs. Philippe (Cecile) Langlois of Quebec City, and Mrs. Florian (Marie) Houle of Alumitic, a Montreal suburb—and the fourth, Yvonne, is at Sacred Heart Roman Catholic Convent in Moncton, N.B.

The fifth child, Emilie, died in 1954 after suffering an epileptic attack.

CRITICIZE FATHER

In the article, the four remaining quintuplets say their father fought—and won—a long legal battle to regain sole custody of the girls because he wanted the quintuplets' funds under his exclusive control.

Discussing their home, so big a target for tourists after spending their first seven years in a Canadian government nursery at Callander, they said:

"It was the saddest home we ever knew."

FOR COMPROMISE?

SALZBURG, Austria (AP)—Executives of 32 international airlines are reported heading toward a compromise on a general decrease of transatlantic passenger fares. The new fares, to become effective next spring, are not expected to be as low as proposed in a U.S. government-backed plan which aimed at a 40-per-cent cut for tourist class passengers.

CAMPBELLFORD

Record Number Of Members In C. of C.

CAMPBELLFORD — Membership in the Campbellford Chamber of Commerce has reached an all-time high of 120 members, membership chairman George Fox reported here last week. In addition to the increase, up 18 from last year, revenue from fees has climbed tripled. The fees, which are still lower than those charged by a number of other chamber of similar size, were raised last year to allow the chamber to carry out projects which would otherwise have been shelved because of lack of funds.

The executive decided to renew its advertisement in The Outdoorsman magazine to promote district resorts and tourist attractions.

A total of 76 individuals and 26 firms are enrolled in the chamber's health insurance plan, and the secretary told the executive that 37 claims had been paid during the summer.

The tourist committee reported a successful year, at the information booth on the Grand Road, with resort operators reporting increased business coming to them from the booth, although the actual number of enquiries were slightly down from last year, partly due to a change in location.

The committee commended the work of the girls who had operated the booth. They have each been given a token payment of $40 for their part time effort. A letter will be written to each girl commending her for her services and asking for suggestions on how the booth could be improved for next year. The girls are Donna Dunbar, Shirley Roy, Marilyn Lee, Patsy Jaffray and Maureen O'Sullivan.

COTTAGE PROVIDED

The booth, in the form of a display cottage, was provided free of charge by the chamber by the A.C. Cleaner and seed Limited Company and was located on the property on the Grand Rd.

The executive was hopeful that the Santa Claus Parade could be conducted again this year, with local service clubs appointing representatives to a central committee to handle the planning. Stanley H. Tanner, a member of the executive, said he would be willing to arrange a meeting to appoint a chairman, and suggested the service clubs be notified through the chamber to appoint representatives to the committee. The chamber appointed D. R. Bennett and William Pope as chamber representatives, along with M. Tanner.

President Robert R. Bennett said he had looked into the possibility of the chamber sponsoring a retail sales training course, but the response was slight at local stores. He was asked to study the matter further and report his findings at a future meeting.

Arm Severed Above Elbow By Machine

CAMPBELLFORD — Harry Stephens of R.R. 3 Campbellford, was taken to hospital here on Saturday after an accident at a corn cutting machine which severed his right arm.

Mr. Stephens, who is about 60, was working on the farm, five miles south-east of Campbellford, with his cousin, Alex Stephens of a nearby farm and his son Keith. He apparently fed his hand and fell into the machine. His cousin, who saw him fall forward into the machine, immediately shut it off but the machine continued its cutting action for a few seconds, severing the arm above the elbow.

He was taken to Campbellford Memorial Hospital by relative who was visiting the Arthur Phillips of Trenton, a relative who was visiting the Stephens farm.

Mr. Stephens also received cuts to the face and shoulders. Hospital officials say he is in satisfactory condition.

Pearson told reporters it would be "preposterous" if the UN should collapse for a "bagatelle" of a few million dollars.

There was a "real danger" the UN's peacekeeping operation in The Congo might be prematurely ended by lack of funds.

Pearson said he would like to see the Congo operation continued as long as That though it was needed. Canada would go on contributing to the Congo force in men and money as long as required. But the UN might there should be a collective responsibility.

Pearson said the real test of a cold war thaw would be in deeds not actions, not UN speeches.

may be running out" for the UN. There were signs of decline and deterioration which could threaten its future use, in very sinister ways."

But, fortunately, there also were signs of improvement in relations between the "super powers" which gave the UN a new opportunity.

"There is a little more benevolence, a little less bitterness," he said.

Pearson said a UN mission may be needed again in colonial situations such as The Congo.

"Canada does not share the doubts which have been raised about the nature and purpose of this UN action. We felt that intervention in The Congo was a response which this organization had to make; a duty which it could not shirk.

"We believe that this kind of peace-keeping activity now has moved beyond the stage of first experiment, that has become a practical necessity in the conduct of international affairs and should be provided for as such. 'SEK BETTER WAYS'

"A main task of our organization, therefore, should be to strengthen and improve its capacity in this field; learning from the failures and successes of the past and seeking more effective ways to perform this function in the future. . . .

"There should be the advance interpretation, planning and preparation without which no national government would think of acting."

UN Secretary - General U Thant had recently asked member states to earmark units for UN service at short notice.

"We now heartily support this appeal by putting into effect these arrangements, which are increasingly becoming necessary.

"These would include a compact planning team of military experts which would provide the advice and assistance which the secretary - general should have for organizing emergency peacekeeping operations."

CRITICIZES THE COUNCIL

Pearson said the Security Council's record in recent years has been one of "diminishing returns."

"If the enlarged Security Council were given a properly balanced composition which sufficient delegations as regards voting rights, it could conceivably become the main arena for political decision on questions which require urgent action."

Pearson also said it is possible to envisage a stage in the UN's evolution when regional assemblies may be used to deal with regional problems in search of local solutions or in the preparation for broader treatment at the UN.

The 18th assembly should do all it could to lay foundations for the success of the UN trade and development conference next year.

Trade barriers must be lowered. Measures might be devised to improve international currency arrangements and lessen the exposure of so many countries to balance-of - payments troubles.

The statements were contained in a text of the speech issued by the press before delivery.

asked Governor George Romney to investigate.

The police Negroes and one white student arrested were released to their parents. They were charged with disorderly conduct and ordered to appear in juvenile court.

Parkside High School opened for the first time Sept. 4. Its enrolment of 1,500 students was about evenly divided between whites and Negroes, officials said.

Police said an incident at the school Wednesday morning, coupled with two disturbances last Friday night, may have caused the trouble. A 17-year-old white youth said a group of Negroes beat him up in the hallway in the morning. He was expelled with three Negroes.

Parry Leaders on the Hustings

Liberal Leader Suggests Parts Of Files Gone

By CARL MOLLINS

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer said Wednesday he fears the Progressive Conservative administration may be tampering with confidential government files on the control of social clubs by gamblers.

He told a press conference inspectorial investigation into the provincial secretary's office would reveal corruption. The Liberal leader rejected a suggestion by Premier John Roberts that Provincial Secretary John Yaremko do the investigating.

Mr. Wintermeyer suggested that parts of files on clubs chartered by the secretary's office have been removed. He repeated his demand for Conservative permission to station Liberal watchdogs in the file room pending a thorough investigation.

"I am concerned that the files may not be complete," he said.

At the time he suggested a guarantee against further tampering exists in a set of duplicate files held by Metropolitan Toronto police "in the event that certain items should happen to disappear from the provincial secretary's files."

CAN'T SAY NAME

Referring to his earlier charge that a person in the provincial secretary's office is a friend of gamblers, Mr. Wintermeyer said he could not reveal the person's name because the Liberal party signed an assurance that contents of confidential files would not be disclosed outside the royal commission investigation into crime conducted last year by Mr. Justice Wilfred Roach.

The assurance was signed as a condition of getting access to the files during the royal commission, but Mr. Wintermeyer has challenged Mr. Yaremko to waive the agreement so the gambler's friend—referred to at the press conference as Mr. X—could be named publicly.

Questioned on why the evidence against Mr. X was not brought out at the Roach investigation, Mr. Wintermeyer said his party then was concerned specifically with bringing out facts from the files showing that gambling syndicates were trafficking in social club charters.

He said the Liberals expected revelation of information in evidence would lead to reform of the provincial secretary's office — presumably including the removal of Mr. X—"but this was not forthcoming."

Questioned on questions about Mr. X, the Liberal leader said he was not sure whether the civil servant was mentioned by name before the Roach commission. He said: "Roberts might not know who Mr. X is, but Yaremko would know."

He said he would agree to an investigation of the issue by Mr. Roberts personally—and could supply a list of about 100 files that would clearly identify Mr. X as a friend of gamblers—but such an examination "would be physically impossible before Sept. 25," date of the provincial election.

Mr. Wintermeyer met the press following a private luncheon with Toronto-area Liberal candidates. He and Federal Trade Minister Sharp gave the candidates pep talks.

The Liberal leader addressed his first formal election meeting in Metropolitan Toronto during the afternoon at suburban Weston, where about 30 supporters heard him applaud the efforts of retired prestroom foreman Bert Robinson to unseat New Democratic Party Chief Donald MacDonald in York South.

Mr. Wintermeyer travelled by commuter train to Hamilton—seat - hopping in shake hands with voters—and then went by bus to Brantford for an evening rally.

Time for Govt. To Do Something About Economy - - Macdonald

By DAVID DAVIDSON

HAMILTON (CP)—The Canadian economy has stood still for the last 10 years and now it's time for government to do something about it, NDP Provincial Leader Donald MacDonald said here Wednesday night.

"We've had a sluggish, virtually static economy in this country for the last 10 years," he told an election rally for the five Hamilton - area provincial ridings. Business has been given the opportunity to jack up the economy but "now it's time for government to start taking a little action of its own."

Mr. MacDonald was enthusiastically received by about 300 people—the largest number of his campaign—at the evening rally.

The NDP leader, who spent the day here on a grassroots tour through Hamilton Wentworth, Hamilton Centre, Hamilton East, Wentworth East and Wentworth ridings, said not enough was being done to stimulate economic expansion in Ontario.

He said that in Western Europe "they're doing things with government planning and investment that have helped put Western Europe in the forefront of the wealthy nations of the world."

HAVE TO MOVE

"We in Ontario simply cannot afford not to start moving in the direction of major public investment," Mr. MacDonald said.

He described "pie-in-the-sky" as "one of the most meaningless cliches" in politics and said that "self-styled political pundits" like to give the impression there is some mystery about paying for government programs.

There is some difficulty, he said, to arrive at exact figures on the cost of a specific program but no party has been more specific in the election campaign than the New Democrats in spelling out what it will cost to put their proposals into effect.

Mr. MacDonald, as an example, said the NDP had given specific figures about its proposed medical care program and challenged the other parties to do the same.

But at a press conference earlier in the day, Mr. MacDonald admitted he did not know what it would cost to provide partial coverage for drugs in the province under a proposed stop-gap plan.

He said Tuesday night that "all pensioners should be provided with full prescription drug coverage without further delay" and that an NDP government "would ensure the present hospital drug coverage after a patient leaves the hospital for as long as the doctor feels that it is necessary."

HELP THOSE IN NEED

Pensioners who have a chronic need for drugs would also be included in the interim plan.

The NDP leader said Wednesday night that "it takes money to make money" applies equally to the economy as a whole as it does to an individual business.

Ontario is never going to really move unless it has money to get started on projects. Projects like schools, hospitals, recreation centres, municipal development, universities, slum clearances, highways and resource development."

If new projects were started a booming economy "such as we haven't had in Ontario or Canada for many years" would result.

"A government with some plans and a little drive can literally change the face of the economy."

Mr. MacDonald said that the results show "conclusively that business alone" can't stimulate the economy.

Robarts Uses Rough Language On Opposition

By JOHN LeBLANC

SUDBURY (CP) — Premier Roberts accused Liberal Leader Wintermeyer Wednesday night of following a "steady course of deliberate and calculated falsehood" in the Ontario general election campaign.

The premier said Mr. Wintermeyer started the campaign with falsehoods about the government's stand on old age pensions and has continued unrestrainingly in "following the wild course charted for him by a group of impecunate and vindictive advisers."

In an address to 250 people in Liberal-held Sudbury riding, Mr. Roberts also blamed Mr. Wintermeyer's "desperate hunger to attain office" for his attack on the royal commission crime report of Mr. Justice W. D. Roach as a gigantic hoax during the campaign, after he had welcomed it last March as a vindication of his own charges.

"Just how it could be at once a falsification and a hoax presents no problem to Mr. Wintermeyer's mixed - up mind," said the premier, who used his roughest language of the campaign to date against the opposition leader.

He said Mr. Wintermeyer had injected the pension issue into the campaign for the Sept. 25 election at a time when negotiations had begun with Ontario and federal governments on the matter were proceeding smoothly.

"Probably if I had shouted that an election we'd have gone on and worked this out," he said, "Mr. Wintermeyer's engagement to mesh Ontario's new legislation with the proposed federal scheme.

HAS NO WORRIES

"I have no worries about our ability to do this. I am quite sure that after the election is over I can sit down with Prime Minister Pearson and we'll come up with a good scheme—good for Ontario and for the rest of Canada."

Mr. Roberts repeated previous statements that he agrees entirely with the principles of national pension schemes and that his government will have Ontario's legislation amended to make it fit into the national one.

Much of his address in this home of the, new Laurentian University was devoted to an explanation of the government's foundation tax plan for assisting local authorities with education costs, and said the end result of this five-year program will be to provide equality of educational opportunity for all of Ontario's young people.

He spoke in support of Basil Scully, a Sudbury broadcaster trying to dislodge Liberal Elmer Sopha, legislature member since 1.959. Mr. Scully had an unsuccessful run in 1958—when he lived in Capreol—against Prime Minister Pearson, then opposition leader, for the Algoma East seat in the Commons.

After the meeting, Mr. Roberts flew to Kingston where he will deliver a similar address today and then fly to Oshawa for campaigning in that area. During the day Wednesday he stumped through the huge Nickel Belt constituency and promised action on revision of the provincial government's grants to mining communities.

WENT 70 MILES

In a 70-mile swing through a half dozen communities in the mining and farming riding that encircles this city, he said that the whole grants formula now is being revised and the government will look at ways in its officials come up with the proposed revision.

"We are not pushing it under the rug," he said after being told of impatience among municipal officials who hopefully receive the grants in lieu of certain forms of municipal taxation from which mining companies are exempted.

NO DECISION SOON

British government officials stressed that the experts' report contained no decision on British policy concerning the project, and added none was imminent.

The favored tunnel proposal envisages a 32-mile railway link with 25 miles of tunnel under the sea.

The rival proposition was for a bridge over the 21-mile channel for use by both cars and trains.

Thus a dream of Napoleon in 1802 during an interlude in the Napoleonic Wars has come much nearer to reality.

Most of the opposition coming from the British side has been on military grounds.

But the tunnel proposal now has firm backing among Britons and is likely to boost the shares of the Channel Tunnel Company, formed in 1881.

The latest tunnel proposal envisages a 32-mile link starting at Dover—main British port for the choppy sea crossing—and Sangatte on the French side.

There would be two separate tunnels, each containing a single railway track and capable of handling car-ferry trains at intervals varying from five to 20 minutes.

Vehicles would be driven on and off flat - decked railroad cars at the two terminals.

BRIDGE COST HIGH

Estimated cost of the underwater link is about £140,000,000 ($420,000,000) and it would take about six years to complete.

The bridge plan would probably cost about £300,000,000.

Robarts rolled through a segment of Ontario's Golden Nickel Belt in folksy style during the day, mostly glad-handing around the main streets and restaurants, but he changed pace once to uncork a haymaker at Liberal Leader Wintermeyer.

Talking to 75 persons at a buffet lunch in Val Caron just north of here, he accused the opposition chief of "degrading and debasing" the public life of the province by an attack on Provincial Secretary Yaremko Monday night at Kirkland Lake.

Mr. Wintermeyer had said there was "something rather horrible and disgusting" about the way the minister treated Deputy Secretary R. J. Cudney, a key witness in the Ontario royal commission crime inquiry whose unexpected resignation Monday had become a campaign issue.

Mr. Roberts described the Wintermeyer statement as a "new low."

Ladies Aux. ANAF Plans Future Events

Last Monday evening the ANAF Ladies' Auxiliary No 49 held their regular monthly meeting at ANAF hall, Front Street.

The 1st Vice President, G. Fitzgerald presided over the meeting. One new member was initiated and two members were reinstated. All were welcomed into the Auxiliary.

Regular business was dealt with and the committees made their reports.

Sports chairman, E. Buckley, announced that sports season for darts and cribbage starts September 23rd.

Members are asked to get their names in for bus reservations for the annual Sports Day in Toronto, 48 vs ANAF on October 5th.

Decoration Day parade will be on Sunday, September 22nd. All members urged to attend.

Ontario Provincial Command meeting is to be held at Lakeview of Oshawa on September 28th.

A delegate was chosen and several members are planning to attend.

Women's Hospital Aux. Hears Plans of Future Projects

Reports of plans and projects for the coming season were enthusiastically received by a large gathering of members and guests at the first autumn meeting of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary, held in Education Hall on Tuesday afternoon.

All of the Auxiliary's permanent projects — the Opportunity Shop, the Coffee Cart, the Sandwich Cupboard, the puppet group, and the In-Hospital Volunteer Services — are again in full operation, ready to serve the hospital and the community. New volunteers for all these groups would be welcomed by the organization.

Of particular interest was the report on the forthcoming Fashion Fiesta given by the convenor, Mrs. Ben E. Burley. The Fiesta, an annual event, assumes special importance this year, as the Auxiliary is celebrating its 25th anniversary.

The first president, Mrs. George H. Stobie, is returning to Belleville to act as commentator for this event which is entitled "An Affair to Remember". A much-anticipated feature of the entertainment will be the vocal duets of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Reid. Mrs. James Forrester, the leading model and a former president, will appear in three costumes worn in fashion shows of earlier years, a handsome diamond-set wrist watch, valued at $100, has been purchased and will go to the lucky draw ticket holder at the Fashion Fiesta.

SUPERINTENDENT INTRODUCED

A happy item on the afternoon's agenda was the introduction by the president, Mrs. F. A. Bedore, of Mr. Stanley Johnston, newly appointed superintendent of Belleville General Hospital. Addressing the meeting briefly, Johnston suggested that the Auxiliary could be an effective "humanizing force" in the hospital. By means of various activities, members can bring the outside world to hospital patients. Conversely, Auxiliary members can build good public relations through the community.

It was announced that the new laundry folder, which is being purchased by the Auxiliary at a cost of approximately $13,000 has been installed and is proving most effective.

FILM SHOWN

A film entitled "Stand by for Life" was shown as the program for the meeting. This film issued by the Ontario Hospital Association, was produced in the Cheshire General and Children's Hospital, Hamilton, Ont. By following the case history of an accident victim during his stay in hospital, the film showed in action the great number of skilled personnel in a score of departments from medical records to the Board of Trustees — who are required to effect the recovery of each patient. The film projector was operated by Miss Nix, a member of the nursing staff.

Tea was served at the close of the meeting by Mrs. R. Safe, Mrs. S. Evans, Mrs. D. Johns and Mrs. C. Campbell

Fears Neighbors' Influence

By DORIS CLARK

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — Could you help me out? I fear that my children's Christian education is compromised because of a very close neighbor.

The house next door seems to be packed up with a sort of barbarian tribe — husband and wife and in-laws — living together without mutual esteem and manners, for the sake of sharing expenses.

Their behavior reveals to me that they grew up in life like dandelions, without any discipline, manners or decent language. They swear, and generally abuse each other. Their theme of conversation is worse than vulgar and limited to personalities.

My children are constantly reporting to me what they have heard. I keep myself aloof, being civil, though. — AN ANXIOUS MOTHER.

DEAR ANXIOUS — It's a free country, even for people who pull each other apart, verbally! They hurt themselves more than anyone else.

As long as you carry the torch, other people's feuds are only mildly interesting to your youngsters.

DEAR DORIS — I am studying Canadian recipes. I'd like a complete collection of special Canadian dishes and everyday foods eaten by the Canadian people.

I'd like recipes for using Canadian dairy products, fish, poultry, beef, pork, vegetables, fruit, maple syrup, wild life, etc. I'd also like to collect authentic Canadian dishes, e.g.: French Canadian pea soup and special Indian, Eskimo dishes and early recipes that come from the first settlers.

Could you give me some addresses to write to? — COLLECTOR OF RECIPES.

DEAR COLLECTOR — I'd suggest three sources:

1. Your own public library.

2. Consumer's Branch, Canadian Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, Canada.

3. Readers of this column. Ladies (and gents) how about it?

Speaker Gives Talk on Charm To B. P. Women

The September dinner meeting of the Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club was held at the Belmont Restaurant club rooms on Monday, September 16. President Florence Fitzgerald conducted the meeting and welcomed the members and their guests.

Mrs. Lorraine Reid introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. May Burgess, who spoke to the club about charm, style and fashion. Mrs. Burgess said that through correcting poor posture, figure control and complexion and hair care along with the knowledge of how to properly acquire a useful basic wardrobe a woman could experience a complete remake of herself. She demonstrated how to improve a wardrobe with merchandise donated by local merchants. Mrs. Burgess, who has attended the Dorothy Fleming modelling school in Toronto and the John Robert Powers School in New York City has had a great deal of experience in this line and conducted classes at the YMCA in Belleville as well as group classes in her studio.

Mrs. Marjory McCaw expressed the club's appreciation to the speaker and presented her with a gift.

The business session followed. Mrs. Arlene Ashbury, treasurer, reported a balance of $394.29 in the bank. Corresponding secretary, Mrs. Coimbe Holt read a letter of invitation from the Trenton Club regarding their 10th anniversary dinner to be held October 23 and also a letter of resignation from Miss Rose Doherty, which was accepted with regret. Miss Ruth McMullen, program, stated that money and unsold tickets for Margaret Ashdown Night be turned in at the end of the week. She also asked permission to move the charter, gavel and lectern to the Masonic Temple for that night and reported that the Melrose Church group would be catering.

Mrs. Kathleen Lambert was asked to pick a committee to make plans for Business Women's Week which will take place from October 20-26. She was asked to have the proclamation signed by the Mayor and inserted in the newspaper. Mrs. Dorothy Brown showed samples of the posters and car stickers with this year's theme "Reach Out and Grow" and asked that permission be given Mrs. Lambert to purchase the stickers and cards. Miss Hilda Collier, legislation, read a letter from Ina Lecroix regarding the sub-committee on Jury Service for Women.

Women's Institutes

6TH SIDNEY W.I.

6TH SIDNEY—The millinery course, sponsored by the Unionville Women's Institute and conducted by the leader Mrs. Mulligan of the Home Economics Branch of the Department of Agriculture, Toronto has just been completed. The class met in Scott's United Church hall for three days. There were eighteen hats completed.

Trims are interesting this year, such as sequel metallic braids, beaded bands, and satin with metallic thread.

The materials are interesting too. Beaver cloth is in great demand in a wide variety of colors, black, navy, beige, brown, gold, turquoise, etc. This material can be combed, brushed and dried down to look like satin. Then there was beaver-sham which looked like plush, velvets and wool, metallic cloth and feathers.

Many different types and shapes were used. A soft blue beaver-sham in its plush-like finish, trimmed with gold and silver metallic to form an alluring draped turban.

A pert pill box made of gray chinchilla, rabbit with red satin binding was topped with a pompom of the same fur. Another pill box was made in vivid orange angora.

Four very smart bowler type hats were made, two with fold ed satin trim, and one with beaded bands.

An attractive hat was made from wool lace in lipstick red draped with a scarf taken from the Lawrence of Arabia trend.

There was a high cone in vivid red-and-black printed velvet draped in the form of a rose on top. This was a high class piece.

Several cloches were made from a black silk Lyons velvet. This is a packable hat as well as a smart dress hat.

A smart number was made by covering the bubble or turban shape with metallic in grey with shades of purple and rose and trimmed with shaded purple hackle feathers.

Instruction was given on how to make hat forms out of a new material called sparic, similar in some ways to buckram.

Mrs. Mulligan made her course very interesting and exciting that some of the ladies plan to buy the block and the necessary materials and create their own hats.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS — BY PATRICIA LEWIS

LATE - EVENING PARTIESARE RELAXING

After informal afternoon swim parties and cook-outs during the summer months, it's a refreshing change to slip into a resulting party dress and start entertaining at a more formal hour.

During vacation, children most often were included in the hot-dog-and-hamburger fiestas. But now that they're back to school and keeping more respectable hours, parents once more can call the evening their own — and invite friends in to enjoy the new-found tranquility.

Entertaining after nine—with perhaps, a late supper included — makes sense in households where children more or less rule the roost. It gives the hostess a chance to bed down the youngsters, tidy up the kitchen, put on a party dress and face, and still has time to put the finishing touches on her arrangements.

It's also considerate for the host, as well as his fellow commuting guests. Instead of wading into a party as soon as he gets off the train, he has a few hours to devote to the garden, story-time and a refreshing shower before guests put in an appearance.

Very often, the hostess has a plan for the evening. It might be cards, listening to new records, or looking at a movie of a vacation trip. Friends of ours, just made an occasion out of the installation of a Franklin stove in the den and invited a crowd in to toast its arrival and enjoy a midnight supper while basking in lit warmth.

RELAXED ATMOSPHERE

Camaraderie, alone, is actually enough of a reason for a party, and good conversation thrives in a relaxed evening atmosphere. As far as details of formality are concerned, invitations may be extended quite casually — by phone, or if there's a crowd, by printed card. However, there are a few points that should be noted quite clearly.

Most important: guests should be told if supper is to be served. Otherwise they might have a full dinner before arriving. If it's a bridge party, naturally the hostess should mention it when she issues the invitations, so guests will know they're expected to arrive on time to complete table. Guests should be invited at least a week in advance, leaving time to acquire baby sitters; if that's a problem.

Plans for such a party need not be elaborate, and actually can be completed the day before. A cold buffet of meats and salads can be prepared in advance and kept on ice till party time. Or the buffet could be a one-dish make-ahead casserole — like shrimps in rice, a hearty beef stew cooked in wine or even a pungent chili. Add a salad, hot breads, cake and coffee, and what could be more satisfying?

To keep clean-up to a minimum, paper plates and cups, in a pretty pattern treated to resist heat, are appropriate for such informal service. With candles on the table and gleaming casseroles and other serving dishes handsomely arranged, the effect can still be warm and luxurious in contrast to the much-less formal cook-outs of just a short time ago.

YEARS TO MAKE

In 1790 Denmark's Prince Frederick, later king, ordered a 2,600 - piece dinner service which took 13 years to finish.

Friends Honor Couple on 25th Anniversary

TWEED — Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Hall of Oshawa, were honored recently at the summer cottage of Mr. and Mrs. Don Chisholm, when 60 friends and relatives joined with them to celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary.

The cottage was decorated with baskets of cut flowers, streamers and Japanese lanterns and the tea table was centred by a decorated anniversary cake.

The evening was spent in listening to music and playing cards.

Mr. Clayton Hall, brother of the "bride" acted as master of ceremonies for the evening.

Gifts included a set of china, walnut coffee table, sunburst wall clock, T.V. snack trays, and various china, crystal and hammered aluminum pieces.

A buffet supper was enjoyed, bringing to a close a most enjoyable evening.

Out of town guests present were from Galt, Toronto, Whitby, Oshawa, Belleville and Lonsdale.

Mr. and Mrs. Hall have one son, four daughters and a week-old grandson.

Mother's Helper

WHEN YOU BUY shorts or trousers for your busy young one, look for the kinds that have extra room in the rear seam. Then, if he should split that seam, don't merely sew it up in the same spot. Let it out as much as you can, then stitch it firmly and he'll have the additional room he needs for the most active play.

New Fashions Are Aimed At Making Women Look Sophisticated, Comfortable

By PATRICIA RUSAK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The new fashions are aimed at making Canadian women look sophisticated and comfortable for fall and winter.

Such words as "sportive," "relaxed" and "casually elegant" are employed by department store buyers questioned in a Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press.

All are talking about the shift dress which was the hit of the spring and summer fashions and now has been adapted for the fall and winter.

Also in the picture are tweed suits, A-line skirts and jumpers, coats with fuller silhouettes, and lower-heeled shoes.

The biggest change is in evening wear, marked by a return to old-fashioned formality. Lillian Brogan, Montreal fashion consultant, says evening clothes will have a "new refinement" and will be reminiscent of styles in paintings by Gainsborough and Watteau.

The long slim lines of the Empire look will dominate formal evening gowns and coats, most of which will be floor-length. Some furs for evening wear will also be long.

SHIFTS WITH SHAPE

For evenings at home, simply gathered or pleated floor-length hostess skirts in mohair and heavy wool tweeds are expected to be popular.

Shifts of luxurious wool fabrics will have a little more shape than their summer predecessors. Many will have rolled or shirt collars and most will have long sleeves.

The general situation is reflected in the comment of Regina buyers who anticipate the shift will be their biggest-selling item because it is the mainstay of the average working girl's wardrobe.

In suits, a variation of the ever-popular knit is the combination of knit fabric with suede, leather and textured wools to achieve a "layered look" of fabric upon fabric.

Many suits will have longer, shapely jackets and long set-in sleeves. The trims, popular on coats for the last two or three seasons, will be transferred to suits.

The costume look of a two-piece suit and matching coat is being featured by stores in Winnipeg and Montreal while a sweater-suit combination is expected to be popular in Edmonton.

FURS VARIED

In addition to a less-clinging silhouette, coats will have bulkier shoulders and muffing collars and scarves. Fur trim is again being emphasized.

Many coats will be of imitation fur fabrics simulating the leopard, zebra, unborn calf and other skins being used by designers of international high fashion.

In just about every major city there will be a few retailers again trying to interest women in the flamboyant caped coat tried with little success last year.

Boots are the biggest story in footwear. Some just cover the ankles; others reach to below the knee; all come in many colors and textures of leather and fur, real or imitation. There will even be special kinds of luxurious fabrics — brocades and lames — for formal evening wear.

For sportswear, the ski look of tight stretch pants with a loose bulky sweater has been transferred from the slopes to city streets.

And to give daytime clothes a sporty (or "sportive," as the buyers say) look, heavy textured stockings in many patterns are being featured in Toronto and Montreal.

With the needle trades concentrated in a few cities, there is a certain uniformity of fashions from coast to coast. But there are some regional preferences.

Vancouver — Feminine fur hats rather than the bowlers, derbies and fedoras expected to be popular in the East.

Edmonton — Hemlines not dropping as much as in many cities where they now just cover the knee.

Regina — Sweater and double knit ensembles.

Winnipeg — Coats and suits trimmed with long-haired furs, especially fox, bush wolf.

Toronto — Shirt, blouse and vest ensembles for the "layered" or "sportive" look.

Montreal—Heavy tweed suits with hip-length jackets for the longer look, generally associated with aristocratic English countrywomen.

Saint John, N.B.—Two-piece suits of double knit in a variety of patterns and color combinations.

Halifax—Dresses with matching jackets, especially for sportswear.

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

It made the front pages of most newspapers that day, though it was clearly less than world-shaking news. It was funny; but even more, it was the kind of mistake that most of us could have made.

With firm intentions of going to Chicago this man had boarded the bus. Then, after a long and arduous journey, he found himself back in Chicago but in Newark. He had caught the wrong bus.

Does this not really happen to most of us?

Most people yearn for good things in life: honor and happiness for children, decent family experiences, upright homes, respect from neighbors and friends, and a respectable old age. And yet, sometimes, despite years and arduous journeys through life, some of us find ourselves elsewhere.

ON THE CROSSROADS

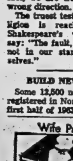
Indeed, that man who started out for Chicago and actually arrived in Newark did not, at first, believe that such confusion could have overcome him. Alighting from the bus he inquired as to the whereabouts of Lakeshore Drive. He was told that there was no such street. He became quite indignant. Of course there was a Lakeshore Drive in Chicago! Who didn't know that? It took quite some time, but before long, he realized that it was he — and not the others — who had made the mistake.

When we look at the starry-eyed youngsters we know, who stand on the threshold of marriage filled with the glittering dreams of happiness we are often tempted to ask: Are you on the right bus? Looking at the lives of some people we know we could say that they think that they are going to Chicago but they are really on their way to Newark. They may be full of the right plans and sure of their destination. There is only one small problem: they won't get there because they are traveling in the wrong direction! Have indeed for someone to get to Chicago who is travelling in the direction of Newark. We may have all the necessary and noble intentions but the way we actually travel determines our destination.

Communism and Democracy both speak glowingly of the very same hopes and ambitions; use the same words: peace, plenty, freedom and opposite unity. Goals, of course, do not determine the true worth of the achievement. Both Germany and up in different directions because they are actually traveling opposite roads.

Philosophy and religion, too, are involved in similar goals and seem to share the same noble hopes. But a philosopher is principally concerned with the outline and the system; he cares little of the personal element, the human quality of those who live within the system. Not so the true religionist. If he is sincerely a religious man, it matters a great deal to him which road he travels. He is not only interested in getting somewhere; he must also be mindful of the road he chooses to travel. It is not enough to want to get to Chicago; one has got to catch the right bus.

TRUEST TEST



This is the high function of religion. It is interested in our day-to-day acts — the little acts as well as the great ones. What is more: Religion is concerned with personal integrity and personal error, and challenges us to muster the courage to get off the wrong bus and catch the right one.

No amount of self-pleading or futile rationalization can move Lakeshore Drive from Chicago to Newark. It is not enough to say where we are going and then to criticize others when we fail to arrive. We have to be willing to move ourselves onto the right road — and not claim that everytime the road refuses to bend inward to our word. It is too neat and easy a way out to argue against our fate when in fact, we are travelling in the wrong direction.

The truest test of a man's religion is revealed, when as Shakespeare's words he can say: "The fault, dear Brutus, is not in our stars, but in ourselves."

U.C.W. Hear Report of Conference

Tabernacle United Church Women began their autumn activities with a dessert party. Mrs. William Hume of Castleton, the program convener for U.C.W. Conference was the guest speaker. She attended the Whitby School for U.C.W. in August and spent a delightful senatre report. She also introduced the Mission Study — Jan Christian Smuts, Statesman in South Asia — and told of the missionaries on furlough who attended the school. Among them from India is Canada on a scholarship is taking her second year in Arts at Queen's University. When she obtains her Master degree she will return to the Women's Christian hospital in Vellore, India.

Miss Ada Randall, Reg. N., who has given 35 years of Christian service in Korea at Severance Hospital, had a wealth of information for the School.

Other leaders from the Board of Women of the United Church of Canada included Mrs. Lorne White, Christian Education secretary, Mrs. C. S. Patterson, Toronto, who spoke on the theme "A Man Knows Last Way". Mrs. J. Y. McKinnon, Toronto, conducted the Bible Study for the week. Miss Dorothy Young, executive secretary of the Board of Women, presented the program material.

Mrs. Garnet May of Tabernacle U.C.W. introduced Mrs. Hume and she was thanked by Mrs. John Bahlak.

The worship period was conducted by Mrs. W. J. Dougherty and she was assisted by Mrs. J. A. Charlton, Mrs. W. D Embury, Mrs. Earl Grills and Mrs. Ray Lockyer.

The president, Mrs. Jack Aitchison, closed the meeting with prayer and the aphorism "The end of worship — The beginning of service".

Remembered Meat Pie

by Mary Moore

Do you remember your mother or grandmother making a meat pie? — a double-crust meat pie that was baked in a regular pie plate — not a deep baking dish?

My sisters think I cannot decide whether this is a farmer-type pie from my mother's side of the family or of English-type pie from my Buckingham-shire father's side. I have a notion that it had French roots though, for I can recall Helen Goupeon's rendition of it.

Anyway my sister said she was hungry for one, but didn't want to make it. She just wanted it to appear magically before her so I was elected to be the magician.

THURSDAY

Dinner Menu

Baked Stuffed Spareribs; Applesauce; Buttered Baked Potatoes; Tomato Casserole (see Tuesday); Sliced Cucumbers in Sour Cream Dressing; Cantaloupe and Ice Cream; Tea.

OLD-TIME DOUBLE-CRUST MEAT PIE

Use leftover roast beef — for instance: ground cold leftover Pot Roast (see Wednesday, September 11th) would be fine.

Make rich plain pastry by cutting 2/3 cup shortening and 1 tablespoon butter into 2¼ cups sifted all - purpose flour and ½ teaspoon salt, until size of peas. Drizzle in, while you toss with a fork, 2½ tablespoons ice cold water until all flour is dampened. Press into ball between palms. Roll out half to fit deep 9" pie plate, and line pie plate. Roll out and gash other half.

Scrub two medium potatoes until perfectly clean. Put on to cook in 1 cup water and boil until three - quarters tender. Do not cook until soft.

While potatoes are boiling grind enough cold leftover roast beef to make 3½ to 4 cups (4 cups meat will fill a 9" pie plate quite full). As you put the meat through the grinder add 1 small peeled onion so that it is mixed through the meat as you grind. To the ground meat add 1 cup leftover rich beef gravy. Chop ¼ of a green pepper finely and add. When the potatoes have cooked enough (save their liquid) peal and chop them into ¾" cubes and add. Add potato water and one beef or chicken bouillon cube and ½ teaspoon salt. Mix well and stir over medium heat until mixture just begins to boil. If it is too thick add a little more water. It should be just wet enough to barely pour.

Pour hot meat filling into lined plate. Seal on gashed top crust, crimping edges carefully. To glaze, brush top with beaten egg yolk (or white). Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes then reduce heat to 325 deg. Fahr. for another 30 minutes. The filling begins to bubble through gashes and crust is golden. Serve cut in wedges with homemade mustard pickles.

Say grace before tasting this.

Women's Activities

U. C. W

The United Church Women of Bridge Street United Church met on Tuesday evening in the Sunday School auditorium.

The president, Mrs. A. J. Clare, extended a warm welcome to members and visitors. Mrs. R. M. Bird was pianist for the evening.

The program was in charge of Miss Grace Kenny, chairman of the Christian stewardship and recruiting committee.

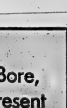
The worship service was based on the theme "Repent Ye," and Miss Kenny introduced the topic by saying that "stewardship is a trust. As Christians we are expected to use wisely the gifts that have been bestowed upon us. We should give from our hearts, and give according to what God has given us. Our prayer life should be for reaching, including peoples of other lands."

Church vocations for men and women were attractively presented in poster form. These included recruitment, ministry of the word and sacrament, ministry of healing, education and specialized ministries. Vocations were called or summoned by quires faith, obedience and discipline.

FILM SHOWN

A film "A Matter of Choice," was shown. This was the story of a young social worker and her problems arising in her work. After discussing her problem with her minister she decides to go into full time church work. The film was later discussed.

Mrs. Clare and the business meeting was in charge of reports given by the various secretaries and convener were most gratifying.



Tea with half hour was enjoyed at the close of the meeting.

Ann Landers

Woman Actually Bore, No Real Culture Present

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — A friend of mine has an irritating habit. If you say her behavior is acceptable, I will try to overlook it. Please help me. Her behavior became I know of others who wonder about this person, too.

She is forever turning over the china to see if it is the genuine stuff. She examines the silver for hallmarks. She is staggering on table linens and my draperies to determine the quality of fabric. Most people can look at a picture and enjoy it, but not her. She has to touch it to see if it's really done in oil.

I will admit this woman is cultured, refined and knowledgeable, but this habit of hers raises my blood pressure. Will you please comment? — PLAIN FOLKS.

DEAR FOLKS — I do not agree that the woman is cultured and refined. Cultured and refined people do not examine articles for hallmarks nor do they handle fabrics to test the quality while visiting in the homes of friends. And I don't agree that she is knowledgeable. If the woman knew her stuff she wouldn't have to touch and scrutinize everything. She'd know.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Our seven-year-old son has been taking odds and ends from the homes of neighbors and friends. Sometimes he takes objects from the nearby novelty store or the drug store. He doesn't need, or even want, many of the items he takes. He just enjoys carrying things off without being caught. When he brings the stolen objects home he proudly presents them to me.

I have scolded him repeatedly and explained that it is wrong to steal. I always insist that he take each object back and deal with the matter on the premises. After he has returned everything he tells me, and I then forgive him.

His father learned of this yesterday. Strangely enough the boy blurted out, "Let's tell daddy our secret." My husband was shocked and then furious. He says something must be done, but we don't know what. It was-his idea to write to you. Can you help? — TROUBLED HOUSE.

DEAR TROUBLED — Without meaning to, you have encouraged the boy's stealing by making a game of it. He doesn't see anything wrong with sneaking things out so long as he is able to sneak them back in.

You must tell him that if he takes anything else he will have to hand it to the owner and confess that he stole it. Go along with him to make sure he does it.

If this does not cure him, the boy needs professional help. Youngsters who steal usually have deep-seated emotional problems.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Six months ago our office supervisor took up a collection to buy a gift for a girl who was getting married and leaving the office. The girl said the gift was too bulky to carry home on public transportation but she promised to drive in the following week and pick it up. The gift is still in the office and none of us has seen it thank you note. It seems evident that this girl has no intention of picking up the gift and she cares nothing for it.

It's too late to return the gift for a refund. We've asked the supervisor to please do something about the gift but still it sits here. If you have any suggestions, we'd like to hear them — since everyone's money is involved. — PUZZLED.

DEAR PUZZLED — The supervisor should phone the girl and tell her if she doesn't come for the gift within the week it will be auctioned off to the highest bidder. Then put it on the block.

Deaf Should Be Given Aid Early

VANCOUVER (CP) — Deaf children should be given a hearing aid early, then surrounded by normal children and inundated with talk, says Bodil Williamsen, Danish expert on hearing.

She says Denmark looks on its deaf children as "only normal children with a small defect."

They are placed in integrated kindergartens as early as three years of age, because their best helpers in learning words are their classmates.

Miss Willemoes, director of education for pre-school deaf children in Copenhagen, told health officials a word must be repeated from 40 to 500 times before a normal child of five will learn it.

"A child with hearing difficulty then may have to have a word repeated 1,000, even 2,000 times before he will be able to learn it."

In her classes two to four children with hearing problems are placed in each class of 20.

"We have found that normal children benefit from it as well. . . . They learn to speak distinctly as the deaf children can learn to read their lips to supplement what they can hear with their hearing aids.

"The main thing is that deaf children learn to speak at the age when normal children learn. At six or seven it is much more difficult."

FATHER KILLS SON

fer an additional Canadian force for United Nations peace-keeping duties, Mr. Diefenbaker said no new military commitment should be made pending a full review by Parliament of Canada's present commitments.

On other international questions, he made these points:

1. He is opposed to a suggestion by UN Secretary-General U Thant for a reduction in the special UN Middle East force in the Gaza Strip between Israel and Egypt. Such a move "might be an invitation to difficulties."

2. Chances of settling the long-standing Israeli - Arab dispute "are more hopeful than ever before." Neither Israel nor Egypt wanted war.

3. He sees no indication of an early settlement of the conflict in Yemen, and no possibility of withdrawal of the 32,000 Egyptian troops there "in the immediately forseeable future."

SPOKE TO LEADERS

Mr. Diefenbaker spoke with government leaders of both Egypt and Israel, including Egypt's President Nasser, during his tour.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the Pearson government had been "converted" to the Conservative party's urging for an immediate $10 increase in the universal $65 old age pension.

"I'm pleased the prime minister has seen the light."

Mr. Diefenbaker also touched on the "bifurcation" of the Social Credit party, which occurred during his absence, into a 13-member Ralliement des Creditistes under Real Caouette and an 11-member group under Party Leader Robert Thompson.

He said Mr. Thompson had "bothered" the idea adopted this year of a $4,000 payment to the leader of any Commons group of 25 members or more.

"He who planned, he who organized to benefit, now finds himself..."

Mr. Roberts says it is all right for local school boards to decide when and where French will be taught."

He said that if this policy had any meaning at all, "it means Mr. Roberts thinks there are still people in Ontario who are prejudiced for political reasons against the teaching of French in our schools . . ."

He repeated his promise that a Liberal government would have French taught at an early age in all elementary schools.

PREMIER REPLIES

Mr. Robarts, stumping through the mining country around Sudbury, said Mr. Wintermeyer's "desperate hunger to attain office" led him to attack the Roach crime commission report as a gigantic hoax, after he had originally welcomed it as a vindication of his own charges.

"Just how it could be at once a vindication and a hoax presents no problem to Mr. Wintermeyer's mixed-up mind," the premier said. He called the Liberal leader's election campaign a "wild course charted for him by a group of vindictive and intemperate advisers."

Mr. MacDonald in Hamilton said not enough was being done to stimulate economic expansion in Ontario.

"We in Ontario simply cannot afford not to start moving in the direction of major public investment," he said.

Western European countries, he said, "are doing things with government planning an investment that have helped put western Europe in the forefront of the wealthy nations of the world."

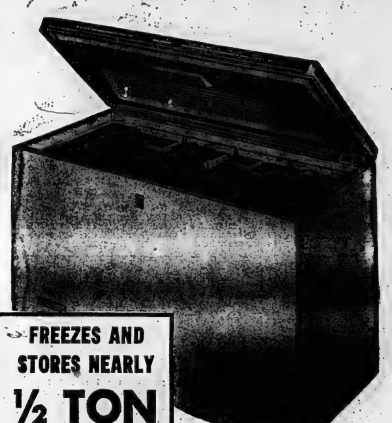
ings" and added it would not condone any further mob violence.

However, British officials made clear their belief the mobs had at least tacit support from the government, because Sukarno wished to show his anger against Malaysia.



The statement said Indonesia "fully understands the flaming anger of our people towards the action carried out by the side (Britain) which became the mastermind of Malaysia."

The Indonesian president, who has refused to accept a United Nations political survey which supported Malaysia, also made no reference in violence Monday when Indonesian mobs broke all 900-odd windows in the same embassy they later burned.

Sukarno stressed that the burning of the British Embassy was in retaliation for Tuesday's attack on the Indonesian Em-

Ken Taylor, Highest Paid Man in Civil Service, Now Adviser on College Grants

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP)—The government will get one more year out of Ken Taylor before the campus reclaims him.

If Kennedy has had 24 years—of Taylor advice and action—the last 10 of those as deputy finance minister, highest-paid man in the civil service and chief non-political architect of Canadian economic policy.

When Kenneth Writhn Taylor moved over to Prime Minister Pearson's office in June, leaving his $34,000 salary, the formal announcement said he would be an adviser on university grants.

Specifically, his task is to reckon how, and to what extent, the government can meet university requests for $300,000,000 in aid to finance needed expansion. Indications are that this is taking priority over the university scholarship scheme mentioned by Mr. Pearson in the election campaign.

It is an open secret that Mr. Taylor also has become a consultant on federal-provincial affairs both to the prime minister and Maurice Lamontagne, Privy Council president and cabinet minister responsible for federal-provincial relations.

UNIVERSITIES WANT HIM

The Taylor influence undoubtedly will be felt in Ottawa's position at federal-provincial fiscal conference, expected in November. By now he is an old hand at this business of slicing the tax pie.

This greying, slightly stooping figure, equipped as always with briefcase and loaded cigarette holder, was much in evidence at the federal-provincial conference in July on Ottawa's municipal loan proposition. He is suspected of playing a top role in the federal concessions.

Information from the prime minister—he and Mr. Taylor have been close friends for more than 40 years, since their university faculty days — already has asked Mr. Taylor to stay on the job beyond his retirement age of 65 next year.

But the prime minister has competition from at least four universities known to be seeking Mr. Taylor, offering attractive positions that would involve part-time lecturing — but not enough to keep him from the writing he wants to do.

What an autobiography he could turn out!

DRAFTED BUDGETS

This is the man who for 10 years wrote the first and often the second drafts—all but the final political polish—of the budget speeches of Liberal finance ministers Douglas Abbott and Walter Harris, then their Conservative successor, Donald Fleming.

He was closely, sometimes intimately, connected with the highly controversial 1958 conversion loan; with the classic 1961 dispute between Mr. Fleming and central banker James E. Coyne; and with the 1962 exchange fund crisis.

His story could fill many of the big gaps in recent Canadian political history.

The public will never see it, though—at least not for years. One factor, the biggest, is his oath of secrecy. The other is the customary waiting period of 25 years, or until all the principals are dead, before personal papers can be made public by the archives.

Dominion archivist Dr. Kaye Lamb wants Mr. Taylor to write that story.

The taylor family history alone would be a dandy, in detail.

His grandfather, born in England, went to Philadelphia in 1850 and became a cohort of John Brown—the rebel who, in the anti-slavery cause, helped touch off the American Civil War; the hero of Harper's Ferry, whose body still lies a-mouldering in the grave.

BORN IN CHINA

The elder Taylor had helped to run the Negro underground railway to Canada. This association probably led poet Stephen Vincent Benet astray when he portrayed the scene at Harper's Ferry, with "Taylor, the Canadian," lying dead in a corner of a barn.

Taylor, a journeyman printer, was very much alive. He later entered Canada and went to work as chief compositor for the Orillia Packet, now the Packet and Times. Still later he opened his own printing shop in Toronto.

Ken Taylor's parents, Baptists, were missionaries for the multi-denominational China Inland mission and it was there, on Dec. 12, 1890, that he was born—at a little village called Tabuting, about 500 miles inland up the Yangtze River.

The Taylors were the only English-speaking family in Takutang, and his playmates were Chinese. He thus mastered Mandarin Chinese—long before English, and years later was told by a Chinese delegate at the United Nations that his "tone" still was good. Only phrases remain, he says.

He got his schooling at the English school at Chefoo, on the north China coast.

Schoolmates included American playwright Thornton Wilder and publisher Henry Luce, as well as Canadian Senator Allister Grosart. Years later, Mr. Taylor sent his card into Mr. Luce's office but there was no response.

PARENTS IMPRISONED

When he was 18, Mr. Taylor came to Canada. His parents stayed behind, spending their time in China—lived that ended during the Second World War in a Japanese camp. A sister was with

Macaulay Explains

Automation Has Increased Productivity of Province

This is the second article by Hon. Robert Macaulay, Minister of the Department of Economics and Development, as background to the Ontario Government's Conference on Automation and Social Change, which is now being held in Toronto.

HON. ROBERT MACAULAY

While the accelerated introduction of automated processes and other technological changes has a profound impact on our social and political institutions, its effects on employment and our economic structure is probably more important and more readily misunderstood. The level of employment and the current and future tempo of economic activity are of prime importance to government, business and labor. Governments are making greater efforts than ever before to ensure high levels of employment and economic growth consistent with a reasonably stable price level. Democratic governments have generally taken the position that they are not prepared to accept unemployment for long periods in excess of 3 to 4 per cent of the labor force.

To link directly the effects of automation or of technical change on unemployment is not easy. Seasonal and cyclical factors and changes in demand for particular goods and services are perhaps the most important determinants of the level of employment. The size, age distribution, knowledge and skills of the labor force also have to be considered.

An examination of employment trends in Ontario during the last 15 years reveals some interesting facts. During this period employment has increased by one-third, or by about 580,000 — an average of about 40,000 employees per year. A large portion of these new entrants to the labor force were immigrants who were generally well-trained and were able to adapt themselves quickly. It has been estimated that about 60,000 new jobs per year must be provided in Ontario for the next 10 years if we are to absorb the anticipated number of new entrants to the labor force.

Because automation is likely to influence profoundly the type of workers required for the future, attempts are being made to determine with greater precision the inter-relationship of automation and employment. Several industry studies have already been conducted by the federal Department of Labor. However, problems of classification and lack of consistent data have limited the accuracy of general conclusions.

PRODUCTIVITY GROWS

The impact of technological change and automation can be measured to some extent by examining productivity trends. During the last 15 years, while employment in Ontario increased by about 580,000, productivity increased by about 38 per cent. If improvements in manufacturing processes, management skills, labor training and new materials had not taken place, about 1,450,000, rather than 580,000 more people would have been required to produce today's gross provincial product. Put another way, if productivity continues to grow at an average annual rate of 1.7 per cent, today's output could be produced by some 360,000 fewer workers by 1973.

"Blue collar" occupations during the last 10 years have not increased as rapidly as those associated with "white collar" work. Between 1951 and 1961 the increase in "white collar" work accounted for about two-thirds of the total Canadian labor force increase, offset absolutely in a number. Direct labor in production declined. With the introduction of automated equipment, the work of inspectors and finishers was reduced while, on the other hand, the staff necessary to maintain and service automated machinery increased in importance. These employees will be required to have a much higher level of theoretical knowledge to understand and work with automated processes.

The greatest impact of automation is likely to be in those industries where a uniform product is being made to satisfy a continuous demand. Automated equipment is well suited to control such processes as oil refining and the generation of electric power. As more sophisticated equipment is developed, the number and types of operation such equipment is able to perform will increase and persons currently performing those operations may be displaced.

Automated equipment tends to be introduced during the upswing of a business cycle. This means that more jobs are created in the design and manufacture of automated equipment prior to their actual introduction in a particular firm. In such periods of high economic activity, workers displaced by automated equipment are usually able to find other jobs in which their skills are needed. When, however, the business cycle begins its downward phase, these same people who have moved to other sectors of industries may find that they are unemployed. Because of their lack of training it may become more difficult for them to obtain employment in the subsequent upturn.

MUST RETRAIN

We have to make greater effort to reduce the time lag between present needs for skills required in automated processes and the adjustment of educational facilities for young people to meet these needs. The retraining of adaptable employees can in many cases become a continuous process, and it is probable that in some instances employees may spend several months a year at school and the balance actually on a job.

Perhaps the most important contribution which the Conference on Automation and Social Change can make is to clarify problems created by automation and to arrive at some order of priority especially as it relates to policy decisions. To ask the right questions is important. Once the areas of impact have been analyzed and the trends noted, logical solutions may be developed. No conference lasting three days is going to solve all the problems, but the bringing together of representatives and leaders from various sectors of the economy will result in a useful exchange of ideas based on experience from a variety of sources.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 19, 1963

Jaycees Will Erect Sign at CNR Station

The Belleville Junior Chamber of Commerce, this week observing Jaycee Week will erect an industrial sign near the Canadian National Railways Station to advertise industries located in this city.

Announcement that the sign was to be erected was made at the group's first general meeting of the season held this week at the Belleville Shrine Club. Don Burr, chairman of the sign committee said the project was well underway.

Close to 80 persons, including 20 guests, ten from the Kingston Jaycee Club attended the meeting chaired by Jay-Cee president Barry Clegg.

During the meeting a president's honor roll plaque was unveiled, containing the names of charter president Z. Kvarda, immediate past president Don Burr, and current president Barry Clegg.

Certificates of appreciation to radio station CJBQ and The Ontario Intelligencer, were presented. The framed certificates expressed the gratitude and appreciation of the Junior Chamber of Commerce to the radio station and the newspaper for assistance in publicizing the Chamber's work and community projects.

The meeting concluded with a Rollege of Knowledge outlining to members and guests the organizational set-up of the Jaycees from the local to international level.

Following the meeting five new members signed applications to the Jaycees.

Joint U.S.-Canada Board To Hear Canadian Viewpoint

OTTAWA (CP)—A Canadian ministerial team will make a renewed bid in Washington this weekend to convince the United States that it can't solve its balance of payments difficulties by measures adversely affecting Canada, it was learned Wednesday.

This likely will be the main theme of the talks Friday and Saturday in the joint U.S.-Canada committee on trade and economic affairs, established in 1953 and now meeting for the first time in nearly two years.

The Canadian delegation: External Affairs Minister Martin, Finance Minister Gordon, Trade Minister Sharp, Industry Minister Drury and Agriculture Minister Hays.

The American team: Slale Secretary Rusk, Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon, Commerce Secretary Luther Hodges, State Undersecretary George Ball, Agriculture Undersecretary Charles Murphy, and Assistant Interior Secretary John M. Kelly.

An informant said Wednesday that the Canadian government still is not convinced that the U.S. payments problem justifies the fact, as stated here, that Canada is not to blame for the U.S. payments position.

Although Canada reduced its current account deficit to around $800,000,000 last year, the deficit with the United States rose $1,100,000,000 made up of $300,000,000 in commodity trade and $800,000,000 in non-merchandise transactions.

The government already has expressed the view publicly that it would be ungualistic to try to correct this imbalance by adding to existing surpluses with overseas markets, and therefore it has to strive for improvement in the Canada-U.S. position.

At least one other specific issue will be raised by the Canadian delegation.

MERCTION AUTO PARTS

This is the question of Canadian export of auto parts. Canada now imports about $40,000,000 more in auto parts than it exports. Mr. Gordon in his June 13 budget laid down the objective of reducing the imports "very greatly."

Last Oct. 31 the government put into force a special one-year tariff incentive to boost export of automatic transmissions and engines. The deal provides for rebate of import duty on transmissions and engines if an equivalent value of Canadian parts is exported.

Since the special concession has resulted in considerable expansion of Canadian auto-parts exports, it is not likely to be dropped at the end of next month, sources say. Industry speculation is that the principle will be extended to make body stampings.

So far, however, there has been no statement of government policy on the question.

'Saddest Home We Ever Knew' When Reunited With Parents Says Quints in Mag Article

NEW YORK (CP)—The Dionne quintuplets say they moved into "the saddest home we ever knew" when they were reunited with their parents and brothers and sisters after seven years in the shelter of a nursery.

"If love begets love, guilt begets guilt," the four surviving quints—Annette, Yvonne, Marie and Cecile—say in their life story, as told to James Bough in the current issue of McCall's magazine.

"The air of the big house was thick with it. Mom and dad believed toward each other as though they had been partners in some unspoken crime in bringing us into the world. We were drenched with a sense of having sinned from the hour of our birth."

The "big house" was a 10-bedroom home Oliva Dionne built at Callander, Ont., to house his family of 11 after the quints were restored to his care in 1941.

The children, made wards of the Ontario government soon after their birth in 1934 to prevent them from being exploited, spent their first seven years in a government-built and government-supervised nursery on the family farm at Callander. They were cared for by a corps of nurses, teachers and guards superintended by Dr. Allan Dafoe, the country doctor who had delivered them.

MEMORIES UNPLEASANT

They describe these early years as happy and carefree, but recall few pleasant memories of their life after they returned to the family.

"Dad settled us and the quintuplet funds in his own exclusive custody," the sisters said. "In the beginning he needed money for the sake of the other children. But, afterward, his fortunes improved . . . it made no difference. By then, it was a matter of self-esteem that he should win. We were such a prize."

"We were transferred into the big house like a conquered army," they recall; "one group of five, huddling together as if for protection against the other six brothers and sisters. . . .

"Other memories of the family went out of their way to say wounding things about us, how they had been happier before we came into their lives. . . .

"The thought was drummed into us that the discord in which the family lived south of the line was our doing. . . .

"All the children worked in theory, but in practice most of the chores seemed to fall on us. . . .

SCRUBBED FLOORS

"We had to scrub floors and clean bathrooms, every item of plumbing in them. We milked the cows and fed the chickens, enjoying the hours outdoors for the most part, because it was a joy to escape from close supervision.

"In the spring, we helped shear the three or four sheep kept in a field behind the house."

The girls say the secret of the illness of their sister Emilie, who died after an attack of epilepsy in 1954, was carefully guarded because "the family considered her illness a shameful thing."

The quints' recollection of an unhappy home life recalls controversy that developed in the 1940's when some of the girls, then living in Montreal, went home for Christmas.

The father said then that his daughters were drifting away from the family, so much so that they had been treating their brothers and sisters "almost with contempt." He and Mrs. Dionne blamed unnamed outside intruders for the separation.

Whatever trouble there was seemed to have been smoothed over when three of the girls went home for New Year's.

A statement by the children said their parents' sad differences were the result of a misunderstanding which "has been ironed out" and that "everybody feels happy about the reconciliation."

Woman Named Doctor in Royal Navy

LONDON (AP)—For the first time in 10 years a woman has been commissioned a medical officer in Britain's Royal Navy.

And get that "Royal Navy." That means this week's navy, not the distaff side outfit, the Women's Royal Naval Service (WRENS).

Surgeon Lieut. Odhilia Cecilia Green, 28, daughter of a retired flag man, is one of only five women entitled to display the cold cuff lace of a Royal Navy officer. The others are officers in the dental section.

Lieut. Green is taking a short course in administrative training at Portsmouth naval barracks before her first appointment. She is the first of a limited number of women doctors to be granted short service commissions for duty at naval shore stations in Britain and overseas.

Why did she want to break into what had previously been an almost completely male preserve?

"To do something completely different and gain contact with branches of medicine which I could not see in civilian life," she explained.

Youth Trapped, Burned to Death In Cobourg Fire

COBOURG, Ont. (CP) — Fire trapped and burned to death Herbert Farris, 31, in a third floor apartment above a drug store in downtown Cobourg early today.

The fire, believed to have started in a stairwell of the 100-year - old building, quickly spread to the two apartments above the store.

Lewis was seen calling for help from a third-floor window during the fire, then disappeared.

Grace Goodick, 32, her daughter Linda, 11, and Mrs. Goodick's sister Martha Schartrand, 23, leaped from a second-floor window to the awning of the store below.

Miss Schartrand plunged through the canvas and suffered possible back injuries. Mrs. Goodick and her daughter were caught by people below as they tumbled from the awning, were not seriously injured.

The fire destroyed the apartments atop the Rexall Drug Store owned by Gwen Kreutzmann, and damaged the roof of a fruit store next door.

Foreign Secretary Demands That Indonesia Protect British Lives, Properties

LONDON (AP)—Britain and Indonesia neared a breaking point in their relations Wednesday night after a day of wild rioting left the British Embassy in Jakarta a smoldering hulk.

Foreign Secretary Lord Home summoned the Indonesian ambassador, Burhanuddin Mohamad Diah, to his office and in a blistering five - minute interview branded the day's events as "uncivilized behavior."

He demanded an immediate end of the widespread attacks on British lives and property. Throughout Indonesia wild mobs blamed Britain for the founding of the infant Malaysian federation.

Home served plain notice on Diah that unless President Sukarno's government promises forthwith to protect British personnel and property effectively, diplomatic relations between the two countries may well be broken.

Within 6½ hours of the morning interview Home sent for Diah again to hear Sukarno's promises.

The far-away happenings incensed most Britons.

Patrick Gordon Walker, Labor party specialist on foreign affairs, called on Home to suppress the opposition's support for any proper protest action and denounced the demonstration.

NO POLICE PROTECTION

Gordon Walker put his finger on one aspect which has especially outraged the British public:

"There was no police protection." he told reporters after seeing Home. "It looks as if it (the Chinese) were going to become the Indonesian government."

British officials attributed the runaway outburst of arson and wrecking to Indonesian frustration over Sukarno's failure to prevent the birth of the Malaysian federation. This new Commonwealth state which the British fostered links Malaya, Singapore, Sarawak and North Borneo which neighbor Indonesian territory.

London diplomats also suspect Sukarno is ambitious to assume the vacant leadership of the nonaligned world now held by Prime Minister Nehru of India has edged westwards in the wake of Communist Chinese assaults.

Gordon Walker expressed what several British officials here were suggesting privately:

"It is stupid of the Indonesians. They need capital and if they behave like this they will naturally inhibit the flow of private capital."

Owners Will Force Showdown To Load Ship

CHICAGO (AP)—A showdown between the owners of a long-idle Canadian grain ship and a grain loaders union moved closer Wednesday as the ship's owners announced another loading attempt will be made Friday.

Paul Flaherty, lawyer for the owners of the Howard L. Shaw, said they planned to move the 450-foot ship out of dry dock today.

The ship limped into dry dock after an unsolved dynamite blast tore a hole in its side Sept. 7, climaxing a summer-long labor battle.

The vessel has spent five months in Chicago trying to take on a load. Members of Local 418, Grain Elevator Workers Union, have refused to load the ship, saying they fear labor violence if they try.

Judge James B. Parsons of the United States District Court in the legal heat Tuesday in a court attempt to force the local to load the ship.

INCREASED FINE

He increased a daily fine against the local from $200 to $500. He added that if the ship still is not loaded, he would consider increasing the $500 a day, or even clapping union members in jail for contempt of court.

With the stakes thus raised, Upper Lakes Shipping Limited of Toronto, the ship's owner, plans to force the issue again Friday.

Some observers contend the ship and local 418 are but pawns in a bigger battle between the Big 4 of Grain Workers International Union and the newly formed Canadian Maritime Union (CLC).

The SIU has contracts with all Canadian shipping companies on the Great Lakes except Upper Lakes. Upper Lakes switched last year from the SIU to the CMU and the labor trouble began.

The battle so far has cost the Toronto company an estimated $300,000 for Chicago delays, plus $25,000 to patch up the dynamite hole in the Howard L. Shaw. Fines lodged so far against the union local total $18,100, they have not been paid pending an appeal.

Stopping Smoking Works Wonders For All But Ex-Smoker's Family

BUFFALO (AP)—When smokers stop smoking they feel better, taste more sexily, discover what the world smells like, have more pep and money—and are harder to live with.

They also are inclined toward being insufferably "holier than thou."

That has been my experience after a tense, smokeless week. Fellow sheltered sport the same changes, with personal variations. One man is ecstatic over the way banana tastes.

We are among 60 men participating in the "smoking-withdrawal research clinic" at Roswell Park Memorial Institute, New York state's cancer research centre.

The institute is testing a simple technique, using drugs and psychology, to help men and women who want to quit smoking but have difficulty.

The clinic has three more weeks to go. But after only one week, Roswell Park doctors are optimistic of success.

This week, at our second and final group session, 37 of us held up our hands when Dr. Charles A. Ross asked:

"How many quit smoking completely?"

Another 5 responded when Ross asked how many were smoking 25 per cent or less of their previous consumption.

CAMERAMAN SMOKES

The only smoke in the auditorium where we met came from the cigar in the mouth of a television cameraman, there to record the group, not to join it.

Only 45 of the 60 participants attended. So there were 8 hands indicated that seven still were smoking fairly heavily and 15 others were unaccounted for. The 15 will be checked later this week.

We were agreed on the value of the sessions, and in what ways we were taking. Lobeline is a synthetic drug that stimulates the body as nicotine does. We found that the drug-diminished our craving for cigarettes.

Half of the 60 participants were given fake pills in order that their reactions could be compared with the others. Only the clinic staff knows who has which pills.

PREMIER VISITS

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (Reuter)—Prime Minister Terence O'Neill will pay a 10-day visit to Canada and the United States at the end of this month, it was announced Wednesday.

Food Today Is Better Buy Than Thirty Years Ago

OTTAWA (CP)—Whatever the housewife says, food remains a good buy—better than 30 years ago in fact, says the federal agriculture department.

Granted, food prices have risen 24½ times between the period 1935-39 and 1962. For a family of four in the 1930s, the weekly food bill averaged $10 against $30 in 1943-50 and $25 last year. And more increase can be expected, says the department.

But that same family has four times as much money to spend today.

The upshot is that the housewife is buying more expensively over the years — more meat, fruits and vegetables, much less grain products and potatoes, a larger variety of products and items is attractive—but more expensive—packaging.

The details of food trends in the last 30 years are set out in a department booklet just issued in revised form under the title Our Food Costs

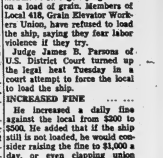
TWO-FIFTHS PER CENT

Canadians still devote about two per cent of income to food, it says.

Dr. L. E. Drayton, whose consumer section compiled the booklet, says, they are eating more of different types of food and less of others. Quality probably is improved. More cereal-based beef is being consumed and better handling means better eggs, for example.

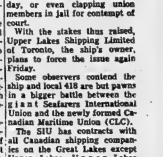
The average factory worker had 15 years ago worked an hour to buy 1½ pounds of butter. Today, in the same period, he earns enough for more than three pounds of butter.

In the period 1948-50, an hour's work could buy 1.7 dozen eggs against compared with 3.3 dozen today.



Probably less need exists now generally for higher calorie content in food—the energy-producing factor. Expansion in indoor occupations in the last 30 years helps explain the increase in consumption of fruits and vegetables and meat proteins and the decline in use of foods featuring starches and carbohydrates.

HEADS INSURANCE GROUP



MONTREAL (CP)—James E. MacNeily, managing director of Halifax Insurance Company, Toronto, was elected president of the insurance Institute of Canada Wednesday night.

PADDLER AGAINST COMMUNISM — Tapeshwar Zutshi, an Indian student, paddled a small boat under noses of armed East Berlin guards, left, as he campaigned with anti-Communist poster in East Berlin part of Teltow Canal. Poster reads: "Liberty for Harry Seidel and thousands of political prisoners in Communist East Germany." Seidel is a West Berlin student jailed in East Berlin for helping refugees. The East German guards, driving a patrol boat, tried in va'n for more than an hour to manoeuvre Zutshi out of East Berlin waters. Letters painted on Zutshi's boat read "Liberty."

Nikita Blames Poor Grain Crops on Fertilizer Shortage

CP from AP-Reuter

MOSCOW — Soviet Premier Khrushchev, in a speech released Tuesday night, blamed poor economic planning of mineral fertilizers for poor Soviet grain harvests.

In a lecture to farm officials near the southern Russian city of Colograd, the Soviet leader also criticized Soviet farmers for misusing and wasting precious fertilizers.

Poor grain harvests have been reported largely responsible for Russia's $300,000,000 wheat and wheat flour purchase from Canada, announced in Ottawa Monday.

Khrushchev, in the speech made Monday, also urged that an "insurance fund" of Soviet grain produced on irrigated land be set up to provide a guaranteed harvest in future.

Khrushchev made his remarks during a visit to the Volga-Don canal on the site of the former town of Stalingrad. His speech was published Tuesday in the Communist party newspaper Pravda.

HAVEN'T LEARNED

"We export mineral fertilizers because our economists haven't learned yet to calculate realistically what this costs," Khrushchev complained.

"If they calculated, then they would see that it would be better to put a ton of these fertilizers in the earth . . . it would be more economical to export the grain received than mineral fertilizers. And after we have fully satisfied our domestic needs for mineral fertilizers we can use them for export."

He said Russia plans to increase production of mineral fertilizers by 1970 to about 100,000,000 tons, compared with 30,000,000 tons a year.

He made no reference in his speech to this year's total harvest, but Soviet newspapers continued to urge farm workers to expend all efforts to bring in the crops and appealed to all citizens not to waste bread.

DOUGLAS IS FIRM

MONTREAL (CP)—T. C. Douglas, leader of the New Democratic Party, returned from a European trip Tuesday night still determined to ask the government to table in the Commons the agreement allowing Canada to acquire nuclear weapons. He said his month-long stay in Sweden, West Germany and Holland did not change his position that Canada was unwise to acquire the nuclear weapons and that this move did not contribute to world peace.

Leechtown, B. C. Boasted 1,200 Mines 99 Years Ago

By ROGER STONEBRAKES

LEECHTOWN, B.C. (CP) — Half a dozen tumbledown shacks and a weathered watchtower are all that remain of Leechtown, a gold-rush community that boasted 1,200 miners in its heyday 99 years ago.

Weather, fire, age and souvenir scavengers combined to destroy the deserted shacks that once housed brawny, bearded miners searching for gold.

A simple cabin erected in 1926 stands hidden in a clump of trees. The tablet on it reads: "Memorial erected by the B.C. Historical Association on the site of gold commissioner's house to commemorate discovery of gold by Lieut. P. J. Leech, July, 1864; And to mark site of Leechtown which sprang up following the discovery."

Leechtown lived for one year. Then, in August, 1865, Lieut. Leech and his party, hundreds of men poured in and created a boom town which soon numbered 20 miles west of Victoria.

Prospectors, hearing of Lieut. Leech's findings, staked claims each by wading 30 feet into a river, tore at the earth in 1,200 feet of bedrock and panned and sluiced on the banks of the Books and Leech Rivers. Within a month, $30,000 worth of gold was extracted from the area. But the going hardened with the coming of winter and big boulders slowed the pace of recovering gold.

Disease and overnight became a ghost town when news of a gold strike in Big Bend in the interior of B.C. came in 1865.

Chinese laborers patiently scratched at ground and panned in the rivers well into the 20th century. They were lucky if they made a couple of dollars a day.

Weekend prospectors from the city tried their luck for a couple of hours at a time and were happy to find any gold-colored substance.

Unemployed men in the Depression era tried their luck and took out $2,621 worth of gold between 1932 and 1942.

Mining engineer K. N. Meen has tried hydraulic mining, directing high pressure water hoses against tough boulders containing the earth and gravel and dropping it through a sluice.

His company moved 50,000 yards of gravel in 1940 and 1941 and found gold worth $4,548. It wasn't enough for a working return and he quit.

Leechtown never was an El Dorado and never compared with the big gold strikes in the Klondike, Barkerville and the Fraser Valley. A geological survey estimated $300,000 worth of gold was taken.

Today, the decrepit shacks tucked into woods and bushes and gradually disappearing all that remain of Leechtown.

Bluefin Tuna Being Hauled From Conception Bay in Ever Increasing Numbers

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Bluefin tuna are being hauled from the waters of Conception Bay in ever increasing numbers by excited rod and reel fishermen who 10 years ago hardly knew the big fish existed in Newfoundland.

And if the tuna continue to co-operate—they have bitten so well this year the province's all-time record catch has been far outstripped — Newfound l a n d may eventually have an international tuna fishing tourna-ment.

At Vardy, who besides being most responsible for tuna fishing also has boated the most fish, says it depended on how the industry develops in the next few seasons.

"We haven't yet got the boats or the trained operators to accommodate such an event," he says. Also lacking are boat-service facilities.

There is no lack of fishermen though. This year nine boats are fishing, seven of them for charter at $60 a day for a four-fisherman party, and bookings are at a premium to the end of September when the season is about finished.

Not surprisingly with all the local publicity the industry is getting — radio stations broadcast daily scores on catches— most of the bookings are by local people. But the industry was developed primarily to attract tourists and it does. They have come from New York, Buffalo, N.Y., Moncton, N.B., Vancouver and Trinidad this year to add their names to the roster of successes.

TOURNAMENT DIED

The boat shortage is the biggest immediate problem and Vardy feels this can't be remedied entirely until commercial fishermen get into the business, although he hopes to see a steady increase in the number of boats each year.

Eight of the nine boats are owned by landsmen, themselves at least initially attracted more by the sport than the hope of making it a business. The government operates the other boat experimentally.

The style of the boat so far has kept the commercial fisherman out. All nine are Cape Islanders, a type common among fishermen in Nova Scotia and the eastern United States but not native to Newfoundland. All but one of the boats came from the Wedgeport, N.S., area.

Since the 40-foot Cape Islanders can be used for almost any kind of commercial fishing, Vardy would like to see local fishermen using them, converting them for tuna fishing for the two-month bluefin season. When that happens, the industry will be "successful and profitable," he says.

There hasn't been an international tournament since the big fish scuttled the Wedgeport competition in 1938 by refusing to bite.

1949 BEST YEAR

In Wedgeport's heyday the tuna run hit its peak in 1949 when sportsmen boated 1,760 bluefin with a total weight of 622 tons. That same year five countries competing in the international tournament took 72 fish weighing more than 37,000 pounds, the winning U.S team taking 19 for nearly 7,500 pounds.

At Wedgeport the Nova Scotia government paid the $30,000 that it cost to run the week-long affair. But if a tournament is held in Conception Bay it will be on a pay-as-you-go basis, Vardy says. "We just can't afford it."

Conceding that "sooner or later there's going to be pressure to hold the tournament," Vardy adds that in addition to extra fishing boats, another eight to 10 boats would be required to handle other duties connected with the competition.

The bay also needs a proper marina. Boats now operate out of Mosquito Cove, one public wharf and it has the only facilities for unloading the bluefins. Vardy would like to see another wharf that would provide visiting boats with electricity, telephones, fuel, bait and good docking facilities.

POOR MARKET

In the eight years since tuna fishing started with two provincial government experimental boats, some 90 tons of bluefin have been caught. Mostly it has been dumped. This year a local fish dealer has been buying as much as he can handle, selling it for 15 cents a pound. The boat skipper, who by tradition owns the tuna caught by his boat, gets $10.

This wasn't a problem at Wedgeport. Some tuna was canned, but the bulk was sold as fresh fish as far away as Boston and New York. There is still a substantial commercial pet fishery in Nova Scotia but there has never been one in Newfoundland. Old-time fishermen still think of the tuna as the horse mackerel that for so long fouled their nets.

For rod and reel fishermen, however, the tuna here are as game as off Wedgeport and they're becoming as plentiful. From the two bluefins caught the first year, the figure gradually climbed to the 133 boated in 1961. By late August this year 173 had been landed and the season's final total is expected to go well over 200.

Vardy holds the record for size in the bay, having boated an 871-pounder in 1957. It was just 106 pounds under the all-time world record fish landed off St. Ann's, N.S., in 1954.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The 1963 segment of "Operation Greenhead" as scripted and read by Fish and Game Club director George Woodhouse at the club meeting Tuesday evening, sounded like a mystery thriller.

The truth-stranger-than-fiction story had the ingredients of a picture-tube whodunit. Killers lurked in the darkness striking swiftly. One hundred missing leaving no trace physically or otherwise. Deadly poison traps laid for stealthy marauders. And finally the triumph of right over wrong.

Woodhouse with his trusty lieutenant Michael Folliwell had done and is doing a masterful job of looking after the F. and G. Club two-year project. He is the director in charge of the operation which dovetails into a personal hobby.

He has received help in time and effort of members of the club but generally acts as the Lone Ranger with faithful Mike Folliwell in the Tonto role.

"Operation Greenhead" is literally what its name means. It is the breeding, and raising of mallard ducks (greenheads) in property acquired by the club, a figurative stone's throw from the heart of the city. Other ponds are located in various areas.

The "killers" were the first round last spring with a strangling blow. Three hundred "planted" mallard eggs were found missing one morning. The finger pointed to night-marauding dogs and raccoons. Two nights later they struck again taking 36 eggs.

What they didn't know, the second "haul" of thirty-six was "finished" with a deadly poison. "Three wise", George said, "a noted decrease in the racoon population and it might solve the question of people who have been wondering what became of the family pooch."

Later 180 ducklings disappeared into thin air. No trace of them has ever been found. Clean search of the pond revealed no bodies. Officials, George said, believed a certain disease had killed them. But he discounted this because of lack of physical evidence.

People living in the vicinity told Woodhouse they had seen dogs prowling the district after dark. He blames this disaster on the canine Capones.

But there's a brighter side. Woodhouse rebuilt two incubators, and fifty nest boxes for wood ducks. He fed his remaining 200 youngsters with "turkey medicated starter" and when a month old they were in the ponds. From six to eight weeks they were "on their own".

His spring objective, he said, "was 1,000 mallards. The F. and G. Club figured the cost at one dollar per duck delivered and gave me $100 for a 100 duck project.

Thus far Woodhouse has spent $70 of this amount and has banked 8 at least likely birds. He had good luck in ponds on the second Sidney where the water was good, and plentiful.

But, he warned, the area will be posted with "No Trespassing" signs. Irate farmers incensed at wilful damage to cattle, losses and machinery by ignorant, careless hunters have posted the area which extends from Jones Creek to the RCAF property.

Woodhouse estimates "Operation Greenhead" will produce 800 healthy mallards on the properties. "Because of such babysitting," he said, "our mallards are bigger and plumper than those raised under natural conditions". He warned that no hunting will be allowed on the properties without special permission.

Department officials he said, have frowned on banding these ducks, but he hopes F. and G. Advisory will see the way clear to band the ducks under their club name.

He has acquired two wild geese and next year hopes to raise these birds and merge "Operation Goose Pimple" with "Operation Greenhead."

George paid fine tribute to his young assistant Mike Folliwell "who has matured in interest in the projects as I. I couldn't get along without Mike."

Dodgers Nip Cards; Finger-Tip Flag

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Dick Nen was in Oklahoma City Tuesday night, in St. Louis Wednesday night and in person between today.

Nen was the unknown commodity who turned into a valuable piece of merchandise with one swing of his bat as the National League champion Los Angeles Dodgers crushed St. Louis Cardinals 6-5 in 12 innings Wednesday night.

Nen, 23, was in Oklahoma City Tuesday playing for Spokane in the Pacific Coast League playoffs. With that ended, he was called up to the Dodgers and joined the club in St. Louis before the finale of the three-game series between the two clubs.

When the Dodgers got involved in a late-inning shuffle, the southpaw wound up playing first base. He came up in the ninth inning with the Dodgers trailing 5-4 and immediately collected his first major league hit —a home run that tied the score.

The Dodgers went on to win in the 12th with the help of a two-base throwing error by Julian Javier as relief ace Ron Perranoski got credit for the victory that clinched the Cardinals four games behind and virtually out of the running.

I WAS SCARED

"I was scared stiff," Nen said later. "I had no idea I'd be called upon."

Nen, who has averaged only one home run per 15 games in the PCL, said he hit a fast ball, low and inside.

"I knew I hit it good, but I had no idea it was a home run until I saw the umpire give the home run sign."

"It was a strange feeling."

The loss left the Cardinals with a almost impossible task of making up five games in the loss column with only seven games remaining. The Dodgers, meanwhile, will return home to close out the season with a nine-game stand.

In other NL action Wednesday, Philadelphia Phillies belted New York Mets 11-1 in the last baseball game to be played at the Polo Grounds, Milwaukee defeated San Francisco Giants 6-4, Chicago Cubs edged Pittsburgh Pirates 5-4 and Houston Colts walloped Cincinnati Reds 8-4.

In the American League, Chicago White Sox swept a doubleheader from Boston Red Sox 8-3 and 6-3 Camilo Pascual pitched a two-hitter as Minnesota Twins crushed Detroit Tigers 10-0, Kansas City Athletics edged Washington Senators 5-4 and Baltimore Orioles downed Los Angeles Angels 4-1 and 7-2. Steve Barber becoming a 20-game winner in the opener.

The American League champion New York Yankees and Cleveland Indians were not scheduled.

The Cardinals built a 5-1 lead on a two-run double by Charley James in the second inning off Pete Richert and a three-run third inning homer by Curt Flood's two-run double. Cardinal starter Bob Gibson took the lead and a four-hitter into the eighth.

A two-run single by Tommy Davis and a sacrifice fly by Willie Davis brought the Dodgers within one run, then Nen tied it in the ninth.

Perranoski (13-3) took over in the eighth and checked the Cardinals on three hits until the Dodgers finally broke through against Lew Burdette (9-12) in the 12th on a single by Willie Davis, the throwing error by Javier, who stumbled as he fielded Dick Tracewski's grounder, and a grounder by Willie on which the speedy Davis sped home.

That was it. The Cardinals

Rangers Would Like To Know

Anybody Here Seen Doug Harvey?

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rumors have begun to fly around the Winnipeg training camp of New York Rangers that Doug Harvey may have decided to retire.

The whispers began early Wednesday when Harvey, 38, still had not shown up at the Ranger camp, which began operations Sunday.

Harvey, for many years an All-Star defenceman with Montreal Canadiens, was traded to New Rangers in 1961. New York had to offer him a $20,000 salary to lure him out of retirement at that time.

The Ranger camp was also tingled with optimism, however, as three graduates of Manitoba junior ranks potted six goals between them in a Tuesday practice.

The three, Marc Dufour, Dave Richardson and Gordon Labossiere, formed a potent unit with Sudbury Wolves of the Eastern Professional League last season.

Veteran forward Earl Ingarfield was the only casualty, requiring eight stitches to close a gash after he caught a puck over the left eye.

In two other National Hockey League camps, 37 pair of rangers were left off the list of players to dress for weekend exhibition games.

REPORTS OVERWEIGHT

Canadian coach Toe Blake and defence-conscious Jacques Laperriere won't play in three games against American Hockey League teams because he is overweight.

Blake said Laperriere reported to training camp 12 pounds heavier than his playing weight of 170 or so last season.

Montreal meets Baltimore Clippers Friday in Washington. Hershey Bears in Hershey Saturday and the Clippers again Sunday night in Baltimore.

And Toronto Maple Leaf manager-coach Punch Imlach said he will leave forward Eddie Shack behind when the NHL champions visit Winnipeg, Oct. 2 to play Detroit Red Wings tonight.

Imlach did not say why he was not dressing Shack. The rugged forward returned to Toronto's camp in Peterborough Friday night. Toronto will journey to Quebec City to play the AHL Aces Sunday.

In the Red Wing camp in Detroit, defenceman Ron Ingram suffered a sprained wrist at practice which will probably keep him out of the Wings' first four exhibition games.

Ingram came to Detroit in the winter trade that sent Norm Yeong to Chicago Black Hawks.

PLANTE GETS HIT

The Rangers received a scare when colorful goalie "Jacques Plante was hit on the inside of his left elbow by a shot off left-winger Vic Stasiuk and was forced to forsake the remainder of the morning scrimmage.

But a later examination revealed no serious injury and Plante returned for a 30-minute shooting drill during the afternoon but did not take part in the scrimmage. He was expected to take part today.

Ulf Sterner, 23, left - winger from Sweden, began to show his capabilities. During the first two days he was bothered by blisters on both feet which resulted from wearing another pair of skates when there was no skating his own through customs.

Sullivan said Wednesday he needed that "UP" shot to give the puck away often. That was one of our problems last season."

Extension To Gardens Approved

TORONTO (CP) City council's executive committee voted 6-to-2 Wednesday to approve plans to extend Maple Leaf Gardens out over adjoining streets to the north and south and add 4,000 seats to the nearly 14,000 seats now in the arena.

The decision must now be approved by the entire city council. Harold Ballard, executive vice - president of the Gardens, said that if council approves, the $2,000,000 addition can be started "right after we win the Stanley Cup" —Toronto is defending champion — and completed before the start of the 1964-65 hockey season.

Approving the extensions, the works committee rejected the opinion of the city planning board which had recommended that the northward extension be refused, but that a southward extension over busy Carlton Street be okayed on condition that the Gardens pay for shifting a section of the street 30 feet to the south.

The extensions would be supported on cement pillars at the curb line and be faced with glass-enclosed walkways.

Controller Allan Lamport, supporting the project, said the overhang would not detract from the appearance of streets, but would protect pedestrians from bad weather.

He said there is a pressing need for additional seating at the Gardens, with a waiting list of 8,000 for season tickets alone.

Intrigue, Rumor Fog Liston Flight

Leaves Britain In Hurry

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Heavyweight boxing champion Sonny Liston broke off a successful exhibition tour of England and returned to the United States Wednesday amid a flurry of contradictory rumors and reports of intrigue that would rival a movie script.

In London, William Cotterill, Midlands Inspector of the British Boxing Board of Control, said Liston made his hasty, angry departure from England after accusing Cotterill of planting two girls in his room.

Liston said he was returning to be with his sick daughter. His adviser, Jack Nilon, said the champion had two daughters. In Denver Mrs. Liston said he had only one, actually a stepdaughter, and that she was attending school.

It had never before been publicly revealed that the champion had any children.

SILENT IN CHICAGO

In Chicago, en route to Denver, Liston brandished a big, black cane at reporters and refused to say anything.

When he arrived in Denver, he heaved past reporters with a brusque, disjointed comment. Still brandishing his cane, he said:

"I'm ashamed to say I'm in America."

He would not explain.

Asked whether it wasn't the British with whom he was angry, Liston replied:

"You should see the way they treat me. It made me ashamed to be from America."

Asked why he left England, he replied:

SONNY LISTON

"Well, I have problems." What kind of problems, he was asked.

"Now you're getting nosey," he said.

Friend Cox, his sparring partner and close companion, said:

"All I know is that we are on the run from London."

ROW IN NIGHT CLUB

Cotterill said he and the burly champion had a row in a London night club after Liston had given a skip-and-spar routine there.

Cotterill said Liston came to the club looking for him and "there was a row straight away when he accused me of sending 'two broads' up to his room.

"He was very angry but no blows were exchanged. I denied any knowledge of two women but the row went on. Finally he believed me and stormed out of the club."

Liston returned immediately to his hotel and packed, telling Nilon that his 12 - year - old daughter Eleanor was sick in Denver and he was returning to be with her.

Nilon said Liston had two daughters, Mary, 17, and Eleanor, 12, both living in Denver.

MARKED QUESTION

The incident raised some question about the champion's age. Liston is listed in Ring, the official boxing book, as having been born May 8, 1934. This would make him 29.

In Chicago, Liston's aide, Ben Bentley said Liston is 30 but was at a loss to explain whether Sonny fathered his 17-year-old daughter at the age of 13.

"He could have been 15 or 16," Bentley said, "but he never talked about any earlier marriage to me."

Nilon said Liston would be back to fulfil scheduled exhibition appearances at Birmingham and Blackpool plus a show on British television. He added that Liston would take on British former heavyweight champion, Brian London, "if the terms are right."

Bill Fraser Scores Hole-in-One

Bill Fraser, of Belleville, fired the second ace of the season at the Bay of Quinte Country Club yesterday, while playing in a company tournament.

Fraser, a non-member of the club, as were his golfing buddies, John Reed, Kingston, George Dedman and John Keeve, Toronto, sunk his tee shot on the par-three, 145-yard 9th hole. He was using a four iron.

The foursome was playing in the Eastern Ontario Food Association's annual tournament, in which 125 took part.

A. MacMillan, of Kingston's Glen Lawrence, had the other ace at the Quinte club this year, during the annual men's field day, in August.

Georgetown Pair Wins Sausage Golf

NEW HAMBURG, Ont. (CP) — Burton Macdonald and Oliver Hunter, both of Georgetown, Ont., won the annual Sausage-Lawn Bowling Tournament here Wednesday with three wins and a plus of 27.

Seven pigs were butchered to provide the old - style country sausage which gave the tournament its name when first served in 1946 by Simon Roth, president of the New Hamburg club.

Forty rinks entered the double - draw men's doubles tournament, ate 120 pounds of sausage and took another 400 pounds home.

Herb Sobrt of Preston, Ont. and Guy Semple of Port Elgin, Ont. took second place with three wins and a plus of 23.

Art Richardson of Galt, Ont. and Wilf Williams of Preston took third place with three wins and a plus of 18.

Bowlers from Toronto, Owen Sound, London, Guelph and the Kitchener - Waterloo area competed.

New Hamburg is about 12 miles southwest of Waterloo.

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Western Football Conference Tuesday claimed centre Bob Nowalkowski, a native of Fort William, placed on waivers by Montreal Alouettes. The Bombers were left short of centres after an injury to veteran George Druxman. Jack Brunell, the back-up man, handled the job in Winnipeg's last game.

Green Gaels Game Shy Of Title

By PAUL RINSTEAD

WHITBY, Ont. (CP)—Oshawa Green Gaels, it seems, play best when they're down.

They were underdogs in the Ontario junior lacrosse playoffs this year after finishing only third in their eight-team league. But they won their quarter-final semi-final and final series to make it to the Canadian final.

Then they entered the best-of-seven Minto Cup series—for the Canadian junior championship —as the underdogs against Victoria Shamrocks.

But they promptly surprised the followers of Canada's official national sport by winning the first two games.

However, Victoria won the next two to force a 2-2 series tie going into Wednesday night's game and Oshawa was again being written off.

NEED ANOTHER WIN

They rebounded with a 12-6 win—most decisive of the series — and now are only one game away from a Canadian title.

"And if we lose the sixth game Friday night, we'll win the seventh one Saturday," said Jim Bishop, the Gaels' confident coach.

"That sure was a bad one," said Victoria coach Tom Druce after Wednesday's loss. "I don't think we got one loose ball all night."

The Gaels outplayed the Shamrocks in every department. The defending champion Shamrocks may have been overconfident.

"I'm not sure if they were," said Druce. "But they sure played that way."

Six of 'Em In Ring Friday Night

In underworld parlance, "the mob moves in" Friday night at Memorial Arena.

Six of the "syndicate's" musclemen, three of them boarins, go to the mat in mass mayhem.

Somewhere in the whirling merry-go-round of arms and legs will be a man in white, officially he is known as the referee.

Lining up on the "heavy squad are quarterback Johnny Valentine, backed by "The Destroyer" and Dr. Gerry Graham.

Facing this awesome threesome will be the tireless trio of Gentleman Jim Hady, pooler Lorenzo Parente and Tony Parisi.

The icing on this wrestling cake should be the fourth clash between Valentine and Hady. The former has won all three bouts by various ways and means.

Hady will likely single out the moptopped Valentine, not to rob him of his United States title, but for personal satisfaction.

Three times the big blonde has decisioned the "Great" mainly through skullduggery and once with gong intervention. Hady is not satisfied.

It will likely start with a pair. Then four will clash and the final rotation with all six tossing torsos, it should resemble a battle royal.

It's reported the official will carry red and green lights to aid him in directing traffic.

"The Destroyer" and Tony Parisi will be doing double duty. The former will tangle with Tommy O'Toole and Parisi will collide with Ox Anderson in the first two bouts.

Try To Wrap It Up

Kenmors, Brockville Friday

Bill Latchford, who has yet to give up a run in the series, will attempt to wrap up a berth in the O.H.A. Senior finals for the Kenmors here tomorrow night against Brockville Beavers.

Belleville leads the four-of-seven set three games to one and play host to Brockville in a nine o'clock game, at the Fairgrounds.

Kenmor coach Sid Forster said yesterday he expects the Beavers to send Dave Smith to the mound, "so I will come right back at them with the best I have available".

Both Latchford and Smith have pitched terrific ball in the series to date. Latchford has shutout Brockville on two complete games here and also received credit for the other victory, in Brockville, with six innings of tireless relief. He has given up only eight hits in the three games, striking out 30 and walking four.

Smith lost a tough 1-0 decision here and handcuffed the Kenmors on a pair of hits in Brockville's 6-0 win last Saturday, allowing seven hits and just the one run in the last 18 innings he has pitched. And he has 21 strikeouts in that same stretch, indicating a strong pitching duel tonight.

Kenmors are hoping to have Duffy Fullwell, Pat Assistino and maybe Rick Locke home for this key game. They are three of the club's six players attending out-of-town schools. Forster also looks for Jack Elliott to help out considerably.

"With us having trobble getting all the boys home, we could be in a tough spot if we have to go back to Brockville for a sixth game Saturday as we want to wrap it up," said the coach.

The winner of this series will meet either Galt, of the Intercounty league or Campbellville, for the Ontario championship. They are presently engaged in a two-of-three series.

Friday's game here is a big one and the Kenmors are hoping for a crowd to match.

Ott Heller To Coach Guelph Srs.

GUELPH (CP) — Ott Heller of Kitchener, a National Hockey League star with New York Rangers for 15 seasons, has been named coach of the new Guelph entry in the senior division of the Ontario Hockey Association, it was announced Wednesday.

Bud Kemp, club president, said in making the announcement that the team will be known as the Regals.

Heller began his NHL career with the Rangers in the 1931-32 season and played continuously with them through the 1945-46 season.

He also played in 318 American League games, served as player-coach of Valleyfield in the now-defunct Quebec Pro League in the 1954-55 season and was still active as a player in the late '50s with Woodstock OHA Senior B club. Almost Overnight Bachelor In Britain Has Become Sort Of Second-Class Citizen

By ROD CURRIE

LONDON (CP)—Pity the poor bachelor. He's in disgrace.

In jeopardy is his image as the footloose man-about-town, the envy of his married friends, the lawful prey of husband-hunting females.

Indeed his very manliness is questioned. So is his moral fibre, even his loyalty to Queen and country.

Almost overnight, alas, he's become a sort of second-class citizen. At least, in Britain he has.

And it's all the fault of those "Whitehall warriors" at the war office. They have ruled, with sinister implication, that bachelors, in the light of recent rather sordid events, are pretty poor security risks and should not be posted to British embassies behind the Iron Curtain.

BEGAN WITH VASSALL

It all dates back to the report by Lord Radcliffe who criticized the selection of William Vassall, a bachelor and homosexual, for a post in Moscow.

Vassall, 38, who was sentenced to 18 years, claimed he was blackmailed into spying for Russia after compromising photographs were taken of him.

But the poor bachelors still have their champions. John Dickie, diplomatic correspondent for The Daily Mail, is one.

"The shadow of the Vassall case," he writes, "has fallen on the single man to such an alarming extent that it would appear to make bachelor mean homosexual in some small minds in Whitehall.

"But don't they realize that homosexuals may quite easily be married men with families?"

And then there's Leslie Mallory of The Daily Sketch: "To use the terms 'bachelor' and 'homosexual' as interchangeable, even by implication, is ludicrously unfair."

The ban applies to army and air force attaches but the admiralty has said it will ignore the edict. Even this is a sort of paper tribute since a spokesman admitted that most naval officers chosen were married, "because their wives help with their work on the social side."

MAY END ERA

The whole thing could mean the end of an era. The end of the fearless hero of novel and movie, the two-fisted, hard-drinking, love-em-and-leave-em foreign agent, invariably unencumbered by wife and kids.

His successor is the solid, happily-married citizen who the war office feels would be less susceptible to the gulles of espionage.

Well, they may buy that at the war office but it will never sell in Hollywood.

In recent years most Western embassies behind the Iron Curtain have had standing orders that any staff member becoming involved in a situation that could lead to blackmail should report to his ambassador and be transferred home.

The bachelors' defenders argue that while no man, married or single, would willingly confess to a homosexual relationship, at least the single man would be more likely to admit to an affair with a woman than would a married man. And they point to the hundreds of bachelors in tight-security jobs at home who are not under question.

STABS SELF TO WRITE PROTEST IN BLOOD — Nguyen Thang Thai, a Vietnamese living in France, pierces his chest with a dagger while kneeling in a small Paris park to provide means to write a message in blood to the United Nations. Unemployment Insurance Questions and Answers

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send us your question. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Following are some questions with answers which may be of interest to you.

Q. I am at present collecting unemployment insurance benefit at a single rate. My wife's cousin is out of work and he is coming to live with us and receive free room and board. Can I claim him as a dependent?

A. You would not be entitled to the dependency rate of benefit in respect of your wife's cousin. While the Unemployment Insurance Act and Regulations provide that certain persons connected with you through marriage, such as the parents, grand-parents, brothers and sisters of your wife, may be claimed as dependents, it does not include cousins of your spouse.

Q. My husband was collecting unemployment insurance benefit under sickness benefit and was paid up to last Saturday. He died suddenly six days later, that was yesterday, on Friday. What should I do about the benefit due him for the first four days of the week?

A. Notify your local office immediately and provide them with full particulars. Under certain circumstances benefit due to a deceased person up to the date of death may be paid to the person who proves that he is equitably entitled to it.

Q. I have a small business that brings in about $25 a week. My husband is working, but he says that if he loses his job he will not be able to claim benefit because I have the income from my business. I think he is mistaken, as the income from my business is too small, seeing that we have three children and have to pay rent. Which of us is right?

A. The fact that you have a small business would not affect your husband's entitlement to unemployment insurance benefit provided he was not participating in the operation of your business. If he should assist in the operation of your business, he would have to supply full particulars to the Commission's local office when filing his claim so that it could be decided whether or not he could be considered unemployed.

Q. I worked as a waitress for almost four years and when I was laid off about a month ago, began drawing benefit. I would prefer work as a typist as I have had some experience in that line. Could I take a refresher course in typing or a course as a stenographer, and still collect my benefit until I have landed a job?

A. You should consult your local office and give them full particulars regarding the course. Your benefit rights will not be affected if you are directed to attend a course of instruction or training by the Commission. Your local office will give you full details.

ABC's New Dramatic Series, Channing, Said Slow Moving

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Channing, ABC's new dramatic series, may sound as the name of a western but it's a fictional university around which the stories are built.

Viewers who tuned in expecting to watch freshmen stuffing phone booths had a surprise. Most of the premiere show Wednesday night took place in death row.

Despite the iron bars and the hyperthyroid acting of guest star John Cassavetes playing a condemned murderer, the show was slow-moving, talky and overloaded with fancy philosophy.

It's hard to say what point it was making.

The Price Is Right started its first season on ABC with an expensive splash. The show, in which members of the studio audience bid for merchandise, inaugurated a great star policy. Betsy Palmer, acting as agent, won a $10,000 convertible for one woman in the audience and a $17,000 house in Florida for another.

Ben Casey returned from vacation and nothing seems to have changed around the hospital. But still wears his crowd and his unbuttoned jacket, but he's magnificent when confronted with a lacerated dura or a less-than-dedicated colleague.

NBC's Temple Houston has its premiere tonight at 7:30-8:30 EDT. It' a western with a lawyer hero.

Picton

County Warden, Town Mayor Open Fair

PICTON — Prince Edward County Fair at Picton is in full swing and continues through Saturday.

Opening parade this afternoon saw some three thousand school children from all parts of the County, along with bands and majorettes taking part. Most schools had gay banners while the children were dressed in costumes to represent many themes. The fair was officially opened by County Warden Donald Bond with Mayor H. J. McFarland and Leland Doxsee, president of Prince Edward Agricultural Society, also participating.

More than four hundred persons converged on the fair ground buildings Wednesday night to place more than eight thousand different exhibits. Extra tables had to be erected to hold the great variety of entries which reflect the bounty of field and garden and the skills of Prince Edward residents. The area's dairy and agricultural products and flowers are displayed in a vartiable garden of colors and scents.

More than one hundred bachelors competed in two shows this afternoon and all were winners since each received a silver dollar as a souvenir.

OLD TIME FIDDLERS

Tonight, old time fiddlers compete for prizes and Junior Farmer square dancers present the program in the County Centre.

Friday sees another horse show, Black and White day for Holsteins, capped by a variety show indoors in the evening.

Saturday sees another parade of antique and classic cars from Eastern Ontario with new models for comparison, decorated bicycles and three beauty queens — miss Prince Edward chosen by Junior Farmers, Miss Sophiasburg Township and Miss South Marysboro.

Classes are filling well for horse races, 2.30 and 2.24 Saturday afternoon, secretary Phil Dodds reports. Kingston and Belleville district jumpers and hunters will feature jumping events in the afternoon.

Exhibits are being removed at four o'clock Saturday to clear the Centre for the Doc Williams Show, direct from Wheeling, West Virginia.

"Months of preparation have ended and Picton is every inch certain that our efforts will be rewarded. We have a wonderful array of exhibits and some fine entertainment. There is little doubt that the fair will attract many thousands from near and far," said president Doxsee.

Movie Column

English Movie 'Tom Jones' Best Picture in 10 Years

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A crowd of celebrities turned out for the preview of the latest and possibly the greatest example of English film making, Tom Jones.

"The best picture in 10 years . . . the most imaginative film since Citizen Kane . . . magnificent . . ." These were a few of the comments overheard in the crowd, which included such figures as Edward G. Robinson, Tony Curtis and Christine Kauffman, Groucho Marx, Stanley Kramer, James Mason, Carolyn Jones, Charles Brackett and Barbara Rush.

They were deserved. Tom Jones is the kind of movie that is seen all too rarely, and seldom from Hollywood: any movie — a tasteful, brilliant exercise using all the film medium's attributes to the hilt.

Tom Jones, Henry Fielding's precursor of the modern novel, could have been made into a musty costume drama. But producer-director Tony Richardson and screenwriter John Osborne have used unlimited imagination to bring it to zesty life.

The opening sequence, depicting Tom's illegitimate birth, is done in silent-movie technique, and all. Chases are speeded up, Mack Sennett-style. Some comedy scenes are done with the characters frozen in still photos. The camera focuses in on single faces for a plot point.

SHIELDS FLOOEY

Actors deliver asides directly at the audience, and sometimes, merely a knowing wink. At one point Tom, to shield a scantily clad floozy, put his hand over the camera.

A narrator, rich in wisdom, underscores the action with pure comments and sometimes insists on lading out on seduction scenes in order to avoid offense and the wrath of the censor.

The actors couldn't be better. Albert Finney as the quicksilver Tom has just the right virility for the role. Susannah York can see from Hollywood's any move — a tasteful, brilliant exercise using all the film medium's attributes to the hawdy, brawling squire.

The evocation of 18th-century England — the earthiness of country living, the squalor of low-life London, the decadent elegance of high society — all are reproduced with precision.

As one previewer commented: "The academy might as well help a sequel pot Oscars to England next year and save all the expense of voting. There won't be anything better."

Roy Sills Hits Hunting Rights Sale to Clubs

MADOC—The propriety of private clubs purchasing hunting and fishing rights in massive areas of bushland in North Hastings County was challenged by Liberal candidate Roy Sills here Tuesday as he criticized the government legislation that would permit such transactions.

The Limerick Hunting Club and the Rod and Gun Club, Mr. Sills charged, had "run curtains" around thousands of acres of free northern bushland. He quoted the names of several hunters, who had hunted that area for years and now were being asked $250 by the club for use of the land.

Particular focus of his criticism was the Limerick Club which he said, replying to a newspaper clipping, advertised the fact it had leased property over and above lodges.

"I don't think if someone gets a property holding of that size he has a right to license the wildlife on it," he said.

"I think that the right to hunt and fish is a birthright of the people in this country."

He said the club had leased hunting and fishing rights from Dominion Tar Corporation "which people say is owned by Mr. P. Taylor, leader of the P. Taylor get the right in the first place?"

He again quoted a newspaper report on a recent trip by Hastings County council on which Conservative candidates in East and West Hastings had been invited.

The report mentioned Clarke Rollins, the East Hastings candidate, as saying the Limerick club had been formed this year with 400 members in the township owned by Dominion Tar.

"That's close to 70 square miles of Canadian bushland."

CHALLENGES ROLLINS

"I hope this gets to Mr. Rollins," said Mr. Sills. "I would like him to deny that he's a member of the Limerick Hunt Club."

He read a list of names of hunters, who had handed out the title of the "Stocking Camp" and hunted that area for 20 years, paying for a right-of-way to a local property owner.

"Now the Limerick Hunt Club is asking them to pay $250. for the privilege of hunting there," he said.

Mr. Sills said he wanted to know how Dominion Tar "was able to use enough influence to be assigned hunting and fishing rights over the great area of the country."

The Hastings Rod and Gun Club, he charged, had padlocked and chained a bridge over Black Creek and some people have had to pay $1. toll.

He warned this situation could even lead to serious trouble on opening day of hunting season, were hunters "forced to pay tribute."

"I can well imagine around 100 hunters there who cannot go any further and if the OPP were not there to stop them somebody might lose control of himself and start a little shooting war."

His remarks were part of a speech delivered to a rally at the Maple Town Hall. Mr. Sills was preceded by Art Duncan of Batawa.

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Indians many years ago used lacrosse as a substitute for war to settle inter-tribal disputes.

A tendency to revive the brutality of those days in modern times is one reason for the game's downfall.

Canada's neglected national sport substituted brawn for brain when the calibre of player began slipping.

There are still outstanding players today but not nearly as many as in the heyday of lacrosse, when Newsy Lalonde, Lionel Conacher, Alex Turnbull, Joe Lally, Lance Isaacs and Didier Pitre were national figures.

Lack of promotion and leadership was the main reason for the sport's decline. Everything that followed was a result of the lack of effective administration.

Now played seriously only in British Columbia and Ontario, lacrosse is on the verge of disappearing altogether. Unless something is done soon, the game's stick may become a relic seen only in trophy rooms.

B.C. HAS PROBLEMS

The situation is brightest in B.C. but there are problems. Some players are becoming lackadaisical and lethargic in their play. And Vancouver and New Westminster clubs have dominated Inter-City Lacrosse league play so much in the last five years that other teams will soon realize the result is declining fan interest.

One of the bright spots, however, is that the league has a commissioner in charge. Without one man making the rulings, there's no indecision or wrangling.

Ontario has many problems, but lack of money isn't the least of them.

"I can honestly say there isn't a team in our association which could be described as prosperous," says Jack Wilson of Brampton, secretary of the Ontario Lacrosse Association.

The West blames the Ontario style of play—plenty of roughness but as little running as possible—for its difficulties.

PLAYERS AGREE

This, however, goes back to leadership problems. Instead of being able to discipline players who refuse to put forth their best themselves in condition, the coaching staff has to spend much of his time persuading them to play.

Instead of running, which was one of the features of the game, an ill-conditioned player discovers he can walk and still control the ball. This has turned the game into a dull exhibition that leaves fans wondering. It does little to inspire youngsters with a desire to take up the sport.

A common complaint in the East is about the inability to line up sponsors. But from an early vantage point, lacrosse is a sport is hardly likely to attract business firms.

On the west coast, where the Inter-City league drew 100,000 fans last season, lacrosse has been kept respectable. Sponsors have been found and some of the teams started paying salaries.

It remained a running game and anyone who didn't run couldn't hold a place on the team.

IMPORTED PLAYERS

Next came imports. Jack Bionda, considered the finest player in the country in recent years, had been a drawing card in the East. But he left his home in Huntsville, Ont., and went to the West.

Then Bobby Allen, considered best after Bionda, left Peterborough, Ont., for the coast.

The reason was simple. There was money on the coast and players in the East, performing before only a handful of fans, don't get a cent.

Brutality entered the eastern picture. Players were being injured by big hitters who found it easier to hit than run. Officiating didn't move quickly enough to stamp it out. Even today some players are quitting because they feel referees and officials don't give them enough protection.

Western clubs continued to ship players to the coast and in the East but it seemed to make little impression. And then a junior club began thinking this was the way the game was supposed to be played.

COULD GET HELP

There is a feeling among many that if lacrosse was cleaned up it could get extensive aid from the National Fitness Council. Not only is it the national sport but the director of the council, Gordon Wright, happens to be a lacrosse fan.

"We feel that by eliminating the blood-and-thunder aspects of the game it would be a terrific activity for kids," Wright says. "The game involves a terrific amount of running and is a great conditioner."

Last year the council granted the Canadian Lacrosse Association $3,000 to help sponsor clinics throughout the country.

Another of the game's problems stems from the inability of East and West to agree on playing rules and conditions. The West, and the CLA, play four 13-minute periods and use green boards to make it easier for fans to follow play.

The Ontario Lacrosse Association sticks with the white ball and white boards, making it difficult for fans to catch all the action. It also employs three 20-minute periods.

OPPOSE QUOTAS

WASHINGTON (CP) — The White House has rejected congressional appeals for the imposition of import quotas on Canadian softwoods, warning that such an approach could hurt the U.S. exports drive. Christian A. Herter, President Kennedy's chief trade negotiator, said other solutions to the U.S. lumber industry's problems must be sought.

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

Remember when the West took regular beatings from the East in the Grey Cup final? It became sort of a ritual—the western champion would travel East to Toronto, Hamilton, Saskatoon or Montreal, have its ears pinned back and go home.

There were times in the 1930s when the westerners saved themselves the trouble of being clobbered by simply saying they didn't wish to meet the East.

They had all sorts of excuses. There were times when the players fought with the club executive over the rail line to be taken, and by the time their differences were patched up all Eastern cup final would have been set up. There were other times when the western title-holders would claim they were broke and couldn't afford to make the trip east, or that it was too late in the season to arrange a game.

It didn't matter. The blase eastern football fans wouldn't have knocked the gates down to get into the stadium because they knew the West hadn't a chance.

Things have taken a big change in the last few years and right now it might not be a bad idea if the Western Conference put it up to the Canadian Football League commissioner, Sydney Halter of Winnipeg, to declare that this year's final at Vancouver Saturday, Nov. 30, would be an all-western game.

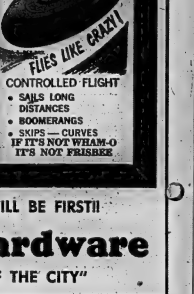
Wouldn't that be something. Anybody who has taken a close look at results of the East-West interlocking games so far this year would have to admit the idea has some merit.

And just as long as those suddenly rejuvenated British Columbia Lions were in the final, Vancouver fans would storm the gates. The Lions have jelled after many frustrating seasons and their supporters have stopped kidding themselves and now believe they've got a champion.

WON SEVEN OF NINE

The CFL scheduled 20 East-West interlocking games this season. Nine have been played to date and the western clubs have become fat and prosperous at the expense of their not-so-tough eastern cousins. Seven won seven and, with the results counting in the respective conference standings, it's easy to see that the westerners are jolly well pleased with this interlocking business.

They wouldn't be out of line if they made a big pitch for a full interlocking East-West schedule next season.



The easterners realize, too, that they have some strengthening to do before much longer. Transportation companies are making a nice little killing as the clubs push the panic buttons and airlift Americans in desperate bids to plug the holes on their rosters.

The Grey Cup never is won in September. This notion went out in 1954 when Edmonton Eskimos started a three-straight cup-winning string over Montreal Alouettes and the Winnipeg Blue Bombers took over and whipped Hamilton Tiger-Cats in four of their five encounters.

But as of now, indications point to another western title on the last Saturday in November at Vancouver's Empire Stadium.

Former Supervising Assessor
Income Tax Department

Many working persons who purchase savings bonds through the payroll deduction plan are of the opinion that the interest they receive from these bonds is not taxable. Their argument is that they already paid income tax on the money used to purchase them. I heard this argument more times than I care to remember, when I was employed by the Income Tax Department.

It was hard to convince these taxpayers that the bond interest was a new source of income to them which was not received until the bonds were paid for.

All bond interest is investment income and must be reported. Most employers who make pay roll deductions on behalf of their employees for savings bonds, make a small carrying charge. This carrying charge is deductible from the bond interest received, providing a receipt for this charge is attached.

BANK REPORTS

The taxpayer should report all his bond interest as the Income Tax Department receives reports from the banks of the names and amounts received by persons cashing the coupons. If the taxpayer has not added his bond interest the Income Tax Office will adjust the return later on in the year to include the amount omitted.

CASHING BONDS

A taxpayer should never cash Savings Bonds Coupons for another person, because when they are taken to the bank the person cashing them must sign for the amount of cash received. This will make him liable to the Income Tax Department for tax on the money received, unless he can prove that he only acted as an agent for the owner of such bonds.

QUESTION 1—I purchased a $1,000 bond for my wife. Do I have to pay the tax on the interest?

ANSWER — Yes. The person supplying the capital is responsible for the tax on the interest.

QUESTION 2 — My entire income comes from Canada Savings Bonds and old age pension. Do I have to file a return?

ANSWER — Not unless the total exceeds $1,500 plus the standard deduction of $160.

All letters of inquiry will be answered if a self addressed and stamped (3 cent) envelope is enclosed.

Government Gets Earful On Possible Tax Effects Of Budget Given by Gordon

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP)—The government has been given an earful of blunt forthright advice on the possible effects of Finance Minister Gordon's proposed to slap a heavier withholding tax on predominantly foreign - owned enterprises in Canada, it was learned Wednesday.

The assessment came from those most affected—the top executives of large American and European corporations, many of them with subsidiaries in Canada.

On Wednesday the 74 businessmen wound up three days of closed-door talks with Canadian government, business and labor leaders. The sessions were arranged by Business International, a private agency that has had similar sessions with other governments including France, Mexico, Spain, India, Japan, Brazil and Argentina since 1956.

The executives, speaking individually rather than from any group position, made their cases here in informal talks that were clearly labelled beforehand as confidential in a bid to encourage open and frank views on both sides. What they said remains private.

GAVE U.S. VIEW

However, an American source said the U.S. businessmen spared no effort in pointing out, in as much detail as possible, that the new tax could have a serious effect on both existing operations in Canada and on future investment.

Mr. Gordon announced the tax in his June 13 budget as part of a policy of promoting what he called a "growing partnership between Canadians and non-resident investors in Canadian manufacturing, 75 per cent of the oil and gas industry and 61 per cent of mining is foreign-controlled.

Effective June 13, he wiped out the 15-per-cent withholding tax on Canadian bond interest earned by foreign non-taxable investors but at the same time shifted the tax as it applies to dividends in order to penalize companies that are predominantly foreign-controlled.

The tax was dropped to 10 per cent, effective June 13, on companies with 25 per cent or more Canadian ownership. But it was raised to 20 per cent, effective Jan. 1, 1965, on companies that don't achieve such "partnership" before then — including wholly-owned U.S. subsidiaries.

The American informant said Wednesday that several large companies, making their points in as specific terms as possible, briefed top figures on the government officials that the additional impost would substantially cut the competitive advantages that led to their establishments in Canada in the first place.

WOULD RAISE FARES

TORONTO (CP)—A firm of financial consultants, in a report presented Tuesday to the Metro executive committee, recommended major Toronto transportation fare increases beginning next year. The firm also recommended construction of $77,000,000 extensions of the east-west subway into Etobicoke and Scarborough.

Dief Rejects Douglas Idea On Nuclear Pact

Cannot Alter Signed Word of Canada Claim

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker rejected Thursday the idea of parliamentary ratification of the nuclear agreement signed between Canada and the United States last month.

The 88-year-old Progressive Conservative leader was commenting to reporters at a birthday party in his office on the demand by New Democratic Leader T. C. Douglas that the nuclear treaty be submitted to Parliament for ratification.

Mr. Douglas indicated Wednesday that his group is prepared to carry its opposition to the nuclear treaty to the point of a general election.

Mr. Diefenbaker said that "however desirable that (parliamentary ratification) might be, in my own personal view is that once the government of Canada enters into the agreement, Parliament is prevented from doing anything to alter the signed word of Canada."

The opposition leader's birthday was on Wednesday while he and Mrs. Diefenbaker were en route home from a visit to the Middle East. At the late-afternoon party in his office he blew out candles on a blue-and-white cake and opened gifts behind a huge array of birthday cards.

NOTE 25 CANDLES

Noting the 25 candles, he joked:

"I would be perfectly satisfied if the number of candles represented the actual fact."

Mrs. Diefenbaker, who is looking for a golden Labrador puppy as a birthday gift for her husband, was present at the party.

Mr. Diefenbaker used to own a golden Labrador but it was destroyed a few months ago after it bit a number of people.

Gifts included three books from his brother, Elmer Diefenbaker of Saskatoon, and a bound volume of speeches he made as prime minister from Kenneth Campbell, administrative officer to the chief justice of Canada.

Mr. Diefenbaker also commented to reporters on the speech by Prime Minister Pearson at the United Nations earlier in the day. Mr. Pearson said:

Sukarno Takes Big Step

JAKARTA, Indonesia (Reuters)—President Sukarno today ordered British firms in Indonesia to be taken over by government departments in the interests of their own safety.

An official statement said the order was not designed to nationalize the companies but to ensure that production was continued.

The president also ordered the authorities to prevent the takeover of British companies by labor unions.

The order said British rubber, tea, coffee and palm oil estates, banks, import and export firms and other businesses were to be taken over by the various government departments concerned.

Sukarno's position opposing the takeover of British firms by labor unions was made public by Indonesian government national command two days after the British Embassy here was burned to the ground in rioting against the new British-backed Malaysia Federation.

Listen Chum While Buck Crump Explains Two Economic Terms

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — Norris R. (Buck) Crump of Montreal, president of the CPR, has explained the difference between economic planning and planned economy.

"Listen, chum," he told a reporter at the Conference on Economic Survival, "you've got a wife, haven't you? Well, she plans how to spend your money, right?

"We all need it. We have to know what we're going and how we're going to get there. We want to know what our goals are. That's economic planning.

"But planned economy is a new people, the government, telling us where we're going. The rest of us have no say and that's not democracy."

Mr. Crump, one of 57 top Canadian businessmen attending the conference, said Canada is quite capable of overcoming the economic problems that beset her.

Re-design Ottawa Square

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal government endorsement was given Thursday to a plan to give the capital's heart around Confederation Square a massive facelift.

Acting Prime Minister Chevrier announced that cabinet has approved redevelopment of a 25-acre area, now occupied mainly by the Union Station and railroad tracks, for a cultural, convention and government-office complex.

Specific go-ahead was given for construction of new office space for three government departments — transport, industry, citizenship and immigration. It's hoped that some of the new buildings will be occupied by the 1967 centennial year.

The plan generally coincides with a National Capital Commission master plan for redesigning the central area.

The monumental Union Station, built a half-century ago, is scheduled to be demolished within the next three years. A new rail terminal is being built in suburban Alta Vista, three miles southeast of Parliament Hill.

DIDN'T GIVE COST

Mr. Chevrier did not say how much the new government buildings will cost nor indicate their exact location. However, he said the public works department has been authorized to construct 1,300,000 square feet of office space in an area bounded by Elgin, Rideau, Nicholas Streets and Laurier Avenue.

Long-range plans envisage removal of a number of stores and old office buildings to make way for new buildings.

The square itself already includes the temporary home of the National Gallery of Canada, the new home of the British high commission nearing completion and the proposed site of a new cultural museum of Canada.

A scenic parkway on the east side of the Rideau Canal, paralleling the existing driveway, is another project.

Paint Bomb Tossed at JFK's Car

NEW YORK (AP)—A station wagon-load of shouting teen - agers tossed a paint bomb through Kennedy's parked limousine Thursday night, spattering the hood and front fenders with white lacquer.

There was no indication that the youths who threw the missile knew their target was President John Lincoln Continental limousine.

The car was parked in front of the Plaza hotel apartment house where Kennedy had gone to attend a dinner party for Governor and Mrs. Carlyle Hotel on his arrival from Washington to address the United Nations.

The president's secret service driver, William Greer, was standing beside the car when the "paint bomb"—a plastic object looking much like an egg—hit him squarely in the back.

The paint also splattered on to the suit and camera of a photographer and one of the crowds of Kennedy fans. The rear of a car parked in front of it.

The youths shouted at what they apparently regarded as a prank and drove away.

Last weekend, paint bombs were buried at five states in four Manhattan Police found a plastic containes near one of them and said other clues had been found.

Robarts Continues Verbal Battle With Health Minister

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Premier Robarts continued his running verbal battle with Federal Health Minister Judy LaMarsh Thursday, saying he will barge in anywhere in the interests of Ontario old-age pensioners.

He was replying to Miss LaMarsh's statement Wednesday that the premier made a grandstand performance out of attending a federal-provincial conference on pensions last week to which he wasn't even invited.

Meanwhile, Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer said that immediately after next Wednesday's Ontario general election a Liberal government would start lifting the lid off a series of old and new scandals in Queen's Park.

Donald C. MacDonald, New Democratic Party leader, continued his campaign for greater economic planning, making his pitch in a city hard-hit by what he called an irresponsible decision to move a major industry to another city.

Tonight both the premier and the Liberal leader will speak in Hamilton. Mr. Robarts after a swing through the Niagara Peninsula and Mr. Wintermeyer after visiting Lindsay. Mr. MacDonald will speak at an NDP rally for all Metropolitan Toronto ridings.

Miss LaMarsh—member of Parliament for Niagara Falls and the federal minister most directly responsible for the proposed Canada Pension Plan—has been the most active of federal cabinet ministers in boosting the cause of the pro-

Two Lawyers Principals In Provincial Election

HALIFAX (CP) — Two Nova Scotia lawyers who first won seats in the province's legislature 16 years ago—and have been undefeated since—are the principals in the campaign for the Oct. 8 provincial election.

True to form, Progressive Conservative Premier Robert L. Stanfield, 46, and Liberal Opposition Leader Earl W. Urquhart, 43, are making their pitches to the voters in an unspectacular, quiet way. Personalities have been pretty well kept out of the campaign.

Mr. Urquhart, who entered the legislature at 28 while still a law student, is heading a Liberal campaign for the first time. He was named provincial leader last November, succeeding Henry D. Hicks, former premier and now president of Dalhousie University.

The government boasts of its highway program, claiming it has paved more miles of road during the last seven years than the Liberals did during 23 previous years in office. It also speaks with pride about industrial Estates Limited. IEL, a crown body set up by Mr. Stanfield's government to assist industry, has given help to more than 20 industrial plants.

But Mr. Urquhart claims that IEL-sponsored plants have been

Kennedy Strongly-Backs Pearson's Plea To Enlarge UN Peace-Keeping Forces

Says Test Ban Pact Could Be Start Of 'Fruitful Journey' Toward Peace

UNITED NATIONS — (CP) — President Kennedy said today the world may have reached "a pause in the cold war." He suggested it be dramatized by a U.S.-Soviet expedition to the moon with the two countries pooling research and experience in space.

Kennedy hailed the negotiation of a limited nuclear test ban treaty — which he predicted would win "overwhelming endorsement" from the U.S. Senate next week — could prove "the start of a long and fruitful journey" toward peace.

And it might be followed by a joint American-Soviet effort to place the first humans on the moon, "not as the representatives of a single nation, but the representatives of all humanity."

In his address prepared for delivery to the 18th General Assembly, Kennedy also called for a new effort to outlaw war and a broader test ban, abolition of racial and religious discrimination everywhere, and a new efforts to strengthen the United Nations as an instrument of international co-operation.

Kennedy strongly supported Canadian Prime Minister Pearson's proposals for strengthening the UN peace - keeping forces.

He said he hoped that "the recent initiative of a several members in preparing standby peace forces for UN call will receive similar consideration by others." The U.S. was ready to provide logistic and other material support.

REAFFIRMS SUPPORT

Kennedy reaffirmed American support for the United Nations, but he said the UN could not survive as a static organization in a changing world and urged and men devoid of "any stigma of politics or partiality."

"We welcome, as a city and a people, the co-operation of any who are willing to understand our difficulties and be

Cruiser Towed Into Port, Engine Failed

PORT DOVER, Ont. (CP)—An 18-foot cabin cruiser with three persons aboard was towed into port here here Thursday after being missing on Lake Erie since Wednesday afternoon.

In fine shape after their night adrift were George Minshall of RR 2, Brantford; Allan Miller of Burford, near Brantford, and Don Greaves.

They were on their way home when the motor failed and the current carried them out into the lake.

They were rescued when the boat drifted near Jailing Cay in the lake close to the Long Point Peninsula.

Parties Cranking Up Machines For Election

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan's four major political parties are cranking up their machines for a general election expected in the first part of 1964. Tradition will be broken if there's an earlier vote.

Nine provinces have called general elections in the last 12 months but this hasn't been CCF Premier Woodrow Lloyd.

At the same time, Lloyd has fee the climate for electioneering is improving. The government announced recently a cut in premiums for its compulsory health care insurance plan. Farmers are benefiting from the best grain crops on record and the sale of 28,000,000 bushels of wheat to Russia and millions of dollars into the province.

Premier Lloyd says he sees no reason to deviate from established practice in calling an election, which would place the next one in June, 1964—four years to the month after the last general election. The CCF party has been in power since 1944.

Present standing in the 52-seat legislature is CCF 34, Liberal 21. A redistribution will raise the total to 59 before the next election, adding two seats each in Saskatoon and Regina.

Mayor Praises New Deal

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Mayor Albert Boutwell welcomed today the appointment of a presidential commission seeking racial peace in troubled Birmingham.

But he disagreed sharply with Negro leaders who urged President Kennedy to send troops to maintain order in Birmingham, where the Sunday bombing of a church killed four Negro girls.

Kennedy talked to the Negro leaders at the White House Thursday. Five Birmingham community leaders will meet with Kennedy in Washington Monday.

Boutwell applauded the selection of the former Army football coach, Earl (Red) Blaik, and former army secretary Kenneth C. Royall for the mission to Birmingham, praising them as distinguished and able men

Lakehead Sceptic Visiting B.C. Sees Ogopogo Twice in Two Days

VERNON, B.C. (CP) — Joe Mecendes is a sceptic. A barky construction worker from Fort Arthur, not prone to fits of imagination.

"Coming from Lakehead," he confided Thursday, "I don't believe in lake monsters.

"But I definitely saw something out there."

Mecendes, visiting British Columbia for the first time, doesn't know what it was he saw, but the generic name for whatever it is that lurks in the depths of Okanagan Lake — anything — is Ogopogo.

Mecendes says he went boating Tuesday night and "suddenly there was a big splash and the water seemed to be boiling." Then there was an object in front of him, about 50 feet up, in the "three or four separations."

As it cut slowly through the water he distinguished a gaping mouth at one end. He tried to get closer but it disappeared with a big splash.

He claimed a second sighting Wednesday morning when it made a brief appearance in front of his camp at the lakeside.

It's the first Ogopogo report of the North Okanagan since 1958, but on the coast earlier this year a visitor thought she spied the legendary serpent schoolmarms. It was half-a-dozen rubber tires manipulated

Wants Speed Reduced at Intersections

TORONTO (CP)—Thirty miles an hour is too fast for motorists crossing Metropolitan Toronto intersections, Police Chief James Mackay said Thursday.

The chief was expressing concern over an increasing number of accidents and the disregard of some motorists for traffic regulations.

"There is always somebody trying to beat the yellow light," he said, and suggested a 10-mile-an-hour speed limit at major intersections, although 40 MPH is the legal limit.

Metro's 1983 traffic toll to Thursday included 77 fatalities, 6,553 injuries and 19,133 accidents. This is four more fatalities, 533 more injuries and 2,580 more accidents than during the same period in 1982.

Chief Mackay said the Metro Police Commission will ask for a conference with the attorney-general in an effort to strengthen the hand of police in law enforcement relating to traffic control.

He said it is impossible for policemen on foot to stop offending motorists.

Only Tried To Maim Victim Says Accused

BARRIE (CP)—A 33-year-old lance - sergeant testified here Thursday that he had only meant to scare and maim the man whom he is alleged to have shot dead in a Camp Borden swamp May 23.

L.-Sgt. Leonard Raymond Denomille, accused of the capital murder of Sgt. Herbert S. N. Wilson, told an all-male Ontario Supreme Court jury that while he was serving in Egypt he had heard that Arabs castrated anyone who made any sort of advance toward another man's wife.

He said he thought this was at the back of his mind when he shot at Sgt. Wilson's groin.

Denomille, whose trial is expected to go to the jury today, said during nearly four hours' testimony he felt he and his eight - year - old son, Douglas, would have no peace until he was able to "get that guy off my back."

Denomille told the court he could remember firing one shot at Wilson in an attempt to make it impossible for him to ruin any other women."

The lance-sergeant said he could not recall clearly the events which resulted in Wilson's death. He was positive his first reaction in firing was done at his wife in a Barrie barber shop that afternoon and afterwards standing out Wilson were to scare them.

Did Not Know Lights Were On Trial Basis

Two well known Belleville businessmen either don't come to Belleville often or they are remarkably unobservant.

Just this was indicated earlier this week when public utilities linesmen were taking down the half dozen street lamps placed more than a year ago on a trial basis.

As they saw workmen busy in front of the city hall they asked if new lights were being installed.

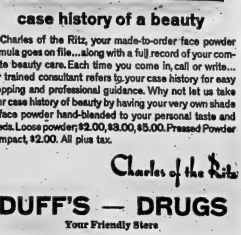
"Yes, we are taking them down. They were installed only on a trial basis," was the reply.

"I never knew there were any new lights on Front Street," commented one of the businessmen.

"Neither did I," returned the other, as the two men went their differentways.

Canada Pension Plan Outlined By Minister

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Federal Health Minister Judy LaMarsh Thursday assured voters at a Liberal election meeting the federal government's proposed Canada Pension Plan would not interfere with existing private pension schemes.



Comparing the federal plan to the social security program in the United States, she asked why private Canadian workers should be second-class pensioners compared with retired U.S. citizens.

She devoted most of her speech at a rally in support of Maurice Belanger, Liberal member of the last legislature for Windsor — Sandwich, to explaining the federal plan.

She said it was of the utmost importance the federal plan be adopted for the whole of Canada, and that provincial programs should not weaken its structure in any way.

Miss LaMarsh said the federal plan was unlikely to mean less business for insurance companies selling private pensions. The U.S. social security program, she said, had made people more pension conscious before and created a demand for expanded services from private insurance companies.

Rollins Denies Being Member Of Hunt Club

TWEED — Two hundred and fifty Conservative supporters turned out to meet Dalton Camp last night at the Tweed Pavilion, despite the threatening rain. A reception and dance were held by the Tweed Progressive Conservative Association, sponsor of Mr. Rollins, M.P.A for Hasting East in the last Legislature and PC candidate in this election. Music was provided by the Country Partners. Lunch was served by the Ladies' Association.

Mr. Rollins was introduced by Lee Grills, former Member of Parliament for South Hastings for the second time in as many nights.

Mr. Rollins commented briefly on some of his accomplishments and those of his government in the Tweed and Hungerford district. The member then referred to a radio address and a news item of his opponents a few months ago about the Limerick Hunt Club and the hunting privileges Crown land in the north part of Hastings County.

At the outset, Mr. Rollins met Mr. Sills' challenge and stated "That I am not and nor have I ever been a member of the Limerick Hunt Club". In reply to Mr. Sills' statement that he wanted to know how Dominion Tar was able to use influence to be assigned hunting and fishing rights over the great area of the country, Mr. Rollins said that the information in his possession is not in his jurisdiction that Dominion Tar has a over the deeded property owned by the company), purchased at various times, and a considerable portion of the land acreage was purchased within the last few years from private individuals in various townships. It has in no way any jurisdiction over Crown property in the same municipality where the holdings are.

Crown property can not under any circumstances be leased for hunting or fishing purposes by a club or individuals.

Land lease permits are issued by the Department of Lands and Forests for the period of one year subject to renewal annually. The lease affects one and a half acres of land for the purpose of erecting hunting camps, tents, etc. and does not give the holder of the lease any authority to post signs or prevent individuals from hunting on Crown property. It is the responsibility of any individuals to obtain permission from any property owner in close private property in order to get to the desired hunting area on Crown property.

David Stanl...) and Gary Falmer were given the sentence by Magistrate R. B. Baxter.

Carl Hislaes, who also pleaded guilty to the charges was remanded for sentence until Oct. 3. Gerald Rodney Bennett, 24, charged in the episodes by his own admission, was sentenced to six months in the reformatory. Bennett, who was sentenced recently to a nine months's reformatory term for breaking, entering and theft of $1300 from Rolaf's Music Store in Belleville will serve his latest sentence after he has finished his previous sentence.

Crown Attorney Rupert, 31, of R.R. 2, Trenton charged with careless driving causing bodily harm was remanded until Oct. 3, as a Crown witness could not attend court. Rupert's automobile, police allege, was the driver of a car being chased by Belleville police on July 21. It was alleged Rupert was thrown from the cruiser onto the road and suffered back and head injuries.

He has been in custody until since June 28. Initially, he was charged with criminal negligence causing death in connection with an accident on the First Dug Hill Road, west of Trenton. Second Bridge To Be Subject Of Meeting

TRENTON — Robert Temple, MP for Hastings South, announced today that he had set up a meeting with the federal minister of transport, the Hon. George MacIlraith, the mayor of Trenton, D. James Mac-Donald, Trenton councillors and other town officials for 4 p.m. Dec. 1 at Ottawa. The subject under discussion will be a second bridge for Trenton.

Recently provincial government officials promised the town the Crofton bridge would pay 75 per cent of construction costs for the bridge, Trenton had hopes to persuade the federal department to take up the remaining 25 per cent of the cost. As the department of transport makes itself responsible for swing portions of bridges over navigable waters, town officials feel that even though plans for a second bridge will do away with a swing portion . . . the bridge will be built in such a way that the swinging unnecessary . . . the department should feel equally responsible for the proposed new bridge.

Construction costs for the proposed bridge have been set at $1,986,000.

SWIRL OF BLUE

The Trenton Community Gardens last night was a swirl of blue and gold and a swish of taffeta and the music of bands as bands taking part in Trenton's second annual Military Tattoo went through their paces run for tonight and tomorrow night's performances.

The most popular part of the program, from the standpoint of the 500 spectators present at the rehearsal, had nothing to do with military music. It was a precision drill by the red-tunicned Canadian Guards drill team from No. 1 Battalion, Picton.

TRENTON—Mr. J. T. Tomlinson of the engineering consultant firm of Tomlinson and Associates, and Mr. Tomlinson of the Trenton Public Utilities Commission yesterday decided the hiring of a field supervisor to check the installation of 12 and 15-inch water mains on Dufferin Ave. would cost the commission $4,000. The man would work an estimated 100 days on the project and as Commissioner Charles Hilton pointed out, this would bring his wage cost to $40 a day. If an estimated 100 feet of main is laid per day, the inspection would cost $4 a foot.

Commissioner Hilton objected. "We've laid a lot of mains in this town in the past few years," said Councillor Hilton, "and we haven't hired a special inspector."

Mr. Tomlinson said that his firm had a chief inspector, who will supervise all operations on the commission's behalf. Messrs. Sidney and Dundas St. East, while the sub-contractors working on the project are Messrs. Rayner of Toronto, is engaged on the $600,000 project. Then there is an assistant inspector whose work will be supervised by the chief inspector and the assistant inspector. The man would supervise work done by the field supervisor. He said that before any water mains are installed, the PUC would have no come-back on the Tomlinson firm, but that the Tomlinson come-back on the firm which did the work, but stressed that his firm was concerned about doing a good job.

VOTE FOR INSPECTOR

Commission chairman C. A. Baker, while agreeing with the $4,000, said that the "money might be the best money the commission ever spent when all factors, among them the fact that new pavement will be laid over the installation, were considered.

"We don't want trouble," said the chairman, and voted to permit Mr. Tomlinson to hire the special inspector.

Mayor James MacDonald also voted for the hiring, and Mr. Hilton threw his lot in with them, reluctantly.

The commission voted not to consider buying the Mayhew Mill and surrounding pond, sold at an asking price of $18,000, as the pond is located too far away from the PUC's water intake in the area to do much good.

Totally, we have decided to approve the sale of two lots on Queen Street near the mountain, recently owned by the PUC by the town. The commission hopes to sell the lots this year and use Mrs. Henry's map for the $1,500 lot.

The commission will write to council and advise them that arrangements can be made to lay overland water pipes for Mrs. Amelia Beattie on Sidney Street, if Mrs. Beattie will pay the cost. If the pipes freeze in winter and split — well, that's Mrs. Beattie's outlook. Meanwhile, the Rayner Construction Company has shifted its operations on Sidney Street and a water main, in the vicinity of Mrs. Beattie's home will soon be installed. Then, Mrs. Beattie could be supplied with water privately, as could individual area Street residents living in this area. Mrs. Beattie came before council this week to ask to install water in her well had run dry and council came up with the thought that the PUC could lay overland supply pipes for her.

Planning 1964 Celebration, Sally Ann Discovers It Is Already 80 Years Old Here

Lost in the musty files of a newspaper morgue, a real-life love story has been unearthed to shake the official history of the Salvation Army in Belleville. The story, gleaned from 80-year-old copies of the Daily Ontario and the Weekly Intelligencer, shows that Belleville's Salvation Army Corps was well established by the city months earlier than official records show, and that the forgotten original commanding officer of the corps eventually married the man who originated the Salvation Army in Canada.

The "blood and fire soldiers" as they were often called in those days, arrived in Belleville Feb. 3 of 1884, according to official records, under the command of Captain Annie Hasbrook. This account is unquestioned, until a few weeks ago. Then Capt. J. Tackaberry set out to write a more detailed history of the local corps, for publication on the supposed 80th anniversary. In digging for information, he looked over newspaper files, and found the following:

The Daily Ontario for Feb. 6, 1884 shows that "Miss Hosen" took charge of the Salvation Army in Belleville on Feb. 5 and that "Miss Hosen" has always been a certain Joseph Hosen, who had been sentenced to two days in jail, for drunkenness in the face of Georre Reed, at a Salvation Army meeting on Sunday, Feb. 3. Another item in the same issue says "Miss Hosen" has gone back to Mrs. Lodge, who desired a report in connection with the case to the Daily Ontario's report), Jan. 22. Their wedding, planned for Christmas, was the talk of the town about this time.

And the wedding was something to talk about. The Daily Ontario did talk about it, in Jan. 30. The wedding take, according to reports, measured four feet by five feet and more than a thousand guests polished it off with no trouble. The wedding at Bridge St. (Methodist at that time) Church was the social event of the season, and guests were charged 15c each admission fee.

After the wedding, Captain Nellie and Joe Lodgets were posted elsewhere and one report has it that Captain Joe was later Chaplain in the U.S. army. As for the Tenth Corps of the Salvation Army, in Belleville — the official history takes it up from after the wedding.

Salvation Army meetings. They all sang Salvation Army songs, as they worked, at any rate.

On Nov. 28 of 1883, Captain Nellie seems to have purchased 25 benches, at 20c each, from C. F. Smith and Co., hardware dealers. No explanation for the purchase has been advanced, but it might indicate a seriousness to the early meetings. Crowds of 700 people and more were attending the Salvation Army meetings, by that time.

GOING STRONG IN 1884

It was about Jan. 5 of 1884 that Annie Hasen arrived in the city, as a Lieutenant, and the corps was as strong at the time that her coming went almost unnoticed. On Jan. 11 of that year, in fact, circulation of the Army's official paper, "The War Cry," (published in the U.S. then), was about 700 copies in the city. The paper now sells about 300, in Belleville.

Meanwhile, Capt. Joe Lodgate and Capt. Nellie Hosen went to Kingston, (some of the reports are confused), and apparently very quietly, Capt. Joe Lodgate and Nellie. He must have proposed marriage to her at that time. The wedding was a little did not hit the news until later. Capt. Nellie, in fact, was sick, and had to go to Syracuse, New York City for treatment.

Whether it was because of the time illness or another reason, Capt. Nellie was unable to attend services Jan. 27, even though Capt. Lodgate had arrived in Belleville, (from Hamilton, according to the Daily Ontario's report), Jan. 22. Their wedding, planned for Christmas, was the talk of the town about this time.

Mob'le Home At Oak Lake A Total Loss

An Oak Lake resident, Mrs. R. D. McDonald, escaped from her burning house-trailer last evening with singed hair. She received no serious injuries. The mobile home was reported as a "total loss".

Mrs. McDonald said she was alone in the trailer at the time, and that when she attempted to light the propane gas stove in the kitchenette, it exploded in her face. Mrs. McDonald said there was no water handy that she could throw onto the flames.

Fire ripped through the 16 foot house-trailer minutes after the blast broke out. The Belleville fire department was alerted, but the fire had a considerable head start before they were called to the scene, just west of Bird's canteen at Oak Lake, where the mobile home was located.

La Salle ambulance stood by at the scene in case of injury.

Mr. McDonald is manager of the Bank of Montreal in Trenton.

'ATTACKED' CITY

The "attack" came, though, on Sept. 22, if the next week's copy of the Intelligencer was correct. It reported the march from Bridge Street Hall, (location indefinite), to Market Square, in Belleville that Sunday. According to the report, about 200 people followed the march, and attended the meeting in Market Square. The report refers to girls with tamborines, who led the singing in Market Square and again at a second service, at Metropolitan Hall.

The girls must have been hard on the tamborines, because records recently uncovered by Capt. Tackaberry show that a "Miss Ryerson" had to buy three tamborines, value $3.00, from T. Donnelly and Co. of Belleville, in December. It is possible that the original tamborine group was imported from Kingston, for the first service.

Be that as it may, Capt. Nellie seems to have taken the city by storm. A report of a stove foundry in Belleville, printed Oct. 18 of 1883 quotes the manager, a Mr. Hart, as saying that he thought the men in the moulding room must attend

1,001 TICKETS for the Crest Repertory Company's performance of "Juno and the Paycock" were delivered, yesterday, to Don Thomas, in charge of the box office for the Belleville Theatre Guild. Mail order sales of the tickets began last Monday, over-the-counter sales begin next Monday. Performance is October 8th, in B.C.I. auditorium.

Mounties Close Three More Hunting Areas in District

Three more illegally-baited duck-hunting areas were closed yesterday by Royal Canadian Mounted Police working in conjunction with Lands and Forest conservation officers.

This brings the number of closed areas in the Tweed area to seven, six of them in the middle and southern sections of the Hastings district.

Closed and posted yesterday were: the area west of (b) city between Graham road and Potter road, north of the Bay of Quinte County Club golf course between CNR and CPR tracks; -

The area of Caton's Bridge two and one-half miles south of Stoco on the Moira River;

The north end of the swamp area just east of Thrasher's Corners.

Closed previously were three overlapping areas near the Dufferin Park, Prince Edward county; Lynn's Pond, three miles southwest of Tweed; the Lost Channel on the Moira, four miles south of Tweed and the southwest corner of the Bay of Quinte just north of the Carrying Place.

RCMP officers and conservation officers will check every hunting area in the district. They will be out in strong force tomorrow when the official duck hunting season opens at daybreak.

As was reported previously the closed areas will be re-checked within a period of from seven to ten days and if found bait-free will be re-opened for hunting.

Meanwhile hunters are reminded that it is unlawful to shoot ducks within one-quarter mile of any place where bait has been found or placed during the open season for ducks or geese or during the season days preceding the open season.

Four Acquitted

COBOURG (CP)—Four Campbellford youths were acquitted by an Ontario Supreme Court judge and jury Thursday of raping a 17-year-old Campbellford high school girl.

The jury retired for five minutes and decided there was not enough corroborated evidence for the trial to continue.

Released were Gerald Douglas Hamill, 21, David R. Adams, 19, Russell E. Anderson, 19, and John K. Hacker, 18.

SHIPPING ROSE

Overseas shipping arrivals to Sweden rose 10 per cent in July, 1963 compared with the same period in 1962.

Folksy Note Creeps Into Campaign

KINGSTON (CP)—A folksy note crept into the Ontario election campaign here Thursday when Conservative candidate Armand Quintal, a lifelong farmer, delivered a broadside against his opponent, J. E. Stonehouse, minister without portfolio in the Ontario government.

Referring to the hands-old campaign in Frontenac - Addington to get a local road paved, he said that Mr. Stonecrest has now promised on the eve of the election that he would get the job done.

"You know," said Mr. Quintal, "the Tories have a big barn in Toronto filled with a lot of picks and shovels and surveying instruments.

"Before every election, they get these out and give them to fellows with red hats who spread out on roads all over the province. After the election they call the men in and put the equipment back in the big barn again."

Toronto Rotary Will Sponsor Ballet Company

TORONTO—The Rotary Club of Toronto will sponsor the engagement next spring of the National Ballet of Canada at O'Keefe Centre, it was announced today by Rotarian Ruthers, president. Mr. Carruthers told a luncheon meeting of Rotary that the company will perform in Toronto from April 23rd to May 2nd, 1964.

He said, "Rotary feels the National Ballet of Canada contributes to the cultural development of our society and therefore, a community service, one of the chief objectives of Rotary.

"We are sponsoring the National Ballet to help raise funds for philanthropic activities and all our proceeds from the presentation will be used for this purpose."

The Rotary Club has long been identified as sponsors of major cultural attractions and for many years brought the Metropolitan Opera to Toronto.

Celia Franca, artistic director of the National Ballet, said she was "delighted and honored" by the announcement.

"The Rotarians, of course, is known internationally for its outstanding interest in the arts. We all look forward to one of the most important seasons we have had for years. As has always been the company, we will introduce new productions and we are very happy to have the privilege of presenting the North American premier of Romeo and Juliet, a highlight of any season."

Author of Letter Given In Evidence Quoted as Saying Was Falsely Dated

TORONTO (CP)—The author of a letter presented as evidence during a Toronto Stock Exchange investigation of a brokerage firm's trustee-Canadian Oil Companies Ltd. shares last October was quoted Thursday as saying it was falsely dated.

The Telegram says W. P. Gratkowski, president of Shell Investments Ltd. and author of the letter, has admitted it was written in October and not Sept. 11 as first reported.

The newspaper said Mr. Gratkowski would not explain the false date "until I have had a chance to talk to some people about this."

The Telegram also said Mr. Gratkowski and G. H. Rennie and Co. Ltd., to whom the letter was written, had no earlier association or buy Canadian Oil shares for Shell.

Both The Star and The Telegram say the letter influenced authorized Rennie to buy Canadian Oil shares for Shell.

The newspapers also say that had the letter been received on the September date, it would have explained to the Rennie firm's heavy buying of Canadian Oil shares in the days leading up to Shell's takeover bid for the company Sept. 25.

The Toronto Stock Exchange said Nov. 2, 1963, it had found the investment firm guilty of a violation of its bylaws in the trading of Canadian Oil shares and fined the sitting member of Rennie, P. J. Anderson, president and director $15,000. It also suspended him as a member for one month.

The firm disclosed Oct. 11 that during a three-day period from Sept. 26-28 it purchased $16,000,000 in Canadian Oil stock for clients.

W. L. Somerville, executive vice-president of the exchange, said in a statement Thursday that the exchange's inquiry was directed at the manipulation of the capital position of the company by persons involved.

"The information available to us was the basis on which the firm was fined and suspended from trading. There has been no further information since that time which indicates that at the time the exchange was not fully aware of the circumstances."

J. E. Woolley, vice - president and a director of the investment firm, told The Telegram that "the auto-dated letter was not given to me for any purpose connected with the problem of my firm as a member of the exchange.

"The letter and the circumstances surrounding it were fully known to the board of governors of the exchange."

"All I will say now is that I at no time purchased shares for myself."

Mr. Gratstrom, in a statement issued to the press later in the day, said: "The entire question was written at a time when my company was publicly committed to offer to buy Canadian Oil shares from all shareholders.

"I understood the letter was to be used only as an assurance to the Woolley's senior partner and thus settle a competitive internal dispute in the Rennie firm, to whom we were then grateful for having entrusted itself to deliver to us, along with other firms, a substantial quantity of Canadian Oil shares.

"When I discovered that the letter had been used for an ulterior, an unauthorized purpose I made full disclosure of all the facts relating to the matter to the president of the Toronto Stock Exchange.

"I do not believe that anyone has in fact been deceived or damaged by the letter."

Education Not Enough

These days, continual stress is being laid on the necessity for young people to get all the education they can, in order that they may be equipped to find work in the increasingly demanding tasks of tomorrow's economy.

A pamphlet issued by authority of the Federal Minister of Labor says: "Every year of high school adds $338 a year to your income, and matriculation year alone adds $468 a year to your income. In lifetime earnings the value of a high school education over a grade school education is about $42,000."

It is obvious that these figures are dealing with averages, and averages, like co-incidences, are the very devil.

Just how devilish they may be is proven by a table in the same pamphlet, which shows the percentage of workers with elementary school, high school and university school education who fall into each of four income brackets, under $3,000, from $3,000 to $5,000, from $5,000 to $10,000 and $10,000 and over.

Without in any way questioning the desirability of every young person getting all the education possible, it seems to us that this table shows, quite clearly, that education alone is not enough.

One fifth of university students receive incomes of less than $3,000. The proportion is only slightly lower than that of high school graduates, 24 per cent. It is true that the proportion of those with an elementary school education who fall in this low income bacjet is very high, 43 per cent. But is it not true that all but the very dull are likely to receive at least some high school education?

One would expect, too, that most of the really brilliant students would reach university, and this may account for the fact that 15 per cent of university graduates receive $10,000 or more a year, compared with only 5 per cent of high school graduates and only two per cent of those with an elementary school education. A more likely reason, though, is that these figures reflect the fact that entrance into certain lucrative professions is confined to university graduates.

The largest group of university graduates gets between $5,000 and $10,000 a year. That is the salary range of the largest group with a high school education and the proportion, 37 per cent, is within shouting distance of the university graduates' 42 per cent.

If these figures prove anything, it surely must be that education helps, but that something must be added to it. We suspect that it is hard work — with a soupcon of luck.

This ought not to hinder anybody from going to university if at all possible. The value of a good education is always grossly under-estimated when evaluated solely in terms of money.

A 'Foreign Policy' State

Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman warned Malaysians, in his midnight speech formally launching the federation, that they must be ready to sacrifice their lives, to defend the country, wasn't kidding. Malaysia is another "foreign policy state" put together by a big power without reference to the opinions of neighboring states, for political or tactical purposes. Another example of a "foreign policy state", Israel, is still living under its neighbors' guns, and at peace only by grace of a U.N. police force.

The formation of the two countries is not exactly parallel. Nobody need be displaced by the formation of Malaysia, as was the case with the formation of Israel. There is no question of moving an alien people into the area, and little or no religious or racial conflict. There may be trouble though.

Malaysia is a confederation of four former British colonies, Sarawak, North Borneo, Singapore and Malaya. The four colonies were about due for independence, according to British thinking, but none of them could have stood alone. China, of course, is interested in any possible conquest in Asia. Indonesia has more specialized interests — she is interested in Sarawak and North Borneo. The Philippines claims North Borneo.

Together, with the strong support of Britain, these colonies as Malaysia can probably weather the storms that are sure to come. But if there is anything less than unity, the country must either be supported by the U.N., or fall to Indonesia and China. "Foreign policy" countries can survive only through their own strength or through the strength of their sponsors.

Peace Corps Dividends

London Times

When the American Peace Corps was being set up most of its discussion was about the contribution it would or would not make to the countries in which it worked.

Much less was heard about the contribution which its members could make to American life when they returned, although this had been very much in the minds of its originators. In the past few weeks the first batch of "veterans," as they are inevitably called, have been returning home.

To the surprise of those who used to scoff at them as woolly minded "do-gooders" and "draft dodgers," we also learned that they would be branded as such by employers, they are finding the labor market channeling for their services. Big corporations are impressed not only by their experience of living in countries, but, as one tycoon put it, by their "ability to take on tough jobs under extremely difficult conditions."

Government agencies also want them. So do universities, trade unions, and, of course, voluntary organizations.

This must be gratifying to those who had hoped that one of the most useful by-products of the corps would be a knowledge and experience which it brought home. If this fairly rapid are confirmed it is now well placed to supply the United States with a core of thoughtful people possessing a much more intimate knowledge of life in less developed countries than it has been generally available in the past.

False romanticism has been eschewed, and the original aims have been held to. Only about 10 percent of the returned are admitted, and of these nearly a quarter fall out during training.

Volunteers for the corps of the level of those they have been trying to recruit have frequently achieved a remarkable degree of personal contact with them. Many of their stories could have come straight from The Ugly American, in which the heroes involved in the irrigation methods of Asian peasants by showing them how to make a primitive pump.

There have been mistakes, failures and six deaths but the figures have it that there are now nearly 5,000 volunteers working abroad, and by January next there will be 9,000 in 44 countries.

Only one surprise (which is really not so surprising) remains. Many of the returning "veterans" are considering careers of big business in favor of teaching, study, or government service. It is interesting to see whether it becomes a habit of these new ambassadors to reject the commercial rewards of their own country.

Canada Really Young Nation

Hamilton Spectator

The latest birth rate figure for Canada, 28.3 per thousand, reminds us that as a country we are staying "young." Although there was a slight decline from the previous year in the number of children born, Canada's birth rate is still one of the highest in the Western world.

Most of the nation one goes outside Canada, to Europe, that the full impact of our youthfulness is felt. Certainly on the big streets of most European towns and cities there seems to be a preponderance of adults, particularly of the elderly and middle-aged. The same can scarcely be said of Canadian cities, where when "school is in."

How young we really are was shown in the last census in 1961. Then more than one third of Canada's population was under fifteen years of age. Nor was that all; about half of it was under twenty-four.

All this is wonderful for youth gives vitality and freshness to a country. It does, at the same time, present its special problems, notably the cost of education and eventually the provision of jobs.

For fourteen years after the war, the birth rate remained above 27.1 per. thousand. That was about seven per thousand of the population above the previous low. This increase has been responsible for the extraordinary pressure on our schools in the last decade. Universities can already hear marching feet of the increasing numbers who are approaching their gates and will soon be demanding admittance.

We should be glad. Youth is wonderful. We have an abundance of it.

Establishing a precedent in the annals of Belleville Fair, directors of the organization at a directors' meeting held Thursday evening voted to donate 25 per cent of the net proceeds of this year's exhibition to patriotic purposes. The money will be made available to various patriotic organizations, it was stated by fair officials, although no specific groups were mentioned at the time of the meeting. This is the first time such a gesture has been made on the part of Belleville Fair officials and is one which undoubtedly will meet with considerable approval from the different patriotic groups in the city and district.

Those from town privileged to attend the launching of the "Trentonian" in, Kingston on Wednesday were delighted with both the actual ceremony and the cordial way in which they were treated by Kingstonians.

Three Kinds Of Women

Ottawa Journal

Harry Golden, whose "Carolina Israelite" is one of the last outlets of personal journalism in North America, says there are three kinds of women and one subspecies.

"There are those who bake a good pie, those who bake a good cake and those who think they can make both equally well and usually wind up in the divorce courts." he writes in his column "Only In America." The subspecies is comprised of those who think cookies "the supreme concoction of the oven and fail to realize cookies are no food for a growing man." As Harry says, "The best that can be said for cookies is that they spoil a boy's dinner and this is all to the good dinner is eggplant."

Subspecies and all, Mr. Golden will admit he indulges in some oversimplification. What about those who bake both cakes and those who don't? How can we ignore the great distinction between the ladies who drive cars better than most men and those who, well, are women driven? Then there is the important classification of those who wear sensible shoes and those who would rather be caught in curlers than out of high heels.

Some women make a virtue out of being frightened by all mice, reptiles and rodents; others would intimidate a boa constrictor. There are Mayor Whitten, Mr. Speaker, who says we think it unladylike to vote.

And there is a man's wife and all the rest.

No, there are more than three kinds of women, Harry Golden. There are as many species as there are women.

Fear Cannot Unite Nation

Charlottetown Guardian

It is not fear that "enalteth a nation," or even proserves it. Canadians are not likely to live in closer harmony with one because they are afraid of what would happen if they parted.

Fear binds for a time, a weakness of the spirit, and then a reaction of the will. What is needed is a more positive realization of the values in the Canadian way of life that have the power to move the heart. The satisfaction of being a Canadian, in short, has to rest upon a far larger basis than thankfulness for not being an American.

Can't Answer Race Query

Winnipeg Tribune

A reply from an Alaskan local of the carpenters' union to the President's committee on equal employment opportunity deserves a wide circulation.

The anonymous author, with eloquence suitable to experienced in labor-government circles, analyses with clarity the stultifying proposition forced upon him by the president's committee which was seeking a racial breakdown of all carpenters in Alaska.

The union's secretary replied, "We are unable to completely fill out the form on an honest basis, as we are not anthropologists and we do not know when a member becomes or ceases to be a Negro, an Indian, an Oriental, a member of a minority group or any of the other designations in the form.

"For example, the treasurer of this local union, to the best of his knowledge, is part Negro, part Indian, part Jewish, part Irish and has perhaps a little Swedish blood mixed in. One of our officers is roughly in the same category.

"We do not desire to dissect the poor devils and put part of them in each one of these columns . . .

"Fortunately, we are a long way from Governors Wallace and Barnett and the man's race is none of our business.

"To quote Mark Twain. 'We do not allow any part of the law to outvote the other 15 parts', as they do in the Deep South."

Out of all the thousands of forms returned to the committee, tidily separating Americans into their component parts, perhaps the Alaskan carpenters' reply probably will choke the computer.

Just the same, it is one of the most sensible and dignified observations recently recorded on racial roots.

That Alaskan carpenter would be a handy man to have on Canada's bilingual-bicultural probe.

He would be handy, too, for Manitoba's centenary committee.

Someone has to speak up for that population group, seldom represented in any racial symposiums, who refuse to regard themselves as Canadians.

Women gained their first limited federal suffrage in Canada 46 years ago today —in 1917—with the passing of the Wartime Elections Act. This gave the vote to women who had close relatives in the armed services overseas. Universal enfranchisement came in the following year but because the Klondike Liberal Party had already federal franchise, women in New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Quebec still had no provincial vote. Provincial franchises came in New Brunswick in 1919, in P.E.I. in 1922 and in Quebec in 1940.

Numerous Irritants Can Cause Post-Nasal Drip

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes nasal drip? Why does it sometimes produce infection? What is the relation, if any, to spastic colon? — E. H. W.

I presume you mean forward through the nose, not into the back of the throat, in which case it is "post-nasal drip."

An irritant (an allergy, a sensitivity to fumes, possibly excessive smoking) is a likely cause. Or there may be some obstruction of the upper nasal passages due to deviated septum, polyps or other factors preventing normal nasal drainage into the throat.

The probable connection between the drip and infection is that the mucus will normally be irritation of the membranes makes them more vulnerable to such transient germs as may be present.

If the spastic colon is a result of allergy (as may sometimes be the case) then there might be a relation between the nasal drip and the spasticity. Otherwise, there's no connection.

Dear Dr. Molner: What about reducing the bust? I have read that in England a new type of operation is performed for this. — Mrs. H. L.

That is being performed in the United States, but it is not as simple as you make it sound.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: Can peasoup mean anything as a cold? If so, how can a person avoid it?

— D. J.

Well, there are many kinds of colds and various kinds of pneumonia. Lung infection (pneumonia) is usually called pelog, especially if there is fever and a cough, rest in bed for a day or so. This can shorten the cold and help prevent involving the lungs.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: What does a person's system need to fix a mosquito bites from being so poisonous? I love the outdoors, but my ankle or elbow will swell up so tight as the result of bites that it seems as though the skin might break. Would the suction cup of a snakebite kit help? — R. B.

Some people are unusually sensitive to the toxin of a mosquito bite.

Have you tried insect repellents? These have proved to be effective if used properly and according to instructions.

The snakebite kit does not have been proved to be. Incision cup is used in conjunction with cuts to encourage bleeding and thus release some venom from the body. This would hardly be warranted for a mosquito bite.

Perhaps a dab of an alkali may help somewhat — baking soda or a weak ammonia solution.

However, repellents probably are the best answer. Some can be used on clothing, while others are applied directly to the skin.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there any way to get rid of "Stretch marks" after losing 40 pounds. Can one prevent them? — E. G.

There's no way to get rid of them, but the color gradually fades. They are not a result of losing weight, but of having gained it — the skin fibers were broken due to stretching from excess fat. Some people are much more likely to have this than others. Losing slowly is preventive is avoiding excess weight.

Strictly Personal

Requests Paragraph on "True Facts"

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A reader has suggested that I incorporate in my next "predictions" column a paragraph about the use of the phrase "true facts." He insists, and I myself, that this phraseology is a common error, since anything that is really a fact has to be "true."

Grammatically speaking, he is correct. We use many redundancies in speech, and among some of them come out of ignorance or sloppiness or the need of emphasis. A few like "true facts," can be defended.

Why does anyone say he wants the "true facts" instead of merely "the facts"? What he means, I think, is that he wants more than the facts — he wants the true significance underlying them.

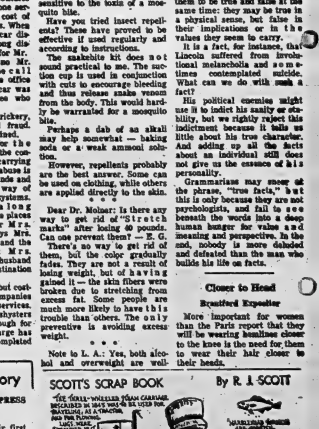
We all know how master propagandists, orators, politicians and advertising men can take facts (all of them true in themselves) and give them together to give a totally false picture of a situation.

All of us, at times, have been overwhelmed in conversations with persons who seem to have all the facts about a particular problem in their possession. They can recite them off glibly and yet their position and conclusions do not satisfy us.

This is because facts do not satisfy us. We are often in the strange position of believing them to be true and false at the same time: they may be true in a physical sense, but false in their implications or in the values they seem to carry.

It is a fact, for instance, that Lincoln suffered from involuntary convulsions and sometimes contemplated suicide. What can we do with such a fact?

His political enemies might use it to indict him for mental stability, but we rightly reject this indictment because it tells us little about his true character. And adding up all the facts about an individual still does not give us the essence of his personality.



Grammarians may stoop at the phrase "true facts," but this is only because they are not psychologists, and fail to see beneath the words a deep human hunger for value and meaning and perspective. It is why nobody is ever quite satisfied and defeated than the man who builds his life on facts.

Foundation on Automation Is Organized to Deal With Problems of Social Change

TORONTO (CP) — Plans for establishment of a foundation on automation were announced Thursday by Labor Minister Rowntree at the closing session of a three-day conference on social change and automation.

He told more than 500 delegates the new foundation will "investigate and deal with the human and social problems associated with the introduction of automation and a rapidly changing technology."

Members of the steering committee named by Mr. Rowntree to establish the foundation are:

Professor Arthur Porter, chairman of industrial engineering, University of Toronto; H. E. Shepherd, manager of training and salary administration for the Canadian Westinghouse Company Limited; Dr. D. Wood, professor of economics and director of the industrial relations centre, Queen's University; Dr. O. M. Solandt, vice-president, Canadian Canada Limited; Russell Harper, representative of the International Union of Office Employees (CLC); Dr. F. S. Rivers, chief director of the provincial department of education; James Black, eastern Canadian director of building trades; J. R. Metivier, deputy minister of the Ontario department of labor and S. W. Clarkson, deputy minister of the department of economics and development.

Mr. Rowntree said additional appointments will be made during the next few days.

He said the foundation would be established and supported initially by the Ontario government but expressed hope that it would be expanded through the voluntary participation of management, labor, service organizations, universities and all who are concerned with automation problems.

"Part of the foundation's responsibility will be an early warning system to limit and control undesirable effects of new technology. This system will be a clearing house through which we will receive advance notice of impending changes in factories and operations in order to provide us with sufficient time to work out alternatives to unemployment caused by automation."

Mr. Rowntree said the foundation would discuss such a system with the federal government and the national employment service.

25-Cent Hike In Sugar Price Is Announced

MONTREAL (CP) — Three major sugar refineries—Canada and Dominion, Atlantic and St. Lawrence — Thursday announced a 25-cent increase in the wholesale price of refined sugar, bringing it to $13.40 a 100-pound bag.

The increase is the third this week. Monday the price was increased 30 cents and Tuesday 25 cents.

The price is determined by the level of raw sugar prices on the world market in London.

The price of refined sugar has changed 70 times since Jan. 1, 43 increases and 22 decreases. Last May 22, the price was the highest since 1920, $17.65 a 100-pound bag. It was $9.10 Jan. 1.

Did Not Want To Ship on Cutter Anymore

NEW YORK (AP)—A U.S. Coast Guardsman went on trial before a court-martial Thursday, charged with shanghaiing about a dozen fellow dry dock and the mission going ship that rustled upon it.

Forty crew members escaped Dec. 19 and remained at $1,000,000.

The defendant, Harry D. Lane, 24, of Pendleton, N.Y., a boatswain's mate third class, was accused of having, wilfully, damaged the Coast Guard cutter Taney—by remaining he did not want to ship on it any more.

The sinking occurred March 14 in Brooklyn where, the Coast Guard charged, Lane opened flood valves on the drydock in which the 205-foot cutter was undergoing an annual overhaul.

The Coast Guard said the penalty upon conviction could be five years at hard labor, total forfeiture of all pay and allowances, reduction to the lower rank and dishonorable discharge.

WON'T SEE PAUL

NAPLES, Italy (AP)—Alexei Adzhubei, Premier Khrushchev's son-in-law, who saw Pope John XXIII privately in an unprecedented Vatican audience in March said Thursday he would not try to see Pope Paul VI. Adzhubei, chief editor of the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia, arrived in Naples aboard the Soviet liner Litva, which is serving as a floating convention hall for a journalists' conference.

La Phalange Society Seeks To Establish Independent State in Que. Says Paper

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says the eight-second French - Canadian Society La Phalange aims to establish an independent French and Roman Catholic state incorporating eastern Ontario, Quebec and all of New Brunswick and is planning to form a political party.

The newspaper, in a story from Quebec City, says La Phalange claims a membership running into the tens of thousands in the area to be covered by the proposed state of Laurentia.

In a report of an interview with Leo Tremblay, 63-year-old monsic importer who has testified that he is a member of the group, the newspaper says La Phalange hopes to run candidates in all 95 ridings in the next Quebec election.

Existence of La Phalange became known when Mr. Tremblay appeared in a Quebec City court last month as a crown witness in the preliminary hearing of 10 members charged with theft of a plaque commemorating the 1939 royal visit to Canada Man-Paul Matte, 24, and his brother, Rene, 28, were charged with the theft.

During the hearing Mr. Tremblay identified himself as a member of La Phalange and described it as a group of Roman Catholics dedicated to "fighting atheism—particularly free masonry."

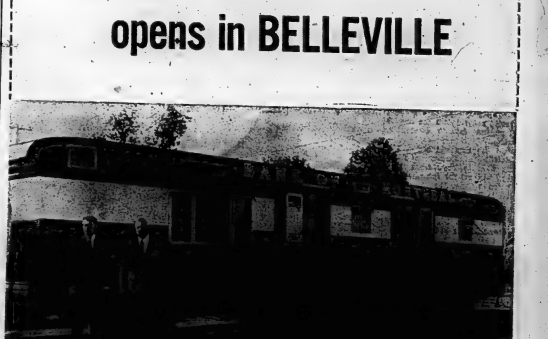
The newspaper story says Mr. Tremblay would not identify himself as a leader of the group.

"We are still partly a secret society and we will tell just as much of ourselves as we want to and no more," he was quoted as saying.

The newspaper report says Mr. Tremblay expressed the view that many French-Canadians oppose the economic, social and educational program being undertaken by the present provincial government.

It says he described Premier Jean Lesage as "the most evil politician that French Canada has known since 1867."

"The biggest enemy of Independence is not the English-Canadians, it is Jean Lesage."



Mr. Tremblay resigned in 1948 as chief of a young Liberal group to join Quebec's Union Nationale party. In 1958 he was unsuccessful in a bid for nomination as a Progressive Conservative candidate in Quebec East riding for a federal election. Last April he ran as an independent candidate in the riding during the federal election.

Sukarno

announcement said that while the Sukarno government deplored Wednesday's anti-British rioting here, the violence was a reply to Tuesday's burning of the Indonesian Embassy in Kuala Lumpur, Malaya, and the trampling of the Indonesian coat of arms by Malaysian demonstrators.

Reliable Indonesian government sources said Sukarno was waiting for the return by left-wing-dominated unions of British commercial firms and installations which the unions took over early this week.

WILL STAY ON

However, with the situation calm, some British firms told British officials at their local Indonesian "command post" that certain Britons down for evacuation would be staying on.

Indonesian police and troops were under orders to shoot to kill if necessary to break any further rioting.

Malaysia came into being Monday and includes Malaya, Singapore, Sarawak and Sabah (formerly British North Borneo).

From the start, Indonesia and the Philippines have been the chief opponents of the federation. Indonesia charges it is a "neo-colonialist" British plot to maintain sovereignty over former colonies with the Manila government claims Sabah.

ested an enlarged Security Council and development of UN peace-keeping forces.

The Conservative leader said the bigger Security Council was "a laudable objective without possibility of acceptance." Russia had always insisted that Communist China occupy the security council seat now occupied by Nationalist China before any change could be made in the UN charter.

OFFERS LARGER FORCE

Regarding the peace-keeping forces, Mr. Diefenbaker suggested Mr. Pearson was offering in enlarge Canada's contribution to such a UN force.

"Personally I think before Canada determines on any increase in her forces, whether for peace purposes or otherwise, that the whole defence policy should have been discussed and considered by Parliament."

The question of more Canadians for UN peace - keeping should come before the special Commons defence committee, said.

On the domestic scene, Mr. Diefenbaker said western farmers want to know what price they will get for the wheat involved in Canada's record wheat sale to Russia.

Discussing the issues likely to come before Parliament when it resumes Sept. 30, Mr. Diefenbaker said one will be the Canada Pension Plan. The plan had been introduced earlier in the session "without proper examination and without full knowledge of its implications."

BLAMES OUTSIDERS

Shortly before Kennedy announced the appointments, Bostwell told reporters much of Birmingham's troubles were caused by "outsiders both white and colored" who "have come in here and agitated to the point where they have made our people more tense."

Kennedy said the FBI and city authorities are making "massive efforts to bring to justice the persons responsible for the bombing on Sunday and previous incidents."

Bostwell said he asked for the meeting Monday in hope of portraying to Kennedy what he called the true story of Birmingham.

As white and Negroes continued to peacefully to desegregated schools in four Alabama cities, a relatively quiet day produced these other developments:

1. A student boycott at one newly integrated Birmingham school began to fade as enrolment approached normal.

2. Negro Vivian Malone, admitted to the University of Alabama last June 11 under an edict of federalized national guardsmen, enrolled for the fall semester without incident.

Robarts

vincial Liberals.

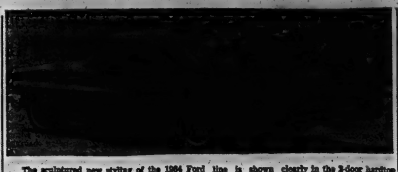
Her feud with Premier Robarts broke out when the two came out of the conference on pension telling conflicting stories about whether the premier had made his stand clear.

His statement he'd go over her head and deal directly with Prime Minister Pearson on the issue. Thursday he added: "I'll charge in any time, any place, anywhere if the interests of the people of Ontario are involved."

Meanwhile Miss LaMarsh, speaking on behalf of the Liberal candidate in Windsor-Sandwich, spent most of her time talking about the federal pension plan, and said it was of the utmost importance the scheme not be weakened by provincial programs.

Speaking in Whitby Thursday night, the premier again accused the Liberals of "grossly misinterpreting" his stand on pensions and said that "when the dust and fury of the election has subsided, I am sure I'll be able to go to Ottawa and deal with Prime Minister Pearson and some of his reasonable people. . ."

He shrugged off statements by Mr. Winternmeyer in Ottawa earlier in the day that he was "running scared" in the election campaign and resorting to personal abuse of the Liberal leader.



Mr. Winternmeyer, in Kingston, drew the biggest and most enthusiastic crowd so far in his campaign, and returned to the theme of government scandals in his speech.

He said he would ask R. J. Cudney, who quit last week after more than 18 years as deputy provincial secretary, to return and help scrape off Tory whitewash and clean up the mess.

He specified as needing immediate attention profiteering in Northern Ontario Natural Gas Company stocks, and recent revelations relating to Spell Oil Company's takeover of Canadian Oil Company last year.

In Windsor, NDP Leader Stephen Lewis said the movement of much of the Ford Motor Company of Canada's operation from Windsor to Oakville, cutting its number of Windsor employees to 4,000 from 18,000 in 10 years, was irresponsible.

An NDP government, he promised, would review such decisions to move and assess them in terms of what was best for the community being abandoned.

The sculptured new styling of the 1964 Ford line is shown clearly in the 3-door hardtop model seen here. All 1964 Ford models feature the look of luxury and total - performance engineering including a range of engines from the economical six cylinder through the powerful V-8 engines. Durability, lower maintenance and a further improvement in the Ford's traditionally smooth ride are characteristics of the 1964 Ford. The new Fords will be seen in dealer showrooms later this month.

TV PROFITS HUGE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The television industry reported almost $1,500,000,000 in broadcast revenues for the calendar year 1962, the Federal Communications Commission said Thursday. Gross revenues of the three U.S. networks, their 15 stations, and 388 other stations, totalled $1,486,300,000. This was an increase of $157,900,000, or 12.1 per cent, over 1961. Industry profits before federal income taxes were above $300,000,000, up almost one - third from 1961.

Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD—Ray MacKinnon, newly elected president of the Campbellford Lions Club, conducted the business portion of the meeting here last week.

During the evening, 100 per cent attendance buttons were presented to 13 members who achieved a perfect attendance record last year. The men receiving the buttons were: Al Ansbury, Robert Bennett, Leslie Baker, James Clark, Leith Cron, Anthony Casley, Harry Cobitt, Vincent Harrington, Bruce Sharpe, William Oliver, Ray Sharpe, Harry Nicholas, John Roberts, Joseph Poulton Sr., and Robert K. Thompson.

Donald Hughes is the new secretary for the coming term. James Clark, the retiring secretary, was presented with a secretary's plaque for his service to the club.

The club decided to continue its monthly suit draw which has become popular during the past few years. The first draw will be held on September 30th.

Twenty-three members visited the Havelock club on September 3rd, guests of the Havelock Lions at their annual fish fry.

A zone meeting of representatives of all district clubs will be held in Campbellford on September 24th, when a large number of out-of-town visitors will be in attendance.

"Everyone's switching to Canadian products"

WISE shoppers know that every dollar spent on Canadian goods keeps Canadians working. This is one big reason why everyone is switching to Canadian goods.

A second reason is that many imported products have a Canadian equal in price, design and quality. Canada now produces almost everything.

If each of us in Ontario diverted an additional $2 a week from imported to domestic goods, the result could total $600,000,000 in new Canadian manufacturing and that should create 60,000 new jobs.

To keep our economy strong, to make better job opportunities, and to create jobs for young people, we all must look at the label before we buy. If the price, design and quality are right, buy the product that is marked Made in Canada.

Buy a hippo if you must, but before you do consider the Canadian alternatives. It's in your own best interest. You help yourself, your neighbour and the whole province by switching to the product made here.

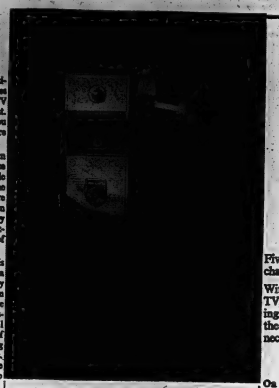
Monitron 500 TV has 2-year picture tube guarantee

PHILIPS
takes the time to build the best



Canada's first!

Monitron—the unique, sensitive 'electronic brain' that gives its name to the 1964 Philips TV line—does far more than that. It allows Philips to give you Canada's first 2-year picture tube guarantee.

Damaging power surges in household current take place more often than most people suspect. It has long been the major reason behind premature picture tube burnout. When these power surges occur, they can also damage all of the expensive, high-voltage parts of your television set.

Philips engineers tackled this problem. In their search for a solution they turned to a study of lightning arrestors used on overhead power lines. These protective devices they discovered, successfully control the hundreds of thousands of volts unleashed by lightning bolts that strike hydro cables. Surely, they reasoned, the principle could be adapted to television.

The result is the Monitron, a tiny electronic device that arrests and tames power surges that reach your TV set. So comprehensive is the protection offered by the Monitron that now Philips gives you Canada's first 2-year picture tube guarantee. In addition to longer picture tube life, Monitron TV by Philips means greater viewing pleasure. By keeping voltage output constant, Monitron eliminates "Picture Squeeze"—the shrinking picture that results when voltage drops. Combined with Philips other exclusive features it gives you a steadier picture and greater dependability.

Electronic eye in your living room?

One of the most unusual features of Philips 1964 Monitron 500 TV is a tiny electronic eye positioned at the top of the control panel. It measures the light in your room and automatically adjusts the picture contrast to the right level. Whenever the room light changes, the 'Automatic Contrast' device automatically changes the contrast to suit it. If manual control is preferred however, you simply click off the 'Automatic Contrast' and use the normal contrast control. To see this striking feature in operation, place a burning match, or your hand, in front of the electronic eye and watch the contrast change.

Philips franchised dealers offer QSG

At first glance, the initials QSG may not mean much to the average television shopper. They mean a great deal, however, to the man who knows his Philips Dealer.

QSG are initials that stand for Quality, Service, Guarantee. The 1,000 Philips Franchised Dealers have made these initials their motto. To earn their franchise, your Philips Dealer met the toughest set of standards in the television industry.

Most members of the Philips 1,000 have been Philips Dealers for many years. They were chosen for their courtesy, integrity, ability and willingness to provide you with responsible follow-through service.

When you see the Philips symbol, you can be sure of Quality, Service, and the industry's most complete Guarantee.

Monitron 500 and guided missiles have something in common

The age of space has done a lot for those of us right here on earth—as well as Geostationary. Technological advances as a result of rocket research keep popping up all over the place.

One of the most important of these advances has been in the area of printed circuit wiring. A printed circuit has the wiring "printed" onto a special plate—eliminating those loose wires that used to stretch from one connection to another.

There are many advantages to this form of wiring, obviously. It saves space, for one thing. It also saves weight.

Most important, however, is the degree of dependability that can be expected from a printed circuit. Since rocket or guided missile failures are expensive (to say the least) every component must stand up. Printed wiring does.

Because of this dependability, printed circuit wiring has been adopted for use in every Philips Monitron TV. A special process, developed by Philips, brings this same space-age dependability to your television set, takes the worry out of circuit failures. Philips takes the time to build the best.

Vertical and Horizontal Controls Eliminated

New Push-button control panel different from any other

A glance at the control panel to the right is one way to appreciate the remarkable changes Philips introduces for 1964 with its Monitron 500 TV line.

At the top of the panel is a device found only on the Monitron 500. It is an electronic eye designed to measure the light in your room. These measurements are relayed to Philips 'Automatic Contrast' Control which then automatically adjusts the picture contrast on your screen for perfect viewing.

Below the lighted channel indicator is another push-button feature. Marked "speech/music", this button allows you to choose the optimum sound frequency range for musical and speech programmes.

The third button from the top is called a Mute. It allows you to cut the sound in and out without disturbing the picture. Whenever, for example, your phone rings during a program, you press the button and sound is silenced. When the call is over, you press it again, and the sound is restored instantly. Annoying commercials can also be effectively dealt with.

Below the Mute button is the 'Automatic Contrast' Control. This enables you to switch off the electronic eye at the top of the control panel and use Philips manual contrast control.

Under the "off-on" push-buttons are the volume and tone controls. The volume control puts-a wide sweep of power at your fingertips while the continuously variable tone control allows you to get precisely the right shade of sound from your Philips Monitron 500 TV.

Picture brightness and manual contrast are adjusted by the next knob.

The channel selector and fine tuning control are at the bottom of the panel.

Philips announces five 'features of the future'

AUTOMATIC TV BECOMES REALITY

Five automatic 'features of the future' are likely to change your viewing habits forever.

With the introduction of Philips 1964 Monitron 500 TV, the phrase "automatic TV" takes on new meaning. Gone are vertical and horizontal controls, gone is the need for manual contrast adjustment, gone is the necessity for fine-tuning after every channel switch.

C-83—THE ARTISAN 25" Console with tasteful cabinet in contemporary design. Finely cut filigree grille. High fidelity sound through Philips exclusive Nova Sonic Duo-Cone speakers. Cabinets in Swedish Walnut and Light Walnut; Soft Loatre Walnut and Mahogany. Features 12" Woofer and special 3" Tweeter.

Constantly Steady Picture

On ordinary TV, manually operated vertical and horizontal controls are necessary. They keep the picture from rolling over or slipping sideways. Philips New 'Vistmatic Picture Lock' does the job automatically.

'Vistmatic Picture Lock' offers the viewer a rock-steady picture. No matter how strong the interference, the picture in your Monitron 500 TV set will not roll or tear. With Philips Monitron 500 TV in your home, there's no irritating knob twiddling to get and keep a good picture.

Electronic Eye Contrast

Another important feature of Philips Monitron 500 TV for 1964 is 'Automatic Contrast'. This unique device automatically measures the light in your room, automatically keeps the contrast of your TV picture at a desirable level.

As your room grows dark, the electronic eye on the control panel measures the light level and adjusts the contrast of your TV picture. Turn on the light, and the "magic eye" goes into operation again. For a graphic demonstration of this feature, simply hold a burning match or your hand in front of the electronic eye and watch the contrast change.

Black is Black

'Optimatic Brightness' is another exclusive Philips automatic feature. Everyone who has watched his night movies has seen the picture disappear when the screen goes dark.

Usually, you miss the scene before you get a chance to adjust your set. Now 'Optimatic Brightness' senses the change and automatically adjusts the black level so that the picture detail is clear even in the darkest night scenes. You don't miss a thing.

Set Fine-Tuning Once

Fine-tuning your television set has long been a nuisance. On most sets it is necessary to re-set the fine-tuning whenever you switch channels. This isn't the case with Philips Monitron 500 TV.

Philips front-mounted fine-tuning control, 'Memomatic Tuning', allows you to fine-tune every channel when your set is first installed. And then get perfect pictures without any further adjustment.

No More Shrinking Picture

Picture shrink or stretch occurs when household current fluctuates (a common occurrence).

In every Philips Monitron TV, this fluctuation is regulated by a tiny, incredibly sensitive instrument. Called a Monitron (its name was given to the entire 1964 Philips line) this device works like a thermostat to give you a picture that is always exactly right.

PHILIPS

This is the Philips emblem. Respected all over the world, it represents an important component found in every product that bears the Philips name. That component is quality; quality that is the result of research and testing, quality that results in truly superb, dependable performance. Fifteen hundred Canadians and a 22 acre manufacturing plant in Leaside, Ont. are devoted to building Philips famous quality products for Canadians.

Monitron 300 - for traditional quality, popular price

Philips Monitron 300 TV delivers performance unmatched by any television set in its price class.

A tall order? Take a look at the facts.

The Monitron 300 has an all-new chassis, designed right here in Canada (and Philips has designed more television sets than any other company in Canada).

This new chassis is the result of 10 years' research, research that brought about—among other things—a completely new circuit design and components designed specifically for the Monitron 300.

One of the most important and expensive components is the picture tube. The Monitron 300 tube carries Philips exclusive 2-year guarantee. It's your insurance that you will not be faced with expensive (up to $100) replacement bills if your picture tube fails prematurely.

Another important component is Philips special Frame Grid Tube. This tube ensures an unwavering signal and steady picture that will not fade in sensitivity with the years.

People now having trouble with fringe area reception will welcome yet another feature of Philips Monitron 300 TV—the Long Distance Cascode Tuner.

The Tuner pulls in weak signals that would otherwise be lost to give you improved reception no matter where you're located. It also reduces drifting and "snow" to a minimum.

Two more of the many additional features offered by Philips Monitron 300 TV are TV's most efficient speakers and an air-cooled chassis.

The speakers (with Ticonal Steel Magnets) are noted throughout the world for their exceptional high quality while the new chassis is air-cooled for longer component life.

When you add them all up, the facts about Philips Monitron 300 speak for themselves; performance unmatched by any television set in its price class; traditional quality at a popular price.

No more fine-tuning fiddle

Fine-tuning, the time-wasting, temper-teasing business of getting your television picture "just right" each time you change channels is a thing of the past.

Philips engineers have taken the fiddle out of tuning with their remarkable 'Memomatic Tuner'. Conveniently located on the front of the set the 'Memomatic Tuner' on the 1964 Monitron TV series allows you to fine-tune each channel once—then forget it.

On the day your new Monitron TV set is installed, you simply turn it on, tune in each channel and fine-tune it. Under ordinary circumstances, all channels will stay perfectly tuned.

You then have nothing to do but switch on your Monitron TV, select a channel, sit back and enjoy fiddle-free viewing.

'Optimatic Brightness' throws new light on night scenes

by Clyde Gilmour

Clyde Gilmour is movie critic and record columnist for Maclean's Magazine and the Toronto Telegram, and a veteran broadcaster. His weekly hour-long record program, "Gilmour's Albums", has been a popular feature on CBC network radio since 1956. His personal collection of recordings is one of the largest and most diversified in Canada.

The 1964 Monitron 500 TV by Philips puts an end to one TV trait that often leaves TV viewers in the dark.

A good example is provided by old movies being re-run on TV. The reception is perfectly acceptable until the action switches to a night scene. Suddenly everything on the screen becomes a dark grey blur.

By the time you, the viewer, have adjusted for this sudden change the scene is over and you've literally been left in the dark about what took place.

This has been eliminated by Philips through the inclusion of an 'Optimatic Brightness' circuit which actually senses the changes in the picture and instantly adjusts for it. You can be sure of catching all of the action no matter how dark the picture becomes.

The Philips Monitron 500 makes of high-fidelity television receivers deserves an honest recommendation for the benefit of people who strongly feel, as I do, that the things to be HEARD on television are often just as important as the things to be SEEN.

Musical attractions ranging from opera and symphonies to jazz and sing-alongs have always been prominently featured in the TV program schedules. Usually, however, the sound or "audio" impact of these presentations has compared weakly with the visual, as far as the domestic viewer or listener is concerned. At hi-fi shows which I have attended in Toronto, New York and London, audio enthusiasts have repeatedly expressed contempt for the sverage calibre of sound on TV.

What good is it, for example, to fill the screen with intimate close-ups of a guitarist's fingers or a prima donna's tonsils or the synchronized elbows of a string quartet . . . if the SOUND accompanying these images is only a thin, distorted mockery of the real McCoy?

Recently I began testing in my own home a handsome Britishwood model selected from the new Philips television line.

By a wide margin it delivers the finest sound I have ever heard from TV.

Crisp highs and solid lows are smoothly blended into a homogeneous pattern. Speech sibilants are sharp and "live", but without the lacerating whistles which can be so tiresome to the ears. Through Philips' Nova Sonic speakers a piano really sounds like a piano, not like a spinet under water. Full orchestral chords are distinct and "juicy" instead of dissolving into a blurry rattle.

Visually, too, the new Philips receivers are impressive. The images are notably clear and natural, and the picture controls are at the front within easy reach instead of being at the back or side.

One convenience I especially admire is the automatic Picture Lock, which puts an end to vertical roll-over and sidespin. Another is the push-button "Mute" switch, permitting temporary cutting-off of the sound without the bothersome necessity of "tuning up" again after a telephone call or other interruption.

Monitron TV has laboratory hi-fi sound

For those interested in true high fidelity reproduction Philips Monitron 500 delivers exceptional sound performance, surpassing that of many so-called stereo high fidelity sets. In fact, laboratory tests establish the frequency range as 25 cycles at the low end and 25,000 cycles at the high end of the sound spectrum.

Philips speakers, made to exacting specifications in Philips world renowned acoustical laboratories, have expensive professional-type Ticonal steel magnets and the latest in twin speaker cones, one to handle the "highs" and the other to handle the "lows".

PARKS — BIRD

Holloway Street United Church, Belleville was the scene of a lovely wedding recently when Norma Faye Bird, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay Bird, Belleville was united in marriage to Ronald Earl Parks, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Parks, also of Belleville. The Rev. O. E. Wager officiated before a setting of pink and white gladioli, while white satin bows designated the guest pews.

Traditional wedding music was rendered by organist Mrs. Barkley who also accompanied the soloist Miss Audrey Elgie in her renditions of "O Perfect Love" and "The Wedding Prayer" during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a floor-length gown over-laid with lace and appliqued with the bodice enhanced with a pearl edged scalloped neckline, adorned with sequins and long lily-point lace sleeves. The back of the skirt was highlighted with tiers of lace. A four-tier scalloped edged veil flowed from a headdress with circular veil accents with sprays of stephanotis. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and white feathered carnations intermingled with ivy.

Mrs. Shirley Preston, sister of the bride, as maid of honor was gowned in turquoise nylon over taffeta sheath dress. The skirt was highlighted with a bouffant and net over-skirt with rose and leaf appliques down the front. She wore a matching flower headdress with circular veil and carried a cascade bouquet of turquoise and white 'mums. The bridesmaids, Mrs. Jean Parks and Mrs. Laura Bird, both of Belleville, worn similar styles to that of the matron of honor, but in pink. Each carried a cascade of turquoise pink and white 'mums. There were two little flower girls, Miss Linda Bird, niece of the bride and Miss Heather Parks, niece of the bridegroom who were appointed identically in white nylon frocks with lace trim. They wore white headdresses similar to the attendants. Each carried a basket of turquoise and white 'mums centred with pink roses.

Mr. Wayne Parks, of North brook, brother of the bridegroom was best man, while Mr. Grant Parks also a brother of the bridegroom, of Belleville and Mr. Reginald Bird, brother of the bride were the ushers.

A reception was held in the church parlors where the bride's table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom under an arch of white flowers. Tall white candles and the bridal bouquet lent a colorful accent to the nuptial setting. The bride's mother received the guests wearing a dusty rose lace sheath dress with matching jacket, beige accessories and a corsage of white baby 'mums and pink roses. The bridegroom's mother assisted dressed in a blue flowered nylon sheer over taffeta sheath, matching blue and white accessories and a corsage of pink roses and white baby 'mums.

For the wedding trip through New York State to Lake Placid and the Adirondacks, the bride chose a white brocaded sheath with matching coat, black accessories and a corsage of red roses.

Guests were present from Northbrook, Madoc, Toronto, Brampton, Belleville, Stirling and Campbellford.

Prior to the marriage the bride was honored at a personal shower given at the home of Mrs. Laura Bird and at a linen shower at the home of Mrs. Jean Parks. The staff of Kelly's Drug Store also presented her with a chrome canister set, and matching bread box and garbage container, at the home of Mrs. Magee.

Mr. and Mrs. Parks are residing at 187 West Moira Street, Belleville.

Experts Say
Price of Gems up 25 To 50 PC in Ten Years

By PATRICIA RUSAK

TORONTO (CP)—Owners of valuable jewelry should have their gems reappraised, says one of Canada's leading gemologists.

Jonathan Fraleigh says that within the last 10 years, the price of gems has increased between 25 and 50 per cent. A stone appraised 10 years ago at $100 might be worth $150 today.

The colored stones — rubies, sapphires and emeralds—have increased in value more than other gems because their supply is slowly being exhausted while demand, in this country, where people have more money than ever to spend on luxuries, is increasing.

Diamonds have increased in value by about 25 per cent.

Mr. Fraleigh says the most notable trend in high - grade jewelry is the use of cultured pearls in opera (32-inch) or matinee (24 - inch) length strands.

These are expensive because pearl producers grade and match the 16-inch strands, which must then be split and carefully matched to make the more fashionable lengths.

There is also a trend to solid gold jewelry, with no stones. And clasps on necklaces have become much more intricate and elaborate in design.

CLOTHES SET PACE

Changes in jewelry design are influenced to a degree by clothing fashions, Mr. Fraleigh says. When the chemise dress came into style in the 1920's, people did long chains and strands of beads.

"A shift to a more-tailored look in fashions usually brings a shift to a more symmetrical and heavier antique - type of jewelry."

And well-publicized personalities or movies influence jewelry just as they do fashions. The movie Cleopatra, for example, inspired heavy ornate necklaces and jewelled collars, dangling earings and jewelled hair pins.

"But because fads are short-lived, high-quality gems are seldom used in such designs. The Cleopatra look is already dying out."

Mr. Fraleigh, who designs as well as appraises jewelry, says there is less tendency today than ever before to have pieces made to individual order.

But requests for bracelet charms to depict achievements or episodes in an individual's life are frequent. Mr. Fraleigh just finished designing a charm with a hand of cards for a man whose fiance is an avid card player.

STICK TO SILVER

If you're planning to start a charm bracelet, Mr. Fraleigh recommends sterling silver rather than gold because silver charms are less expensive.

A sterling silver bracelet with about 20 charms would have a value of about $705 but a gold bracelet of the same design and only four charms would be worth about $200. He recently appraised a gold charm bracelet at more than $800.

The principles of good jewelry design can be an aid when shopping for something special, Mr. Fraleigh says.

Stones of contrasting textures often do not complement each other. Almond and coral, for example, do nothing for each other.

The metal in which a gem is set must be considered. The warmth of topaz and coldness of white gold cancel rather than complement each other.

A yellow setting casts an undesirable tint on diamonds which, like sapphires, look most beautiful in a white setting.

Mr. Fraleigh feels the most beautiful of all gem combinations is that of pearl and turquoise.

Group Resumes Behaviour Study

The Health Department has recommended a series of parentcraft groups to which mothers are invited for informal discussion of any problems they may have with their children, especially younger children.

There is no fee or registration required, the purpose of these evenings being to help mothers who may have problems with behavior, feeding habits, training or discipline, that do not necessarily require a doctor's attention.

A group met recently and the next meeting will be on November 21st at the Public Health Department on Pinnacle Street. These meetings were initiated by, and will be continued at the request of the mothers attending.

Mission Circle Holds Meeting

The September meeting of the Vota Vita Mission Circle of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church was held in the church parlor. The president, Mrs. E. Burn, welcomed the members and visitors and turned the meeting over to the group in charge.

The devotion was given by Mrs. E. Demorest, who then introduced three young people to tell some of their experiences at two summer camps.

Miss Brenda Wynne was a counsellor at Camp Bolton, northwest of Toronto. It is supported by the Toronto Star Fresh Air Fund and other organizations. She told some of the happenings in an average day, and some of the heartbreak too.

The two young men were Robert Campbell and Wayne Soble. They were counsellors at the Toronto City Mission Fresh Air Camp at Bronte. This camp is supported by free will offerings.

An accordion solo was given by Miss Pauline Tucker.

The young people were thanked by Mrs. C. Pryor and the meeting turned back to the president for the business portion.

A social hour was enjoyed to close a pleasant evening.

Almost Impossible to Tune Out Bragging Parents

DEAR ANN LANDERS — There is a certain couple in our crowd who bore everyone to death with endless reports of what their children are saying and doing. They have two kids who are bright and attractive but the trait of us have kids of whom we are pretty proud too.

The mother carries the girl's themes in her purse and reads them at bridge luncheons. The father "happens" to have a letter in his pocket from the boy which was written when he was away at camp. They both carry pictures, dozens of them — and I have seen the same batch of pictures three times. They forget we've already read and heard what, and I for one, am mighty tired of the whole routine.

ANN LANDERS

These parents are not stupid, yet they are not even remotely aware that they are boring their friends to death. Any suggestions? — CAULIFLOWER EARS.

DEAR EARS — Isn't it awful when people won't stop bragging about their kids long enough to give us a chance to brag about ours? I know the type and they are insufferable.

There is no way to turn off proud parents. You may as well try to turn off the sun. If you just happen to have a couple of hundred pictures of your own kids handy it could break up the monotony.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'm 18 years old and training to be a nurse. I feel that I know my way around pretty well because I've been dating since I was 13 and have always been considered mature for my age.

Two months ago I began to take stock of myself. I counted 17 fellows I have actually gone steady with and there have been at least 20 others whom I dated two or three times. All I have to show for my popularity is a few beat-up rings, some cheap bracelets, dozens of pictures and lots of letters.

Six weeks ago I met an intern who is a real doll. He has been dating other nurses but I think he likes me best. The problem is I can't get any kind of commitment out of him. He won't go steady and refuses to discuss anything permanent. He says he is stone broke and can't think seriously about any girl at this time. How can I nail him? — EVE.

DEAR EVE — I wouldn't say an 18-year-old girl is exactly a candidate for the Old Folks Home. Why should you want to nail anybody?

Just because you've dated a small battalion of guys doesn't mean you're mature. It only means you've been busy.

You have chosen an excellent field for service and for meeting people. I suggest you put on the brakes and forget about marriage for a couple of years.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I read your views on giving a boy a permanent wave and I do not agree that is a bum idea. Listen to my story and you'll understand why.

When my son was 11 years of age I decided his hair would look much better curly instead of straight as a stick. So I gave him a permanent. From then on his hair was wavy and beautiful. All it needed was a little coaxing.

To this day (eight years later) my son has the prettiest wavy hair a person could wish for. Now, I ask you, sorry you told that young fellow to leave his hair alone? — DAILY READER.

DEAR DAILY — No, I am not sorry, and the advice stands. As for your son's hair remaining beautifully curly after the permanent you gave him eight years ago, there is no scientific reason for it. Hair grows out of the scalp either curly or straight. If your theory added up, one permanent would be all anyone would need.

* * *

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Fashion & Fad

BY pegg hagers

HOW MUCH DO YOU SPEND ON A DRESS?

To continue our inquiry into a workable fashion budget, my favorite book these days is one titled, "Working and Living Conditions in Canada," published by the Department of Labor. It reveals that the average retail price of a one-piece cotton street dress is $10.75. A medium quality dress of rayon should sell for $12.50, while a dress of lower quality should go for $13.50, according to the Government.

The results of our survey about the tastes and fashion budgets of the average Canadian woman support these assessment figures. The majority of our readers report that they pay from $10 to $15 for a summer dress and roughly twice as much for a fall and winter dress. It is interesting to note that as the price increases for summer dresses, the same formula exits for fall and winter dresses. The woman who is able to pay $40 for a summer dress will pay from $75 to $90 for a winter fashion. Naturally, this group is in the higher income bracket, but they all confess to wearing their clothes for five or more seasons. All of them say they employ dressmakers to alter their clothes in line with current fashion trends.

The question concerning sleeveless dresses shows a very interesting development. Naturally, most women over the age of 50 answered that they dislike dresses with no sleeves. This age group made up only about 17 percent of the total women questioned. Our grand total reveals that we are evenly divided on this question. Approximately 50 percent of our readers like sleeveless dresses and 50 percent will not buy them.

A similar, though less extensive survey conducted two years ago, showed that 70 percent of all Canadian women disliked the trend to no sleeves. Some of our readers commented that they wore sleeveless dresses only in midsummertime, welcoming their comfort, coolness and comfort. But even this acceptance of a controversial a fashion is a surprising development. When the sleeveless look first appeared on the dress market over ten years ago, the complaints from the buying public were deafening. It may seem to feel that if we can't beat them, we might as well join them.

The question of color preference reveals few surprises. Blue continues to be a favorite and many women are celebrating the second choice, beige. Browns, gold and yellow as a family are right on the list with green in fourth place and black edging out pink, which is last on the list. Contrary to most dress manufacturers' thinking, prints are not at the bottom of the barrel, finding favor with only one reader!

Next time, have a question on fashion, just write Pegg Rogers care of this paper.

U.C.W. Hear Talk Based On Taiwan

RAWDON — The regular meeting of Mount Pleasant Rawdon United Church Women was held on Thursday at the church hall with 19 members and two children in attendance. The program committee of Mrs. William McAdam and Mrs. Robert Merrick conducted the devotional based on "Hope". Mrs. Garth Joslin officiated at the piano. The program centred around a sing-song of favorite hymns and Mrs. Merry McAdam read a poem.

Mrs. Percy MacIntyre gave a synopsis of the third chapter of "On Asia's Rim" which centred around Taiwan. She said that the island of Taiwan formerly known as Formosa is one tenth larger than Vancouver, B.C. There are different levels of foothill country from coastal plains to mountain heights. A warm year round temperature and plenty of rain provide a growing season that is exciting to us for most crops. They have great export wealth in sugar cane, tea, bananas, pineapples, oranges, watermelons and hardwood trees.

TAIWAN HISTORY

The stream of history for Taiwan begins in 611 while in 1907 the Chinese claimed the mainlands as a part of their Empire. In 1624 the Dutch landed and in 1642 the Spaniards. By 1661 Cheng Kung took the island for the restoration in 1644 of the Ming dynasty. From 1895 to 1945 the Japanese controlled the island and thus the people here had a most eventful life. The population is now nearly 11 million. Education is free and compulsory. University professors receive the equivalent of $28 a month plus housing and a rice subsidy. There are many industrial workers but their main export is agricultural products.

Mrs. MacMullen described the four classes of people who live on the island and told a little of their lives. She also told of the founding of the religious situation. In 1960 Protestants had 223 ch.'s,ined pastors, 1,000 evangelists and 133 Bible women. Broadcasting has grown remarkably since 1951.

INTERESTING MESSAGE

Mrs. Herbert Smith gave a most informative and educational talk on her recent trip with a group of ladies from Cobourg Presbyterian. They all attended "Open House" at the Victor Home Missionary and Maintenance of the United Church. Then along with many others were taken on a guided tour of the building which has many new improvements in recent years. Mrs. Smith gave a vived picture of the handicraft room and displayed a hand smocked apron made by one of the girls.

Mrs. Donald Knight 1st vice-president took charge and voiced appreciative thanks to Mrs. MacMullen for her synopsis of the three study chapters this year; also to Mrs. Smith for the three missionary messages. Mrs. Knight also have thanks responsible for the Mission Study in February, May and September. Mrs. Knight also voiced thanks to the program committee and to the refreshment committee of Mrs. Milford Wrightman and Mrs. Gordon Linn.

Mrs. Ross Jeffs and Mrs. William McAdam gave their April topic. Robert H. Boaty read a letter from the Friendship secretary also messages of greetings and invitation to Springbrook tea and bazaar.

Mrs. Herbert Smith reported plans for the sale of work, gifts and one is to be placed in the church hall. Mrs. Kenneth Wright told of the new study book and programs available and it is expected that the fall rally in October will be held in St. Andrew's United Church, Marmora.

A harvest tea and bazaar will be held at the church hall on the 12th in October with a Thanksgiving program. Five nearby groups will be invited. An auction sale was held on Thursday evening to complete the plans.

The U.C.W. provided light refreshments at the Wrightman farm sale last Wednesday.

Mrs. Merry McAdam presided the hostesses Mrs. Linn and Mrs. Wrightman served a variety of tarts and tea.

SITTING QUIETLY

JACKSON, Mich. (AP)—Students attended classes quietly Thursday in racially integrated Parkside High School where police were poised with stones the day before. Principal George Kissel, 40, ex-marine and former college football player, delivered a gentle lecture to a student assembly. He asked for co-operation and urged "self-discipline."

Women's Activities

MINTO — The September meeting of Salem U.C.W. was held on Thursday evening in the hall with a good attendance. The president Mrs. E. Sine opened with a poem and welcomed everyone especially mentioning the guest speaker Mrs. R. Weaver and Mrs. H. Smith.

Several "thank-you's" were read and heard and correspondence dealt with. Mrs. H. Holden reported for visiting committee and Mrs. Orval Dickinson and Mrs. J. B. Hagerman were appointed visiting committee for next month. The October meeting is to be held at the parsonage. The St. Thomas Group asked for use of tables, which was granted. Plans for catering to booth at Msdoc Fair were discussed and cards distributed.

Mrs. Stanley Keller took charge of the program. Mrs. George Sine read a chapter of the Study Book entitled "Partnership in a Christian Community". Mrs. Lindsay Tanner led the reading. Mrs. Ken Weaver, vice-president of the West Region of the Presbyterial explained her duties, also presented all literature available for use and help in the U.C.W.

Mrs. Sine thanked Mrs. Weaver.

Lunch was served and a social hour enjoyed.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LOWES

EDUCATING THE BABY-SITTER'S BOSS

We know a thirteen-year-old who has just taken up baby-sitting, and already her problem is trying to get her to retire.

It's not that her mother is afraid she'll make mistakes. The youngster has been thoroughly checked out in the care and feeding of infants.

What bothers her is the lack of consideration some parents have for a sitter's time and other very important job. Very often, they rush off without leaving a complete address or forget to leave a phone number. Then don't show up in time to get the youngster home at the agreed time.

Caring for young children is a tremendous responsibility, and most teenagers in the profession know it only too well. Being conscientious, they want to carry out their assignments efficiently and safely. So parents can help them — and their charges — by remembering the following details:

Before leaving a sitter, make sure you give her a phone number where you may be reached in case of emergency. Other phone numbers that should be left in a convenient spot next to the phone should include those of the family doctor, the nearest hospital, the fire and police departments and a nearby neighbor.

Try to get young children settled down in their pyjamas before leaving, so the sitter won't have to wrestle them into their nightclothes. Leave a selection of tried-and-true books at hand so the sitter can read a favorite bed-time story to a child in case he gets restless.

FAVORED TOYS

It's also a good idea to let the sitter know which are the favorite toys of each child, so she won't have trouble finding the right one on demand.

If you expect to be in charge of an infant, make sure a supply of clean diapers is left on baby's dresser. Otherwise, the sitter won't have to plow into cabinets or drawers at a crucial moment. Be sure the sitter should know if and when the baby is to get a bottle, and any tidy procedure you have for such. Indeed, if he has trouble burping baby, how he should be put down — on his back or his stomach. Knowing what to expect and how to cope with each little problem helps give the sitter the good assurance she needs in this delicate job.

Leave a pad and pencil handy so the sitter may take messages while you're gone. Be sure courteous and considerate to invite her to have a snack if she feels hungry, and tell her what's available in the refrigerator.

Most teen-agers aren't permitted to sit beyond midnight on a weekday, so be sure to be home at the promised time. If you find you can't help being a bit late, phone so she'll know and so she, and her mother, won't worry needlessly.

Be sure she gets home safely. If it's necessary for her to take a cab, it's safer if one of the parents accompanies her and sees her right to her door.

Any consideration like this that makes a youngster feel more secure in her job, and gives her mother the confidence she needs to continue to let her do it.

QUESTION:

Would you please send me a recipe for canning pumpkin? — Mary P.

ANSWER:

CANNED PUMPKIN:

Cut or break apart pumpkin. Remove seeds and stringy fibres. Cut into pieces. Steam, bake or boil in small amount of water until tender. Scrape from skins and mash or sieve. Bring to boiling point, stirring constantly, adding a little water if necessary, to prevent scorching. Pack hot, leaving ½" headspace. Seal. Process in pressure cooker at 10 pounds pressure; 70 minutes for pints, 80 minutes for quarts. Pressure processing is essential when canning pumpkin.

QUESTION:

Have you a recipe for cocoanut tarts made with eggs, sugar, cocoanut, etc.? I have an ingredient left over after having jam in the bottom? I have been looking for one for years — M. H.

ANSWER:

I liked your question very much because when I made these tarts I sent every body who tasted them thought they were a sensation.

COCOANUT TARTS:

NOTE:

This recipe calls for 3 egg yolks but next Monday I am giving you a recipe for a small White Layer Cake calling for 3 egg whites, which I made with my 3 leftover egg whites. Also the amount of cocoanut filling given here is enough to fill 18 tarts. I made only 12 tarts to fill my standard tart pan so I had filling left over and used that for the filling for the white layer cake (see Monday, September 23rd).

Pastry: (sufficient for twelve 3" or 4" tarts): One and one-half cups sifted flour, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ cup shortening, 2 teaspoons butter, 4 teaspoons cold water. Cut shortening and butter into flour and salt until size of peas. Drop cold water in as you toss with fork until flour is barely dampened. Press dough into ball between palms. Roll out on floured board to ⅛" thickness. Cut out circles 3¾ or 4¾" in size and line tart tins neatly. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. about 8 or 10 minutes. Watch so as not to burn.

Filling: In saucepan mix together 3 tablespoons cornstarch, 1 cup sugar, ½ teaspoon salt. Stir in 1 cup boiling water and cook stirring until boiling, then cook 3 minutes longer, stirring. Stir a little into 3 beaten egg yolks and return these to saucepan and cook, stirring one minute longer. Remove from heat and beat until smooth. Now add ¼ cup butter or margarine, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 2 teaspoons lemon juice and 1 cup unsweetened (or sweetened) packaged cocoanut. Fill pastry shells with this extra cocoanut and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 15 to 20 minutes. Cool on rack.

Some filling will be leftover so you may want to make 18 tarts or use filling for white layer cake. See Monday, September 23rd.

Open Look for Shoes Features Fall Styles

By EDNA BLAKELY

OTTAWA (CP) — Milady's clearance is slipping.

Here for the threat of her footwear and people in the shoe-selling business are wondering just how far it will go.

The cleavage is part of the new open look for shoes. Many of the fall and winter styles have cutout openings on the sides, dip well down the foot in front and have open heels.

H. W. MacLean, shoe manager of the Hudson's Bay store in Ottawa first, says, however, there is "no immediate future for open toes."

"There's nothing particularly attractive about cleavage shoes."

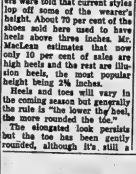
Some manufacturers who feel something is sacrificed in the fit of fully enclosed pumps favor narrow posts at the heel.

HEELS ARE HIGH

At a press conference reporters were told that current styles put heels at the wearer's height. About 70 per cent of the shoes sold here used to have heels that high, but now, Mr. MacLean estimates that now only 10 per cent of sales are in that height. The rest are medium heels, the most popular height being 2¼ inches.

Heels and toes will vary in the coming season but generally the rule is "the lower the heel, the more rounded the toe."

The elongated look persists but the toe has been gently rounded, although it's still a long way from the stubby rounded toe of five or six years ago.



"People like the elongated look but want to avoid extremes," Mr. MacLean said of the modified toe.

His advice for women: "Don't buy shoes that are one size."

He said shoe sizes have changed over the years with an increasing number of sizes and widths available. Handwork may alter the size slightly and, therefore, a shoe that may result in different - size shoes even though they are made on the same last.

Is Her Voice Really Gone?

By DORIS CLARE

DORIS CLARE

DEAR DORIS — As a young girl I sang soprano and my music teacher told me I would be in grand opera before I was 16. Lamenting this, my mother put a halt to all lessons unexplainably. I was terribly disappointed.

I never sang after that. Five years into the future and I am now on my own. I've tried to sing again as beautifully as I once had but my voice is gone, it seems. Is this possible? Is there no way I can train it again to what it once was? — RUSTY VOCAL CORD.

DEAR RUSTY — People keep warbling and working toward operatic careers well into their thirties. I cannot believe that your voice is gone, but the only way to really find out is to have it tested by a first class teacher.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — My son fell in love with a girl whose background is, to say the least, questionable. Not her fault, perhaps, but I'd like your opinion about her as a possible wife and mother.

She was raised by a step-aunt, as her mother died when she was born. The father had deserted before that. The aunt was elderly and not affectionate.

The girl is a store clerk. I hear she was somewhat promiscuous with the boys before she started going with my son. She is pretty and my son thinks she is wonderful.—DOUBTING DAD.

DEAR DOUBTFUL — Not enough clues. If early years were devoid of affection it could follow that the girl herself is cold. We are so made that we need to experience love before we can give it.

But if the aunt instilled good principles the girl may not be so shortchanged that she can't come through when life happens to her. I wouldn't judge on hearsay about her behavior with the boys. Get to know her better herself.

DEAR DORIS — Last summer I met a very wonderful guy whom I liked while his family was on vacation here. We got along marvellously until one evening he did something that annoyed me. I told him that he was a "selfish, spoiled, egomaniac." Like a fool, I treated him like a rat. After they left I almost cried. I realized I loved him and probably lost him.

This summer he went elsewhere for a holiday and his parents came here. His mother told me he had gone steady with a nice girl but it didn't work out. I went steady also but it didn't work out either. (Don't go steady — I speak from experience.) What I want to know is, how can I find out if he likes me? We aren't kids. He's a college freshman. Please help.—LOVESICK.

DEAR LOVESICK — Granted you care enough, apologize. If he cares enough, he'll be relieved and come back. Then you'll know he likes you.

DEAR DORIS — I have cataracts in both my eyes, which irritate very much at times, and I constantly have to rub them. I am nervous that I shall accidentally rub them when I have touched something which, if I rubbed it into them, would be harmful.

I have just had a large comforter dry cleaned. When I put it away in its transparent cover I noticed that my hands had a dry, gritty feeling like powder on them. After washing my hands they were soft again, but on touching the cover my hands were the same again, gritty.

Would you get some dry cleaner to tell you what chemicals they use in dry cleaning? — BAD EYES

DEAR BAD EYES — The pliofilm envelope which holds your comforter is merely a dust cover, for protection on the trip from cleaner to you — often a dusty trip at best. Dust is likely to cling to its smooth surface and feel gritty. Also to carry germs.

Your doctor is the one to ask; and the question is, should you ever rub those sore eyes? Get his suggestion for relieving their irritation without rubbing.

DEAR DORIS —

1. Is it proper for me to buy my best friend a going-away gift? I'm moving about 250 miles away. We are both 13 years old.

2. What do you think I could get her that's personal, and not expensive? Don't suggest perfume or anything related to perfume; she has a drawer full of it already. — BARS.

DEAR BARS —

1. Yes, if you buy it with your own money. A parting gift says "I'll miss you and I wish you well."

2. It's the thought that counts. A book she wants, a recording of her favorite singer, a pretty purse, a good pen, a pair of dressy white gloves, a box of stationery — any of these would let her know you cared about her.

* * *

(Even putting it on paper helps. Write a letter to Doris, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a five-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope for a private reply.)

Party Leaders on the Hustings

Judy LaMarsh Under Attack By Robarts

By JOHN LeBLANC

OSHAWA (CP)—Premier Robarts replied Thursday to Federal Health Minister Judy LaMarsh's latest jab at him by saying he will barge in anywhere in the interests of Ontario's old age pension plan participants.

Miss LaMarsh said Wednesday the premier barged in uninvited on the Sept. 9 federal-provincial pensions conference at Ottawa and made a grandstand play out of his appearance in an interruption of his stumping for his Sept. 25 provincial election call.

"I'll barge in any time, any place, anywhere, if the interests of the people in the province are involved," Mr. Robarts said at a press conference here.

He added that Prime Minister Pearson had asked him in August to send a minister to the Ottawa meeting and he had advised the prime minister in advance that he was going.

Mr. Robarts, who had stated earlier he hopes to get together with Mr. Pearson and Miss LaMarsh — to work out plans for fitting Ontario's legislation into the federal scheme — said he did not know how soon this would be. It would depend on the progress of two technical committees set up at the Ottawa meeting.

SHRUGS IT OFF

Mr. Robarts shrugged off a statement by Liberal Leader Wintermeyer that the premier was displaying panic by accusing the Liberal chief of lying over the pensions federal-provincial stand on the pension issue, as the premier did at Sudbury Wednesday night.

"Just say I laughed," Mr. Robarts said.

Asked about Mr. Wintermeyer's statement that he was running scared, Mr. Robarts replied:

"I'm certainly not running scared. I'm putting the people before the people of the province."

Mr. Robarts was asked for comment on a rebuke to the government by Mr. Wintermeyer because the teaching of M French is optional and not compulsory in Ontario schools.

He said that M French were to be made obligatory in all parts of the province, something else would have to be pushed out of the school curriculum which now was full. Conditions varied greatly around the province.

SUPPORTS WALKER

Mr. Robarts flew here late Thursday from Kingston — where he spoke earlier in the day—to support Albert Walker, who is trying to crack the New Democratic Party's long hold on the Oshawa riding centred on this automobile-making city.

Mr. Walker, 38, a city council member for eight years, is a paint shop employee at General Motors and the first member of the NDP-slanted United Automobile Workers of America (UAC) to contest an election under the Conservative banner.

He is up against T. D. Thomas, 64 — another UAW-CIO member and legislature member since 1945.

Third contestant is Mrs. Frances Jones, mother of four, who was drafted as Liberal candidate recently when the nominee—Robert Stroud, withdrew the candidacy.

Mr. Robarts said at his press conference he feels the Conservatives have a good chance of taking the seat.

He made no formal speeches in Oshawa but toured the city in a cavalcade with the candidate and former federal labor minister Michael Starr, who carried Oshawa as part of his Ontario riding in the last federal election.

HAS 'PICKUP'

At a night meeting in neighboring Whitby, Premier Robarts told an audience of 300 that Ontario has had an "amazing" pickup in employment during last year with the help of the provincial government's economic policy.

He said that 72,000 new jobs have been produced in the period, compared with the goal of 40,000 a year set by the government's economic advisers for a five-year period.

During the same period, he said, unemployment in Ontario has been halved and almost 36

Would Start Lifting Lids After Election

- - Wintermeyer

By CARL MOLLINS

KINGSTON (CP)—A Liberal government in Ontario would start lifting the lids immediately after next week's election on a series of city and provincial scandals covered up to simmer during the election campaign by the Conservative government, John Wintermeyer said Thursday night.

The Liberal leader added he would ask R. J. Cudney, who quit the government last week after 18 years as deputy provincial secretary, to return and help scrape off Tory whitewash and clean up the mess.

Mr. Wintermeyer specified scandals needing immediate attention include profiteering in Northern Ontario Natural Gas stocks and allegations that the Ontario Securities Commission overlooked evidence suggesting insider trading before the Sept. 9 Shell Oil's takeover last year of Canadian Oil Company.

The Liberal leader addressed a rally in this university city that had been rated among the biggest and most enthusiastic of his campaign. He said he was frustrated by the Liberal show in this traditionally Conservative stronghold.

CROWD CHEERED

A good - humored, cheering crowd overflowed the 400-seat hall into surrounding corridors and the adjacent cafeteria, where loudspeakers carried the speeches of Mr. Wintermeyer and the local Liberal candidate —Mayor William Mills in Kingston and Ronald Quistad in Frontenac-Addington.

Declaring that Mr. Cudney resigned when premier Robarts refused to keep social club charters out of the hands of gamblers failed to get legislation in after premier attacked Premier John Robarts and Provincial Secretary John Yaremko for "insulting" the civil servant by suggesting he should "go and long rest in a rest home."

"Between R. J. Cudney and John Yaremko, I choose Cudney," the Liberal leader declared. "And I will be honored if he will consider candidature after election day to rejoin public service and help me clean up the house of government in Ontario."

Mr. Wintermeyer said Attorney-General Frederick Cass has proved to be another "Tory while - washer" since taking over the office from "that champion of law and order, Allan Roberts."

Mr. Cass kept secret a report on the NONG scandal pending the election so he could claim it might prejudice a perjury charge in connection with the case, Mr. Wintermeyer said he would release the report, except for parts relating to the perjury case, if elected premier next Wednesday.

The Ontario Securities Commission, an agent of the attorney general's office that polices stock transactions, should be strengthened and the Shell-Canadian Oil takeover must be reinvestigated, he said.

Mr. Wintersbyer, who arrived in Kingston from Ottawa shortly after Premier Roberts departed appeared to be buoyed by the evening rally and put new enthusiasm into his prediction that his party will score "a great upset" in the election.

Supporters of 39 - year - old Mayor Mills, born and educated in Kingston, declared he would take the riding from the Conservatives by upsetting newcomer Syl Apps, former Toronto Maple Leaf hockey star who moved here last spring.

per cent of the labor force was now employed.

Mr. Robarts said the provincial government was not claiming it was responsible for this showing, but he said the government had taken action to solve Ontario's problems and was providing industry with the proper atmosphere for development.

"Our role is to lead industry, not to coerce it," he said. "We don't intend to control business, but to encourage it."

Companies Must Use Caution Says MacDonald

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Companies should not be permitted to move from one location to another without regard to their responsibilities to the communities they are vacating, NDP Leader Donald MacDonald said here Thursday.

"It should not be the exclusive right of industry to relocate as it wishes without concern for the community it is leaving," Mr. MacDonald told a party conference in this southwestern Ontario industrial city.

The New Democratic Party chief said government formed by his party in the province would set up machinery to review proposed industrial relocation.

"The decision of a company to move should be reviewed by the government and its effect assessed before any of what is best for the community it is vacating."

In an evening rally of more than 150 persons in support of NDP candidates from the Windsor area ridings of Essex North, Windsor - Walkerville, Windsor-Sandwich and Essex South, Mr. MacDonald blasted the economic planning in Ontario.

"The government is paying lip-service to economic planning but hasn't the slightest conception of exactly what it means."

Mr. MacDonald lashed out earlier at the Progressive Conservative government for not extending minimum wage laws to the entire province.

FIRMS MOVING

He said that failure to apply universally in Ontario meant that industries were moving from the Golden Horseshoe — the area along Lake Ontario from Oshawa to Hamilton—to the vicinity of Orillia and Barrie where minimum wage laws did not apply.

Legislation now requires that men be paid $1 an hour and women 85 cents as a minimum but only in what Mr. MacDonald describes as the Golden Horseshoe.

He said companies moved from the Toronto, Oshawa and Hamilton areas primarily to escape labor and welfare laws and avoid their contractual responsibilities.

"Companies will move from the Golden Horseshoe where they can jettison their union responsibilities and hire workers for less than the minimum wage unless the present law is extended to the rest of the province."

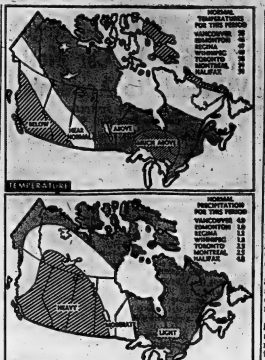
Mr. MacDonald lashed out at the Ford Motor Company of Canada for gradually moving its automobile assembly empire from Windsor to Oakville.

"The Ford move from Windsor was irresponsible . . . the government knew it and did nothing about it," Mr. MacDonald charged.

STARTED MOVE

The automobile firm began its gradual move to Oakville about 10 years ago and now has established a manufacturing complex and administrative offices at Oakville. Some 6,000 men are still employed in Windsor by the company compared with more than 10,000 in 1953.

Mr. MacDonald reiterated that his party was unable to say exactly what a drug-gap free drug program in the province would cost.



The NDP has promised as an interim measure to provide free drugs to all pensioners, persons chronically requiring them, and to extend present free in-hospital drugs until home convalescence is completed.

He said some drugs now are provided under provincial welfare legislation and it was virtually impossible to assess the costs.

There would also be a means test for the interim program until full coverage can be worked out.

"We're not going to pay E. P. Taylor's drug costs if he gets arthritis," Mr. MacDonald said.

Drugs were so expensive that a person could soon be reduced from a "middle income" to a lower one where a means test would not be necessary, he said.

HIGH TEMPERATURES FORECAST — Most of Canada will have temperatures above or much above normal in the mid-September to mid-October period according to the 30-day outlook of the United States weather bureau. The forecast, based on long-range predictions and subject to error, calls for below normal temperatures for much of British Columbia.

Precipitation will be heavy in most parts of the western provinces, light in Ontario and Quebec and moderate elsewhere. Table gives precipitation in inches of rain.

Assembly by Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko.

In his only reference to Gromyko's talk, Kennedy said:

"We must continue to seek agreement, encouraged by yesterday's affirmative response to this proposal, by the Soviet foreign minister, on an arrangement to keep weapons of mass destruction out of outer space."

The proposal to keep nuclear weapons from outer space was first made by Adlai at the disarmament conference in Geneva last June.

CRITICIZES RUSSIA

While holding out an olive branch, Kennedy indirectly belabored the Soviet Union for its record in Germany, Cuba, The Congo, the United Nations and elsewhere.

And, he said that the United States is not without sin—specifically, in the area of racial discrimination. Said Kennedy:

"The United States of America is opposed to discrimination and persecution on grounds of race or religion anywhere in the world, including our own nation."

He said the United States opposes "apartheid (segregation) and all forms of human oppression" and would like to see new efforts to give new meaning to the general assembly's 15-year-old declaration of human rights.

He commended the oppression of Buddhist priests in South Viet Nam, the closing of synagogues in the Soviet Union, the Hungarian government's treatment of Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty who is in the U.S. Legation in Budapest, and a ban on Protestant missions in some countries.

PRAISES TREATY

He termed the test ban treaty the first concrete step in 17 years to limit the nuclear arms race.

"Today, we may have reached a pause in the cold war."

"If we can stretch this pause into a period of fruitful co-operation—if we can build new bonds—new confidence and true experience in concrete collaboration for peace—if we can now be as bold and farsighted in the control of deadly weapons as we have been in their creation—then surely, this small step can be the start of a long and fruitful journey."

Kennedy said there are basic differences between the United States and the Soviet Union that put a limit on agreements and "forbid the relaxation of vigilance."

He listed these possible areas of future negotiations:

—The prevention of war by accident or miscalculation, safeguards against surprise attack "including observation posts at key points," control over the launcher of nuclear weapons to non-nuclear powers, conversion of the atom to peaceful purposes, a ban on underground nuclear tests "with adequate inspection and enforcement," and a freer East-West flow of information and people.

ADVANCES PROPOSALS

He advanced these specified proposals for broadening the United Nations' functions:

—Creation of a world centre for satellite communications to warn of accidental and possibly harmful drugs, and report new experiments and discoveries.

—Regional centres for medical research and the training of scientists and doctors from the emerging nations.

—A global satellite system to provide communications and weather information.

—A world-wide conservation program, and a similar effort ago.

Sunday School Lesson

Small Men, Big Fears

By ROY L. SMITH

You can take the measure of a small man, by measuring his fears. Some live in terror of losing their money, others dread the loss of their reputation, still others fear the loss of their power. But the truly great man fears the loss of his self-respect.

MEASURING BY OWN FEARS

In our town there was a rather excellent individual who had accidentally offended a very narrow minded group, and as a consequence he became the object of their suspicion. One day, in the process of performing a perfectly honorable duty, he exposed himself unwittingly to suspicion.

Immediately the lines began to buzz. All the evil implications that imagination could suggest were reported as facts, conditioned of course by the protective phrase, "We can't prove it but. . .but, well, you know!"

When the foul rumors began to get back to the victim he proceeded at once to call upon the scandal-monger for the purpose of arriving at a settlement. Then it was that the truth came out. "Well, it was the only way we could explain it," the liar said.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for September 22: "God in History," Genesis 37 through 50.

"I suppose that is true," the injured one replied. "At any rate, the thing you accused me of doing is the thing you would have done if you had been in that situation!" The scandal they had circulated was, actually, a confession of what they would have done under the same circumstances.

IF TABLES ARE TURNED

The ten brothers who appeared in Egypt were markedly like the ones who had consigned their brother to the pit, half a generation before. The years had done very little for them. Small they, they had continued small. They knew full well what they would have done to ten begging brothers, if they had been vice-regents. They could not know that Joseph had grown to the stature required of vice-regents.

The measure of a man is his size when the tables are turned, and he is in possession of power.

When Woodrow Wilson was President of the United States, Robert Lansing served for a period of time as his secretary of state. There came a time when the two men broke, though they had been life-long friends, and following the break Mr. Lansing published a highly critical account of the Paris Peace Conference; in which President Wilson was made to appear in a very unfavorable light.

A friend of both men was spending the evening at the White House the week the book was published, and because of the intimacies of his friendship with the President he dared ask a very personal question, "What do you think of Secretary Lansing's book?"

Mr. Wilson's reply was characteristic of his nature. "Oh, I can stand it if Robert can."

The major reason why the brothers could not quite trust Joseph to forgive them was, quite probably, the fact that they could not forgive themselves.

For a good many years they found it easy to forget the pit incident. Their flocks multiplied the grazing was good, they were getting along pretty well, and their father had never investigated their story about the killing of the young man by the wild beasts.

They had gotten by. It had been a bit ugly, but everything had worked out all right. Oh, they wondered occasionally, of course, whatever became of the boy. But at any rate they had him out of their hair, and that was the principal thing.

Then came the hard times, the drought, the famine, the flight into Egypt, and the discovery that the vice-regent was the brother who had been the braggart.

His assurance that he cherished no ill-will seemed incredible. It was a considerable relief, but it was too good to be true. Certainly no one of them would have behaved in that fashion under the same circumstances.

But as the truth began to dawn upon them, their brother's forgiveness became all the more incredible.

The worst aspect of the whole case was the shame with which they were overcome! Because they could not believe good of themselves, they were reluctant to believe good of Joseph.

It is precisely here that we come upon one of the greatest problems of religion. The sense of guilt becomes the barrier which prevents us from believing the forgiveness of God is possible.

No man ever knows the full meaning of the forgiveness of God until he is able to forgive himself.

Males in 15 to 24 Category Travelling by Car Most Vunerable to Accidents

By GEOFFREY BENTCLIFFE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

If you're male, between the ages of 15 and 24 and travel by car—look out!

You're in a category that is particularly vulnerable to accidental death.

In Canada, disease and age still claim by far the most lives but an ever increasing percentage of deaths are caused by accident.

And when it comes to accidental death, traffic accounts for nearly half, with males in the 15-24 age group almost one-quarter of the victims.

In 1962 the 163,699 deaths in Canada included 10,094 due to accidents or more than seven per cent. This was a five per cent rise in accidental deaths over 1961.

The roads long have been known as the deadliest of accidental death scenes but the home, considered by many their safest sanctuary, in fact is second only to the road as the place where man's time runs untimely out.

These and other macabre facts are revealed in a survey conducted by the National Safety League of Canada in cooperation with the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

MALES MORE PRONE

Among its conclusions:

Males suffer more accidental deaths than females, in a ratio of almost three to one, the one notable exception being fatalities caused by falls in the home.

Leading causes were the motor vehicle, falls, drowning, suffocation, fire, poisoning, blows from falling or projected objects, machinery and firearms and accounted for 92 per cent of fatal accidents. Traffic accidents formed 43 per cent of deaths last year compared to 39 per cent in 1961.

The majority of death-dealing falls occur among the elderly.

Last year 2,220 persons died in the home. Here falls were the most predominant cause, claiming 987 lives of which 501 were female and 346 male. Falls generally, which killed a total 1,505 persons, was the only classification studied in which female deaths outnumbered those of males.

Altogether 873 persons suffocated, by far the largest number being babies under one year of age. Almost all suffocation fatalities among infants are due to regurgitation of food or through smothering in their beds or cribs.

In the 398 poisoning deaths, too, the house was the chief venue with drugs and solvents the main culprits while gases and vapors, notably motor exhaust fumes, claimed 239 lives.

Fire took a heavy toll with 632 deaths—the suffering heartiest among children one to four years old (137) and persons aged 85 to 94, of whom 65 lost their lives.

Drowning, one of the chief horrors of the Canadian summer, brings an untimely end to far more males than it does to females with the ratio at seven to one.

Last year water claimed 1,067 persons with one-third children under the age of 15 and about one-quarter persons 15 to 24. In drowning deaths a new hazard has been added to those of nature—the small water craft. In almost one-quarter of Canadian drownings last year a small boat was in some fashion involved.

Of the 225 fatalities due to machinery, 96 occurred on the farm and 91 in mines and quarries or on industrial property.

Joint Canada-U.S. Board Meets to Take up Trade Friction Between Countries

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — Shadowed by dollar and gold problems, a joint Canada-U.S. cabinet committee meets today to take up specific trade frictions between the two countries and there were hints that the Canadians would air some far-reaching proposals.

The two-day talks open with a review of the world situation and the possible impact of the Sino - Soviet split. Both State Secretary Dean Rusk and External Affairs Minister Paul Martin will participate in the review.

Defence Production Minister C. M. Drury plans to make clear to the United States that the Canadian government wants to speed up development of Canadian manufacturing.

Without going into detail, Drury told reporters on arrival Thursday that since the U.S. is Canada's principal market, Canada either by displacing Canadian industrial expansion can ports or expanding exports to the U.S.

AUTO-HIGH UP?

He gave no hint of what specific products he had in mind but it was reported in other quarters that automotive production ranks high in Drury's expansion ideas.

At present, Canada imports about $500,000,000 worth of motor vehicles and parts annually, mainly from the U.S. If U.S. parent companies of Canadian subsidiaries so desire, they could shift more of their production to Canada, thereby helping Canada reduce its chronic trade deficit with the U.S.

The grave problem for the U.S. government is that such a course, aside from economic feasibility, would also mean a shift of American jobs into Canada at a time when unemployment in the U.S. has become a major political issue.

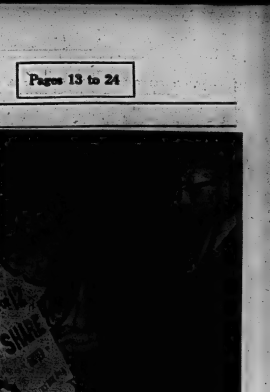
Agriculture Minister Harry Hays has another pattern-shattering proposal: Trading wheat grains on a vertical rather than a horizontal line. He plans to explore with Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman the possibility of encouraging the eastern U.S. to supply Eastern Canada with more feed grains while western U.S. relies more on the Canadian Prairies for its supplies. Sending Prairie oats across Canada to the Canadian Maritimes doesn't make much sense, suggested Hays, if American supplies are handy closeby.

DEFICIT A PROBLEM

While the possibility of change in industrial and agricultural trade patterns provoke the ministers with meat for debate, the heart of the bilateral economic and trade conferences—first in two years—lies in the balance - of - payments difficulties.

Finance Minister Walter Gordon said the $500,000,000 Canadian wheat deal with Russia will help reduce the worrisome Canadian deficit but he also suggested the impact of this deal on reduction of the deficit has been exaggerated.

Pointing out the Soviet payments for the wheat will be spread over a three-year period, Gordon said on arrival he still seeks a complete exemption for Canada from the proposed U.S. tax on foreign securities now before the House of Representatives ways and means committee. This levy would mean higher Canadian costs for raising funds in New York.



Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon has agreed to exempt new Canadian securities from the tax of up to 15 per cent.

MISS UNITED APPEAL, Gail Walker of Belleville, shows Laton A. Smith of Toronto, guest speaker at last night's United Appeal rally, the poster to be used by the Appeal to promote payroll - deduction giving.

United Appeal Objective Well Below City's Potential Campaign Workers Are Told

Belleville United Appeal's $85,000 objective for this year is well below the city's potential, United Appeal workers were told last night. Speaking at last night's opening rally, Laton A. Smith, executive secretary of Community Funds and Councils of Canada, said Belleville has $250,000 more it can spare for one campaign. He had the figures to prove it, taken from Belleville income tax returns.

According to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, Mr. Smith said, there were 7,940 people in Belleville with incomes up to $6,000. "If the average income in this group is about $3,000," he said, "the total income of the group should be about $23,820,000."

Another 1,180 people in Belleville reported incomes between $6,000 and $10,000. If the average of this group is $7,500, total income of this group is $8,850,000.

AFFLUENT STANDARD

And 367 people in Belleville reported incomes above $10,000. With their average is $15,000, the total is about $5,505,000.

If the United Appeal's "Fair Share". standard is applied to donations from all these people, the total donations would be more than a quarter million dollars. Mr. Smith worked it out this way.

Fair share of incomes below $6,000 is six-tenths of one per cent, according to the standard. Total gifts in this group thea, should total $143,820.

Fair share of incomes between ,$6,000 and $10,000 is eight-tenths of one per cent. Total gifts from this group should be $70,800.

ABOUT 48 PER CENT

And fair share for the people making $10,000 and more is about one per cent, for a total group gift of $55,000.

Total of all personal contributions, according to Mr. Smith's figuring, $268,770. And in addition to this sum, Mr. Smith added, gifts from business usually total about forty per cent of a United Appeal achievement.

The one-half the "Fair Share" from everyone in Belleville, Mr. Smith concluded, would more than meet the most optimistic objective of this year's drive.

Anti-British Violence Puts Spotlight on Sukarno Again

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff-Writer

The anti-British violence in Indonesia puts the spotlight once again on President Sukarno, who to many Westerners is a charming rascal blessed with a charmed life.

There can be no doubt that the outbreak in Jakarta resulted directly from Sukarno's bitter opposition to the new federation of Malaysia, no matter what denials the Indonesian chieftain may make.

Malaysia — linking Malaya, Singapore, Sarawak and North Borneo-to-became an independent member of the Commonwealth this week. British military powers remaining in the area with the consent of the peoples.

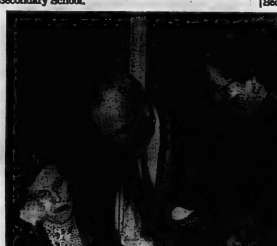
The peculiar nature of Sukarno's successes in the past—not to mention his survival—is one of the wonders of the era. He has managed through the turbulent years to keep the support of Dan F. Kennedy, Nikita Khrushchev and Mao Tse-Tung.

In London, it is widely believed that Sukarno, far from content with the some 3,000 islands he already rules, anticipates an Indonesia stretching from Indo-China to northern Australia.

In this view the worse Indonesian internal conditions become the bankruptcy and confusion, the greater is Sukarno's vision of empire as he strives to distract his people from domestic problems.

Sukarno's most spectacular recent feat was to win—through the use of force, diplomacy and propaganda — tacit recognition of Indonesia's claim to West New Guinea although he rejected the idea of any kind of a plebiscite there.

He started a similar drive against the Malaysian plan and is credited—or blamed — with preventing the sultanate of Brunei from joining. He delayed the date of federation from Aug. 31 while the United Nations verified elections in the territories at his request.



No one believes that Sukarno is ready to give up his campaign against Malaysia. This 63-year-old leader's resiliency is celebrated even among the baffling medley of races that make up Indonesia, the sixth largest country in the world with a population of nearly 100,000,000.

The might of the struggle can be seen the Soviet Union and Red China, the one-time owner of Dutch imperialists is a friend of both.

The U.S., fearful that Indonesia would go Communist, has poured more than $700,000,000 in aid into the country and Britain and Russia has provided almost as much, along with $1,000,000,000 worth of arms as a creaky long-term loan basis.

Despite all this the country has gone from bad to worse economically and Sukarno has survived nine assassination attempts although his mode may still weaves magic for Indonesian crowds. As was said by Mohammed Hatta, former vice-president:

"No one claims to understand the Indonesian situation must be badly informed."

Parliamentary Notebook

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—The government has been given notice that at least one group in Parliament wants to see some action on the way security investigations are handled.

The matter of security investigations came up earlier this session with the Munsinger result.

Justice Minister Cherrier agreed to investigate the possibility of establishing a security appeal board where persons given a bad security report could appear to their accusers and answer the accusations.

At that same time, the government acknowledged that an injustice was done one man who was fired from the navy as a poor security risk.

This unusual public admission concerned Gordon Brook Knott, of Lake Cowichan, B.C., who was branded a poor security risk because RCMP took the word of a source that he was the nephew of a Communist.

Mr. Knott turned out Mr. Knott, who received an apology from the government, wasn't related to the Communist.

But his clearance didn't get him a job of the sensitive variety requiring relationship in the view of David Orlikow, New Democrat MP for Winnipeg North who was one of Mr. Knott's champions in Parliament.

A number of similar cases have come to Mr. Orlikow's attention since the Knott case.

There is talk up there up with the ministers of the department [illegible]

He has gained the impression that the government is not prepared to provide an appeal procedure nor recognize what he regards as the fundamental injustice of applying the tag "security risk" to a person whose relatives happen to be communists.

He bases his opinion on several cases, including one similar in some respects to the Knott case. It involves Eric M. Peterson of Victoria who was discharged from the navy two years ago because his father-in-law joined the Communist party while Mr. Peterson was a baby.

Mr. Orlikow says he's confident this is the only reason Mr. Peterson was discharged. He has discussed the matter with Defence Minister Hellyer who apparently is unprepared to reverse Mr. Peterson's bad security report.

But another aspect of the cases being referred to Mr. Orlikow is the types of jobs in government departments or Crown corporations for which applicants must obtain security clearance. Some, he says, seem to have no connection whatever with national security.

As a result, he plans to ask that the government indicate all the jobs on which security clearance is required and the basis of the judgment of an applicant's security status.

While nothing like a complete blueprint is contemplated, Mr. Orlikow indicated to the minister he would expect all-party answers before the departmental spending estimates of the ministers get through the Commons.

Liberal Leader Sure Quebec Will Come in

OTTAWA (CP)—Ontario Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer said Thursday he is certain the Liberal regime in Quebec eventually will see the error of its present opposition to the plan of the federal Liberals for a national contributory pension program.

"I'm confident that Quebec ultimately will come into this plan," he told a press conference here, although the government of Jean Lesage will "opt out" when the federal government institutes the state-run pension program.

In the meantime, he said, it is essential that Ontario accord the Canada Pension Plan unqualified support for the sake of national unity as well as for the benefit of Ontario residents.

The federal program must have the support of at least one of the two largest provinces to succeed, he said, and since Quebec is opting out Ontario must join. The Canada Pension Plan will give the smaller provinces a security they could not otherwise obtain" and therefore will promote national unity.

Mr. Wintermeyer, here to meet local Liberal candidates before the Ontario election Wednesday, said Premier John Robarts "talks the language of cooperation with the Canada Pension Plan) but his actions [illegible] support."

The Ontario Conservative leader clouds the issue by saying he supports both his own program for portable pensions run by private insurance companies and "some type of national contributory" plan. The voters have a right to know before election day whether or not the Robarts administration will make way for the federal program by scrapping its own less comprehensive plan.

[illegible] Lesage said today the Liberals were lying in saying the premier opposes the federal program just shows "he is panicky in resorting to personal abuse."

On the campaign generally, Mr. Wintermeyer commented: "There isn't as much interest in important public issues as one might have expected."

He predicted his party would add seven seats to the two now held out of the 13 east of Kingston, but declined to specify which would be gained. The Liberals won four seats in the 1959 general election and added Renfrew South in a 1962 byelection. The other 11 seats are held by the Conservatives.

Local United Appeal Campaign One of 114 Across Canada

The Belleville United Appeal campaign launched last night at an opening rally, at Moira Secondary School, is just one of 114 such campaigns across the country, according to Laton A. Smith, executive secretary of Community Funds and Councils of Canada, a division of the Canadian Welfare Council. Guest speaker at last night's rally, Mr. Smith told United Appeal supporters about the work of different United Appeals across the country. He knows all of them well, his job makes him a sort of father-confessor to each one.

Between them, the 114 United Appeals help support about 2,000 groups, some purely local and some divisions of national organizations. Average contribution of a United Appeal to each group is about one-third of the operating cost of each. Total income of all United Appeals in the country is about $35,250,000.

Most of this money comes from small gifts, Mr. Smith said, based on the "Suggested Fair Share Guide" supplied to canvassers. The guide suggests that gifts be related to income on a percentage basis, a difference percentage in each of three "income groups". The higher the percentage suggested as the "Fair Share", and the more the total gift. For men working hourly rates, the percentage usually works out to about one hour's pay per month or one-and-a-half days per year. For a man making $10,000 and more, the "Fair Share" works out to more than three days' income per year.

Because each donation must be spread among 12 agencies in Belleville, Mr. Smith pointed out, each donation should be about 12 times the gift each donor would normally make to a single agency.

Donors to United Appeal Asked to Increase Gifts

Belleville United Appeal is not, "just another campaign", the Appeal's president, R. G. Gurnett, told the opening rally at Moira Secondary School last night. "It's 12 campaigns rolled into one," he said. "And it's important that people understand that," he added. "And give 12 times what they would give to a single campaign." He said the $85,000 objective is objective this year is not enough to cover the needs of the 12 organizations depending on part of their income on the United Appeal." Total needs amount to about $100,000, he said.

Last year's achieved total was $72,000.

But the $100,000 total could be reached, Mr. Gurnett said, if each of last year's donors would increase his gift by one-third for this year. Even this small increase might not be required, he added, if potential new gifts were to contribute. Of 7,000 potential donors in Belleville, he said, only about 3,000 contributed to last year's campaign.

BIG SLICE TO 'Y'

Of the $85,000 need this year, Mr. Gurnett said, the biggest slice — about $20,000 — will go to the Y.M.C.A. Not much smaller is the Red Cross' share, about $16,000. The Victorian Order of Nurses and the Canadian National Institute for the Blind each get about $8,000 of the total, and another $8,000 will be used to cover the United Appeal's own expenses. The Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, the Children's Aid Society, The Civic Action Committee and the Catholic Women's League of Belleville and the St. John Ambulance Corps all get about $3,000 and $2,000, and the Belleville Minor Sports Association, the Boy Scouts Association, the Multiple Sclerosis Society of Belleville and the Rotary League will all receive less than $3,000 from the common pot.

Canvassers should avoid telling contributors how much they should give, Mr. Gurnett said. "Now," he added, "here's no harm in pointing out the advantage of monthly or quarterly pledges".

United Appeal Campaign Opens September 28

There's no need to apologize when you're asking for money, Belleville United Appeal campaign chairman Norman Keith told United Appeal supporters at last night. Speaking at the final rally before the beginning of this year's campaign, Mr. Keith said that everyone who is not actually in need of assistance himself should give, to the cause. He pointed out that volunteer workers donate about 7,500 hours of work per year in Belleville. He said canvassers should not back down from prospects, who may resent "hard sell" canvassing.

Official start of the campaign this year is Sept. 30, he said, two days earlier the Sept. 28 parade. Canvassing of all but the residential areas of the city will be completed Oct. 16, according to plans. The residential canvass, conducted separately this year, will be from [illegible] to Oct. 26. Contributions received already, before the official opening of the campaign, total more than $4,300. Minimum goal for the year is $85,000.

DUCKS AWAY!

Open season on the winged butchers of the wild duck brigades starts tomorrow morning and the crack of dawn Ready will be aftermarked with barrages of gunfire.

The bag and possession limits for ducks are five and ten, exclusive of merganser ducks for which there is no limits. After Oct. 27 two additional scaup or golden-eye may be taken per day.

The daily bag limit for wood duck has been raised to two and the possession limit was upped from two to four in a 1963 announcement of the Department of Northern Affairs and National Resources.

The bag and possession limits for geese are five and ten and the same limits apply to rails, coots and gallinules. The bag and possession limits for snipt and woodcock are unchanged at eight and 16.

Upland game hunters start their seasons tomorrow also, with grouse, partridge and squirrels being fair game. For ruffed grouse the bag limit is five per day, 15 in possession; Hungarian partridge, eight per day, 16 in possession; for squirrel 10 per day and 10 in possession.

Pheasants have a longer lease on life. The season opens on October 5th through November 2 (8 a.m. to 6 p.m.). The bag limit is three per day regardless of sex.

But let's go easy on the redheads, eh? Ducks, that is.

An extremely important change in the Migratory Birds Act last year was the complete protection given canvasbacks and redhead ducks. These two species have been seriously depleted due to unfavorable conditions on their breeding grounds.

Every sportsman can help restore these important game birds species to past stains of abundance if they learn to recognize them and do not shoot any.

The Canadian Wildlife Service and the Department of Lands and Forests have asked all sportsmen while enjoying their sojourns in duck hides this season to let the ducks come in real close for positive identification so that the canvasback and redhead may be spared.

In the redhead family the drake has a red head, bluish bill with a white ring and a black and grey body. The hen has a brown head, bluish bill with white ring and brown body. This species is a diving duck and procures most of its food in that manner. It often shares its fee'ing grounds with the baldpates, coots and gadwell ducks.

The male canvasback had a red head, black bill and a black and white body, while the female has a brown head, black bill with a brown breast and slate brown body. This species feeds mostly on pond weeds, wild celery, wild rice, duck potato, etc.

Ducks fly faster and take more killing because they are better protected by feathers than upland game. The downfall of the canvasback and redhead might in part be caused by their own actions. The former will often cross decoys without slackening, then circle wide and come back at a much slower speed and that is where the hunter takes his count.

Redheads have a tendency to hover over decoys and that is where they get a real shellacking. This species is a grand duck but a little light on brains and sometimes the remnant of a flock will return over a hide several times before it realizes it is being 'taken' to dinner.

And if you cannot identify a canvasback by his color, you might tab him by his speed. For this redhead is the Man O' War of the duck speedsters. He can fly through the air with the greatest of ease at a speed of 72 miles per hour. A goose and a mallard with the accelerator down to the floor can travel sixty m.p.h.

And while on this duck subject I'm told the best stuffing for a wild duck is an orange, an apple and an onion quartered. That's all, nothing else. It has the bread sage and onion brand beaten seven ways to Sunday.

Aaron Sights Elusive Triple Crown

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Hammerin' Hank Aaron of Milwaukee Braves has a solid shot at becoming only the 10th player in baseball history to wear the triple crown and the first in the National League in more than a quarter of a century.

The 29-year-old right-handed hitter, previously overshadowed by the tight pennant struggle, now has the stage and spotlight to himself in a bid to grab the coveted and elusive triple crown — baseball's most exacting test of a hitter.

While Aaron continued his big at Chicago tonight, Los Angeles Dodgers open a three - game home stand against Pittsburgh hoping to wrap up the pennant race quickly after sweeping the vital three - game series with second-place St. Louis Cardinals.

The Cardinals, four games behind with only seven to play, will be trying to keep their hopes alive at Cincinnati. Any combination of Los Angeles victories and-or St. Louis defeats will give the Dodgers their first pennant since 1959.

LEAD BY TWO RACES

Aaron, trying to become the first triple crown winner in the National League since Jim Mckwick of St. Louis in 1936, leads the league with an 8-homer, 127 runs batted in, but trails Dick Groat of St. Louis by four points, .323 to .319, in the race for the batting title.

Aaron, has just eight games remaining in which to overtake Groat and four others involved in the six-man struggle for the batting title—Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh, San Francisco's Orlando Cepeda and Tommy Davis of Los Angeles are tied at .321 and Cincinnati's Vada Pinson is at .318.

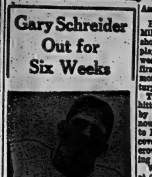
Aaron has won all three titles making up the triple crown at different times during his 10-year career.

Besides Mackvick, only three other National Leaguers have won the triple crown—Heinz Zimmerman of Chicago in 1912, Rogers Hornsby of St. Louis in 1922 and 1926 and Chuck Klein of Philadelphia in 1933.

MANTLE LEAD AL CHAMP

Mickey Mantle of New York Yankees was the last American League player to accomplish the feat in 1957, Ty Cobb did it with Detroit in 1909, Jimmy Foxx of Philadelphia in 1933, Lou Gehrig of the Yankees in 1934 and Ted Williams of Boston in 1942 and 1947.

There'll be no triple crown winner in the AL this year. Dick Stuart leads in homers with 41, and runs batted in, with 112, but is hitting only .262. Carl Yastrzemski of Boston leads the batters with a .322 mark.



Al Kaline became the second American Leaguer to hit the 100-RBI mark this season as he drove in four runs Thursday with two homers, a triple and a single to lead Detroit Tigers 8-4, 13-inning victory over Minnesota Twins.

In the only other game scheduled in either league, Bo Belinsky pitched a five-hitter in Los Angeles Angels' 7-3 triumph over Baltimore Orioles.

Kaline's triple drove in Dick McAuliffe with the bad singled, with the tie-breaking run in the 12th for the Tigers to end a home run battle. Besides Kaline, Rocky Colavito and Gus Triandos connected for Detroit. Don Mincher, Paul Ratliff and Bernie Allen homered for the Twins.

Belinsky, making his third appearance since the Angels brought him up from Hawaii, brought his overall record for the year to 3-6. He also contributed to the attack with a run-scoring single. Albie Pearson doubled and scored the tie-breaking run for Los Angeles in the seventh against the Orioles.

Gary Schreider Out for Six Weeks

Gary Schrieder, Ottawa Rough Riders halfback will be out of action for six weeks.

Gary shivered a bone splinter from a collarbone in the Riders-Bombers game in Winnipeg last week.

He is in an Ottawa hospital but will be released over the weekend, his mother Mrs. Doris Schreider, Toronto said this morning via telephone.

"It is serious enough but not too serious" Mrs. Schreider said. "He has had the sliver removed, but is not wearing a sling."

Gary now a full-fledged lawyer has practice in Ottawa. He went back to the Riders from the Hamilton Tiger Cats in a player deal last spring.

Brockville, Kenmors Tonight!

Brockville Beavers will have their backs to the wall when they face the Belleville Kenmors in OBA Senior playdowns at the Fairgrounds here tonight.

Kenmors lead the four-of seven semi-final series three games to one and can advance into the titular series with a victory over the Beavers tonight. Should Brockville win this evening, the clubs go back to Brockville tomorrow afternoon.

Game time here is nine o'clock and with a break from the weatherman, Kenmors are looking for a large turnout.

Winners of this set will meet either Galt Terriors or Campbellville for the all-Ontario championship.

Doug Harvey Joins Rangers

Howe Fashions New Power Line

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Gordie Howe, the great Detroit Red Wing right winger who has launched many players into National Hockey League careers, may do it again this year.

The latest player to benefit from playing with Howe is Art Stratton, an All-Star centre with Buffalo in the American Hockey League last year.

The Wings have been playing Stratton on a line with Howe and Parker MacDonald or Eyday, N.B., who exploded last year when placed on Howe's line. Parker scored more than 30 goals, after never scoring more than 20 in an NHL season before.

Detroit may feel this is the best way to make use of Stratton, and answer that he fervicops. The results of the team's first exhibition game Thursday night may bear this out.

Stratton and Howe both scored as the Wings battled to a 6-6 tie with the defending Stanley Cup champion Toronto Maple Leafs in Windsor, Ont.

TIES THE GAME

Howe's goal, in typical fashion, came less than two minutes from the final buzzer, to furnish the tie.

Floyd Smith scored a pair of goals for the Red Wings and Norm Ullman and Billy McNeill each added one.

For Toronto, leaky Eddie Litzenberger netted a pair, and singles went to Dave Keon, Dick Duff, Bob Pulford and Allan Stanley.

In other NHL training camp activity Thursday, Montreal Canadiens announced their first cuts. Six players were assigned to minor league teams and another six sent out on a temporary basis.

The only member of the dozen who has seen any NHL action is Cesare Maniago, who was loaned to Quebec Aces of the AHL. He will play in Quebec's exhibition games.

ACQUIRES GLOVEN

New York Rangers announced they had acquired right winger Howie Glover in a trade with Portland Buckaroos of the Western Hockey League, in exchange for Pat Hannigan, another right winger.

And the Ranger camp in Winnipeg picked up at the news that rumors of Doug Ramsay's retirement were just that—rumors.

Harvey, the former great Montreal defenceman, said in Montreal that he was late showing up in camp only because he had been detained on business.

In their St. Catharines training camp, Chicago Black Hawks announced that goaltender Glenn Hall is the first member of the team to sign a contract for the 1963-64 season.

Hall, 31, was the Vezina Trophy and was the NL's first-team All-Star goalkeeper last season, allowing an average of only 2.51 goals a game in the 66 he played.

Green Gaels Grab 3-2 Edge

By PAUL RINSTEAD

WHITBY, Ont. (CP)—Oshawa Green Gaels have the shelf picked out and dusted off for the Minto Cup—all they need now is one more solid team effort to win it.

The Cinderella club of Lacrosse — which finished only third this season in an eight team league—could wrap up the city's first Canadian junior championship tonight with a win over Victoria Shamrocks.

A 13-6 win over the defending champions Wednesday night gave the Gaels a 3-2 edge in the best-of-seven series.

"Not we have to be at our very best to beat them," said Oshawa coach Jim Bishop Thursday. "We have to reach an emotional peak before each game—even before the start of each period."

In each of the five games it has been the same story. The team with the most hustle and desire has won.

Police Guard Ring After Bomb Threat

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) Police were on guard at Randwick when Australian flyweight champion Rocky Gattellari outpointed Nigerian Vetna Odiliaco in a 15-rounder Thursday night.

Won't Rate Fight as Title Bout

MONCTON, N.B. Ermes said that Montreal is not affiliated with the federation and no sanction will be granted. Montreal withdrew from the CPBF about a year ago because of a disagreement.

Vancouver Grabs 2-Game Lead

Mann Cup

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP) — If promises by opposing coaches mean anything, the remainder of the Mann Cup lacrosse series could be rough.

There were warnings Thursday night after Vancouver Carlings beat St. Catharines Athletics 11-5 before 1,900 fans to take a 2-0 lead in their best-of-seven series for the Canadian senior lacrosse championship.

"St. Catharines went into the game with only one thing in mind—to cut us down," said Vancouver coach Alex MacKay. And they did a pretty good job."

"If they don't like the wood they should get out of the game," replied Jim McNulty, coach of the Athletics. He said St. Catharines will play the same type of lacrosse in Saturday night's third game.

And MacKay counter-warned that there would be some scores to settle before the series is over.

WE'RE TOUGH TOO'

"We've got some pretty rugged guys too," he said. "And they'll only take this nonsense for so long."

The only serious injury suffered by the Westerners during the game was to goaltender Mervyn Schweitzer. He stopped a shot with his neck.

Actually, this seemed to spark the Vancouver team, and they exploded to crush a 4-4 deadlock which had existed when Schweitzer retired for repairs.

On his return, the Western champs fired three quick goals and Schweitzer responded by stopping 12 of 23 shots fired at him by the Athletics during the game's final 30 minutes.

Sid Warwick, who scored a pair of goals in Vancouver's 10-3 opening-game win Tuesday, scored three Thursday to lead the winners' attack.

ALLISS LEADS

DALMAHOY, Scotland (AP) Peter Alliss, professional son of the famous English golf professional, fired a five-under-par 66 Thursday for a one-stroke lead over Doug Sanders of La Jolla, Calif., after the first round of the $24,000, 72-hole Dalmahoy Tournament.

Daughter Not Sick

Wife Talks For Liston

DENVER (AP) — Heavyweight champion Sonny Liston remained close to home on Mosaco Boulevard Thursday and refused to talk to reporters.

He let his attractive wife, Geraldine, do the talking for him. Mrs. Liston made these points:

1. Sonny has a daughter, Eleanor, 12, and Mrs. Liston referred to herself as the child's stepmother.

2. Eleanor has not been sick and is attending classes as usual in Grade 6 of a public school.

3. Liston has been deeply disturbed by the Birmingham bombing in which Negro children were killed. "That was why he said what he did last night, that he was ashamed to be in America," Mrs. Liston said.

4. The champion is weary from his many exhibitions in Britain and decided to fly back home.

5. Mrs. Liston said she knows of no other daughter of Liston's.

The champion's press representative in Chicago told reporters Wednesday that Liston had an older daughter, Mary, 17.

Ask Dates Allan Cup Set Back

MELVILLE, Sask. (CP)—Gordon Jockes of Melville, secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said Thursday the Ontario Hockey Association has asked that consideration be given to setting back next year's Allan Cup playoff dates approximately one week.

Jockes said the OHA pointed out that with the formation of a new seven-team senior group in Ontario it would have to provide a playoff schedule for four separate senior groups.

The OHA said this made it impossible to meet the eastern playoff finals date set at the annual meeting.

The request of the OHA was approved in principle, Jockes said.

Lavorante Unconscious After Year

ROSARIO, Argentina (AP)— "I have the impression he knows what his condition is".

Dr. Jose Braulio Feilbert talked about Argentine heavyweight boxer Alejandro Lavorante, who was beaten into a coma in Los Angeles a year ago and has never regained consciousness.

Lavorante sits in a specially-built chair in the home of his parents. He can not talk, move or blink his eyes.

He tries, but never manages entirely, to open his eyes. He is thin and pale. He answers, with guttural sounds, whenever he hears the voices of his family.

Lavorante, a promising heavyweight, was carried from the ring Sept. 21, 1962, after he had been knocked out in six rounds by Johnny Riggins. The fight before, he had was knocked out by Cassius Clay in five. And the fight before that he was knocked out by Archie Moore in 10.

He was taken to the hospital in Los Angeles for brain operation. Then his parents took him home to Argentina.

Dr. Feilbert said that the treatment for Lavorante, now 27, consists of massages and control of mobility, so that he is never in a fixed position for more than two hours, except at night.

Think Fish Atlantic Salmon

PORT ARTUR (CP)—A red-fleshed fish which lands and forests officials say appears to be an Atlantic salmon was caught Wednesday in Lake Superior.

The fish is being sent to the Royal Ontario Museum in Toronto for positive identification. If it is an authentic Atlantic salmon, it will be the first known to have been taken from Lake Superior.

Atlantic salmon, ocean fish which spawn in fresh-water rivers, were fished commercially in Lake Ontario until about 1900 when pollution wiped them out but were not known to exist in the upper Great Lakes.

The silver-sided fish, weighing 10 pounds five ounces, was taken by commercial fisherman Fred Semeluk in a whitefish set in 45 feet of water off nearby wild Goose Point.

Some sportsmen believe the fish is a Ouananiche which escaped from a hatchery at Dorion, 30 miles northeast of here.

A Ouananiche is a landlocked cousin of the Atlantic salmon. The species is most common in the Lake St. John area of Quebec and in Trout Lake near North Bay.

CUT PIERRALL

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Angels announced Thursday that Jim Pierrall has been released unconditionally. General manager Fred Haney said that if the outfielder doesn't make a better deal for himself he can contact the Angels next spring. 'TRIGGER' IS BACK

DENVER (AP)—Frank Tripucka, who bowed out of the American Football League Tuesday as quarterback of the Denver Broncos, is joining Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Canadian Football League. He played for Saskatchewan for seven seasons before joining the Broncos when the AFL began operating in 1960.

The Trots

CAMPBELLVILLE, Ont. (CP) While his trainer and part owner, John Hayes was at Delaware, viewing the Little Brown Jug, a harness racing classic, Doug Johnston C, remained at Mohawk Raceway and helped finance the trip.

The four-year-old black pacer captured the $800 feature race Thursday night but it took a canny drive by Keith Waples to get the job done.

Doug Johnston C. appeared to be hopelessly boxed during the dash for the finish wire, but Waples backed his charge out of the hole and found racing room between horses. He made it to the wire just a whisker in front of Midnight A. Grattan. Carolwyn Grattan was third.

Doug Johnston C. returned $11.80, $6.50 and $5.10 and boosted his earnings for the season to $6,044.

Argos Play Stamps Sunday

Tumbling Tigers Meet Roaring BC Lions

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Unemployment may be relatively high, but jobs are still opening up in the Eastern Football Conference.

The season is at the halfway mark, and two of the clubs are still hiring in hopes of pulling away from the mob that is currently jammed atop the standings.

Ottawa Rough Riders, who have played six games of the 14-game schedule, and Montreal Alouettes and Hamilton Tiger-Cats, who have played seven games, are deadlocked for first place with six points each, providing unexpected competition, after a five-game losing streak, are Toronto Argonauts with four points.

But things begin to sort themselves out in the next few days, during which the Western Conference's top teams invade the East for a series of interlocking Canadian Football League games.

The Als and Ticats, both pre-season favorites, have slumped with two consecutive defeats and are still trying to patch holes in their lineups.

MAY USE NEWCOMERS

Hamilton will insert at least two new backfielders Saturday afternoon when they play host to British Columbia Lions, who lead the Western League with just one loss in eight games.

Art Baker, a halfback and defensive linebacker from Buffalo Bills of the American Football League, and Tom Gates, a two-way halfback picked up from Toronto, will probably be named by coach Ralph Sazio.

Another possibility is halfback Jim Pace, a late cut by New York Giants of the National Football League. Regular halfback Willie Bethea is a doubtful starter because of a face injury.

Montreal, scheduled to face Calgary Stampeders, second in the West, next Tuesday, have picked up Mel Samenko, a defensive end cut by Ottawa last week.

The Als came back from a Western swing last weekend with a team of walking wounded and coach Jim Trimble is scouting NFL castoffs to plug some gaps.

Punting specialist Gino Berretta may be tabbed by Montreal for converts and field goals but that place-kicker Bobby Jack Oliver has been sidelined for the season with torn knee ligaments. Oliver was injured in the Als' 20-9 loss at Vancouver Monday.

AIRLIFT IS OVER

Meanwhile the Argonauts, noted for their frustrating football during the first half of the season, have announced their airlift of American imports is over.

"We'll sink or swim with what we've got," said coach Nobby Wirkowski, who finally has fullback Larry Hickman back as the Argos meet Calgary in Toronto Sunday afternoon.

With the exception of injured halfback Lyan Bottoms, Wirkowski said he will go with the team that beat Hamilton 15-7 last week, ending a five-game victory drought.

In Ottawa, the Rough Riders are satisfied, as of now, after successive victories over the Ticats and Winnipeg Blue Bombers, last year's Grey Cup finalists. The Riders, with room for another import since defensive back Larry DeGraw received his citizenship papers this week, tackle the Lions in Ottawa Monday night.

AT THE FOUR CORNERS — BELLEVILLE

Rectangular taillights integrated with the bumper design give the completely restyled 1966 Thunderbird a fresh new look while retaining the traditional Thunderbird classic styling pictured here. One of the new comfort and convenience features of the new Thunderbird hardtop and Landau models is the silent, draft-free ventilation system, that utilizes a vent below the rear window that can be opened and closed by means of a vacuum-control switch, located on the console. This-shell bucket seats, pedestal-mounted and retractable seat belts all contribute to greater interior room and convenience. The dash panel has been completely redesigned with instruments located in separate pods. The new higher consols with padded top to act as an arm rest combine with the other interior changes to give the 1966 Thunderbird a cock-pit motif. The Thunderbird will be seen in Ford dealerships later this month.

Lauren Bacall Sees Life In Hollywood 'Graveyard'

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — That astute observer of Hollywood scene, Lauren Bacall, is back in town and here's what she sees: Hope.

"Two years ago when I was here, the town seemed like an empty grave," she said. "Now there seems to be a different atmosphere. The old order is passing, and young directors and writers are taking over and doing things. There is new optimism and life."

Miss Bacall has returned from New York to play a villainous psychiatrist in Shock Treatment.

"I go nuts and everything," she said. "It's the toughest thing I've ever done, but I think I can do it."

During her stay here, Miss Bacall has lived at the beach, but she has seen enough of the Hollywood scene to make a report.

NO BIG PARTIES

"There don't seem to be the big parties any more," she said. "The big names, died or moved away. But there are some left, I suppose, but they keep to themselves or to small groups of friends.

"I think that may be just as well. The parties got to be tedious; there was no reason for them. It was the same way with premieres. Every other picture that came along had to have a premiere. The premiere as an institution didn't mean anything any more.

"I'm against such cheapening of standards. That's the reason I turned down putting my feet in the cement."

She referred to the time she was asked to join the movie immortals in the forecourt of the Grauman's Chinese Theatre.

TO BE TRIED

ST. JEROME, Que. (CP)—J. Albert Langlois, former director of the Montreal police department, will appear for trial here Nov. 8, charged with leaving the scene of a traffic accident in the Laurentians north of Montreal. The charge arises from a collition between two cars last month. No one was injured.

At the Park

"OLD DARK HOUSE"

The kind of murder and mayhem that leads to a phrase like "you'll die laughing!" may be found in the Park Theatre's new attraction, "The Old Dark House," starring Tom Poston, Robert Morley, Janette Scott and Joyce Grenfell, "The Old Dark House" is the first of the screen's happier whodunits.

A William Castle-Hammer production for Columbia release, "The Old Dark House" presents Poston as an amiable American automobile salesman in England. While delivering a car to an eccentric British millionaire, at the "old dark house" which is his home, Poston stops into a series of mysterious murders. In fact there is a will and where there's a will there's always a way to combine corpses and comedy, lunacy and laughter.

Resident in the smoke-shrouded ancestral mansions are a variety of other eccentrics, Morley, for example, plays a weapons collector who delights in the lethal powers of the mantilling flames he has gathered until an ancient blunderbuss is secretly rigged to blow him apart. Miss Scott is one of the manhunting young cousins who choose the American car salesman as their prey. Miss Grenfell is their aunt, a lady who watches their antics with indulgence while she knits — until her knitting needles are used on her! Also in residence is an uncle firmly committed to the belief that there will soon soon be another Flood; he is building an ark while collecting his animals two by two. Finally, there is the over-protective parent of one of Poston's two girls; he provides laughter by strangling her suitors!

"The Old Dark House" is indeed a happily humorous place, and Poston's troubles are many and mirthful. He is simultaneously, potential murder victim and chief murder suspect; in sheer self-defense, he must find the real killer before he and everybody else is killed.

SECOND FEATURE

"13 FRIGHTENED GIRLS"

The added thrill feature in color is the story of Thirteen Frightened Girls on the Run! Columbia Picture presents "13 Frightened Girls," with International screen beauties, producer William Castle's warning to girls "Thirteen Frightened Girls Who Fear Curls." Complete shows are at 7:00 and 9:30 p.m. The shows are continuous on Saturday from 1:00. Both features are first showings and makes good entertainment for the week enders.

NBC's New Horse Opera May Be Mystery of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Temple Houston, NBC's new horse opera may provide the most interesting mystery of the television year. Not the series, but the network thinking in substituting it for a Robert Taylor series.

The first episode Thursday night introduced a barrister in buckskin alleged to be Sam Houston's son.

It looks as though NBC has found itself an attraction as star of their own shows. It was an engaging hour.

KILL 13 GUERRILLAS

SAIGON (AP) — Vietnamese troops killed 13 Communist guerrillas and captured 12 in a drive through the swamp Ca Mau peninsula 150 miles southwest of Saigon, the official Viet Nam press reported Friday. It also reported Communists attacked four strategic hamlets and outposts in the last two days. It said eight defenders were killed and eight wounded. Yet over the years few of his cartoons were suppressed.

Sir David Low, Cartoonist, Dies in London

LONDON (CP) — Sir David Low, 72, internationally-famous political cartoonist, died Thursday night.

Low, described by Sir Winston Churchill as "the greatest of our modern cartoonists," was born in Dunedin, N.Z.

He sold his first political cartoon at the age of 11 for the equivalent of about 35 cents, and his cartoons became known all over the world.

Churchill himself many times was the victim of Low's pungent caricatures.

Every politician of note from the time Low arrived in England in 1919 was the subject at one time or another of his biting comment and drawing.

Almost without exception those in the receiving end bore Low no malice. Most of them would have felt slighted if they had not been the butt of his wit.

REACTION TYPICAL

A typical reaction was that of Sidney labor minister J. H. (Jimmy) Thomas.

When Low said to him "I've handed you down to posterity," Thomas replied with a chuckle: "You've 'anded me down to posterity."

Low, a radical in politics, often worked for newspapers of contrary views.

From 1927 to 1950, he was cartoonist for the London Evening Standard. Since 1953, he had worked for the Manchester Guardian. Queen Elizabeth knighted him in 1962.

Low was famed for his character Colonel Blimp, a bumbling Englishman.

His 25-year association with Lord Beaverbrook's right-wing Evening Standard was a fascinating feature of British journalism.

FEW SUPPRESSED

Low's caricatures of Hitler and Mussolini were etched in ridicule.

"Jest a Second"

"You can go next, ... I'm still working up courage!"

Lord Beaverbrook somewhat this aspect up in 1950 at a farewell gathering to mark Low's departure from The Evening Standard to the Daily-wing Daily Herald:

"I had two artists on my hands. One at night time was Churchill complaining about Low. The other was in the morning — Low complaining about Churchill."

Low once lampooned Churchill by portraying him as Mr. Micawber, the famous character of novelist Charles Dickens, who was always waiting for something to turn up."

He poked fun at Beaverbrook himself, ridiculing the Canadian-born newspaper magnate's most earnest campaigns.

Low's last cartoon appeared in The Guardian June 1.

TYPED A SCHOOL

Low's Colonel Blimp was the personification of that school of British conservatism rooted in the Victorian era.

Blimp, a paunchy oldster with a huge, walrus-moustache and clad in a towel, was pictured perpetually in a Turkish bath. He even became the subject of a movie.

Another well-remembered figure was Butterup, a huge, ungainly, draft horse representing the British Trades Union Congress.

Low's caricatures of Hitler and Mussolini were etched in ridicule.

A SPECIAL MESSAGE TO THE VOTERS OF BELLEVILLE AND DISTRICT

I'm not a man given to loud talk and vain promises, but I am a worker and know that I have obtained for this riding, from the Conservative Government, more than the usual share of concessions. During my 14 years in the Ontario Legislature, I have worked long hours to fulfill the trust you have placed in me. During this entire period I have missed only one vote in the house, and I was absent at that time meeting a special delegation from Trenton in regards the Trenton Memorial Hospital.

Last year I served on 12 special committees in the Government. During my years as your representative I have become very well known in every department, which enables me to reach department heads and ministers readily and present the problems of constituents.

Again I respectfully solicit your vote and and support on September 25th.

Sincerely

W. E. "Sandy" Sandercock

Panic-Stricken School Student Doesn't Know Whom to Believe

By JACK HUTTON

How much homework should you be planning this fall?

The answer to that question depends upon how good you are at concentrating, how well you want to do next spring in your exams and how noisy your family is.

But it depends on something even more important: how well you can organize. This is the key word which unlocks the door for many otherwise average students.

This column is a partial answer (from a fellow who didn't follow all his own advice) to a Halifax grade 10 student who wrote the following letter to me last week.

"If this sounds like a letter from a panic-stricken high school student who doesn't know whom to believe, it is. That sums up my situation — even though school has just begun.

"My marks weren't bad last June, but my folks keep telling me I'll be lucky to make university unless I do more homework every night. They seem to figure I should lock myself into my room every night for two hours.

"On the other hand, one of my teachers tells me that a student who sings it out in Grade 10 will probably go under Qater anyway. And she says she never did anything more than reading over her notes at night.

"Who do I believe? I remember you writing about this before, so perhaps you would be good enough to repeat your advice for thirteen like myself at this important time of year."

Since experienced guidance teachers believe that students who worry about study habits are the ones who will do well anyway, I'd guess that our friend is doing better than he suspects.

But here are the best tips I know.

1. Draw up some form of timetable. The best way to do this is to keep a record of your homework and revise for one week, then look at it. Are you favoring your best subjects?

2. Make a habit of rereading your notes on the same day you make them. Since psychologists say we forget most of what we learn in the next 24 hours, the best defense is to beat this with a review.

3. Try to do all your studying in the same place each night. Make it a corner as uncluttered as possible to avoid distractions. Some like studying with a radio. Some don't. Suit yourself.

4. Are you a daydreamer? This is one of the most frequent complaints I've heard from friends who set aside an hour or two for studying, but instead jump in imagination over a hundred topics.

The way to beat this is to make a check mark on a piece of paper each time you catch yourself slipping into daydreams. If you're honest, the record will look bad. But you'll find that just being conscious of daydreams cuts down on them.

Finally, how much time should our friend be spending on homework each night. I've heard many teachers disagree on this, but a good rule-of-thumb is that the average student should be spending one hour a night on homework by grade 10.

This doesn't, by the way, just mean doing the work assigned for the next day. The most successful students I ever knew were those who simply spent even a few minutes rereading what they'd written during the day — filling in misleading phrases.

Have you ever tried to read hastily-written notes after they have grown "cold"? Any report card will tell you what a painful chore this can be.

Our friend will undoubtably strike some form of truce with his family when they realize he's on the right track by himself. How many of you have struck a truce with your own nightly timetable?

Two readers have asked if we know how hit parade charts are drawn up, and if they are based on sales alone in the record shops.

This is a factor, but it's obviously not the only one. Long after a record has reached its "peak" in record sales, it may remain a favorite in the jukeboxes or on radio programs. It's obviously still being heard.

Since disc jockeys presumably play what they figure their listeners will like, a great deal of what they strike you? Question: How can you make their choices. But what, again, is only another factor.

That is only part of the story, but enough to limit that drawing up your hit parade chart is more complicated than most people realize.

THE HEAD

When I suggested that we'd like to hear "elephant jokes" from your private collections, I didn't expect to see the thundering herd that came across my desk.

Frankly, I wondered whether some of them were meant to be funny, but a teen-age neighbor found them all hilarious.

Here are a couple of samples.

How do they strike you?

Question: How can you make an elephant float?

Answer: It's simple. Just take one glass and add ginger-ale, ice-cream and an elephant.

Another reader recalled the old story about two elephants standing together when an ant walked by. The first elephant reached out his foot and crushed the poor ant.

The second elephant spoke up. "Say, what'd you do that for?"

"Sorry," said his friend. "I was only trying to trip him."

We'll print more of these in future columns, and we'd still like to hear yours.

U.S. Slams Door On Canadian Trade Proposal

Canada Wants Car Parts Exported Into States

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States has slammed the door against a Canadian proposal which in effect would force the U.S. to open its gates wide to Canadian automotive products or face the prospect of Canadian restrictions against some $450,000,000 worth of annual automotive imports from the U.S.

Canadian trade department officials say that Canada exported to the United States in 1962 cars, trucks and parts totalling $10,190,587.

Defence Production Minister C. M. Drury raised the proposal Friday at closed-door sessions of a joint cabinet-economic conference and Commerce Secretary Luther Hodges later told reporters: "We don't like it and we put up a damn good case against it."

In other high American quarters the Canadian proposal was described as "screwy" and something that Mexico might advocate rather than Canada.

But Drury said he wasn't going up. He would keep pressing the Americans to look favorably on the plan, though he admitted his initial attempt had HAVE SAME PROBLEMS failed.

Both countries face problems in solving worrisome balance-of-payments deficits. Drury estimated Canada's deficit in trade with the U.S. amounts to about $650,000,000 annually. He said the Americans have admitted something must be done about the Canadian deficit, just as something must be done about the over-all U.S. deficit.

The Drury plan, which has not yet been officially "launched" in Canada, was placed before the American ministers in the hope their reaction before it was formally implemented by the Canadian administration.

Since Canada imports about $500,000,000 annually in motor vehicles and parts, with about 90 per cent coming from the U.S., Drury reasoned that the U.S. branch operations of Canadian subsidiaries should encourage an expansion of Canadian automotive production in the form of parts or complete vehicles, shipping more of this production into the American market.

This would reduce the Canadian need for imports; reduce the Canadian payments deficit and at the same time give provincial governments more employment opportunities for Canadians.

Canada already has tried this out in a small way through a one-year tariff incentive to increase exports of automatic

Surplus In Trade Is Shown

OTTAWA (CP) — Increased merchandise exports, combined with a smaller dollar drain on tourist travel, have helped reduce Canada's international balance - of - payments deficit on current transactions to $193,000,000 in the second quarter of this year.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Friday that more than two-thirds of the reduction from the $362,000,000 deficit a year earlier was brought about by a switch from deficit to surplus in merchandise trade.

The report underlined the continuing reduction that has taken place recently in Canada's current payments deficit. This deficit covers both merchandise trade and so - called "invisibles" — payments on such things as interest and dividends, international travel, and freight costs.

The deficit in the first half of this year has been reduced to $439,000,000 from $685,000,000 the first-half 1962. The deficit from the whole of 1962 was $848,000,000—compared with the peak of $1,504,000,000 in 1956—and the deficit in the 12 months to the end of June was $682,000,000.

PRODUCES SURPLUS

A strong rise in merchandise exports in the April-June quarter of this year—up nine per cent from a year earlier—produced a $97,000,000 merchandise surplus compared with a $45,000,000 deficit in the second quarter of 1962. Imports increased by less than two per cent to $1,765,000,000 from $1,-620,000,000 while imports increased by less than two per cent to $1,663,000,000 from $1,-665,000,000.

For the first half of 1963 there was a merchandise surplus of $135,000,000 compared with a $52,000,000 deficit a year earlier. The 12 months to the end of June produced a surplus of $342,000,000.

Killing Accident, Says He Tried To Inflict Old Arab Punishment

BARRIE (CP)—An Ontario Supreme Court jury was to decide today the fate of a Camp Borden soldier, charged with capital murder in the shotgun death May 23 of another soldier in a mess at the camp.

Lance - Sergeant Leonard R. Demille, 32, who testified he had meant only to scare and maim Sgt. Herbert S. N. Wilson, 33, whom he is alleged to have killed, told the all-male jury he felt he and his eight - year - old son Douglas would have no peace until he was able to "get this guy off my back."

Defence counsel J. A. Hoolihan called on the jury Friday to bring in a verdict of manslaughter.

He said Wilson had been killed in an attempt to intimidate him, and that a second shot—said to be the fatal one—had been fired accidentally.

L.-Sgt. Demille told the jury earlier that he shot at Wilson's grave in the camp cemetery in May with the thought of an Arab punishment of castrating anyone who made any sort of advance to another man's wife — learned when he was serving in Egypt.

Demille said he was sure Wilson and Mrs. Demille's estranged wife were conspiring to get him into trouble and get him discharged from the army on Mrs. Demille could obtain a divorce.

Crown Attorney William Thompson, asking for a verdict of guilty of capital murder, said the idea that the fatal shot was fired accidentally was "far fetched."

He said that had the fatal shot been accidental, the accused would have gone for help instead of going to the bar, ordering a beer and bearing the appearance of a person satisfied with a job well done.

Chemical Plant Rocked by Blast Six Injured

TORONTO (CP) — Shattered steel drums and balls of fire hurled through the air Friday after a series of explosions rocked a waterfront chemical plant.

Six firemen were injured, none of them seriously, as they fought the resulting fire in the storage area of Anachemia Solvents Limited.

Police in sound trucks evacuated residents from the surrounding area as workers in nearby chemical and petroleum plants left their jobs and poured into the streets.

Six drums, each holding about 200 gallons, and a seventh holding about 500 gallons exploded "like land mines," witnesses said. They ripped through the roof of the corrugated iron shed, spewing flames skywards.

Insp. James Henderson said the blast occurred while workmen were distilling mineral spirits used in paint manufacture. The workmen were near the blast, but escaped injury.

An employee said the fire started when a back-firing oil burner ignited.

Factory Manager Jack McGregor said the firm will be "out of business for a while." An estimate of the damage was not immediately available.

HURT IN TROIKA

Pace Apparently Quickening In Ont. Election Campaign

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The pace could be quickening as the campaign for Wednesday's Ontario election nears its end.

Issues brought up by the three provincial party leaders and other candidates Friday generally were the same ones that have had a wide airing since the start of the campaign.

But the first violence reported since the start of the electoral contest cropped up at a New Democratic Party rally for Leader Donald MacDonald in Toronto, when Liberal party supporters tried to raise a banner and were punched and chased out.

Some of the oratory became more cutting.

Lands and Forests Minister Kelso Roberts claimed there were at least 10 deliberate lies in a speech by Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer, then made a palatial reference to the "big lie" technique used by Adolf Hitler in his rise to power.

Premier Roberts said Mr. Wintermeyer had made a "deliberate attempt to mislead the people" by playing politics with Ontario separate school education policy.

Mr. MacDonald criticized the Liberal party's endorsation of the proposed federal pensions program when they do not know what it will contain. He said Federal Health Minister Judy LaMarsh, who has appeared in support of Liberal provincial candidates, should stop "galumphing across the province telling Ontario to reject the Canada pension plan."

Mr. Wintermeyer read a letter to a meeting in east-end

Some U.S. Space Officials Disappointed at Proposal

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Underlying President Kennedy's dramatic proposal for a joint U.S.-Soviet moon expedition may be a feeling that perhaps the United States going it alone cannot beat the Russians to the lunar surface.

The suggestion, made before the United Nations Friday, comes at a time when the slip is showing noticeably on U.S. plans for manned and unmanned exploration of the moon. Public enthusiasm for the project apparently is waning. Funds are spiralling and the U.S. Congress no longer is rubber stamping space agency money requests.

Some officials who are doing the spade work at Cape Canaveral for the lunar landing effort expressed surprise at the president's proposal. They agreed that a combined U.S.-Russian effort would help world tensions, but they were disappointed at the indication Kennedy is ready to back away from great national goal of being first on the moon.

When Kennedy declared the United States in the race in May, 1961, with a target of landing astronauts on the moon before 1970, there was general national enthusiasm. A few scoffed at the president's decision was rash, made hastily in the wake of Russia' achievement of

Cold War Thaw's Mood Is Broken By Bitter Note Sounded On Apartheid

Delegates Silently Stream Out As South African Defends Policies

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The United Nations General Assembly ended the first week of its fall session on a bitter note Friday after four days of almost unbroken harmony.

About two-thirds of the 111 assembly members staged a mass walkout as South Africa's G. P. Jooste took the rostrum to reply to an attack on his country's racial policies.

Earlier in the day the assembly had heard a policy address from President Kennedy in which he outlined ways that East-West relations could be improved—including a possible joint American-American expedition to the moon.

The assembly, the U.S. leader said, was meeting in an atmosphere of rising hope, and at a moment of comparative calm.

But the peaceful mood was broken late in the afternoon as Jooste, who had considered whether to place the South African race problem on its agenda.

LEADS ATTEMPT

When Jooste first sought the floor to oppose the item, Algeria spearheaded a hurried attempt for a 20-minute adjournment as a "symbolic demonstration."

After the recess the South African was permitted to make his formal objection.

Algerian delegate Abdelkader Chanderli demanded inclusion of the item, saying South Africa should never have been permitted to join the UN.

Jooste exercised his right of reply at the end of the session, but as he started to speak, delegates in all parts of the big chamber rose and silently streamed out.

Jooste, allowed to finish although the assembly lacked a quorum, said the demonstration was "against the spirit of the charter," and had set a "dangerous precedent."

MAY HAPPEN AGAIN

Alex Quaison - Sackey of Ghana, spokesman of the African bloc, told a reporter later there was no plan to continue the boycott. But he said the issue of admission might be taken in the assembly's special political committee, or the South African issue came up.

Other African delegates spoke of an attempt to challenge Australia in the credentials committee.

The walkout left a handful of Asian delegates, most of the Latin Americans and the full Western bloc — including Canada—seated in the chamber.

Prime Minister Pearson, who wound up a five-day visit to the UN today, had left earlier.

Railways Facing Big Task

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's railways are bracing themselves for a major—but they hope not impossible—job in moving to the ports the 329,000,000 bushels of wheat and flour purchased by Russia.

Planning the giant shipping operation has not yet advanced to the stage where the railways can start assembling box cars and locomotives, but its magnitude makes it clear the CNR and the CPR will have to throw all their resources into the job.

Says CPR Vice - President R. A. Emerson: "It obviously is a big job, but in terms of what has been done in the past I cannot wouldn't say it is insurmountable."

The publicly owned CNR says it is fluctuating having to get all out. "But we feel we can handle it, although there may be a strain on a mo mentary," says a spokesman.

Both carriers agree that any delays in moving the grain cars at the ports once the operation starts could spoil chances of success.

MUST MOVE FAST

Mr. Emerson said in an interview that the grain cars will have to move and move fast.

"Prompt loading and unloading of the trains will be crucial."

There has been no official estimate yet as to how much of the total shipment will go through the Lakehead, the eastern Maritime ports or possibly

Canadian Boat Leaves Chicago

CHICAGO (CP-AP) — The Howard L. Shaw, a Canadian vessel which arrived empty in Chicago 13½ days ago, left Friday after union workmen defied a court order and again refused to open grain into the freighter's hold.

The 450-foot ship steamed out of the Calumet River, under police guard and without benefit of tugs, and headed for Port William.

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Melt from the cold war began to trickle through the United Nations this week.

There were indications that the trickle, with any luck, could become a flood, or at least a freshet.

Except for a harsh attack on West Germany, of which Russia obviously has genuine fear, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko was embodied sweetness Tuesday.

President Kennedy, as expected, set the same tone Friday.

Gromyko said: Let's go to Moscow next year and have a summit conference on disarmament. Kennedy said to Russia: Let's go to the moon together.

Gromyko was for "peaceful coexistence." Kennedy was for "peaceful cooperation."

These attitudes were a welcome change from the crisis atmosphere of the General Assembly occasioned by the Cuba situation.

OTHER SUGGESTIONS

Prime Minister Pearson of Canada offered some suggestions on how the UN might be reshaped to become more effective in dealing with international disputes.

One of his suggestions was for the pooling of international units for UN peacekeeping operations anywhere in the world.

Kennedy welcomed this and the Soviet Premier's call for maintenance of the UN force in The Congo as long as required.

The general attitude was: How can the UN seize on the present thaw to struggle for by the nuclear test ban to widen areas of agreement among the superpowers?

Canadian informants said that one of the political ironies of the present situation is that former Conservative external affairs minister Howard Green, who continually preached the armament and stoutly opposed disarmament instead of nuclear weapons, is not around to enjoy at least a moment of triumph.

APPROVED ALLIES

Green pushed the disarmament line so hard at times—especially at NATO council meetings—that Canada's allies became annoyed with him.

It now can be disclosed that at the closed NATO meeting in Athens in May, 1963, Green said the risks inherent in continuing nuclear testing outweighed the risk of an unpoliced nuclear test ban. His position was coldly rejected by most of Canada's partners at the meeting.

In any event, the winds of change are blowing here.

Indonesia Decides to End Trade With New Federation of Malaysia

CP from AP-Reuters

BOGOR, Indonesia — Indonesia broke trade relations today with Malaysia in retaliation against the new federation's severance of diplomatic relations with Indonesia.

Deputy First Minister Johannes Leimena announced President Sukarno decided on the action at a conference with his aides in Bogor.

Leimena said the break was directed particularly against Singapore and Malaya, where wealthiest members of the federation composed also of the former Dutch colonial possessions of Sarawak and North Borneo.

Leimena said it was also decided to stop using Malayan dollars as the medium of exchange in the Riau archipelago, a series of Indonesian islands just off Singapore which has thoroughly dealt in Malayan currency.

Sukarno has decreed, Leimena said, that the regional economy should be a major weapon in Indonesia's anti-Malaysia campaign and that the policy of hostile confrontation with the new neighboring federation should be extended to

Want A-Arms at Any Price

Russia Calls Chinese Traitors, Hypocrits

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Russia today fired a new broadside at Communist China for opposing the partial nuclear test - ban treaty.

Observers said the latest criticism took the two nations nearer than ever to a complete break.

The bitter attack, published in today's Russian press, came in a 7,500-word "first instalment" reply to a Chinese statement of Sept. 1 which called the treaty a "deceit" and a "betrayal."

Russia accused China of "treachery and hypocrisy" and trying to split the world Communist movement over the test-ban issue.

The statement rejected Chinese criticism of the treaty and said China opposed the pact only because it wanted to get nuclear weapons at any price.

It said the Chinese position "amounts to a complete apostasy from the common, collectively formulated line of the Communist movement on these questions."

"The Chinese leaders can issue a thousand and one more statements on the nuclear test-ban treaty but they will not be able to whitewash their treachery and hypocrisy in the eyes of Communists, in the eyes of the world."

It added the Chinese leaders "suffered a serious moral and political defeat by attacking the treaty," hammered out by Russia, the United States and Britain.

The statement argued that Russian nuclear might was sufficient to defend China and other Communist nations.

The statement weakened earlier Soviet pledges of military aid to China by saying the Chinese leaders have developed some special aims and interests which the Socialist camp cannot support by its military might."

This appeared to be a reference to China's actions on the Indian border already condemned in a party newspaper editorial Friday.

Several times, in slightly different phrases, the statement repeated the charge that China was attacking the rest of the world Communist movement on the nuclear issue and thus had virtually outlawed itself.

Large Quantity Cheese Offered

A total of 10,500 large cheese plus 12,333 square cheese and 4,285 specials were offered on the Belleville Cheese Exchange this week. The average price for raw milk white cheese was 38¼ cents and for colored 38 5-16 cents per lb.

Local Market Loaded With Fine Produce

There was plenty of activity on the local farmers' market here this morning despite the somewhat cooler temperatures.

A large assortment of flowers was offered, selling from 50 cents a bunch. Vegetables were offered in great quantities, such as radishes, selling at three bunches for five cents, onions, beets and celery at 10 cents a bunch, cucumbers from 10 cents apiece, potatoes, 60 cents a six-quart basket. Canteloupe was offered 25 cents and up, according to size, as was watermelon.

Pears were sold this morning for $1.10 to $1.25 a six-quart basket and blue grapes for $1.10 a six-quart basket.

Eggs rose slightly in price today, selling for 55, 50 and 65 cents a dozen for small, medium and large and 70 cents a dozen for extra large.

Apples sold for 65 cents a six-quart basket and up. Only a few peaches were offered this morning.

Prices have changed very little from previous weeks and with the exception of pears and grapes, no new produce has been added to the vendors' stands.

Cool temperatures blanketed the area early this morning but by mid-morning, the sun was slowly squeezed the chill out of the air. An exceptionally good crowd was witnessed on the square today.

Vendors' stalls were near filled and the walks between rows of produce displays were jammed with early morning buyers. Today's market could probably be classed as one of the best market days of the season thus far.

Because of the lack of rain and unusually cool weather during the peak summer months, crops were generally slow and the amount of produce usually seen on the market, has not been available in vast quantity until the past few weeks.

Limerick Club Hunting Rights Policy Explained

The main interest of the Limerick Hunting and Fishing Club Ltd. with hunting rights over close to 50,000 acres in Centre Hastings is to insure and continue good hunting for local residents.

There is no intention whatever of placing an "iron curtain" around the club's leased property, reserving it for the enjoyment of wealthy hunters from the big urban centres.

This was stated Friday by Forrest R. Dennis, of Marmora, secretary treasurer of the Limerick club, who said that both member and non-member hunters would be leased hunting rights for a nominal sum.

Mr. Dennis was replying to statements made earlier this week by East Hastings Liberal candidate Roy Sills who was quoted as criticizing government legislation permitting a private club to lay an "iron curtain" around thousands of acres of free bushland.

Mr. Dennis said his club leased hunting rights on Dominion Tar and Chemical on deeded property scattered in several townships in middle Hastings. Most of the property was in Limerick township.

But no Crown land whatever was involved, he said.

"Dominion Tar advocates of the property hold the right to lease hunting rights to whoever they wish", he said.

10 CENTS AN ACRE

Mr. Dennis said a life membership in the hunt club costs $20, with hunting rights to members set at 10 cents an acre and hunting rights for non-members 15 cents per acre.

Based on the acceptance of the private club, the hunting population can stand only one deer slaughtered per hundred acres, hunting rights for one deer cost a member about $10, and a non-member about $15.

This, Mr. Dennis suggested, was far from the $250. figure mentioned by Mr. Sills.

The Hunt Club secretary said that hunting parties leasing hunting rights who could have sole rights over the area leased.

EXTENDED OLD LEASE

The Limerick Hunt Club, now with just over 100 members, was formed in 1958 and its members originally hunted free on property owned by the Dominion Tar Pulp and Paper Company.

Three years ago the company sold its holdings to Dominion Tar and Chemical which "ceded to charge the hunting rights. The Limerick Club was forced to renew its lease or run the risk of rights being leased to outside interests.

Local hunters who in the past may have hunted free in the area don't have to join the club to continue hunting on Dominion Tar property.

"But if we have to pay for hunting rights we will have to charge the hunters," Mr. Dennis pointed out.

Mr. Dennis said the club membership did not include Progressive candidate Clarke T. Rollins of East Hastings as had been implied.

The club, according to Mr. Dennis, is not licensing wildlife as was claimed by Mr. Sills.

"We are conservation-minded and want to abide by hunting and forest rules," he said. "We're a non-profit organization and mainly interested in the betterment of hunting and fishing in the area."

Military Tattoo at Gardens Attracts Capacity Crowd

TRENTON — In spite of the fact that this year an admission was charged for Trenton's second annual Military Tattoo, there was standing room only on many of the area citizens who flocked last night to the opening performance at Trenton Community Gardens. The money from the entrance fee will be used for the bands to adopt an overseas orphan, when all expenses in connection with the tattoo itself have been deducted.

The proudest man at last night's performance was Trenton's mayor, D. James MacDonald, who has worked tirelessly with the special tattoo committee to make the event a success. Emceeing the tattoo was commentator Ted Snider and the behind the scenes planning was carried out by members of the RCAF public relations' staff, Mr. Snider, band leaders and other members of the committee.

The parade through the town streets which preceded the band performance almost took on the air of the Santa Claus parade for the youngsters lined up with their parents in their hundreds to see the gallant bandsmen march by.

Inside the arena, the excitement was almost overwhelming as the colorful musical pageant unfolded. And it was a field day for the Scots in the audience from time to time as individual pipe and drum bands and massed bands swung from "Scotland the Brave" to the "Road to the Isles." The bedecking rang with the cheers and claps which greeted each appearance of the Scotties.

A rest from emotion was provided by Sgt. Howard Kelly and the No. 6 Repair Depot Band, when the audience was treated to several well-arranged modern selections and the precision drill of the Canadian Guards brought the traditional "pin-dropping" silence from the spectators as the 30 some guards moved as one man through their paces.

The performance is a treat to the eye as well as to the ear, for the blues and greens, the reds and whites and the muted hues of the tartans blend with the golden gleam of the instruments in the spotlight to provide a reason for watching.

Bands taking part last night were the Regimental Band of the Canadian Guards, the Pipes and Drums of the Toronto Scottish, the RCAF Pipes and Drums, the 6 RD Band, the bugle band of the Queen's Own Rifles and the band from 400 Auxiliary, Toronto.

Tonight, Quinte area residents will see a colorful performance by the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment Trumpet Band, with added attraction to the bands which took part in last night's performance.

CENTRE OF STUDIES

EDINBURGH (CP) — The city's observatory will become the world's seismological nerve centre. It will record information on earth tremors and possible nuclear tests. The observatory is situated on a crop of hard rock and is free from surface vibrations that sometimes distort recording apparatus.

Transistor Type Radios Put in PUC Units

TRENTON—The Trenton Public Utilities Commission has bowed to the edicts of the electronic age and voted to install transistor type radios in its mobile units to replace the older type tube radios.

This move will result in a saving in the commission of roughly $1,500 a year as with the old-type radios, run off the trucks' batteries, motors were run continuously on a 24-hour basis. Now, the work day way will be on the radio components only.

However, the commission will still continue to stick to the old fashioned methods when it comes to supplying town residents with hydro electric power.

And the reason is an economic one.

At a commission meeting on Thursday, utilities manager Harold Ireland told the commissioners that to put 44,000 voltage wire underground on Dufferin Ave. would cost $75,000 for insulated cable alone, without taking installation costs into consideration.

Installation of underground wiring in other parts of town where the voltage is lower, would be less expensive, but at least three times as much as the present method of stringing the wire on hydro poles.

Town council, whose idea it was to have the wires on the Dufferin Ave. wiring underground, will be acquainted with the facts.

83 BORN IN AUGUST

The average daily population at Trenton Memorial Hospital in August, (for adults and children,) stood at 84. Nursery population was recorded as 14.3 on a daily basis.

During the month, 317 persons were admitted to the hospital, 243 persons treated in the out-patients' department and 590 emergency cases handled.

In August, 83 babies were born and there were nine deaths. Operations last month were down from recent months with 29 major operations being performed and 45 minor operations recorded.

Stirling Chief Nabs Suspect In Burglary

An electric cord dangling from a car trunk and spotted by an alert Stirling police officer has resulted in a burglary charges against two men.

Stirling police chief C. E. Hicks stopped the automobile with two occupants, as he patrolled the village. One of the men fled. The other was taken in custody on the spot.

A break-in was later discovered at Armstrung and Sons premises in the village. Electrical equipment, discovered stolen was recovered, say police, in the trunk of the automobile.

Yesterday Chief Hicks, working with city police, picked up a second suspect in Belleville, later also charged with thefts in the city.

Charged with possession is 25 yearold Arnold Thompson, formerly of Toronto, and Frederick Emery, 26, of Wellerville and Hastings, held for the Stirling break-in and stealing from parked cars and car theft in Belleville.

Autumn Shaping Up Earlier This Year

Autumn is shaping up early this year.

The first fronts of the fall season were felt on their annual earlier than usual this year and even the leaves are already starting to take on their annual autumn tinge.

Following the rain earlier in the week the leaves started to fall as in mid-October and to the north in mid-Hastings are already taking on their annual autumn coloring.

More Short Courses Will Be Offered

This year the Bay of Quinte District High School Board will continue its policy of adding a number of subjects offered in Evening Classes in the Belleville Secondary Schools. Last year some short courses were offered and since these proved to be quite popular, more will be offered this year. In co-operation with the Belleville Recreation Committee, ten-week courses in crafts will be given. Silk screening, weaving, ceramics, leathercraft and mosaic tile will be considered provided at least 15 register for the classes. Other short courses will be held in public speaking, conversational French and advanced shorthand.

In addition to the usual courses in technical and commercial subjects, there will be classes in sewing, millinery, and V.L.A. home building. Grade 13 Algebra and Grade 13 English may be popular enough to warrant classes this year.

Registration for Monday and Wednesday classes at Moira Secondary School will take place from 7 to 9 p.m. on Monday, September 23 and for Tuesday and Thursday classes at the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School on Tuesday, September 24, with classes starting the following week.

Last year over 700 people from Belleville and district were registered and it is expected that the number will be considerably greater this year. Accommodation is limited in most of the classes and those interested are urged to register on the nights indicated.

Portable Pensions Issue In Election Campaign Says Dr. Haidasz at Liberal Meet

Portable pensions were described as "the burning issue" of the OntaTio election campaign in Belleville last night.

Speaking to a Liberal rally in the McCarthy Theatre, Dr. Stanley Haidasz, M.P. Parkdale and parliamentary secretary to Health Minister Judy LaMarsh, charged while Ontario membership vital to the all-Canada federal pension scheme, Premier Robarts so far has not fully declared his position on the issue.

"This plan is not only the greatest social measure ever to be presented to the people of this country by a federal government," said Dr. Haidasz, "But it is also a program far superior to any national contributing plan given by any country in the world, including the United States."

However, he added, Mr. Robarts' statements on the issue still do not make it clear where his support lies, although he revealed himself agreeing to it in principle.

"He has yet to declare himself fully in support of the Canada pension plan," Dr. Haidasz claimed.

Ontario approval was urgent if the scheme is to succeed since Quebec has not indicated any desire to join.

Dr. Haidasz also was critical of the Ontario government representation at the federal-provincial conference on the plan September 10th.

He said he was "amazed" to discover a member of the Ontario delegation was also a representative of the London Life Insurance Company, he was "shocked" that Welfare Minister Louis Cecile was absent.

ONLY HALF MEASURE CLAIM

I think that the people of Ontario are aware that this measure of the Robart's scheme is only a half measure, proposed by large insurance companies and certain trust companies.

Among vital advantages in the federal plan over the proposals earlier put forward by Mr. Robarts were portability anywhere in Canada; transfer of benefits to widows and orphans, and full payment within the next ten years. Under the provincial Conservative plan payment in full takes 40 years.

"There is nothing that is more important an issue than the pension plan. It is very, very vital indeed to the people of Ontario," said the speaker.

Onstage at the rally with Dr. Haidasz, were West Hastings candidate Frank Follwell, Roy Sills, East Hastings candidate and Robert Temple, M.P. Hastings South.

Mr. Follwell, who returned from touring the Bancroft area for the meeting, said the vital issue locally was whether the electorate wanted new vigor, new action to get new results in the riding.

"These grants are automatically paid by statute and no one can take them away unless the legislation is changed."

The riding has been neglected in its development and its communities must be rejuvenated through active leadership.

He also pledged support to boost grants to health units from its current 50 percent to 80 percent. The provincial government now makes up to 80 percent grants on roads and bridges and he was surprised "That this government would feel there is anything more important than the health of the people.

He reiterated the Liberal intention to abolish sales tax on all purchases below $25. He said the items within that bracket the tax costs more to collect than it brings in.

Mr. Sills spoke briefly on his campaign in East Hastings whose he is up against Clarke Rollins, MLA in the last government.

"My opponent is doing awfully well," he told the crowd, adding Mr. Rollins wasn't making any speeches but writing lots of parties.

Mr. Sills drew laughter when he concluded he was glad voters are availing themselves of the opportunity to get some money back."

Gail Miller Prime Minister At Quinte School

The "Will-Do" party Thursday swept 25 of a possible 30 seats in Quinte Secondary School's student parliament. Three seats went to the "High-Q" party and two were tied. Gail Miller, as leader of the Will-Do's, is prime minister of the school.

Minister of Publicity in the new student government is Rockne Taylor. Minister of Social Affairs is George Campbell and Minister without portfolio is Donna Chase, leader of the High-Q's. David Jowett is Speaker of the House.

Members of the new student parliament hope their opening session will be broadcast by radio station C.J.B.Q., next Wednesday.

'Suicide Curve' Residence Again Damaged

The house at 174 Cannifton Road last night was again involved in an automobile accident — this time at a cost of $200.

The residence of Andrew Knott, a guard at Hastings County Jail, No. 174 is on Belleville's "Suicide Curve" — so called for its repeated traffic mishaps. The Knott residence has come in for repeated damage as some of the cars, swerving out of control, invariably fail to miss the house.

Last night Lawrence Turcotte, 18, of 111 Centre Street, lost control of his car on the curve. It took out a guard post, swerved across the road, bowled over the Knott mail box, spun in a circle then rolled on its side — crashing against the house.

Turcotte was taken to Belleville General Hospital with abrasions and complaining of a sore back. Damage to the car was estimated at $400.

Two Accidents Cause Injuries, Some Damage

Ontario Provincial Police investigated two minor accidents in the area early this morning. At 4.30 a.m. Constable L. E. Davis was called to investigate an accident on the Kindell Lake Road near Plainfield after a car, being driven by Glen H. Parks, 36, of R.R. 1 Plainfield, left the road and struck a tree.

The collision caused about $400 to Mr. Parks' '56 model car.

Mr. Parks was rushed to the Belleville General Hospital by La Salle Ambulance where he is believed suffering from facial lacerations and possible head injuries.

At 7.18 a.m., Constable Ted MacDonnell was called to the scene of a one car accident on highway 401 at the Marysville cut-off. Police say 40-year-old Allan Thompson, 1455 Dorchester Street, Montreal, Quebec, was temporarily blinded by the sun, and drove off the road through a checkerboard sign indicating the end of the dual-lane highway.

Mr. Thompson escaped the crash uninjured with about $250 damage being done to his vehicle.

City police report a quiet night.

LIFTS STATE OF SIEGE

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — A state of siege in effect in Argentina almost continuously since December 1958 was lifted Friday night at midnight in a decree signed by President Jose Maria Guido. It was imposed to combat what was termed subversion from Communists and followers of ex - dictator Juan D. Peron.

Damage $1,000, Mishap Involves Four Vehicles

Damage was figured at $1,000 in a chain-reaction mishap in Belleville, started, say police, when Mrs. Joan Pauline Wright of Roslin, drove through the Catherine - Everett streets intersection.

Her automobile was struck broadside by a car driven by Charles Gordon Demill, of Foxboro. The Wright car slewed out of control and struck the parked car of Gary Locke, 59 Haig Road, pushing it into another stationary automobile, owned by Jack Grinrod, 32 Sinclair Street.

Damage was estimated at $350 each to the Wright and Demill vehicles, $250 to Locke's and $50 to Grinrod's car.

Just Irresponsibles

The two Canadian boys who were found guilty this week of "inciting to riot" in the Birmingham racial troubles put Canadians in an unfortunate light. The only Canadians publicly involved in the affair, they had to be aligned with the National States Right Party — the party least likely to be popular in Canadian eyes.

It had to be that way though, one suggests. The two boys may have segregationist ideas, but it is more likely they just went to a trouble-spot looking for trouble. Too many comic books, perhaps. Perhaps, a yen for notoriety. Anywhere there is trouble, one can expect some would-be-adventurers will arrive, sooner or later.

And when amateur trouble-makers arrive on any such scene, they have little or no chance of being accepted by any responsible group in the dispute. So any Canadian irresponsible who shows up on such a scene will wind up working for an irresponsible cause in the dispute. One hopes that U.S. authorities and anti-segregationists will realize that these two Canadians are representative of irresponsible boys in general, not of Canadians in general.

Council's Responsibility

A Trenton resident almost bled to death recently, in the east side of the town, while the nearest ambulance was trapped on the west of the open swing bridge, Trenton council was told this week. Trenton Councillor Ross Burtt commented that if anyone does die because of the swinging bridge, Department of Transport officials will have the death on their consciences.

Mr. Burtt's statement appears logical, but there is a flaw in the reasoning. Mr. Burtt's comment suggests that there was once a large, integrated town of Trenton, and the Department of Transport ran a river through it, and failed to provide adequate bridging. In fact, the town is where it is and as big as it is, just because of the Trent River and the Trent Canal. And as long as the town has grown about the river and the canal system, it is the town's problem to adapt to the conditions under which it has grown.

There is no denying that a high-level bridge would be best for both the town and canal users. There is no suggestion either, that the town should pay the whole shot for it. Senior governments should certainly pay part of the cost of such a bridge.

But until such a bridge is provided, Trenton councillors should remember that they live in a town divided — and that the division was there before the town arose. Common sense would suggest that under these circumstances, emergency equipment should be stationed on both sides of the river.

Grasping at Straws

John Dyes may be prosecuted for breaking British Columbia's law against straw votes at election time.

If he does, it will be a major miscarriage of justice.

Dyes, general manager of three restaurants, conceived a gimmick to promote the sale of hamburgers.

He offered Bennett Burgers, "give us credit for this one, my friends"; Fulton Burgers, "a solid meal at a Conservative price"; Perrault Burgers, "a liberal portion done as you like it"; and Strachan Burgers, "newsi newi recommended by your doctor."

The names, and the accompanying slogans, identify each of the four types of burgers with a particular political party.

Surely, though, it is nonsense to argue that their sale can be interpreted as a straw vote. The Bennett Burger has lettuce and cheese, the Fulton Burger cheese only, the Perrault Burger lettuce only and the Strachan Burger cheese and onion. One does not have to be a conservative type to refrain from eating cheese and onion on the eve of a heavy date, but on the other hand even the most liberal of personalities may be forgiven for considering lettuce as something less than an adequate addition to hamburger. Even if all Bee-Cee-ers vote from the head or heart, surely some of them consult their tastes when they eat. And how about all those people who do not like hamburger, no matter what is with it? They have votes, too.

If Mr. Dyes gets in a real pickle over this stunt, it will only prove that there are some addled eggs in the prosecuting party.

To renew ties with the past need not always be daydreaming; it may be tapping old sources of strength for new tasks.—Simeon Strunsky.

Results of Foreign Aid Frustrating in Many Areas

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Foreign Aid Lobby — that strange alliance of global idealists who subscribe to the odd proposition that your tax dollar becomes ennobled when spent on international charity — has been pumping out propaganda that Canada is the Free World's second-ranking tightwad.

This has been calculated to twist the Government's political arm, and External Affairs Minister Paul Martin seems to have been feeling at least a slight twinge of pain, for he has been talking of stepping up foreign aid.

The hard money fact of the matter is that you and your fellow taxpayers have been letting close to an annual $90,000,000 slip through your tight little fists in global give-aways.

Out in one hefty whack goes nearly $42,000,000 to Southeast Asia, with perhaps another $18,000,000 going in a dozen or so hand-outs around the world.

While this apparently is considered to mean ease and misery by the foreign aid lobby, it takes a special staff of 110 in the external aid offices of the external affairs department to give it away.

The external aiders draw total annual salaries of $852,000 for this international charity done in the name of

PRINCES AND PALACES

And did you catch that Canadian Press dispatch recently from Oshawa of the Ontario doctor returning from a foreign aid assignment in Somaliland, Asia and complaining that the local maharajah was building himself a new million-dollar palace? Leave sure palace while his peasant subjects were accepting taxpayer charity from Canada?

The story threw the external aid office into such a snit that it sent The Canadian Press and the newspapers a stern lecture on what it considered should or should not be carried in the news service wires.

But despite the almost $90,000,000 already going in international hand-outs and such embarrassing little facts as the merry maharajah, the foreign aid bread-beaters have come up with a bigger and better proposition for your global give-away.

They have been importuning Paul Martin that now with the United States, in an interlude of elected-official self-interest, having cut back its axis into the foreign aid pool, who better to pick up the slack than the tab?

Who better, of course, than you?

Well, let us look at the authenticated record of American foreign aid.

They invented it. It was their baby, and it grew into a giant.

How big?

In 17 years, to a total of $120,000,000,000 — that's 120 billion — poured into 106 different countries.

DREAM TO NIGHTMARE

The grand dream, first glimpsed in the Marshall Plan to build a war-weary and weakened world restored to economic health on any terms but the American dollars and living a free, prosperous, democratic life ever after.

Suddenly that dream, in many troubled spots around the world, has become a little like a nightmare.

And as never before, Americans, in all walks of life and grannys, have been asking themselves: Was it worth it... that did we get for those billions ... and would it be wise to throw more good money after bad?

In South Viet Nam there is the ugly vision of the Diem Government prepared to pay a daily inflation of $1,000,000, writing itself up as a tough dictatorship.

Pakistan has broken the Soviet front with an air pact with Red China.

Ceylon has grabbed American oil company assets.

Cuba has gone communist.

The "Alliance for Progress" in Latin America can't get off the ground.

India is building Soviet jet fighters for her air force.

And in Western Europe, where so many billions were spent in post-war foreign aid, the Common Market is blocking American trade -- they call it the "Kennedy War" -- behind a high tariff wall.

Enough, it seems, is enough. Even for a nation dedicated and determined on doing good globally.

DEFINITION

For suddenly, now, the United States Congress has revolted on Foreign Aid — and the global give-away lobby here is beating down Mr. Martin's door with demands that he dragoon the Canadian taxpayers for extra hand-out service.

The U.S. House of Representatives slashed $585,000,000 from President Kennedy's foreign aid program of $4,500,000,000.

And it was left to one of President Kennedy's own supporters on the Democratic side of the House to come up with what must be the neatest, if most humiliating, final definition of foreign aid heard yet:

"It is," snapped Democratic Congressman Frank Chelf, "the spending of money we haven't got . . . on people we don't know . . . to impress people who hate our guts."

And the House of Representatives, in carving that $585,000,000 slice out of foreign aid pie, apparently agreed.

The day of the big hand-out may be over. Even in countries on the border — for nations which take dollars and then do as they undemocratically please.

But unless Paul Martin can stand off and face down the Foreign Aid Lobby, the reverse Congress which in 1776 set this side of the international boundary and Ottawa could find itself helping to carry some of the load Washington is dumping.

Congo Row Over Salami

Halifax Chronicle-Herald

The Indian Mutiny, the great revolt of the Bengal native army in 1857 which led to the transference of the government of India from the East India Company to the British Crown, was sparked by what was in fact by both Hindus and Moslems to have been an insult to their religion-based dietary laws.

The new Enfield rifle was loaded with a cartridge whose end had to be bitten off before the powder could be rebisted down the barrel. Apparently, the lubricating grease was made of a mixture of cows' and pigs' lard, a fact which, when pointed out to the Indian soldiers, gave rise to the revolt.

Echoes of the great mutiny are now being heard in The Congo where a so - called "salami war" is on. It concerns two hundred pounds of surplus Danish salami ordered by the United Nations for its school lunch it operates in that country.

The Congolese director of one school accused the Canadian head of the UNESCO mission of trying to introduce "fascism" and "neo-colonialism" by forcing the unwanted salami on his institute. His own staff, he maintained, should have been given the responsibility for ordering provisions.

"Fascist" salami from Denmark, we gather, would have been studiously avoided.

Paperbacks Get Smaller

St. Louis Post-Dispatch

The vest pocket size paperback book, a younger brother of the pocketbook size paperback, devoted to facts of one sort or another, is booming for reasons which remain a mystery to us both literarily and satirically.

One of the largest facts which everyary around with us, (usually in the inside coat pocket) is that few men wear vests.

Nevertheless, the vest pocket paperback is selling 3,000,00 copies a year and bringing in $1,000,000, which is a big piece of pocketful of money. Perhaps it comes of wanting our facts in a comfortable pocket instead of having pockets with nothing to put them in.

Just in case it might be the latter, we suggest, that the publishing fields around a little with a watch pocket size paperback. Males with empty watch pockets are even more numerous than those who don't wear vests, and some enterprising entrepreneur could profitably going to supply them with something. It might as well be the irreducible paperback.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

30 YEARS AGO

September 21st, 1933

Following complaints that mischievous lads were wilfully destroying benches at Riverside Park, Constables Taylor and Wright apprehended seven teen-agers lurking about the rear of premises adjacent to that park late Friday night. The seven lads were escorted to the police station, their names recorded, and Chief Probert announced that today they would be arraigned in juvenile court. This will be because they have been loitering around after ten o'clock at night which is in direct violation of the curfew law.

Passengers on the city bus participated in a thrilling experience on Friday afternoon when the west hill bus went out of control on West Bridge Street, knocked down a Hydro pole and continued on its wild journey until it crashed into the west wall of the grocery store at the corner of James and Bridge Streets. Fortunately no person sustained serious injury. The driver of the bus informed Chief Probert and Sergt. Ellis, who investigated, that he had started to make a left-hand turn out of Cedar Street to proceed easterly on Bridge Street, when apparently the steering apparatus failed to function.

Jews in this city and district congregated yesterday morning at the Synagogue of the Sons of Jacob to observe New Year's celebration — the ushering in of the Jewish year A.M. 5694. Over 200 thousand new years of apples have been shipped from this section to England according to Mr. George Dafrom, local produce buyer and shipper. The shipments alone will total about thirty thousand barrels.

Mr. John B. Lynch of Tacoma, Wash., is visiting relatives here.

Mr. Chris Holmes, manager of the Capital Theatre, is spending a few days in Ottawa.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard J. Carre, Dundas Street east, have returned home after a motor car trip through the Gaspe Peninsula.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dafoe of Dundas Street are spending here with Mrs. A. Gunsolus, North Front Street. They are recently home from a trip to Sault Ste. Marie.

The Rev. C. E. Clarke, rector of Christ Church, is absent on vacation.

Mr. A. J. Walkley of Montreal is spending a few days here with Mr. Richard Phillips.

Mr. F. E. O'Flynn, barrister of this city, unveiled a tablet on the organ in the Methodist Church in Madoc on Sunday evening, marking the reopening of the church after being thoroughly renovated and improvements added. Mr. O'Flynn is a former resident of Madoc, and gave an excellent address which was listened to by supporters of the church since 1885.

Males Involved in Many Cause of Infertility

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Doctors have run every imaginable test on my husband and can learn what is preventing us from becoming parents. We are both in terrific financial need and have been married five years. The doctors suggest I undergo an asphenization operation that can they find out from this? I am 36 years old. — Mrs. H. C.

I'm glad that your husband has been tested, too. The old assumption that failure to conceive is always the woman's fault is erroneous, because from one-fifth to one-half the cases of infertility involve the male.

"Infertility" is usually reported to mean that pregnancy does not occur after a year or two of marriage. Yet the fact remains that considerably more than many years and several years later pregnancy does sometimes occur.

After prior illnesses have been studied, glandular deficiencies corrected, physical defects repaired, occasionally a marriage still remains childless and without explanation. This group, of course, that we don't know all the answers.

The basic responsibility of blood type (if don't meant the Rh factor) is reflected in the sperm; this can be a problem in conception. Too much effort may exhaust the male potential, and a rest can prove to be the best solution. Psychological factors are important, particularly those over "infertility" as the years pass. The greater the worry, the greater the difficulty in achieving pregnancy, and it is not too unusual for couples, giving up hope, to adopt a baby and then have children of their own once their nerves have relaxed.

What can about the male? Should may be found, endometriosis, which can prevent pregnancy, can be determined by a accurately by surgical exploration, it is a rather common cause of infertility.

Unsuspected developmental defects, may be found and possibly corrected. Sometimes a procedure called a "wedge resection" can be performed on the ovaries, and this sometimes increases fertility.

Surgical approach, it seems obvious to me, should be carefully weighed. Adopting a child should also be considered — perhaps before the surgery, since pregnancy may occur after the adoption.

But I also recommend, once again, a prescription that perhaps is not used often enough — a relaxing vacation. This often works. . . .

Dear Dr. Molner: Please write more about migraine headaches that start the day I can't do to avoid them. I am exclosing 20 cents in coin and a self-addressed envelope for a copy of your booklet, "How To Stamp Headaches," in case it mentions migraines. — U. T.

The booklet most emphatically discusses — and eliminates — migraines, because of the frequency of this trouble. You'll find a good deal of migraine data, and I think it will help if you study the booklet, and follow its advice.

Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter is quite tall and is only in her teens. Since both my husband and I are tall, I'm very concerned. Can anything be done to control height? — A. F.

Heredity is the dominant factor and you can't do anything about height.

The one thing I would do would be to subtly mention all the advantages of being tall. However, don't make a campaign of it. Raise a daughter or son to be a nice child and then a nice grown-up, and what does a tape measure mean, compared to that?

Hemorrhoids can be cured. If troubled with flatulence, fistulas itching and other rectal problems, write to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 198, Dundee, Ill., requesting a copy of the booklet "The Real Cause For Hemorrhoids," enclosing a long, self-addressed envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover printing and handling.

Need to Know Foe's Side

Sioux Falls (S.D.) Argus Leader

"He who knows only his own side of the case knows little of that," wrote John Stuart Mill (1806-73), British philosopher and economist.

We would be better informed on politics and other matters if we looked into all sides of a question instead of merely buttressing our own convictions.

To protect our own position, we must know at least as much about our opponent's side of the case as he does.

The only way to get at the truth is to listen to no matter where the truth may lead.

That means reading or listening to what the enemy is contrary to our own, not to immediately accept or reject but to weigh and consider.

Admittedly, this is often easier recommended than accomplished. It's hard to look for flaws than merit in the other fellow's argument. Prejudice dies hard, especially as we grow older.

The possibility of self-deception is always with us as we venture into the market place of ideas, to borrow a term to trade and barter. Sometimes, when we think we're thinking, we're only rearranging our prejudices.

Today in History

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sept. 21, 1942 . . .

Loss of the Canadian destroyer Ottawa was announced 21 years ago today—in 1942—following a German submarine attack on an Atlantic convoy. The toll was 118 officers and men dead or missing. Also announced lost that week were the corvette Charlottetown with nine dead, and the patrol yacht Raccoon, with 37 killed. The Ottawa was one of the six modern destroyers with which Canada entered the Second World War. She was one of the escort destroyers whom Princess Elizabeth and Queen Elizabeth crossed from Vancouver to Victoria Island during the 1939 Royal visit.

1957—King Haakon VII, of Norway died.

1949—The Federal Republic of Germany, West Germany, came into being.

Friendship

Ottawa Journal

Says a letter to a Toronto columnist:

"When I was in my teens a very dear older friend, a member of one of Canada's best known and most highly esteemed families, told me that the essence of good breeding was never to make personal remarks, never to ask personal questions, never to peer at a person unnecessarily. This was the essence of her life and her lifelong friendship was very precious."

But distant?

Fashions Really Wild

Ottawa Journal

If the columnists are to be believed, this should be the wildest and woolliest fashion season in many a year. Possibly nothing so outlandish has befallen us since the '30s. The fashion writers are currently ravishing over such confections as hamster shirts, tiger waistcoats, black satin shoes, fur for the head, chicken feathers or an adaptation of an ancient Greek battle helmet.

The helmet idea is particularly appalling. "Satirical" cloche, it is fitted around the face, circling low to the nape of the neck with a high, stiffened crescent," says the report. It comes in black suede for a daytime, bronze, for evening, and for after dark. Enough to stop a clock, if not a Roman.

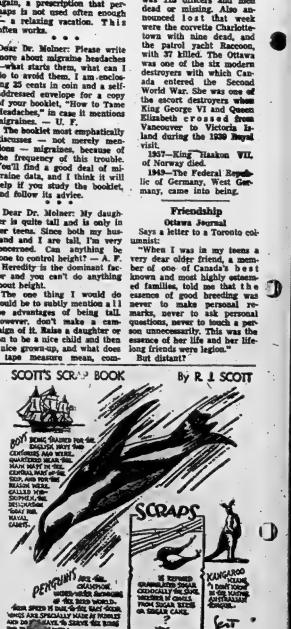
Use the hamster shaft and the tiger waistcoat we have no details, and can only conjecture whether the former is the style of hamster skin, is the color of a hamster, or perhaps contains a pocket into which you might put a hamster if one happened to have one lying around.

No word either on whether the waistcoat is real or fake tiger and is designed to allure, intrigue, or merely to terrify potential fashion competitors.

One London fashion reporter says everything this season will be fur. A subtle coaxack hat will be worn with a fur jacket, and you couldn't go wrong with an ensemble in crushed strawberry with empire or dropped waistline and lynx trim.

Another woman with an eye to fashion tells us that the old standby of the mackinaw coat has come back with a bang. Expect leather jackets in the spring are being constantly related with shearling. he says the leather has changed a bit the mild falls permit summer clothing to be worn longer. The weather change we had not noticed.

Ancient Tradition



Financial Post

On a July day in 79 AD, just 1836 years ago, Vesuvius erupted and buried the city of Pompeii in ashes. There was an absolute going and it is Pompeii of the time. Digging in the ruins archaeologists have found painted, scribbled and carved on houses the advice to vote for Modestus, Lucretius or somebody else with a Latin name.

Even though no volcanic explosion is likely to preserve current Canadian electioneering for posterity, this nice to know that we are in line with an ancient tradition.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

Airlines Unable To Agree on Cut In Their Fares

SALZBURG, Austria (AP)—A conference of top international airlines Friday ended in a deadlock over projected cuts in transatlantic passenger fares.

Delegates of 32 member airlines of the International Air Transport Association said, no agreement seemed to be within sight on reduced tariffs which had originally been expected to become effective next spring.

No official announcement was immediately made. Conference sources said after the closed-door meeting, however, that a new conference probably would be called here in October to try to straighten out the differences.

A communique said the talks were recessed until Oct. 22 when the conference will be reconvened here. In the meantime, the airlines would consult their government on what steps should be taken to achieve agreement.

Today's meeting which brought about the breakup was to deal with package proposals for a new tariff scheme for flights between London and New York.

OPPOSE FARE CUTS

Authoritative sources said the disagreement resulted from firm opposition by major European airlines against U.S. government - backed proposals aimed at drastic fare cuts in the economy class.

The opposition, apparently headed by British Overseas Airways Corporation, maintained that the American proposals would put much of a financial stress on carriers whose revenues from transatlantic services have been below those of the big U.S. companies.

While such companies as Pan-American Airways, Trans-Canada Air Lines and Lufthansa advocated fare cuts between 25 and 33 per cent of the present structure for economy - class passengers, a large section of European companies insisted on decreases of so-called promotional tariffs, such as excursion and group flights, but wanted to restrict economy-class fare decreases to a minimum.

The U.S. government was reported to have backed the plans forwarded by Pan-Am and TCA. Pan - Am's projected "thrift class," a minimum-price third class in addition to the existing categories, fell by the wayside during the first week of meetings. BOAC called the plan a "cattle truck service" entirely unacceptable to European carriers.

ARREST THREE

NEW YORK (AP) — Three civil rights demonstrators who chained themselves to a crane boom 150 feet above the ground at a construction site were lowered to the earth and arrested Friday on charges of trespassing, coercion and resisting arrest. Police climbed the boom and attached safety belts to the three demonstrators and themselves before ordering the crane operator to lower the boom.

Why Are Canadians Cold?

By DORIS CLARE

DORIS CLARE

DEAR DORIS — Six years ago I emigrated with my husband and son to this wonderful country from England (an equally wonderful country). We love it here, but one thing puzzles, and hurts us a little too.

In England, whenever a new family moved into the neighborhood, we did our very best to make them welcome. In no time at all they felt they were no longer strangers, nor "shut out." This is a country where the people are supposed to be "cold and reserved." Now here, where everyone is supposed to be so outgoing and friendly, we have found the reverse to apply.

Since our arrival in this country, not once has any neighbor extended a friendly hand. We have been left strictly alone. Is the procedure different in this part of the world?

I would like to point out that we are not undesirable people. We are not dirty or loud. We have joined several community projects and have made many friends this way.

I don't mind a bit going up to an old established resident and introducing myself but feel as a newcomer I shouldn't be "pushy" or it would be resented. — BRITISHER.

DEAR BRITISHER — Here's to the old-fashioned outstretched hand!

The big-city dweller suffers most from isolation; his "neighborhood" of friends is found where he works or plays; not so often where he lives. And he no longer remembers the custom of calling on the newcomer.

We do better in suburbia and in the country. And where you make the first move, the person greeted may well be surprised — but resentful? I hope not!

* * *

DEAR DORIS — My sister is getting married and she has been told that the groom buys gifts for his bride's attendants. I always thought that was the bride's duty.

Also, the bride-to-be doesn't like fruit cakes. Does the wedding cake have to fruit cake? — SIS.

DEAR SIS — The bride chooses her attendants from among her best friends. Her gifts to them are her thank-yous. She picks them, pays for them, herself.

As for cake, the knot is tied just as surely with a very special Bride's Cake, a white one, for which I am sending you the recipe.

DEAR DORIS — I would like to go and live in France for a year or two. Where could I get information about finding a position over there, about a suitable place to live, clothes, money needed? — ALLOUETTA.

DEAR ALLOUETTA — Get in touch with Miss Gladys Arnold, French Information Service, 42 Sussex Street, Ottawa, Canada. Gladys is a Canadian who lived in Paris herself for a while and loves the place. She answers questions like this all the time. Bon Voyage!

the west coast.

The railways are expecting, however, that most of the shipments will go through the Lakehead—either picked up by ocean vessels using the St. Lawrence Seaway, or carried down the system by lake vessels and trans-shipped at Montreal.

Once the seaway is closed by winter—the official closing is set for Nov. 30—the railways figure they will have to start carrying the wheat and flour to Saint John or Halifax.

Since the shipment is to be completed by July 31, 1964, time is a crucial factor.

The CNR and the CPR have a total of about 106,000 box cars available, with about 30,000 normally involved in moving grain. More can be thrown into the job —provided they are not needed to carry other commodities.

WHY does scandal, hints of corruption, conflict of interest continually erupt at the top level of government. Despite assurances everything is normal, we have the spectacle of a government behaving like a fire brigade — always on call to put down the latest eruption. Think of the number of alarms turned in since the last election began. ?

WHY are our citizens still living under a creaking system of legislation, if this government is as new as it claims — a system that still unfairly places the burden of welfare and education costs on the local taxpayer while both systems fail to match up to the demands of modern society. ?

WHY is economic expansion in this province still mainly confined to an already overgrown metropolis while such ridings as EAST HASTINGS wither for want of attention to their farmers and labor force. ?

● This is the result of a government in power so long it has lost touch with the grassroots.

● Local representation has come to mean pasive membership in a legislative club that seeks safety in numbers.

A Lift for Living

Like Puppy Dog, Man's Spirit Needs Sunny Spot to Play, Rest

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

Some of our four - legged friends have a habit that we humans could well develop for our spiritual profit. They make a practice of playing and resting in a patch of light. Not far from my study desk is a sunlit knoll where long ago a vixen for days per day, on the south side of the hill where the sun peaks through an opening in the encircling trees. There in the spring of each year, for cubs frolic upon the sun-drenched grasses and wrestle among the sunwarmed ferns.

On a dark day, when the sun bursts through a rift in a heavy storm cloud, our dog Lass will find a small circle of sunshine where a few rays drift through our windows. There she will lie, basking in a soft, warm splendor.

When we are at our best we humans do a similar thing. We seek out a sunny spot of spiritual light and warmth, and from time to time we return there and allow our minds to play in the golden radiance or let our souls rest in the beneficent warmth.

GROWTH OF FAITH

This is one way we encourage the growth of faith. We let memory spread light from the past upon our present situation. In that patch of light the mind plays and rests. When days were dark with discouragement the ancient Jews would recall the admonition of the book of Deuteronomy, "Remember the day when thou camest forth out of Egypt," and "Remember the way which the Lord thy God led thee." The Israelites had been slaves of the Egyptians, and God had freed them. If God could help them in such an extremity in the past, He could help them again in their present or future distresses. What God had done he could still do. In that thought their souls stretched and grew, rejoiced and found repose.

As old gospel song advises, "Count your blessings, name them one by one." Reviewing the good that has befallen us lets the best hour of our yesterdays — past joys, companionships, and victories — warm the present moment. Some cheering word of a friend, a gay note of remembered laughter, or some thoughtful act of kindness restores our faith in what other people can mean to us. An illness overcome, a temptation resisted, a sin forgiven, a tragedy turned into triumph refreshes our trust in God's ever-present help. "Remember all the way which the Lord thy God led thee." In such ways our souls play and rest in a patch of light from the past.

BEING REALISTIC

But more is involved here than the use of the past to brighten the present. Choosing a patch of light in which to play and rest also means selecting from the present those things most worthy of our reflection and our faith. The world is filled with strange mixtures of good and evil, of light and dark. We shall be in touch with both the best and the worst. Being "realistic" does not mean, as we are sometimes led to believe, to look at life's dark or vulgar side, interpreting the worst as "reality." The true realist looks at life as it is, as the Biblical faith sees it — with its slavery in Egypt and its day of emancipation, with its sin and redemption, its squalor and splendor. And the person of faith then chooses to stretch his soul in the sunny awareness of the mercy that is here amidst life's mischief, and Redeemer who is present amidst the ruins.

Well, then, let's face reality. Our mental health and our spiritual good depend on it. But reality must include the best as well as the worst aspects of our human situation. A cesspool is real, but so is the clean brook that dances past our cabin door. Promiscuousness and adultery can be found in almost any community if one looks hard enough, but so can pure living and marital faithfulness. Grudgery and revenge are here in the world but so are forgiveness and grace. Cruel gossip can be heard almost anywhere; so can sincere words of appreciation and honest praise. Profanity is real, so is prayer. War is hideously real, but peacemaking is real too. Judas is as real as Jesus. Crucifixion is real; so is resurrection.

When sunlight streams through my windows, Lass seeks out a patch of radiance and basks in its warm splendor. Where does your spirit find rest?

Wise Traveller Will Not Try To 'Sneak on' Charter Flight

By SHIRLEY And BOB SLOAN

(Q) "My husband and I are interested in going to Rome and would like to know about the least expensive air transportation to Europe. Do you know of any charter flights we can get on?" — Mrs. R. J. H., Omaha, Neb.

(A) This is just one version of a question that is being asked of us and everybody else in the travel field over and over these days, and it is a sign of the public's confusion over the welter of air fares being offered.

A charter flight is a reduced fare flight which operates under certain complex and very specific conditions. The fare is lower because the airline sells out the whole plane in one fell swoop — wholesale, in other words. Now, if everyone could buy wholesale — "get on" a charter flight — there would be no need for retail, represented by the airlines' regular published tariffs.

To travel on a charter, you must have been for six months or longer a bona fide member of the organization which chartered the plane. The organization must not have been formed just for the purpose of the charter, and it must not be a vague or phony group in any other way.

CAN BE CANCELLED

If by subterfuge you can and do get a seat on a charter where you don't belong, the flight can be cancelled without notice even if you're at the airport ready to go, and even if you've already made the first leg of your trip, in which case you'll have to buy a regular ticket back.

Admittedly, these regulations are being violated all the time. But there are signs of the government cracking down harder. Anyway, we'd never take the risk of being stranded and certainly never recommend that anybody else do so.

If you want to get to Europe cheaply, there are off-season fares, family plan fares, propeller flights, group tours and other legitimate ways of saving money.

(A) Quite a bit. It's now called Seattle Center, and all of the major structures on the 4-acre site are permanent. Space occupied by temporary exhibit buildings has been planted with trees and lawns, converting the fairgrounds into a convention centre and park.

In full operation are the Space Needle, Pacific Science House, Playhouse, Arena, Exhibition Halls, International Fountain, and the monorail.

The Coliseum, which housed the Fair's theme exhibit, is being converted into a sports and trade show centre, and will reopen next spring.

(Q) "I understand certain drugs and medicines may have side effects which could make flying hazardous. Do you know where I can get a list of these drugs?" — A. B., Tulsa, Okla.

(A) Send 55 cents to Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office Washington 25, D. C., for the Federal Aviations Agency's booklet, "Guide to Drug Hazards in Aviation Medicine." Among the items listed are common medicines, sedatives, stimulants, certain antibiotics and even some sunstan lotions.

WOULD BE GUIDE

(Q) "I would like to guide tours to Europe and would appreciate the names of some agencies that might be interested in my services?" — P. H., Friends University, Wichita, Kans.

(A) Young man, the world is full of people like you who would give their eye teeth for what sounds like a glamorous job full of free travel. Please be advised that it is one of the most demanding, difficult and highly technical jobs in existence.

Tour conductors are usually either celebrities, who go along for window dressing or because they are authorities on the areas being visited, or they are scholarly experts who also have great responsibilities in keeping the group together, happy and moving.

They must be paragons of tact, patience, knowledge, experience, maturity, and personality. Usually they are not paid very well because of the appeal of free travel, and work harder than ditch diggers.

Now, why don't you go back to classes and learn an easy profession, like doctoring.

(Q) "I plan on going to the Orient by ship and will have 10 days in Japan, 5 or 6 in Hong Kong. Is this too long in a single place? Also, can I get a good buy in cultured pearls or can I do better here at home?" — Mrs. H. B., Miami, Fla.

(A) For the average tourist, five or six days in Hong Kong is usually enough, but 10 weeks in Japan would scarcely scratch the varied and subtle fabric of this fascinating land. It's one place almost everyone wants to go back to in order to see what he missed the first time.

Cultured pearls were invented in Japan and offer better buys than at home, but there is scarcely anything that comes from anywhere that you can't buy cheaper in Hong Kong — especially if you're a good bargainer.

Mrs. Ashdown To Speak at Dinner Meeting

Mrs. Margaret E. Ashdown, provincial president of the Business and Professional Women's clubs of Ontario, will be guest speaker at an "Autumn Friendship Night" dinner sponsored by the Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club at the Masonic Temple on Saturday, September 28 at 7:00 p.m. The topic of her address will be "Behind the Iron Curtain". Mrs. Ashdown has recently returned from a tour of Russia, East and West Berlin with the Voice of Women and will highlight existing conditions in these places.

Past President of the Toronto Business and Professional Women's Club, she has served her organization in many capacities, and is now provincial president of the Ontario organization which has eight clubs in Ontario with approximately 4,000 members.

In addition to her local activities, she was a member of the National Board of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs where she acted as chairman of the United National Committee for the Canadian Federation. Always vitally interested in the work of the United Nations, Mrs. Ashdown organized and conducted four annual three-day seminars at the United Nations in New York, making it possible for several hundred Ontario business and professional women to get in on actual sessions and observe first-hand the workings of the United Nations organization.

The Autumn Friendship night will be an inter-club event with members from Picton, Tweed, Trenton, Napanee, Brighton, and Bancroft attending. It is open to the public and some civic officials are expected.

Question: When we have company I'm never quite sure whether it's more correct to pass hors d'oeuvres among the guests or leave them on the cocktail table and let them help themselves. I have a dinner party coming up soon and would appreciate advice on this subject. — C. R. V., Jackson Heights, N. Y.

Answer: At a crowded cocktail party, where it's difficult for guests to elbow their way to sideboard or cocktail table for something to eat, it's usually a good idea to pass hors d'oeuvres on small, manageable trays so nobody will starve to death. When the group is smaller trays may be passed around when first brought out then deposited on convenient tables so guests can help themselves when they wish.

Question: Shouldn't a man remove his hat in an elevator when there are ladies present? My husband says this is an out-of-date affectation, and keeps his hat on in elevator in an apartment building. It seems di respectful to me, and I'd like to know what you think about it. Mrs. L. L., Kew Gardens, N.Y.

Answer: A man may keep his hat on in a commercial elevator, and most do, even when there are women passengers. But in a residential elevator, home rules still apply and a gentleman should remove his hat in the presence of a female, whether or not he knows her.

Tiffs Add Zest to Living Say Golden Wedding Couple

Claims of some couples married for 50 years or more who say they have never had a quarrel or argument, don't sound true to life for Mr. and Mrs. Denzil Collett of Cannifton.

On the eve of their golden anniversary they admitted they had the odd minor tiff but say it is only natural and merely adds to the zest of living.

This weekend the Collett's are being tendered a dual celebration in the observance of their 50th anniversary.

This afternoon and evening they are "at home" to friends and relatives at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Jack Empson, 86 Selena Ave. in West Belleville, while Sunday an anniversary dinner is being staged in their honor at the home of Mrs. Nettie Longwell, 5th concession of Sidney township.

The couple was married at the Longwell home. Mrs. Collett was the former Minnie Robinson, while the groom of 90 years came from England at an early age and lived first in the Thomasburg district.

Retired after 40 years with the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company at Corbyville, Mr. Collett at one time worked briefly at Point Anne and also farmed for some years in the Thomasburg and Foxboro areas.

The couple have lived for the past 40 years at Cannifton, where they are members of Cannifton United Church.

All this week congratulatory messages have been pouring in to the Collett home. Included was a personal telegram from Ontario Premier John Robarts; a scroll from the provincial secretary and a lovely bouquet of flowers from Clarke T. Rollins.

A 50-year member of the Masonic order, Mr. Collet is a member of the Royal Arch Masons and Quinte Friendship Chapter.

He has no particular hobbies but helps Mrs. Collett with the housework and once a year acts as cook for a party of hunters in which his son-in-law, Dr. Jack Empson is a member.

"I never did any hunting myself, but I enjoy the atmosphere of the hunting camp", he says.

QUESTION:

Would you please print a recipe for Baba au Rum (rhum)? A lot of the girls in our neighborhood would dearly love to make it because one of our clubs serves it as a Sunday night treat — Muriel S.

ANSWER:

In this, as you doubtless know, you may use either rum flavoring or rum.

SATURDAY

Dinner Menu

Old-Time Double-Crust Meat Pie (see Thursday); Mustard Pickles; Iceberg Lettuce Wedges with Tomato French Dressing; Sliced Peaches and Cream; Fresh Uniced One-Egg Cake; Tea.

BABA AU RHUM:

Dough: 1 package granular yeast, 1 teaspoon sugar, ¼ cup lukewarm water, 3 eggs, ¾ teaspoon salt, 1½ cups plus 1 tablespoon sifted flour, 5 teaspoons sugar, 6 tablespoons melted butter or margarine.

Syrup: 1 cup sugar, ½ cup water, ¼ cup rum (or 2 teaspoons rum flavoring and scant ½ cup water).

Soak yeast in the ¼ cup lukewarm water with the 1 teaspoon sugar, giving it one stir light, add salt and rinse yeast and letting it stand for 10 minutes. Beat 2 of the eggs until liquid. Into mixing bowl measure the flour, make a well in centre, pour in egg-yeast liquid and beat hard until smooth. Beat remaining egg and add to mixture. Let rise one hour. Then beat in sugar and slightly cooled melted butter or margarine. Cover and let rise one hour longer, (At this stage decide whether you want one large Baba or 6 small ones) For One Large Baba knead down dough, shape into an oblong roll to fit a greased 9" tube pan and curve it to fit it. Cover and let rise in warm place until triple in bulk. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 40 minutes or until golden brown. For 8 Small Babas cut dough into 8 pieces and form each into uniform smooth ball and place in 8 individual greased custard cups which should be only 1-3 full. Let rise 1 hour until above tops of cups. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. about 15 to 20 minutes or until golden brown. Cool cups or small babas on serving plate.

Combine sugar and water, stirring to dissolve sugar and boil 8 minutes. Remove from heat and add rum (if used) or rum flavoring combined with water. When baba or babas are cool spoon syrup evenly over. Let stand 2 hours then serve.

NOTE:

If desired, ½ cup canned apricots (pureed) and ½ cup canned apricot juice may be used instead of the first ½ cup of water. This addition of apricot puree and juice is excellent.

How to succeed in gardening without really trying*

Plant Dutch Bulbs!

Borrow that armful of "how to" garden books if you must. But you won't have to read them. Buy those expensive garden tools if you have the urge. But you really won't need them. Because the secret of how to succeed in gardening lies in bulbs that bring forth lovely blossoms in their season. And with minimum effort. Here's how. Dig a little hole. Drop in a daffodil, tulip, hyacinth or crocus bulb, right side up. Cover it. Water it. Walk away. That—and three little words—are all you need. The words? Plant Dutch bulbs. It's your guarantee of a world of beauty at your doorstep, come Spring.

Be sure the bulbs say "Imported from Holland." Incidentally, this year you may not find all the varieties you desire due to a short crop. But there should be enough fine varieties to suit your gardening needs. Netherlands Flower-bulb Institute, Inc., 29 Broadway, New York 6, N.Y.

Woman Resents Man's Criticism of Nail Decor

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — A referee is needed. Will you serve? I have been told for as long as I can remember that I have very beautiful hands. My nails are long and the type that do not break. It so happens that I especially like platinum frosted nail polish. I keep my nails perfectly manicured and people are always commenting on them.

The other evening, much to my surprise, the man I've been going with for several months said, "Why don't you stop wearing that hideous nail polish? Your nails look like an eagle's talons."

I was dumbfounded but made a quick recovery and told him I would choose the kind of nail polish I liked — and for the time being I liked this.

Do you feel perhaps I should do as he suggests just to please him? Or should I refuse to be pushed around? — TARSUS.

DEAR TARSUS — I don't see any evidence that he is trying to push you around. The man simply let you know he doesn't like your nail polish.

I say stop wearing the platinum frosted stuff. If your nails and hands are as lovely as you say, any shade of polish will look well. The man will be flattered and you will have lost nothing.

(P.S.: I agree with him. I don't like that platinum frosted stuff, either.)

DEAR ANN LANDERS — We moved into our new home only a few days ago. It is a charming place, just what we've been looking for — but I think we may have trouble with the woman next door. I'm writing to ask how to handle the problem before it starts.

When our van of furniture pulled up this neighbor hauled a lawn chair over to the edge of her property — as close to ours as she could get. She sat there the whole time the van was unloading, examining every piece of furniture as it was carried into our home.

I'm worried about a woman who has so much free time that she can spend an afternoon this way. I've never had any trouble with neighbors and I don't want any now. From her looks I can tell she is not the type I'd care to have anything to do with. How can I be cool without being cold? — STORM WARNING.

DEAR STORM — I know of no personality thermometer which registers degrees, but most people recognize a chilly hello when they hear it.

If you will keep your hello to about 60 Fahrenheit you'll have no problem.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My husband and I have been married for six years. We have passed our 70th birthdays, but you would not think so if you saw us on the ballroom floor.

The problem I'm writing about is not a serious one, in fact it is not really a problem — but a question that needs an answer.

My husband was married to his first wife for 40 years. I was married to my first husband for 37 years. We have discussed our burial plans in a sensible and realistic way. We both agree that each of us should be buried beside our first mates in our respective family plots.

What I do not know, however, is which name I should be buried under. How should the headstone read? Since I will be resting next to my first husband should I be buried under his name? Thank you. — TWICE BLESSED.

DEAR BLESSED — The name on the headstone should read: Mrs. Alice Smith (your first husband's name) Jones (your second husband's name.)

Does almost everyone have a good time but you? If so, send for Ann Landers' booklet "How To Be Well-Liked" enclosing with your request 30 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed envelope.

The Golden Years

Life May Turn Out Like This If You Make It to Age of 88

By THOMAS COLLINS

If all goes well in your retirement, and you crack the life insurance tables by living into your late 80's — as just about everybody expects to do — what will it be like?

A Cleveland, Ohio, man who retired to Stuart, Fla., has come up with a pretty good answer.

He is William Knapp, known affectionately to his large family around Cleveland as "Gramp." He is 88. His description of life at that age comes from a letter written back to his family and passed along by a granddaughter, Mrs. R. G. Reynolds (a mother of two.)

"My days are usually spent around the house (in Stuart) and on the veranda watching the beauty and grandeur of the St. Lucie River," Mr. Knapp says. "Nature has excelled itself in this spot, and as I sit in my rocker watching I can realize the handiwork of the Creator."

LATE RETIREMENT

Mr. Knapp spent most of his life in Cleveland, was in the sign business, and did not retire until he was 75. He remarried at 79, has been in Stuart nine years.

A super stitch wonder what a person my age does to pass away the time," he continues. "Well, I have until my cousin comes. Then there are many good books to read, and magazines with comics, tiresome articles to try to read. Then there is the newspaper which I read until I have a nap.

"At that time I wash up for dinner, eat at 12 noon, then watch TV for an hour. After that I call a taxi to take me to the shuffleboard courts, to play three or four games. A friend drives me home, and I clean up and sit down to supper at 5:30.

"After that it is time for the beginning of the sunset, and I sit in my rocker and watch it for an hour. Then I go in to hear the Huntley-Brinkley report on TV, and watch other TV programs until 9. Then I read the Saturday Evening Post or National Geographic for a while, and go to bed. . ."

Mr. Knapp is visiting his family at 218 Sanbridge Circle, Worthington, Ohio, until mid-October, at which time he will return to Stuart (622 St. Lucie Crescent).

Mr. Knapp finds his nights long and restless, and at the same time a fascinating part of his life. "I often cannot go to sleep until 2 a.m." he says, "and so have three or more trying hours in bed.

"I have a written enough speeches, sermons, letters and travelogues in my mind during these periods to fill ten good-sized volumes.

WONDERFUL MEDIUM

"The mind is a wonderful medium with which to entertain yourself. If you do not fight it or try too hard to control thought, you will be amazed at the wonderful things it will do to you and for you. You can think of constructive things to do, make speeches to yourself as an unseen audience, solve difficult problems, conjugate verbs in Latin or English, write essays, paint pictures in your mind, perform impossible tasks . . . and gradually drift off into a world of dreams.

"And even the dreams can bring you unexpected experiences in which you may have joy, sorrow, or pain, depending on what you ate for supper."

Mr. Knapp, who gets up at 7:45 a.m. says the days can be unusually long, and that little things like letters are a pleasant break in the monotony. But he is happy. His family and the beauties of nature are his best greatest interests, and he shows remarkable zest in both. He is a prolific letter writer, often describing his boyhood in Ohio and his travels. His granddaughter is collecting his letters now with the intention of publishing them in a book.

Mr. Knapp is a pretty good photographer, plays canasta like a pro, eats what he wants, and, since major surgery a few years ago, has been in fine health.

Yugoslav sources said Roberts, on a tour of Eastern European countries, will also have talks with Yugoslav foreign trade representatives.

Deaf Mute Died Shortly Before Being Found

SMITHS FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Maurice Ullass, a nine-year-old deaf mute lost in the bush near here since last Saturday, apparently died about three hours before searchers found him Friday, police said Friday night.

"If our pattern of search had been reversed, we would have found him alive," said Cpl. Robert Andrews of the provincial police detachment at Perth, 11 miles west of here.

Cpl. Andrews, who directed the search, said it was carried out systematically, with one brownie square block of bush covered daily.

Searchers were hampered by the boy's inability to hear them or to cry out. He had a mental age of about three.

Some 1,000 searchers—army members, police and civilians —helped by provincial police bloodhounds had searched the woods around the Ontario Hospital School—for Retarded and Handicapped Children — here Friday as the search for the boy was stepped up.

PLEADS FOR PEACE

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Prince Souvanna Phouma, neutralist premier of embattled Laos, pleaded Friday for big power influence to restore peace in his southeast Asian country.

In a policy statement to the United Nations General Assembly, Souvanna said there has been new disorder in the country despite agreements last year in Geneva.

STOP WELL FIRE

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Led by a famed Texas well-tapper, workmen Friday finally plugged a thundering natural gas well that had broken loose two days ago and for a while threatened a rural section, St. Louis County.

Paul (Red) Adair, "wild well" specialist, used nitroglycerine to channel the escaping gas into a single stream, which was capped.

Party Leaders on the Hustings

Pension Plan May Be Ruined By Old Parties - - MacDonald

By DAVID DAVIDSON

TORONTO (CP)—The move toward portable pensions is the biggest social measure in the last 20 years but it may face disaster because the "old parties" do not believe it is important, New Democratic Party Leader Donald MacDonald said here Friday night.

"The opportunities it affords for bringing security to millions . . . are almost limitless, yet it is in danger of being hopelessly ruined, distorted, because it is being handled by two parties who have no firm commitment to the principle; do not believe sincerely that portable pensions are important," the NDP leader told about 2,500 enthusiastic supporters at an election rally.

He charged that portable pensions as an issue in the Sept. 28 provincial election have been "deliberately and cold-bloodedly obscured" by both Premier Roberts and Liberal Leader Arthur Wintermeyer.

"It is a real issue. Hundreds of thousands of Ontario people feel concerned about it. But the way it has been treated by the 'old parties' means that people are being asked to discuss it on essentially phoney terms."

Mr. MacDonald said that Mr. Wintermeyer has changed his position on portable pensions several times in the last four years.

"If nothing else, this would indicate that Mr. Wintermeyer has no firm convictions about the need for portable pensions."

He described Mr. Wintermeyer's "wholesale endorsation" of the Canada Pension Plan of Health Minister Judy LaMarsh as "thoroughly irresponsible . . . because Mr. Wintermeyer does not know, any more than does any member of Parliament I suspect, most cabinet ministers, just what the LaMarsh plan involves."

CRITICIZES LaMARSH

Mr. MacDonald criticized the health minister "zig-zagging across the province, belligerently daring Ontario to reject the Canada Pension Plan."

"She (Miss LaMarsh) has been so warlike in her posturing, so contemptuous of partisan in her presentation, that one can only infer she would be quite ready to sacrifice the principle of a sound federal plan if she thought by doing so it would elect Wintermeyer and take herself and the federal Liberals off the hook."

His party favors a federal pension plan, the NDP leader said, but it would reserve the right to establish its own program "if in its opinion the savings of the people of Ontario were not being adequately safeguarded and if the plan did not sufficiently meet the needs of the Ontario people."

The NDP leader said Mr. Roberts' stand on pensions could not be pinned down although he admitted that the premier is interested in ensuring that those who have existing pension plans are protected when any new plan comes in.

But he said the Progressive Conservative plan for portable pensions "boils down to turning over an extremely lucrative field of insurance complexity, to private insurance companies."

Liberal Leader Produces Letter To Yaremko

By CARL MOLLINS

HAMILTON (CP) — Ontario Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer produced Friday night the copy of a government letter to support his contention that a formal agreement prevents him from naming a government official he says is a friend of gamblers.

The letter, addressed to Provincial Secretary John Yaremko during last year's crime investigation by the government lawyer in the probe, outlines restrictions on the use by Liberal and New Democratic Party lawyers of confidential files on chartered social clubs in connection with the police for gambling. The opposition party lawyers received copies of the letter at the time.

Mr. Wintermeyer added that a government official, saying he was acting on Mr. Yaremko's instructions, made Liberal investigators sign a pledge of secrecy before they were given access to files which Mr. Wintermeyer says show an official of Mr. Yaremko's office abetted the cause of gamblers against police pressures.

The Liberal leader, speaking to east Hamilton while Premier Roberts attended a rally in the west end, was replying to Mr. Yaremko's challenge to please name the name of the Mr. X in the provincial secretary's office said to have been the friend of gamblers.

DOESN'T KNOW

Mr. Yaremko said Thursday night he had no knowledge that Liberal counsel were sworn to secrecy in order to get at the files in the provincial secretary's office. He said he was never approached to release Mr. Wintermeyer from any condition as the Liberal leader has asked.

Mr. Wintermeyer said Mr. Yaremko tried to block access to the files and then agreed only if Mr. Justice W. D. Roach, the commissioner, would rule that information from them could not be used outside the crime commission.

He quoted a letter addressed to Mr. Yaremko from government counsel R. F. Wilson explaining that Mr. Justice Roach had ruled the opposition parties were to be given access to the files.

The commissioner added the condition that information from the files was not to be used "unless and until the commissioner at a hearing of the commission rules that any part of the material is relevant and admissible and admits the same in evidence."

Mr. Wintermeyer reiterated that he could not name Mr. X unless Mr. Yaremko agreed, at once to release the Liberals from last years agreement and provided assurances to prevent tampering with the provincial secretary's files.

CLAIMS COVERING UP

Attacking alleged Conservative cover-ups of corruption, Mr. Wintermeyer said Premier Roberts has had to order five or six investigations during the concurrent election campaign, including charges of corruption in the Rideau Club, doctoring of a report on corruption in Eastview, and suggestions of illegal profiteering in Shell Oil's takeover of Canadian Oil Company last year.

Britain's taste for frozen foods is increasing but the annual average consumption is $20.1 worth compared to $122.4 worth in the U.S.

Wintermeyer Plays Politics With Education - - Roberts

By JOHN LeBLANC

HAMILTON (CP) — Premier Roberts charged Liberal Leader Wintermeyer Friday night with a "deliberate attempt to mislead the people" by playing politics with Ontario separate school education policy.

In a general election campaign address, he accused Mr. Wintermeyer of "the usual flip flop, infection, wavering and deception" in a claim that only Liberal school financing policy would give separate schools equality with the public schools.

The premier attacked Mr. Wintermeyer on the basis of a Liberal advertisement to this effect, bearing his picture and appearing in the Canadian Register, a Roman Catholic weekly paper published in Kingston.

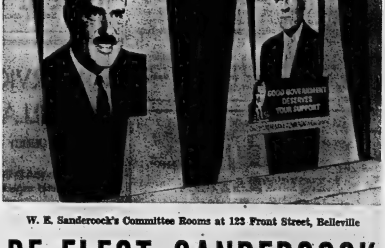
dise transactions, there was a second-quarter deficit of $285,000,000 compared with the $317,000,000 deficit a year earlier.



Half of this improvement was attributed to a reduced deficit on international travel payments. Expenditures by Canadians abroad declined to $158,000,000 during the quarter from $178,000,000 a year earlier. Spending by foreign tourists here rose to $132,000,000 from $136,000,000. The travel deficit was reduced to $26,000,000 from $32,000,000.

The report attributed this improvement to last year's devaluation of the Canadian dollar and to the restrictions in the allowance on duty-free purchases by Canadian tourists that were imposed during last year's foreign exchange crisis.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

This is the time of year when that leather-lunged King of the Barnyard who alarm-clocks his sleeping biddies with raucous "cock-a-doodle do's" takes a seat in the balcony.

The roosters call to the hen harums is drowned by the rolling roar of blasting shotguns in marsh, fen, swamp, riverside and other duck haunts or dropping-off places.

This morning the egg-producers slept in, blissfully unaware of the hen-cockerel's call to the daily layout. He was beaten to the gun, literally by the throaty roar of the hunting pieces.

I'm told the duck battalions were outnumbered by the bunkwacking brigade but suffered slightly more casualties.

This morning, the opening day of the season, climaxed weeks of preparation for both the honest hunter and the armchair type whose greed and laziness causes him to resort to illegal tactics.

The average duck-hunter whether he be executive, ditch-digger, banker, businessman or chief is a good guy, an outdoor lover who regards the annual duck hunt as the Big Event of the year.

Unless he is a dawn-patrol newspaperman he gets up around seven-thirty every morning and finds it's torture, but the opening day of the duck-hunting season sees him around whistling cheerily at 4:30 readying for the safari to the blind or wherever he triggers his artillery.

He never whimpers as he treks to the blind he and his pals have built on weekends where he sits on a frosted plank or behind a clump of rushes peering out into the morning mist and waiting for Ole Sol to clear the field of action.

Duck hunting is an expensive pastime unless you're a farmer or a cottager who lives within shotgun range of a marsh and has no travelling or camping costs.

But to the true sportsman hunter the cost, whatever it is, is negligible compared to the fun and thrill he gets from the actual hunt.

He knows the time of the autumn air along lake, river or in swamp or marshland. He enjoys the exciting beauty of a sunrise and the good fellowship with a group of pals. There's a thrill in trying to outwit the wily mallard; there's fun in proving that the old eye is still pretty keen when the 12-gauge goes into action.

As was mentioned duck-hunting can be an expensive pastime even if the daily quota of black, mallard or other species is obtained.

But fortunately for everyone concerned, from the hunter in the outfitter to the ammunition marker and gunsmith, nobody ever counts the price of a duck dinner that way.

That's why throughout the land in the autumn thousands of gun-toting scarlet-capped men head for the marshlands, swamps and river with happy hearts and to hell with the hindmost.

But there's another type who, it appears, care little for the sport and less for sportsmanship. These are the "heavies" who deliberately bait the haunts with little or no regard for the law and less for their fellow hunters.

This is the type who spoils the sport for the "good guy", for then illegal actions result on the closing of the areas they have baited. This in turn robs many an honest hunter who has depended on his hunting in the areas baited and eventually closed.

He knows he is breaking the law and he knows that the Royal Canadian Mounted Police with conservation officers of the Department of Lands and Forests annually close down dozens of hunting areas. He usually "illegally baits" areas in the hinterlands and with fingers crossed hope the checking officers will not locate them.

These illegal actions have been rather heavy so far. At this writing some seven areas have been closed and there may be more over the weekend for with the discovery, Mounties and department officers will double their checking activities.

It seems a shame that a few with an eye to getting the maximum bags of ducks with a minimum of hunting activity, should spoil the sport and fun of the many, with their greedy illegal tactics.

Dodgers Pull Away In Flag Stretch

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Los Angeles Dodgers stole several steps closer to a National League pennant clinching by defeating Pittsburgh 2-0 Friday night behind the six-hit pitching of Don Drysdale and a fleet supporting cast that swiped five bases.

The victory, coupled with Cincinnati's 1-0 triumph over second-place St. Louis, increased the Dodgers' lead to five games. Any combination of Los Angeles victories or Cardinal defeats totalling three will give the Dodgers their first National League pennant since 1959.

In other National League games, Houston Colts defeated Philadelphia Phillies 3-2 and Chicago Cubs edged Milwaukee Braves 1-0.

Eighth-place Kansas City in the American League split a doubleheader with the league-champion New York Yankees, losing 5-4 in the opener in 13 innings, then coming back for a 9-4 victory. Baltimore beat Washington 7-6 and Chicago White Sox took Detroit 2-0. Minnesota at Cleveland and Los Angeles at Cleveland were rained out.

STEALS LEAD TO RUNS

Steals led to both runs for the Dodgers with Tommy Davis, who took over the batting lead at .324 with a 2-for-5 performance, sliding home on the front end of a triple steal for the Dodgers first run in the second inning.

Maury Wills opened the Dodger fifth with a single, took second on a bunt, stole third and then raced home on a wild throw by catcher Smoky Burgess.

Willie McCovey hit his 29th and 40th home runs for San Francisco, leading the third - place Giants to a 6-3 triumph over the New York Mets. Orlando Cepeda and Ed Bailey also homered for the Giants.

John Tsitouris pitched a three-hitter and Ken Walters singled in the only run as the Reds edged 8th - place St. Louis 1-0 for the fourth straight loss.

Tsitouris allowed the Cardinals only singles by Dick Groat in the first, Julian Javier in the third and Stan Musial in the seventh.

Javier was the only Card to reach second base, on a steal. Tsitouris got out of this his only jam, by getting Groat to pop out. Tsitouris did not issue a walk, and struck out five.

HOMER WINS IT

Shortstop Andre Rodgers' fifth homer of the season powered the Cubs and Dick Ellsworth to their victory over the Braves.

Rodgers hit a Denny Lemaster pitch in the eighth for the game's only run. Ellsworth pitched a three-hitter to win his 21st game and became the first Cub southpaw to win 21 games since Jim (Hippo) Vaughn won the same number in 1910.

Carl Warwick's bigge - run homer in the sixth inning carried the Colts to their win over Philadelphia.

Winning pitcher Ken Johnson started the Colts' winning rally with a single. Ernie Fazio walked and then Warwick connected off Dennis Bennett, who had allowed only one hit in his first five innings.

Kansas City rapped 20-game winner Jim Bouton to beat the Yankees in the nightcap. The Yanks got their winning run in the opener on a bases-loaded walk.

Kansas City scored three times off Bouton in the second inning of the second game on a walk, two singles, Ken Harrelson's double and a squeeze bunt by winning pitcher Orlando Pena.

Charley Lau homered off Bouton in the sixth for the winning run. Pena allowed seven hits, including Tony Kubek's homer in the eighth.

Reliever John Wyatt walked in the winning New York run in the ninth. The Yankees, shut out from the third inning, got started in the 12th on a lead-off single by Phil Linz. Joe Pepitone singled with two out, then Wyatt walked John Blanchard and Linz.

Whitey Ford, going for his 24th victory, left after five innings with the Yankees holding a 4-1 lead. Stan Williams got the Rookie Stan 'Bowens' two-run triple in the seventh inning gave the Orioles their win over Washington.

Boog Powell's homer in the fourth started Baltimore on the comeback trail after Washington scored five runs in the first inning and chased Milt Pappas.

SINGLES, SCORES

Bowens, brought up recently from Rochester, also singled home a run in the fourth and scored a run after singling in the sixth.

Stu Miller, making his 68th relief appearance, was the win - ner.

Chicago White Sox pushed across runs in first and ninth innings as Juan Pizarro and Eddie Fisher and Hoyt Wilhelm combined for a two-hitter in the victory over Detroit.

Mike Hershberger scored the first run. He reached first on shortstop Dick McAuliffe's error, went to third on Jim Landis' single and scored on Dave Nicholson's fly.

Al Weis singled in the other run in the ninth.

City Hockey To Organize On Thursday

The City Hockey League will lay plans for its second season of operation with an open organization meeting on Thurs. day, September 26.

League president Cliff Reich has called the meeting for eight o'clock at the Recreation Centre and hopes to see a large turnout.

Special invitations are being sent out to all of last year's players but it is stressed that anyone interested in the league, either as a sponsor or from an executive standpoint, is urged to attend the meeting.

The number of entries to be accepted, what night or nights to be used for league play and numerous other items will be open for discussion. "We will be only to glad to hear any suggestions from fans, players or anyone else," Belch said.

Four teams, Pepsi's, Joyce-Bellows, Wellman and Andreadeaus participated in the loop last year, playing Wednesday night doubleheaders, at Memorial Arena.

Tigers, Lions Target For Night

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The only thing certain about tonight's interlocking Canadian Football League game in Hamilton is the uncertainty about the backfields which Hamilton and British Columbia will send on to the field.

B.C. Lions are expected to use quarterback Joe Kapp. But coach Dave Skrien is holding Mel Melin in reserve, if it appears that Kapp may aggravate an injury to the little finger on his passing hand.

A sprained ankle will keep flanker Sonny Homer out of the Lions lineup, and Skrien has nominated Jerry Janes as a substitute.

The rest of the squad appears fit and ready to go, Skrien said Friday night after the Lions held a light workout at Hamilton's Civic Stadium.

Ticat coach Ralph Sazio wouldn't be pinned down on prospective lineup changes for his faltering Tiger-Cats, but he hopes the friendlier confines of Civic Stadium will put the team back on the victory trail.

MAT USE NEWCOMERS

Hamilton, winner of all three of its home games this season while losing four on the road, may use newcomers Art Baker, Tom Bates or Jim Face to beef up its running game.

Face, in particular, is seen as a prospect. A late cut from New York Giants of the National Football League, Face was well versed in the Giants' halfback-numbering system and offensive patterns, which are described as similar to Hamilton's.

Tonight's game is one of a series of four in the east in the next four days. Calgary Stampeders visit Toronto Argonauts Sunday, then take on Montreal Alouettes at Montreal Tuesday. The Lions go from Hamilton to Ottawa to meet the Rough Riders Monday night.

The Argos placed offensive guard Gus Gonakas on waivers Friday night to make room on the active roster for Larry Hickman in preparation for Sunday's game. Hickman had been recuperating from a knee injury.

In the West, Edmonton Eskimos move into Regina today to battle the rugged Saskatchewan Roughriders and then go to Winnipeg Monday to take on the Grey Cup champion Blue Bombers.

It could be a make-or-break weekend for the Eskimos, the former powerhouse now occupying the Western Conference basement with two wins in seven games.

Alberta Leads Ring Tournament

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta fighters won nine of 16 bouts Friday night as the Canadian amateur boxing championships opened with an elimination card highlighted by six knockouts.

Earl Pilgrim, an army private stationed in Edmonton, paced Alberta entries by knocking out Brian Bremner of North Vancouver with a right to the head at 2:31 of the second round in a light heavyweight match.

Ray Storie of Edmonton matched the effort in a light middleweight bout by sending L.-Cpl. Bob McNeil of Edmonton down for the 10-count with a right cross to the head at 1:17 of the second round.

McGrandle's win sent him into tonight's flyweight final, one of nine to be fought following six more elimination bouts in the afternoon, against Walter Henry of Orillia. Henry advanced by pounding out a unanimous decision over Germain Grenier of St. Laurent, Que.

Another Gambling Scandal In NFL

Charley Conerly On Spot

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—Charley Conerly, former star pro football quarterback, said today his financial records will prove cheques made out to him by accused gambler Maurice I. Lewis of Memphis were for repayment of loans.

The onetime star of the New York Giants of the National Football League also said he was unaware of any alleged gambling dealings by Lewis, a real estate developer who was indicted in Shelby County, Tennessee, Jan. 8 on football gambling charges.

Conerly's comments were made from his farm in Clarksdale, Miss. to the Memphis Commercial-Appeal in the wake of the NFL's disclosure in New York that the league is "assembling all the facts" as cheques written by Lewis and cashed by Conerly.

The Memphis Press-Scimitar, in a copyright story by James H. White, revealed Friday that five cheques endorsed by Conerly totalling $9,575 were produced at Lewis' recent bankruptcy hearing.

DATED IN 1961

One of the cheques for $3,500, was dated Nov. 26, 1961, about a month before Conerly's retirement after 14 years with the Giants.

The office of NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle said their top investigator, Jim Hamilton, is looking into the details but called it an inquiry rather than an investigation.

"Until all the facts are established, it won't be known if a full scale investigation is warranted," the NFL office said.

Late Friday night, Conerly produced two cancelled cheques made out to cash and endorsed by Lewis and told a reporter for the Commercial-Appeal he was still looking for a scribbled IOU note from the Memphis man. Conerly said he would show the cheques to Hamilton when he arrived in Clarksdale today.

HAS PHOTOS

The Commercial-Appeal also said it had photographed copies of two sets of cheques, those held by Conerly and those produced by Lewis at his bankruptcy hearing. Four of the five from Lewis to Conerly, the paper said, were made out to cash and endorsed by either Conerly or his wife. The fifth, the $3,500 cheque of Nov. 26, 1961, was made out to Conerly and endorsed by him.

Import Whips Pastrano

Champion Given Lesson

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Boxing fans were hazing today about the latest import from the Argentina, a hard-rock man with lightning-like fists.

He's Gregorio Peralta, who stands six feet, weighs 183½ pounds and takes a punch like a leather bag.

Peralta made his first North American appearance Friday night and gave Willie Pastrano, light heavyweight champion, a most rugged Friday night boxing lesson.

It was a non-title fight and Pastrano was well in front in six of the 10 rounds on all scorecards. He finished stronger than he started and at the end Pastrano, 179 pounds, was thoroughly beaten. There were no knockdowns.

It was Gregorio's 42nd consecutive victory in 44 fights as a professional. He lost his first outing in 1960 and fought one draw along the way.

GOVERNMENT RESIGNS

OSLO (Reuters) — Norway's non - socialist coalition government resigned Friday night after only four weeks in office. The four-party coalition, led by conservative Premier John Lyng, was formed after the Labor government's 28 years in office, fell on a motion of non-confidence Aug. 23.

Six-Man Uprising

Valentine 'Gang' Defeated

The "Magnificent Seven" wound up the wrestling season here last night in a melee of muscular mayhem.

Gentleman Jim Hady, unable to be present because of illness can relax. His "enemy" Johnny Valentine and his heavy cohorts went down to defeat at the hands of Tuzney's Untouchables headed by Lorenzo Parenta.

Backing up the shock-headed Valentine were Dr. Gerry Graham and "The Destroyer". Behind Parenta were Tony Parise and Jack Terry a substitute for Hady.

It was a ring rock 'n' roll contest-touched riot from start to finish. All six musclemen had something in common - to wipe the grins off the faces of the opposition.

Referee Bill Stack acted as though he was watching a tennis match. He had to. All six of the canny choickers tried to hoodwink him and get away with it on not a few occasions.

The "Valentine Gang" did succeed in loosening the top ropes of the ring until it looked like the third chin of an aging dowager.

The trios ganged up on one another in pairs and finally in a stoo.man brawl. At one time Valentine left the ring to push an elderly fan back into his seat and converse with an attractive young lady who showed no aversion to the gesture.

They used everything inside the wrestling book and a lot that has yet to be printed. They punched, pushed, pinched and pulled hair. The Valentine gang, that is.

Jack Terry was rendered horse-de-combat near the end of the third fall when he landed heavily after being tossed willy-nilly out of the ring.

But the "clean-out" episode, Signor Parenta took over and did a neat job of house-cleaning. He was a dark tornado with no ammonia as he threw a dozen punches simultaneously at the Valentiners were on the receiving end. He five-fingered all three out of the ring.

Then he clobbered big Gerry Graham, kneaded his blonde features for a minute and fell on him for the fall and match.

Both squads won a fall to square matters before the third frame settled the issue.

In the warm-up frays Parise won over Dr. Jefferson and the "Destroyer" took the measure of Tommy O'Toole.

Brockville Cuts Series Margin

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Brockville Beavers, riven a second chance by an O.B.A.-Kenmor decision two games ago, have suddenly decided to help themselves.

The hustling youngsters from Brockville town turned on the Kenmore 7-5 here before a small, chilled crowd last night and cut locals' margin in their OBA Senior semi-final series to 3-2.

The Kenmore, facing a tough-er task every time out, are in Brockville for the sixth game this afternoon. No date has been set for a seventh game, should it be necessary.

Lanny Soden will pitch for Kenmore this afternoon while lefty Johnny Elliott is the likely Brockville starter.

Kenmore battled back from 3-1 and 4-3 deficits in the last night's game 4-4 going into the ninth innings. Then the roof fell in to the tune of three Brockville runs and the losers were able to get only one back in the bottom of the inning.

Belleville outhit the visitors by a 11-6 margin but could not get the hits when they would have meant the most. The Kenmors stranded 14 men in all, compared to five left by the Beavers.

In the Brockville 9th, McBobbs bounced a double over the centre field fence. It was the first hit off reliefer Stan Reid after he had taken over in the seventh but it helped hand him the loss.

The runner reached third on a passed ball and Snider hit what looked like a sacrifice fly to left. Carr attempted to throw the ball before he caught it and the ball got away from him for a three-base error. Hewart's bunt squeezed Snider home and Reid departed after walking Spicer. Glass' two-out single off Gord Vaughn made it 7-4.

Brockville's single and a walk kept the losers' hopes alive in the bottom of the ninth. Clarke's singled one across but the tying runs were left on first and third when Spicer struck out Carr to end it.

Clarke's wrong-field triple and Soden's two-out single clad plated Kenmore's tying marker in the eighth. A walk, Bralley's single and a passed ball notched one in the seventh. Hits by Soden and Elliott plus an error got one in the fifth. Latchford's bloop double and Hamilton's safety had put Kenmore ahead 1-0 in the second.

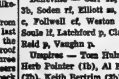
A pair of walks, back-to-back singles by McBobbs and Snider, the latter's scoring a pair, put Beavers ahead 3-1 in the fourth. Snider singled Pearce home after a dropped third strike for a 4-2 score in the sixth.

Rod Spicer stayed the route, although in trouble nearly every inning, to get the win. He struck out five and walked eight.

Don Snider, with two singles and four rbi, paced the Brockville hitters. Brian McBobbs also singled twice, Dick Glass and Dan Dexter once each.

Bill Latchford worked the first six frames, fanning 11 and walking three, while loser Reid struck out three more. Latchford allowed four hits, Reid and Vaughn one apiece.

Glen Clarke had a perfect 3 for-3 night for the Kenmore, hitting a triple and two singles after entering the game in the sixth inning. Larry Soden and Court Bralley had two singles each, Moe Hunter, Jack Elliott, Gary Watson and Latchford also hitting safely.



Brockville—McNuall lf, Glass 2b, Dexter ss, Pearce cf, Miller 1b, McBobbs c, Snider 3b, Fry rf, Spicer p, Hewart cf.

QSS Saints Lose to Kingston

By ROBERT SNEYDELLA

The K.C.V.I. seniors romped to an easy 30-0 victory over the Quinte Saints in an exhibition football game at Quinte yesterday afternoon.

The first scoring came when Dave Lisson of Kingston plunged two yards for a major in the first quarter. The convert was missed.

In the third quarter a single was kicked by Pete Elwood of Kingston, then a Kingston punt was recovered by the winners and Gary White ran 20 yards for a touchdown. Again the convert was missed.

In the fourth quarter another single was kicked by Elwood. A few plays later, Dennis Pitt, the Kingston quarterback, bootlegged for another touchdown. The convert was no good.

Quinte also had several drives goin, but each one resulted in a fumble or interception whenever they got close to the winners end zone.

The game was marred by a serious injury to a Quinte end, John Onderdonk, who suffered a broken leg midway through the game.

The Saints will open their regular schedule play in Bay of Quinte C.O.S.S.A. next Thursday.

Plastic Surgery Needed For Chimp-Bitten Actor

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "The dirty blankety-blank bit me!" exclaimed Ray Walston from his hospital bed.

The actor-comedian could be excused his blankety-blankmanship. Why shouldn't he be angry after being bitten by another performer?

When the chimpanzee turned on Walston and mauled and bit his face last week, the My Favorite Martian company was sent into panic. Ray was the title player of the television series. If he was lost, all was lost.

"I was panicked myself," Ray admitted. "I screamed for them to tell me if my face was still there. Finally I was told that it was."

Walston, who played Stan in Damn Yankees and Luther Billis in South Pacific, underwent three hours of plastic surgery on the left eyelid and the left side of his face. Apparently he will be able to return to the series intact.

"I am not even holding up the company," he said. "I had just returned from a promotional tour in the east and we were doing the ninth show—the one with the chimp. We had decided to shut down for 21 days to work up some new scripts. I should be able to return before the 21 days are up."

How did the accident happen?

"I had been working all morning with the chimp and we got along fine," said Ray. "He put his arms around me and gave me a kiss, and I was playing with him like a buddy. I liked the little fella; I really did."

In the afternoon they went outdoors for a car scene, and Ray noticed the chimp was upset by the hot pavement. Ray got in the front seat of the car, and the chimp was in the back.

The chimp leaned over and gave what Ray thought was a puzzle. It wasn't.

"I was astounded," he recalled. "I said to myself, 'he's biting me—the blankety-blank is biting me.'"

Walston, who has two dogs, a cat and four kittens at home, "From now on, I think I'll insist on a split screen, even with dogs. You never can tell when one of those blankety-blanks might bite you."

JEWS ATTEND SERVICE

MOSCOW (Reuters) — About 3,000 persons attended service at Moscow's main synagogue Wednesday night marking the start of three-day celebration of the Jewish New Year, Jewish sources said. The worshippers filled the the service and about 1,000 of them had to stand outside the crowded synagogue.

Plan Trenton Public Meet Aimed at Re-establishing Full Children's Aid Program

The Board of Directors of the Children's Aid Society has decided to call a public meeting in Trenton during the month of October to discuss the possible re-introduction of CAS services in which clergy, teachers, parents, medical and other professional groups will be invited.

If the meeting deems it necessary it is hoped that a committee will be formed to effect the necessary re-organization. This committee would of course, have representation on the council board.

At the regular meeting of the Children's Aid Society held on Thursday, Dr. George Whitnet, president, pointed out that for a number of years from 1951 to 1961, the society had provided protection, prevention, unmarried mothers' service and the like on a grant from the council.

There had been little or no lay or citizen participation and no public appeal for funds. When in June of 1961 council advised that it was not prepared to meet the cost of the service it was withdrawn and since that date Trenton has been without child welfare services. Only children are seriously neglected as to warrant their removal from their parents and unmarried parents seeking help from the Belleville office have been dealt with.

In some months this unsolicited work is quite heavy and, by reason of the fact that no funds are received from the town, the cost of the services rendered is borne by the other municipalities financially supporting the CAS.

Mr. Wishart made reference to the report of Miss H. Lumsden, a supervisor in the child welfare branch of the Ontario Department of Public Welfare, quoting as follows: "Your society receives grants from the County of Hastings and the City of Belleville which support the provision of a preventive service by your Society in these municipalities The intake records and the sample of cases reviewed by our Superior provided evidence of both the need and the provision of this service. For example, parents are turning to your agency for help with family and child behavior problems. Almost at the other end of the scale, supportive work with adopted and step-family deprived families, in which the threat of actual child neglect is ever present, is enabling children to remain in their own homes in Belleville and the County of Hastings.

STILL RESPONSIBLE

"For some time now your service in Trenton has been limited because this municipality ceased to make a grant to your Society which has been attempting to provide its own preventive service. Under The Child Welfare Act the responsibility for protecting children in Trenton from actual neglect is defined in The Child Welfare Act remains, of course, with your society. This means that your staff must strive to investigate every referral or complaint related to the possibility of neglect.

"The investigation must be sufficiently thorough that a decision can be made as to whether the children are, in fact, neglected. It is the opinion of your staff, the children are neglected and if, in spite of your best efforts to raise money from voluntary and municipal sources, you are unable to finance a service with the objective of attempting to remedy the neglect while the children remain in their own homes, you have no alternative but to protect the children by taking them into care.

"In order that a Society may fully discharge its responsibilities, the citizens of a community, the police, public health nurses, school teachers and all those persons interested in child and family welfare, need to understand that any complaints or referrals concerning child neglect should be lodged with the society.

FEW REFERRALS

"As we have already pointed out, your intake records from January 1, 1963 to the date of our supervisor's visit (June 12, 13 and 14, 1963) show that you received quite a large number of self referrals related to child behavior problems, and of complaints or referrals related to child neglect, from Belleville and the County of Hastings. This is evidence of an understanding, an acceptance and a use of your preventive and protective services in these communities. We are concerned, however, by the lack of referrals or complaints relating to child neglect from the Trenton community.

"It would be unreasonable to suppose that in Trenton there are no cases of apparent child neglect warranting concern as neighbors, relatives, police, public health or schools and yet your agency is apparently not hearing about them. Thus there may be a misunderstanding abroad in Trenton that your Society is no longer the authority to whom child neglect cases should be referred.

"We strongly recommend that you consider a program of reinterpretation for the Trenton community in general, and, in particular, to the authorities mentioned above, of the responsibility which is yours to protect children, from neglect and therefore of the necessity of their referring apparent neglect of children to your agency so that you may carry out your responsibilities to the limit of your resources in staff and money.

"In other words, the community must not wait for a report on anyone except the Children's Aid Society to take the lead in protecting children from neglect through a careful follow-up and investigation of every complaint and report, after assessment of the circumstances and all available evidence and, if there is any doubt as to neglect and if a remedial service cannot be provided, through the presentation of the case to the court for its decision as to whether the children are, in fact, neglected.

"One way of achieving better interpretation of your services to Trenton would be to strengthen the lay representation on your board from Trenton."

Fair to Close With Racing, Horse Show and Program

PICTON — Prince Edward County Fair at Picton rings down the curtain on its annual fair tonight Saturday with a show and dance, starring Doc Williams from Wheeling, West Virginia. This afternoon, horse racing, horse show and jumping were featured.

The fair has been very successful in every way and we are especially pleased with the comments on the agricultural displays, said President L. Doxsee.

Friday was cool and clear and attendance was average. The variety show in the Centre at night drew a capacity crowd.

RAIN OR SHINE

Just as opening ceremonies were being held Thursday, rain began to fall lightly but most events were carried out and the children forgot any discomfort as Mayor J. J. McLelland gave each of the three thousand five hundred and sixteen children in the parade a ticket for a free ride on the midway.

The Fair narrowly missed being without a midway, the Green Amusement Co, being unable to come but at the last minute got things straightened over and the result was an even bigger array of rides and shows.

Thursday there were showers last night, it did not stop several thousand from attending. Part watched a horse show in front of the grandstand, while others paraded the arena for the old time fiddlers contest. The variety show tonight and the Doc Williams show from Wheeling, West Virginia Saturday night are both indoor and fair officials do not fear the weather though they are hopeful of a sunny day for Saturday horse races.

In the school parade Thursday, Demorestville school won both first places for marching and for best decorated pupils; Mount Carmel and Waring Corners were second and third in marching; Demorestville and Waupoo second in decorations.

There were more than one hundred entries in the flower champion being Stephen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leland Saunders, Picton, with Mr. and Mrs. Aurea and Andrew, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Watson, Bloomfield, and John and Phillip, sons of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Durie, Picton.

PRIZEWINNING EXHIBITS

One of the outstanding features of the thousands of exhibits on display was the handcraft with driftwood used in a great many ways. Hobby classes reveal young and old engaged in a great variety of pursuits in leisure time. But above all, is the excellent display of flowers, fruits and vegetables which is drawing thousands to the fair as word spread that it is unurpassed in color and beauty.

Mrs. Edwards main canning product, tomatoes, is one of the central displays. Mrs. Leland Doxsee, wife of the agricultural society president, had the honor of winning the blue ribbon.

Champion plate of apples, McIntosh were shown by P. Harrison of R.R. 3 Picton. Also in this display are products which can be made from fruits.

orbiting the first man. They noted Russia had a tremendous lead with superior rocket power.

Scientists of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration are credited to Kennedy's cause. They said a manned landing on the moon is possible with present technology and talked hopefully of getting astronauts there as early as 1967. Congress provided without question the millions of dollars needed to get the program started.

It was estimated the total effort would cost less than $20,000,000,000. Now, two years later, estimates run as high as $40,000,000,000. In 1961, the agency concentrated on early manned flights in Project Mercury and on developing unmanned space craft to investigate the lunar surface for proper landing areas and possible dangers.

Mercury, which sent six men into space, was climaxed successfully last May with astronaut Gordon Cooper's 22-orbit mission. But the follow-on Project Gemini, designed to perfect rendezvous techniques essential to the Apollo man-on-the-moon program, has slipped more than a year because of technical troubles. The first two-man Gemini flight now is due in late 1964 and the docking rendezvous flight a year later.

TECHNICAL SNAGS

The Apollo program also has encountered technical snags—both in the huge 7,500,000 pound thrust Saturn 5V booster rocket and in the three-man spacecraft. NASA officials declare privately that, nevertheless, Apollo will achieve its goal in this decade. But they no longer talk of a 1967 or 1968 date.

The unmanned lunar exploration program has been a flop so far.

Hamilton which he said supports his contention that he cannot name Mr. X—the man in the provincial secretary's office who he has said is a friend of gamblers—because of a formal agreement.

The letter was addressed to Provincial Secretary John Yaremko from R. F. Wilson, government counsel to last year's crime hearings under Mr. Justice W. D. Roach. It carried Mr. Justice Roach's ruling that the opposition parties were to be given access to the provincial secretary's files.

But, the letter said, the information from the files was not to be used "unless and until the commissioner at a hearing of the commission rules that any part of this material is relevant and admissible and admits the same in evidence."

Mr. Whitemeyer reiterated that he could not name Mr. X because Mr. Yaremko agreed to release the Liberals from last year's agreement.

Mr. Yaremko has denied knowledge of such an agreement.

The Liberal chief also attacked what he said were conflicting statements by the Conservative government. Premier Robarts has had to order or ask for investigations since the campaign began, he said.

And in an apparent bid for any Democratic support—without mentioning that party by name—he appealed to small-c liberals not to split the anti-Conservative vote.

Earlier in the day, Mr. Whitemeyer made a tour of the fair-grounds in Lindsay, home of Premier Robarts' Victoria riding after first being required to remove party slogans from his automobile by police officials.

Speaking in Hamilton, Premier Robarts accused Mr. Whitemeyer of "the usual flip flop, indecision, wavering and deception" in a claim that only the Liberals could give the separate schools equality with public schools in financing.

The Catholic Foundation tax plan, the declaration, Mr. Roberts said, would provide completely equal educational opportunity, take no right nor any taxes away from supporters of public school boards, would not interfere with any board's autonomy and would remove a complaints separate school supporters have on their share of the municipal assessment and taxation.

TEST NEW DRUG

LIVERPOOL, England (Reuters)—An anti-cancer drug made from herring eggs, herring sperm, and other fish will be tested in human beings, it was announced Thursday. A spokesman for Evans Medical, a local drug firm, said the drug is being used in a limited way and until doses watch. He emphasized that the drug has the effect of retarding the growth of cancer cells and should not be looked on as a cure.

transmissions and engines. Duties on these products are reduced if an equivalent value of Canadian part is exported. This has led to some expansion in exports of auto parts. Now Drury wants to try this out on a bigger scale.

TALK LEAD, ZINC

Hodges said that along with the Canadian plan to boost Canadian manufacturing, specific problems in such commodities as lead and zinc, lumber and oil were discussed in a general way. He did not believe the conference would come to any conclusion but that discussions "may help change the pattern or policies affecting those commodities."

Hodges told reporters that if Canadians want to boost exports, they should call a meeting, such as the White House conference on exports expansion, and find things to sell in the U.S. that the U.S. does not already have.

Asked for comment on this point, Drury remarked: "What would the American like to export to them? Tropical fruit?"

Diplomats Back British Envoy's Watch On Safe

Visit Embassy's Ruins In Indonesian Capital

JAKARTA (Reuters) — British Ambassador Andrew Gilchrist today hit back — with apparent successful alleged indecision attempts to break into his embassy strongroom containing classified documents.

He staged a brief stay-put display in the fire-gutted embassy and the Indonesians agreed to his demand for a round-the-clock Anglo - Indonesian guard on the strongroom.

In supporting Gilchrist's stand, 15 Western diplomats including Canadian Ambassador John Sigvaldason, turned up at the embassy during the incident.

Police refused to keep the doughty, goateed diplomat out of the wrecked building but he succeeded in reaching the second-floor strongroom. Gilchrist flashed a "thumbs up" signal to people outside, indicating the strongroom had not yet been cracked.

Gilchrist hurried to the embassy after getting information that Indonesian workmen were making an attempt on the strongroom, British officials said.

Gilchrist went to the embassy —wrecked by anti-Malaysia rioters — immediately a press conference where he charged the Indonesian government with defying him a reason to the building.

British officials got on the telephone and summoned Canadian, American and other Western diplomats to the embassy. But Indonesian police would not let them enter the building to join Gilchrist.

"It is a very serious matter that they are denying access to official documents," said French Ambassador Guy Doguet to reporters gathered outside.

FINALLY LEAVES

After 95 minutes at the embassy, Gilchrist and the police said Indonesia had agreed to his demand that a joint guard be set up. Police said 40 police men be posted at the strongroom.

Meanwhile, the government-controlled Antara news agency reported the arrest of the manager of British Shell Oil Company installations at Balikpapan, on Borneo, by police on the government and people of Indonesia."

(A British spokesman in London said the company had heard nothing of the reported detention.)

Indonesian workers took over several British firms last week, during mass rallies held against the new British-backed Malaysia federation.

Rocks Thrown As Concert Hall Is Opened

MONTREAL (CP)—Plans des Arts, an elegant $20,000,000 concert hall, opened Saturday night with a high - society premiere accompanied by a street demonstration in favor of Quebec separatism.

Nineteen persons were arrested after rocks were thrown at several mounted policemen and police said they will be charged today with disturbing the peace.

The demonstration had no noticeable effect on proceedings inside the hall, where 3,000 first - nighters, most of them in formal evening dress, listened to a concert by the Montreal Symphony Orchestra and relaxed in rooms decorated with contemporary Canadian art.

Many of them paid $100 for their seats. Other seats were sealed from $5 down to $15.

In an air of excitement undampened by the presence of 250 policemen patrolling outside, the hall began filling an hour before concert time. A 60-man provincial police guard of honor was drawn up along the promenade connecting the hall with St. Catherine Street.

MUSIC REIGNS

Meanwhile, in the hall, there was music and fashion.

—After a brief opening address by President Louis Lapointe of Place des Arts, Wilfrid Lemelin, Quebec's director of music education and founder of the Montreal Symphony in 1934, led the orchestra in the premier of Minerve, a concert piece by Canadian composer Jean Papineau - Couture.

Quebec Premier Jean Lesage and Mrs. Lesage were guests of honor at the opening concert.

The program was a smorgasbord for a performance of Beethoven's Ninth, the choral symphony, which with an inaugural festival of theatre, opera and ballet, was cancelled because of a dispute between the Union des Artistes and Actors' Equity about jurisdiction over stage performers.

In the opening ceremony Mr. Lapointe said: "Montreal at least takes its place among the cultural capitals of the world. Amid its hall, during the years we see we have not waited in vain."

Dominican Govt. Charges Haiti Forces Bombarded Border Town

SANTO DOMINGO (AP)—The Dominican government charged that Haitian forces bombarded a Dominican border town today.

A government statement broadcast by Dominican radio said the civilian population was abandoning the town of Dajabon, about 100 miles northwest of the capital.

Foreign Minister Hector Garcia-Godoy summoned the diplomatic corps to inform them officially of the attack, the announcement said.

The Haitian government has concentrated strong forces at Ouanaminthe, opposite Dajabon, the broadcast said.

Relations have been tense for months between the two republics, which share the Caribbean island of Hispaniola.

A band of rebels invaded Haiti a year ago in an effort to oust President Francois Duvalier said they came from the Dominican Republic. The Haitian charge that American States was asked to condemn the Dominican Republic for its part in the outbreak.

The rebel band, led by former Haitian Gen. Leon Cantave, was last reported hiding out in mountains of Haiti near the Dominican border.

The Dominican Republic has given asylum to many refugees from Duvalier's strong - man rule.

8 Unions Oppose Trustee

OTTAWA (CP)—Outright opposition to any deal for a union-sponsored trusteeship over maritime unions on the Great Lakes was voiced Sunday by the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers.

Government trusteeship over all five maritime unions in Canada is the only way to "get rid of Hal Banks and his high-priced goons" in the Seafarers' International Union of Canada and to restore peace on the lakes, the union said in a 1,000-word statement.

The brotherhood statement, signed by President William J. Smith, Vice - President Elroy Robson and Secretary - Treasurer D. N. Secord, threw cold water on any efforts to solve the problem by private union arrangement.

This proposal will be discussed in Washington this week at a top-level meeting of Labor Minister Allan Gotlieb, U.S. Labor Secretary Williard Wirtz, President Claude Jodoin of the Canadian Labor Congress and AFL - CIO President George Meany.

URGE ALTERNATIVE

A private, union - sponsored trusteeship has been strongly advocated by Mr. Wirtz as an alternative to the Canadian government's plan to introduce legislation for a government trusteeship after Parliament resumes Sept. 30.

The brotherhood statement said the only way to break up the SIU "empire" under Hal Banks is to appoint trustees with full authority to get rid of Banks, tighten up Labor Board agreements, amend the union's constitution and bylaws, and install democratic methods to do so that members can control the union.

"Anyone seriously maintains that these goals are within the power of labor to attain, unaided by government, merely by holding talks between the

Fail to Locate Trace of Noreen Greenley

BOWMANVILLE, Ont. (CP)—More than 800 searchers—boy scouts, Girl Guides and townsfolk—failed to locate a trace of Noreen Greenley, 13, who vanished eight days ago.

Noreen left a girlfriend's home to catch a bus two miles away and has not been seen since.

Bloodhounds, brought into the search, were given Noreen's scent from a shoe. They picked up a trail near a bus stop, where the girl was last seen, and followed it to railway tracks.

There they lost it but picked it up again a few hundred feet away and followed it to the edge of Highway 2. Bert Bruce of Toronto, the bloodhounds' owner, is sure the girl was taken away by car at that point. Bowmanville is eight miles east of Oshawa.

Two Injured In Explosions At Lumber Yard

TORONTO (CP) — Two persons were injured in explosions that set fire Sunday that severely damaged a lumber and milling company in western Toronto.

The transmission of a fire truck backing up to a hydrant on Eglinton Avenue exploded, sending chunks of metal flying. Bertha Faithful, 29, a passerby, was hit in the hip by one piece of metal. She was treated in hospital and discharged.

In a second blast, oil drums on the lumber mill grounds exploded. Fireman Edward Tarullo suffered burns on the arms in the explosion.

Ontario General Election Campaign Hits Last Furlong

TORONTO (CP) —Ontario's general election campaign hit the last furlong today with 337 candidates whooping it up for 108 legislature seats but the electorate generally failing to get excited.

After a month of mostly-unspectacular campaigning, the voters decide Wednesday whether they want to extend the Progressive Conservatives' 21-year-old tenure or replace it with the Liberals or the New Democratic Party.

Observers call the tussle one of Ontario's dullest. Despite the position Leader John Wintermeyer has been crying "scandal" and "corruption" in the government. Premier John Robarts has called him a liar but has mainly plugged along on the government's record. NDP Leader Donald C. MacDonald has chimed in with some scandal talk mixed with socialist doctrine.

But apart from catcheries and the flavorsome Liberal theme of organized crime in the province, much of the fight has centred around such subjects as education (including a separate schools issue), old age pensions and medical care, in which many of the arguments for and against each party's platform are fully grasped only by setsers or constituents.

For this reason perhaps—and coupled with a possible surfeit of federal election-candidates' crowds have been small and phlegmatic. Leaders, interspersing a lethargic electorate in varying ways, have spent an unusual amount of oratory on exhorting party workers to get out the vote on election day.

Premier Robarts, 46, facing the electorate for the first time as party leader, has insisted that his own record is the main issue. He has stressed an incoordinate amount of legislation and major policy into the 21½ months since he was handed the party reins by retiring Leslie Frost, premier for 12 years.

But Mr. Robarts occasionally has been forced to fight on ground chosen by Mr. Wintermeyer, also 46, who is making what might be a last-ditch stand after failing to come close in the 1959 general election. The Liberal leader has goaded Mr. Robarts, chiefly, into getting

Negro Rallies Hear Calls For United, Peaceful Action

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thousands marched, rallied and prayed across the United States Sunday in memorial services for six Negro children slain in Birmingham, Ala., racial disorders.

Some expressed bitterness, some charity.

There were calls for a "nonviolent uprising" and a "massive nation-wide campaign of civil disobedience" to protest what one speaker called the last crime against the spirit of Birmingham's 35 unsolved slaughter of the children."

The largest demonstrations were held in New York City and Washington.

In Shreveport, La., police riot squads and mounted sheriff's deputies broke up an attempt by 1,000 Negroes to hold a memorial parade. That was followed by a brief clash between Negroes and police outside a church.

A group of prominent Americans, headed by Governor Edmund G. Brown of California and Charles Taft of Cincinnati, announced formation of a Citizen's Conscience Fund to rebuild the Sixteenth St. Baptist Church in Birmingham.

Four of the Negro children died in that bombing a week ago Sunday. Two Negro boys were shot to death in separate incidents that day. Funeral services for the boys were held Sunday.

There should be no malice in anyone's heart toward anyone else," said a Negro minister, Rev. J. H. Hicks, at one funeral. "The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away."

In Washington, members of the Congress of Racial Equality staged a memorial service at the end of a 28-hour stint at the Liberty Bell in Independence Hall.

The New York City ceremonies attracted about 13,000 persons at four different sites.

Some 7,000 persons gathered at Manhattan's Foley Square on the steps of the federal courthouse. Speakers included James Farmer, C.O.R.E. national director; Bayard Rustin, deputy director of A. Philip Randolph's march on Washington; veteran socialist leader Norman Thomas, and Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

Farmer said the department of Justice and President Kennedy must take the blame for the Birmingham church bombing with the "demented fool" who caused it.

Rustin urged a "non-violent" uprising in the cities, with cities, "in every justice department building in the country," and the Negro civil rights demands heard.

Baldwin repeated his argument that no Christian should sing should be done by Americans this year because "we have lost the right to be called a Christian nation."

Also at Foley Square was Malcolm X, a leader of the Black Muslim separation-of-the-races movement. He disapproved of the number of white

Bomb Is Found, 19 Held

MONTREAL (CP)—One separatist demonstration Saturday —against the teaching of English in French-language schools —was followed Sunday by discovery of a time-bomb at the rear of the Montreal Roman Catholic school commission building.

Another demonstration—in favor of a government take-over of Montreal's Place des Arts—was broken up by Montreal provincial policemen and 19 were arrested after three constables were injured by stones thrown during the concert hall's glittering opening show.

A time-bomb defused by police as "well made" was found in a carton Sunday about 30 feet from an area in which 10 young children were playing at the back of the school commission building on east-end Sherbrooke Street.

The mechanism was timed to set off the eight sticks of dynamite at 12 o'clock but police said: "We don't know if it was a.m. or p.m."

The police mobile emergency squad, set up to combat Le Front de Liberation Quebecois terrorist bombings last spring, took apart the bomb after an anonymous telephone warning from a French-speaking caller.

A series of FLQ bombings ended May 20 after three months of blasts in which one man was killed and another injured. A CPR lift bridge off the southwest corner of Montreal Island was damaged by a bomb Aug. 22.

On Saturday 200 persons demonstrated against a commission program to try English - language instruction in Grade 1 on an experimental basis.

Whereas the commission is seeking to get French-speaking children used to the sound of English by the time they get them to learn the language in later grades, there has been opposition this would leave them uncultured in either French or English.

Saturday's rally were members of three Quebec separatist movements. Police said their demonstration was peaceful.

The demonstration Saturday night outside the Place des Arts started at an intersection at the rear of the concert hall. About 200 separatists, bearing placards, were fired upon by police on horseback but the demonstrators gathered again opposite the front entrances of the hall.

They cheered speeches by

New Principles Of Co-operation Seen Necessary

Auto Parts Squabble Serves to Stress Need

WASHINGTON (CP)—A new set of principles, recharting the course of Canada - U.S. economic co-operation, soon may be in the making. But this won't deter the Canadian government from pursuing a policy of reducing imports of U.S. automobiles and parts, thereby producing more jobs and retaining more dollars in Canada.

Prime Minister Pearson and President Kennedy may take a personal hand in recharting the course next year following a joint cabinet committee decision Saturday to make a thorough government study of how the aims and ambitions of the two neighbors can be fitted together to avoid a head-on collision.

The prospects of increasing cross - border friction became evident as Canadian participants in a joint cabinet committee conference emphasized Canadian determination to proceed with a plan to reduce automotive imports by as much as $200,000,000 or more a year, providing as many as 40,000 new Canadian jobs.

WARN CANADA

American participants said they warned Canada that there is serious consternation in the Detroit automobile centre, a situation which the U.S. government could not ignore. If Canada embarked on a course which would hurt the $425,000,000-a-year U.S. automotive exports to Canada, then the U.S. would have to seek means of self-protection.

The American objections were formally expressed in a communique Saturday winding up the two-day talks.

The Canadian group, headed by External Affairs Minister Paul Martin, gave no timetable for reduction but it was emphasized the reduction would be accomplished by means other than higher tariffs. The ministers also emphasized that the plan still is in the discussion stages and would not hurt the subsidiaries of the U.S.-controlled industry and has not yet been officially sanctioned by cabinet as Canadian government policy.

AUTO MANUFACTURING

As the five Canadian ministers, including Industries Minister C. M. Drury and Finance Minister Walter Gordon, flew back to Ottawa, there was fresh determination to go ahead and pursue a course of encouraging the secretary-treasurer's post.

Public Workers' Unions Prepare To Join Forces

WINNIPEG (CP)—Two Canadian unions meet separately here today to wind up their affairs for the last time and to set the stage for the birth of a new trade union.

Meeting simultaneously but separately, the National Union of Public Employees and the National Union of Public Service Employees will put the finishing touches on their formal merger agreement.

Then the 350 delegates from the two unions—about 250 from NUPE and about 200 from NUPSE — will join together Tuesday for the founding convention of the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

The new union will have about 80,000 members in the public service field — a fast-growing field of employment including municipal and hospital employees, workers in provincial institutions and boards as well as some other provincial employees.

The National Union of Public Service Employees started among Ontario Hydro employees in 1944, growing from about 1,800 members to its present strength of some 32,000 members. The National Union of Public Employees was formed in 1955 when several TLC unions united into one body with 17,500 members. Since then, NUPE's membership has expanded to about 38,000.

RATIFY AGREEMENT

In their separate sessions today, the two unions will ratify the merger agreement negotiated by their respective officers and executives last March 30.

They will also choose the national executive board of the new union. NUPE will nominate three general vice-presidents and NUPSE nominating two general vice-presidents and three regional vice-presidents.

Stanley A. Little, NUPSE president, will be national president of the new union, with R. P. Rintoul, NUPE's national director, retaining the secretary-treasurer's post.

Family of Three Aboard Kayak Gets Help From Ships in Escape

LUEBECK, West Germany (AP) — An East German family of three headed for West Germany Saturday aboard a kayak. They finally made it aboard a West German freighter, with the help of two ferry boats which blocked off East German machine - gun fire.

Hundreds of passengers aboard the two ferry boats sent up cheers as the refugees were snatched from the grasp of Communist police.

Heinz Neels, a 30-year-old athletic instructor from Wismar, his wife Bettina, 29, and Kirsten, 2, escaped with East German refugee officials Sunday, the initial step to beginning their flight to freedom.

The exhausted and frightened trio arrived here aboard the West German freighter Fredenhagen which hauled them on board minutes before a pursuing East German police boat reached their fragile kayak in choppy Baltic waters.

The Heinz family started out from Wismar in the kayak, called Zephyr, equipped with an outboard motor. They spotted the Fredenhagen steaming their way and an East German police boat churning in pursuit of them in a shipping channel which straddles the boundary line between East and West Germany.

The skipper of the Fredenhagen, Capt. Siegfried Koers, was quoted as saying he knew his vessel could not possibly reach the Heinz before the police boat did.

But just as crew members of the pursuing police boat were training mounted machine-guns on the fleeing Zephyr, the Danish ferry Gedser, bound for Gedser, Denmark, came into view.

The Gedser's captain, H. Justesen, swung his vessel around in what was described as a daredevil 360-degree turn to manoeuvre the Gedser between the East German patrol boat and the Zephyr.

At the same time, the Swedish ferry Nieln, Holgersson, heading for Travemuende, West Germany, steamed up and manoeuvred to block the police boat.

Minutes later, the Fredenhagen hauled the terrified Heinz aboard.

Children's Aid Is Seeking Additional City Caseworker

The Board of Directors of the Children's Aid Society will seek an additional professionally trained caseworker for family counselling in the city of Belleville. At their regular monthly meeting held on Thursday, a unanimous feeling of need was discussed and unanimously carried. .

Considerable time was devoted to the study of the report of Ross H. Lumsden, a supervisor in the child welfare branch who recently paid a three-day visit to the society.

The quality of service to foster-prevention services as reflected in a sample of files, and the "protection section of our inspection schedule is good," commented Mr. Lumsden. "Complaints and referrals to your agency receive prompt attention and , on the whole, the attitude of your workers towards protection clients and the authority vested in them as representatives of the society is used appropriately and constructively . . . your protection workers are to be commended on the very good and significant work they are doing."

However, when dealing with caseloads, he had this to say; "The caseloads of two of your protection workers are unacceptable but the worker in the City of Belleville has an excessive load of 73 cases. Unless a substantial number of these can be closed, it is evident that the demand for protection services in Belleville would justify the employment of an additional worker."

The president, Mr. Wishart, summed up the discussion by saying, "This service is being used by an ever-increasing number of our own people. There is absolutely no doubt but that there is a very great need for professional family counselling service in the community.

"We cannot continue as at present, so we have a choice. We must cease to accept any more clients and drop some of those with whom we are presently working, or add staff and hope that the citizens of Belleville will come up with the necessary extra funds."

The C.A.S. director, Bruce Kerr, in his report to the meeting, stated that as of the end of August, sixty children had been admitted to the society's care and that there are 171 children under the supervision of the board.

He asked for the board's approval of the expenditure of private society funds to enable a former ward now over 18 to complete her grade 12 in a Belleville school. The retarded girl is to take business training at a private college. Both requests were granted.

Mr. Kerr continued that, as has been the practise for a number of years, all field-staff would participate in the in-service training program.

In closing Mr. Kerr remarked about the young boy who was sent to Ontario Training School when his parents would no longer control him. He said there was an accommodation at the Ontario Hospital in Smith Falls and that he had spoken of this problem a year ago at which time it was passed onto the association of the CAS.

Veterans Hold Decoration Day At Cemetery

With flags flying in the breeze and to the music of the Unit Pipe Band, the annual Decoration Day Parade on Sunday moved off from the Memorial Square under overcast skies and ideal marching weather. They paraded to the Belleville cemetery conveyed to the Belleville cemetery. The service was opened with prayer by Rev. Roslyn Brass Humphreys. After prayers to music supplied by the Salvation Army, a hymn was sung. The address was given by the Rev. R. G. Fleming, who talked on the difference between memories and memorials. Memories were private to the individual, while memorials were the outward visible signs resulting from memories for all to see. Wreaths were then presented one another. He stated that he was always honored to officiate at any Decoration Day Memorial Services and was very pleased to see such a good turnout to honor the memory of the departed comrades.

President Cec Brown, escorted by first vice-president Stan Mahoney, second vice-president Percy Kelly laid the wreath in dedication to all comrades who have joined the Unit. The Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 99, The Col. Ptay Wills Branch and the Ladies' Ladies' Auxiliary, ANAF Unit 201, and the ANAF Ladies' Auxiliary and certainly made a brave showing.

After the service President Cec Brown thanked everyone who turned out, for making the parade a big success. He especially thanked the RCL members for their great cooperation in joining Unit 201 and Ladies' Auxiliary to honor the departed comrades.

On behalf of the club members he congratulated Comrades Art and Edna Hobbs as it happened to be their wedding anniversary. He thanked the Unit Pipe Band led by Drum-Major George Christopher, for their usual excellent playing and smart appearance, which always added to the dignity and efficency of any parade they attended. He also thanked the police department for their usual efficient escorting of the parade. The Salvation Army with Bandmaster Jack Green in charge have gratefully thanked for their ever faithful services to the unit by supplying the music for the hymns and his playing of the Last Post and Reveille.

At the Provincial Command Convention, Dominion president Jack Lundberg, during his address to the delegates, stated that the Dominion Command advocated an ANAF Blood Donors' Day. In cooperation with the Canadian Red Cross Society, it was advocated that all units across Canada would be asked to request their members to donate their blood on the same day. This idea was received with great enthusiasm by the delegates and it is understood that a committee had been set up to enquire into ways and means of accomplishing this.

The Quinte Naval Veterans are holding their big fall dance in the ANAF auditorium on Friday evening, Oct. 4th, with Don Fairman's orchestra supplying the music. Get tickets and further information from the committee, Comrades F. Poole, N. Dall, J. Semark and R. C. L. Steward.

National Immunization Week

Each year toward the end of September Canada celebrates National Immunization Week. This year it is from September 22nd to 28th. The original objective was stamping out diphtheria but added efforts have been made by educating the public on the means of preventing whooping cough, smallpox, tetanus and poliomyelitis. Every week in the year should be immunization week but people are prone to forget. The objective of Immunization Week is to make sure that no one can say, "I didn't know, no one ever told me".

Not too many years ago diphtheria was still the greatest killer of children between the ages of two and four years. Today it is almost unheard of. Diphtheria has disappeared. In 1944 in Canada there were 2,211 cases of diphtheria with 317 deaths. In 1961 there were 85 cases with five deaths. During this same period Belleville did not have a case of diphtheria. Let us hope it will ever may come from other cities and even other countries.

Whooping cough remains in changing rapidly and of course the same is true in the field of communicable diseases. Only a short time ago the teaching was that a patient with scarlet fever was quarantined away from everybody else for six weeks and now the period is just one week. Many lives have been brought about by the use of antibiotics (penicillin).

NO SMALLPOX

From 1947 to 1961 there was not a case of smallpox in the whole country. This does not mean that the possibility of smallpox recurring is not possible. In fact there is a requirement for admission to Canada are rigid. Any person going out of the country who is returning to the United States and a few of the West Indies must be revaccinated within a period of three years before being allowed to re-enter Canada. Those individuals cannot be vaccinated, patients who have eczema or a chronic skin condition.

In 1943 there were 327 cases of poliomyelitis with 26 deaths. This number was greatly increased in 1953 to 857 cases with 481 deaths. However in 1961 there were 128 cases with 11 deaths. One of the cases in 1961 was in Belleville and it was the (Bulbar) type. I believe patient is still hospitalized in Toronto, Previous cases in the local press and over the local radio broadcast to the effect that a fourth dose of the Salk vaccine is necessary to complete the immunization. Everyone should make plans for the fourth dose if they have not already had the injection from their family doctor or at one of the Health Department Clinics.

SHOULD START EARLY

The results of whooping cough vaccine have not been quite as dramatic as in diphtheria and polio. In 1943 there were 19,062 cases of whooping cough in the country with 416 deaths. In 1961 there were 5,678 cases with 36 deaths. The number of cases in older children has been reduced and the greatest number of children admitted to hospital are under six months of age. This would seem to me it is suggested that whooping cough vaccine be started at three months of age.

The Associate Professor of Pediatrics University of Toronto, states that in the opinion the most serious communicable diseases today are measles and simple measles. The rash is not only on the skin but also throughout the whole bronchial tree and the result of this is that frequently many patients develop bronchial pneumonia and the death rate from measles is comparatively high. At the time a vaccine for the prevention of measles has been developed and is being used in the United States but at present it is not available in Canada, but should be within a reasonable time.

The battle against communicable diseases is being slowly won but we must never let down on our effort to educate and inform the public of the availability of these immunizing agents and their value on prevention and eradication communicable diseases. Immunization against smallpox vaccine, whooping cough vaccine, polio vaccine, diphtheria and tetanus toxoid can be obtained from your family physician or at the various clinics of the Belleville Health Department.

2nd Tuesday — Centre St. United Church.

Road Building Equipment to Be Auctioned

Anybody looking for a rock crusher, mechanical shovel or road grader or in fact any type of used road building equipment.

If so there will be a wide open opportunity later in the month when a mammoth auction of road building equipment will be held at the Hugh McFarland Company property north of Belleville.

Used road equipment consigned by various contractors all across the provinces is arriving daily for the big auction. Some equipment units are being painted a neutral yellow in readiness for lettering by the purchaser.

An official at McFarlands said that practically every type of road building equipment would be in the sale. Units being sold are not necessarily surplus but in many instances are not large enough to meet with today's construction requirements.

Such auctions apparently are not unusual for the one slated for Belleville will be the first held in the local area in many years.

Jaycees Attend Convention At Scarborough

President B. Clegg, Vice-President Robert and D. Dafoe represented the Belleville Jaycees at Scarborough this past weekend.

Highlight of the convention were the clinics and the two guest speakers, Saturday night, Roger Laliberte, President of La Federation (Quebec Jaycees) spoke and on Sunday, Fred West the new president of the Canadian National Jaycees spoke.

Information of interest gathered by the Belleville Jaycees at this Convention will be passed to the local unit at all levels.

Cyclist Killed Instantly on Camnfton Road

A dead-aste Saturday night became Belleville's second traffic fatality in car-bicycle mishaps in eight days.

Instantly killed as he bicycled north along Camnfton Road was 48-year old William Lester Jones. Police said his bicycle, which had no lights, was struck from behind by a car driven by Robert John Hannan, 37, of Corbyville. Trying to avoid the impact, Mr. Hannaf swerved his car off the road and crashed it into a ditch. As the automobile turned, police believe a front fender struck the bicycle, throwing Mr. Scott to the ground. He suffered a fractured skull, broken neck and leg injuries.

Damage to the automobile was estimated at $200.

Mr. Scott was returning home to the residence of Edward Gartley at Camnifton when the accident happened, just south of McFarlane Lake.

It is likely an inquest may be called under Dr. J. Russell Govett. Coroner for Lennox, Addington and Prince Edward.

Surviving are his wife, Gertrude Wood and Doug Martin investigated the accident.

Septembe 12th, a 17-year-old boy was fatally injured on Dundas Street West, when his bicycle was hit by a car.

1,500 Assemble at Arena For Corn Roast and Dance In Honor of E. Sandercock

More than 1,500 people ate 1,200 hot dogs, and 1,200 cobs of corn and drank 2,500 bottles of pop, Saturday night, at a semi-political party in Belleville Memorial Arena, sponsored by supporters of Hastings West Conservative candidate W. Elmer Sandercock. A five-piece local orchestra provided music for round and square dancing, and more than 15 door and spot prizes were given out during the evening.

Mr. Sandercock was at the party all night, circulating among the crowd and greeting friends, as promised, there were no speeches. It was a non-partisan night of free food and entertainment for all, though paid for by the local Progressive Conservative organization.

Main drawing card, aside from the food and drink, was the dancing to tunes by Charlie "Cannon" Roberts, and the "floor show" of top dancing by Belleville dancer Fredine Smith and her group.

DOZEN COOKS

The food was prepared on the spot, by a crew of more than a dozen cooks working with gas stoves rented from the Canadian Tire store in Belleville. From 8 p.m. on the food was duly disappeared, to about 11 p.m. when the last of the corn was finished, the cooks and the stoves were hard at work. When the committee crowd went through the last of the soft drinks, the Arena canteen was opened on an all coffee.

More than 1,000 balloons decorated the arena for the event, and posters picturing Mr. Sandercock and Premier John Robarts looked down over the crowd.

Prizes for the evening were donated by Checker Taxi of Belleville, Quinte Classics, Chez Murphy garage, Weston's Biscuits, former MP Lee Grills and Pinkie Electric.

Advance Poll Vote Larger Than in 1959

It's either a case of more interest or more people travelling, but either way the number of voters casting advance ballots in the provincial election is up considerably over 1959.

Officials at the office of Harry Morrow, returning officer for Hastings West, said the number of ballots cast in last week's advance polls was considerably up, although comparative figures were not available.

And the salme was true for the riding of Hastings East, according to Returning Officer Kenneth Vivian.

In the two advance polls in Belleville 217 persons cast their ballots. At Trenton there were 26 voters, 32 at Marmora and 21 in Frankford. The return from the Bancroft advance poll was not expected until early afternoon.

In the Hastings East riding there were 225 votes cast at the advance polls there.

This is better than 60 per cent increase over the approximately 140 votes cast at the advance polls in 1959.

Ontario Mishaps Take 17 Lives Over Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Accidents killed 46 persons in Canada during the weekend, 35 of them in highway accidents.

A Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday local times reported the highest toll in Ontario, where 17 persons were killed—11 on the roads, two in plane crash, two burned to death, one drowned and one child run over by a loader at a summer cottage.

Over the whole country there were four drowning s, two deaths by fire and five from other accidents during normal weekend activities.

And there were 11 deaths in traffic—including six men killed in a car-truck crash near Havre St. Pierre Saturday—one drowning and one person killed in a fall.

The survey does not include industrial fatalities, known suicides or slayings.

Candidature Crusade Against Patronage—Sills

TWEED — East Hastings Liberal candidate Roy Sills held the final public meeting of his campaign here Saturday.

Speaking to a rally at St. Carthagh's Hall, he told his audience he considered his running as a candidate "in the nature of a crusade against the evils of patronage that have grown up through the years" and "no-party representation for generations in this riding."

Commenting on local issues, he said after conversation with small timber holders in the north end of the riding, he believed there was discrimination and favoritism exercised by the Department of Lands and Forest.

"With an upsurge in construction activity on local highways it was not hard to see there was an election coming up," he said. A bridge between Cloyne and Maynooth was now being rebuilt. "I don't know why; there was a good bridge there. But it is making a nice lot of work and money for some contractor. It is not the first bridge I have seen that is running things. It is the contractors that are running the library [department]," he said.

He again referred to the formation of a farmers' co-operative in the area and said that a meeting, which had difficulty in obtaining a charter from the government. The latest communication from the provincial secretary said the application had been given tentative engrossing date" of August 9th making it a legal entity. "That means it is not official yet. They have started to think about it maybe."

He also denied he ever claimed Conservative candidate Clarke Rollins was a member of the Limerick Lake Hunt Club. He had merely challenged him on the matter. He now challenged him to say if he had membership in Hastings Rod and Gun Club.

Referring to the controversy over hunting club preserves he added, "There is something wrong with the Department of Lands and Forests if they can let that thing happen. My criticism of Mr. Rollins is that he was the MLA when this sort of thing was going on. It was his job to protect the hunters."

He warned that the whole of north Hastings County would soon be closed to hunters if the situation continued, and the county would be "plagued" by absentee ownership.

Food Industry Holds Golf Tourney Here

Last Wednesday, Belleville played host to 125 food salesmen, executives and sales managers from all parts of Eastern Ontario. It was a very successful occasion and a most enjoyable golf day. This is the sixth Annual Food Golf Tournament and it is the second year in a row that Belleville has been the host city.

Golfers started teeing off as early as 9 a.m. and continued all day. A smorgasbord was served at 7:30 and the Peter Chowen trophy as well as the Wade-Ryans trophy were presented to the winners. One of the highlights was a hole-in-one by Bill Fraser of the York Trading Company.

Bill Slade of National Grocers Company Limited was master of ceremony and the evening finished up with a large number of draws.

Owner Burned While Fighting House Blaze

TRENTON—A Trenton man, 58-year-old George Dennis of 71 Water Street, suffered face burns while trying to fight a fire in his home yesterday, with a garden hose hooked to the kitchen tap. He was treated at Trenton hospital.

Thef ire in the frame home, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Dennis, their son, Harold and two grandchildren, Barbara Dennis, 11, and Bobby, three, broke out at 10:30 a.m. Harold was asleep in an upstairs bedroom. The other members of the family were downstairs in their night attire.

Mrs. Dennis said that the fire started in one of the upstairs lighting fixtures. She said that she heard a loud bang and that suddenly the whole upstairs seemed to be ablaze. Mrs. Dennis set the task of furniture, appliance hauling and clothing and the gutted upstairs portion of the house at $10,000. She said that the house was mostly covered by insurance.

During the fire, firemen, neighbors and the family attempted to remove furniture from the burning building. At one point, Mrs. Dennis, who is in her late 50's, had to be forcibly removed from the premises by a police constable when she became hysterical.

The truck sent by the Trenton fire department ended into a roadside ditch on a soft shoulder and was dug out by firemen and neighbors. Firemen, however, were able to stretch a hose from the disabled truck to the house.

Neighbors have opened their home to the Dennis family until alternate accommodation can be found.

Liberals Hear Robert Nixon At Brighton

TRENTON — Liberal MP for Brant, Robert Nixon, told 350 persons in the Brighton district high school Saturday night that a Liberal administration in Ontario would utilize such modern facilities for education and teaching machines in Ontario schools if voted into power in this Wednesday's provincial election.

Mr. Nixon said that the present Conservative approach to education smacked of the "little red schoolhouse" and was 20 years behind the times.

Mr. Nixon was speaking at a rally in support of Jack Heenan, mayor of Cobourg, and liberal candidate for office in Northumberland county.

Preceding the Brighton rally, a 30-car cavalcade left Cobourg, led by the Port Hope Legion Pipe and Drum Band, would its way along Highway 2 to Brighton.

RELIEF PLANE LEAVES

VON Staff Active in Summer Months

TRENTON — Trenton Victorian Order of Nurses staff members made 583 home visits locally during the summer months, Miss Anne Stewart, nurse-in-charge of the Trenton branch reported to members of the VON board at this month's official meeting of the board. Miss Stewart summarized the activities of her staff for June, July and August for the board. Nursing care visits numbered 298; night calls, 17; 373 visits were for health instruction, mainly to mothers with new babies. No charge is made for health instruction visits.

Reporting on special group activities, Miss Stewart said that immunization clinics would be held every fourth Friday, starting this month. Child health conferences, held in the VON office in the CNR building on Dundas street, have been held every other Thursday during the summer, with a total attendance of 94.

Nursing sessions at St. Peter's and St. Mary's separate schools ended this month. Everyone is increased enrolment at St. Mary's school, Miss Stewart added that it is necessary to spend three half days a month at this school instead of two half days.

The fall series of pre-natal classes are scheduled to begin Oct. 1, continuing through to November 19 and these are to be held in King Street United Church parlors.

For the month of August, Miss Garda Hampel was in charge of the Trenton branch of the VON while Miss Stewart was on vacation. Miss Hampel is now in charge of the Napanee branch.

Mrs. George Greer, Trenton VON president, introduced the new secretary, Mrs. Rosalie Saidler, who replaces Miss Walker. Mr. Greer also introduced Miss E. McLeod, a postgraduate student nurse, who will be with the Trenton branch for September. When she leaves Trenton, Miss McLeod will start her year of public health study at Queen's University.

Mr. Greer told the board members that a house-to-house canvass for funds would be held in Trenton, Middleton Park and those parts of Sidney town ship served by the Trenton VON during the week commencing Oct. 13. Mr. Greer said that at present the branch was operating at a loss and it was hoped that a successful campaign in October would bring the finances out of the red and enable the branch to finish the year without a deficit.

Mrs. Burford of Coleman Heights has volunteered to organize the canvass in Trenton East and Mrs. W. Scott of Lorne will arrange for West Trenton while Mrs. Kobe will organize Middleton Park.

Northern Lights Put on Display During Weekend

TRENTON — Saturday and Sunday nights residents of Southern Ontario were treated to a magnificent display in the heavens created by what is commonly called Northern Lights and in more technical language, the aurora borealis.

The eerie, pulsating lights are described by David Sparrow, duty forecaster at RCAF Station Trenton, (with a highly technical body on the subject as his course) as "the electrical magnetic discharge in the upper atmosphere, due to influences from the sun."

Mr. Sparrow says that the lights are seen frequently during the years of sun-spot maximums. They range in altitude from the earth from 60 to 600 miles and while frequent in the north are rare in temperate latitudes. When they do occur in such places as southern Ontario, it is generally during a "cold snap." Mr. Sparrow says that he has quite often witnessed the phenomenon in Northern Alberta.

Students Elect Year's Officers

TRENTON—Elections and efficiencering are in the air these days, and not to be outdone by their elders the students at Trenton High School carried out nominations, campaigning and voting last week for positions on the school's student Council.

Elected to office were: president, John Chartier, secretary, Margaret Shaw, social representative, Robert Shoniker, editor of the yearbook, The Spotlight, Alan Sierakowski, treasurer, Sharon Ramsay, vice president, Jozbel Williamson.

Joan Brown and Douglas Davis were acclaimed as girls' and boys' athletic society heads.

Fruit Display Gets in Road Of Runaway Car

TRENTON — And in the chili sauce department . . .

Nine baskets of tomatoes, valued at $3.51; one fruit display table, valued at $2, and one picket fence, valued at $5, put in the way of a runaway car on John St. in Trenton Saturday afternoon.

The tomatoes, stand and fence were owned by Foster Kemsley, 70 John St. and the car was owned by Albert Towns, 147 Bay St. and it was being driven by Mrs. Towns' son Barry Kenneth Patrick of 198 Dundas St. E., when it broke away from its tow rope and ran down a small hill, into the business vendue, as mentioned above, owned by Mr. Rosenpilot.

Astronaut Turns Down $1,000,000 Job

BRANFORD, Conn. (AP)—Astronaut John Glenn has turned down a $1,000,000 job offer, and if he leaves the military, it probably will be for a government post, his lawyer indicated Sunday night.

The lawyer, C. Leo DeOrsey, conferred with Glenn at his home here Friday and Saturday.

As Glenn sees the situation, the question is: "What can you do for your country?" DeOrsey said.

"That sounds corny, I know, but it's the way he feels about it.

"I sat in the same room with him and a company president and heard Glenn turn down a $1,000,000 job. It blows one of those deals where you work 10 years and they pay you for 20," the lawyer said.

Asked whether Glenn would be more likely to take a government post than a job in industry, DeOrsey said: "We'd rather go government-wise."

"John loves the space program," he said. "And he wants to do what's best for humanity."

A STATEMENT ON PENSIONS

BY

W. E. "Sandy" SANDERCOCK

PROGRESSIVE CONSERVATIVE CANDIDATE FOR HASTINGS WEST

W. E. SANDERCOCK

Mis-statements made during this election campaign regarding Ontario's Portable Pension plan, have been so twisted for political reasons, and are so far from the facts, that I feel this important issue should be clarified.

The Ontario Portable Pension Plan, which was passed in the Ontario Legislature some time ago, is in process of being implemented, was one of the major steps in this government's programme to improve man betterment. One big feature was the portable point. Portable Pensions are practically a first on this continent. The Ontario plan if you move from one job to another you take not only your own contributions but also the contributions made by your company on your behalf. This will enable you to move to other positions without losing pension benefits.

When the Federal Government introduced their pensions plan, Premier John Robarts went to Ottawa and stated that the Ontario Government would be willing to modify its own plan to allow it to be fitted into the Federal proposal, still retaining the Portable feature.

Apparently Prime Minister Pearson has not approved of his Federal ministers twisting the facts as per the following quote from the Globe and Mail dated Sept. 17th. "Health Minister Judy LaMarsh has been advised by Prime Minister Lester Pearson to refrain from further specific comments on the proposed Canada Pension Plan during the remainder of the Ontario Election campaign."

What Price M.P.'s?

"Now that M.P.'s salaries are at a level commensurate with top professionals, should their standard of performance be measured the same as another professional who is measured by the public he serves?"

That question is asked by "Canadian Business."

It begs the question of how the public measures the standard of performance of other professionals who serve it.

There seem to be two yardsticks — a man's reputation and the level of his income. The readings are not always precisely the same. A doctor or a lawyer, for instance, may enjoy an enviable reputation, yet his income may be below that of less-able members of his profession because of the comparative poverty of the clientele he serves.

In one sense a politician's performance is measured at every election. Since he receives the same salary as any other politician, good or bad, this measurement is dependent solely on his reputation, and that of the party he represents.

"Canadian Business" would like to devise some rule by which to judge a politician's reputation. It suggests four areas of performance—the number of sittings of the House attended; the number of committees served on and number of meetings attended; his record on keeping his constituents informed on the activities or his party and himself on their behalf during each session; and effective communication with constituents to obtain their views on issues.

To a very large extent, the last two factors already play a major role in determining a politician's reputation in his riding. As for the first two, they need to be applied with care. A member who misses many House sittings and who does little committee work is obviously short-changing his constituents — and with an M.P.'s salary now at $18,000 this short-changing is on no small-change basis. At the same time, mere attendance tells little. Many a member has dozed his way through the major part of a session without contributing one thing besides his vote to the solution of the nation's problems.

It would be gratifying if one could discover a way in which the professional politician's performance could be measured by his salary. To a limited extent this is possible, since the skilled politician often wins Cabinet or party leadership posts, with extra remuneration. The difficulty is that this limitation is too sharp to be generally useful, and we doubt whether any person could discover a formula to differentiate between the performances of the other members.

George Bernard Shaw, in one of his discourses on socialism, said that it would be impossible to decide the respective value to the community of men with diverse talents and duties, and he, therefore, advocated uniformity of monetary rewards. Such a policy is much more widespread than it was at one time in the past and men of varying ability and energy often receive the same pay in unionized plants. We have the same condition in Parliament. But there was a time when the average employer made an effort to judge between his employees and to vary their rewards in keeping with their efforts on his behalf. It would be interesting if the voters could do this with their representatives.

He Begged for Her

If Sylvie Quiron of Hull, Quebec, grows up to be a big girl, we hope somebody tells her how much her father loves her. . . .

Sylvie, who is three, has a rare heart disorder. Her father has just obtained the money necessary to pay for heart surgery at the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn. He did this by getting permission from Hull police to beg for funds.

If Monsieur Quiron is like most of us, it must have cost him much to seek permission to beg.

Should a decent, loving father be asked to humble himself in such a manner before his daughter can be granted a chance to live?

One is tempted to wonder, too, about the state of mind which leads a province to countenance licences to beg. Apparently they are not unique in Quebec. The writer recalls a visit to a zoo at St. Felicien, on the west shore of Lake St. John, where a bevy of grubby children greeted visitors by showing a card purporting to be from the St. Felicien chief of police, setting forth their circumstances and permitting them to ask alms.

Still, before we criticize our neighboring province we might ask ourselves whether we are so sure that, here in Ontario Mr. Quiron would not have had to beg without permission, rather than with it, in order to give his little daughter a possible future.

Status Symbols in Israel

By Carl Alpert in the Canadian Jewish Chronicle

The rising standard of living in Israel is affecting the evolution of social and economic classes.

Since in this country the working class was the original elite group, it is difficult to define differences between classes in the usual Western terms. Status symbols here reflect the history and unique social and racial composition of the country.

There are various strata of society, but the aristocracy of the working class has always carried with it a prestige of its own.

The elderly bookkeeper in an office, or the graying salesman behind the counter, who can tell that he will one day be helped drain the swamps of the Emek, or paved the roads to upper Galilee settlements is attuning to his affiliation with a national aristocracy.

This cannot be compared with the pride with which an American millionaire recalls that he used to sell newspapers on the corner, for in this country personal memories of these tasks in the early historic days carried with it a special mark of distinction.

Those pioneers are officially known as "The First Ones."

In comparable manner the urban nobility of today need only drop word that it has a son or a daughter who is a member of a kibbutz deep in the Negev, or along the Syrian border.

The information at once confers on the family a status of special dignity in Israeli society.

As in every other modern society, possession of certain physical properties also confers status.

Ten year ago ownership of an electric refrigerator was an indication of affluence, and something more than half the families of the country possess this precious kitchen installation, and the refrigerator has lost much of its special status value.

Five years ago a kitchen gas range was a distinguishing distinction. In less than half a decade it too has become the possession of about half the families of Israel.

In a country where television is a rare luxury, one would think of a TV receiver as a special mark of affluence.

TV sets are owned by those who can afford to pay the high price, both for the sets, but also by many technical people who have assembled their own sets and by large numbers of Arabs who use them to receive the video programs of the neighboring Arab states, including Nasser's speeches.

Symbols are not always of great value or significance in themselves except insofar as they represent something.

• • •

The possession of a season ticket to the Israel Philharmonic Orchestra — first series — is a mark of distinction.

The movie - goer may show his pretensions by buying the most expensive seats in the house — in the balcony.

The man paper do you read? Leading citizens are presumed to read Haaretz.

There is an element of prestige in speech, too, the cultured British accent ranks higher on the social scale than the broad, flat American accent.

Americans of my acquaintance here have unconsciously begun to affect the Queen's English.

The yearning to be a person of distinction, or like a person of distinction, is catered to blatantly by the flood of cigarette advertisements. Smoke such-and-such brand — like the pictured specimens of sufficiently upper-class, posed at or near the local golf club.

• • •

What all this adds up to is that Israel society is aping the superficial aspects of so-called western civilization.

Perhaps this has been going on for several years.

If the elite used to be the kibbutz members, the Gur Aryeh Aliyah people, the heroic bus drivers and the members of the Palmach — it is clear that a new social elite is emerging, composed of the families of the country's industrialists and orange-grove owners.

The social fabric of Israel is changing.

Protest Arms Sales

From the South Africa Freedom News, published fortnightly in London by the African National Congress, which is banned in South Africa.

The path to national disaster . . . that is how Sir Patrick Henry Dean, Britain's spokesman at the United Nations, describes the South African government's policy of apartheid when he addressed the Security Council debate.

Sir Patrick did not pull his punches in describing it as "evil," was "entirely repugnant to my government and to the feelings and traditions of my people."

Strong words. Yet if — as many sadly agree they might — Britain's arms sales to the Verwoerd government do lead to bloodshed, then Sir Patrick Dean and the British government will share responsibility for that bloodshed with Dr. Verwoerd and his government.

For the meeting of the Security Council was told by Sir Patrick spoke went on to call (by a vote of 9-0) for a world-wide ban on the sale of arms to South Africa.

• • •

The resolution was strengthened by the solemn pledge given by the United States of America that from the end of this year no arms of any sort would be shipped to South Africa. But two countries did not vote on the arms ban. They were Britain and France, both of whom are heavily committed to the "evil business" of supplying arms to the South Africans.

Britain, said Sir Patrick plaintly, would only supply arms essential to South Africa's national defence. They would not supply arms that could be used to enforce the policies of apartheid.

It was a formulation which fooled no one. South Africa's security is not threatened from without. No one has threatened South Africa with invasion. Should a world war come, then South Africa's defences would count for nothing in the general holocaust.

One thing and one thing alone threatens the internal security of South Africa: the policy of apartheid and the hatred and fear that it breeds.

If bloodshed comes then there is not the slightest doubt that Buccaneer bombers — a £30 million ($80 million) order and Westland Wasp helicopters — a £30 million ($90 million) order — marked "Made in Britain" will be used against the non-white population.

If that day comes it will only be the first time that British arms have been used by the Nationalist Government against the non-white population. The seven armoured cars that shot down men and women at Sharpeville were also made in Britain.

"We have considerable trade with and a considerable investment in South Africa. This is of great importance to the external economic position of the United Kingdom," said Sir Patrick to the implications of world trade generally."

It is the one sentence Sir Patrick let slip the real reason why Britain is to continue the "evil business" of supplying South Africa with the arms that alone make the whole world fears will be used to enforce apartheid.

Big business in Britain already has 71,000 million invested in South Africa. It expects much further handsome profits from the shipment of arms.

The British government may find the policy of apartheid "repugnant" but it is prepared to pay to-find the prospect of losing the profits from the arms business, even though it condemns. Behind the fine-sounding speeches of Sir Patrick Henry Dean stand the Merchants of Death — the arms manufacturers.

By refusing to support the arms ban Britain and France have flouted world opinion and gave comfort and support to those who uphold the policy of apartheid in South Africa.

And by putting Britain's case Sir Patrick Henry Dean, Knight Commander of St. Michael and St. George, graduate of Rugby public school and Cambridge University, member of Brooks' exclusive club and confirmed chauvinist, made sure that his name would be remembered in history. Remembered with shame.

Unique Program

Vancouver Sun

The U.S. foreign aid program has been unique in history. It has not been altogether disinterested, perhaps and its results have not always been what we hoped. But it is not hard to imagine what a different world, a world much worse off, this would be, had it never been undertaken. This is why it seems a pity that the program should be faltering.

Strictly Personal
Modern Art Reflection Of Times

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Attending the opening of an art exhibit recently, I overheard a sweet little lady protest to the painter: "Why is modern art the way it is?" To which he politely shrugged, and murmured tactfully, "Why is modern life the way it is?"

But the best response to this constant query has been given by Robert Beverly Hale, of the Metropolitan Museum in New York, who once made the following explanation:

"If our art seems violent, it is because we have perpetrated more violence than any other generation. If it deals with weird dreams, it is because we have opened up the caverns of the mind and let such phantoms loose.

"If it is filled with broken shapes, it is because we have watched the order of nature break and fall to pieces at our feet.

"We have seen, in our century, the development of fantastic scientific paraphernalia and much ill will. We have the fear of some monstrous event which will bring, at best, a curious and distorted future; at worst, annihilation. The artist is in part a prophet. We should not complain if the shadows that have lately haunted us are for some time been visible upon his canvas."

In one sense, great art is timeless; in another, it is the product of its times. Bach's music could not have been written except in an extremely religious atmosphere. Modern composers don't even try to sound like him, for they are looking at an entirely different world from an entirely different point of view.

The long, leisurely Victorian novel is out of mode, for the tempo of life is too fast-changing. Our novels are staccato, charged with demonic fury, brutal, even Shakespeare made most of his Greeks and Romans speak and behave like 16th century gentlemen.

The modern painter is no longer "realistic." The old-fashioned sense, because the universe has taken on a different aspect of reality.

All the ancient gods have been questioned; some have been overthrown; and nothing has yet arisen to take their place. The chaos in the frame is, in its own way, a realistic reflection of the chaos in the mind of modern man.

Police say that often out of town drivers have parking tickets, probably in the belief it will be too much trouble to trace them and collect the penalty. They could not be more mistaken. With the co-operation that exists between police departments everywhere it is a relatively simple matter to trace down the culprit and collect — or else!

To Your Good Health
Surgery Has Been Used To Remove Stomach Fat

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What about removal of fat from the abdomen by surgery? I have a tremendous stomach and it hangs down.

I am 52 years old and in good health. I went through 200 pounds but have lost more than 30, and am not fat otherwise.

Is the operation worthwhile at my age? My doctor has suggested it. — M. R.

Since your doctor suggested it, if you want it done for cosmetic reasons, go ahead. It's the choice is up to you, and I can't see that your age is much of a factor.

These "aprons" of fat are the penalty of prolonged, excessive obesity, and the tissues have been stretched to a degree that Nature cannot correct now. Hence the surgery.

It is not a simple operation, because a great amount of fatty tissue with its network of blood vessels must be removed. However it is not a comparatively dangerous procedure either.

The surgery will leave you with a slim-to-ship scar across the abdomen, but the result will be an improved figure and greater comfort and more ease in moving about.

Removal of the "apron" is not a substitute for weight reduction. It is for correction of a condition in which plain reducing no longer can get rid of the sag.

Dear Dr. Molner: I use saccharine three times a day in my coffee. I read in a book that "cancer research" did not approve of this. What's your opinion? — M. S.

Forget about the "cancer research" scare-story. No reliable cancer specialist condemns sweeteners in the amount that anyone would use them.

Dear Dr. Molner: I had a bad infestation of some small, light brown pills four times a day. Would they cause me to feel drowsy and sleepy? — G. R.

If you want to make a guess, maybe the "cold pills" contained an antihistamine drug which might help dry up a running nose even if it wouldn't and wouldn't cure the cold. After a few people, the antihistamines also can cause drowsiness.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am the 36-year-old mother of one child. I would like to have another but have not been able to conceive. My doctor tells me one of my Fallopian tubes is closed and that I have only a 50 percent chance of becoming pregnant. Can anything be done to help me get pregnancy? — E. C.

The usual (but not invariable) pattern is for one ovary, then the other, to release an egg ovum. If one Fallopian tube is blocked, but the ovum cannot descend. So yes, your prospect of becoming pregnant is more or less limited to every other month. The best time for pregnancy is midway between the beginning of one period and the beginning of the next. But there is no way to be certain of becoming pregnant.

Much heart trouble is preventable. Write to Dr. Molner, in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill., for your copy of his booklet, "How To Take Care Of Your Heart," enclosing a long, self-addressed envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover the cost of printing and handling.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. However, questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

President Truman notified the world of a major alteration in the balance of international power in 1949 — a year ago today — in 1949 — when he announced the Soviet Union had exploded an atomic device. Within weeks it became clear the Russians planned to use their possession of the bomb as a powerful weapon in the cold war being fought in international affairs. Georgi Malenkov, a rising Soviet politician who was to succeed Stalin on his death, warned that with the bomb Russia had ended the monopoly and the end of capitalism in a third world war. He added that Russia did not want war and planned to use the bomb in peaceful projects.

1953—Pakistan joined the Bagdad Pact.

1939 — Sigmund Freud died.

Ricki Covette, Raised in Puritan Family, Now Dancer

By JIM PEACOCK

NEW YORK (CP)—Ricki Covette was raised in a Puritan family that frowned on smoking, drinking and sex.

She grew up in a small Alberta town where everybody talked about her—as she grew up and up—and she became self-conscious and withdrawn. She walked with shoulders drooped, knees bent and she wore shoes as flat-heeled as possible.

Today she stands erect on high heels, exudes poise and self - confidence, hopes people will talk about her and shocks the Puritans by unabashedly well-proportioned figure in public.

Miss Covette, silvery - blonde and blue-eyed, stands six feet eight inches and exhibits atop long, shapely legs a figure measuring 41-23-36 in the key places.

TALLEST DANCER

In night spots in Canada, the United States, Europe, South America and the Orient, where she has played since she began her career eight years ago, she bills herself as the world's tallest exotic dancer.

"Exotic dancer is a cultured expression for ecdysiast—which is to say stripper.

It's a profession Miss Covette adopted when she found ambitions to become an actress were stymied by her height. It's one she says has not only helped her regain her confidence, but has permitted her to travel widely and live comfortably on an income of about $25,000 a year. It now has led also to two feature film assignments as an actress—no stripping involved.

Her act, in which she goes through the motions of taking a shower on stage—"it's a pantomime and bills it story; I don't just walk around and take my clothes off"—is just that to her.

IT'S AN ACT

As for the moralists who criticize her profession, she says they're often "people who can't see anything beyond their own little realm."

"What are standards anyway?" she asked in an interview during a New York stop-over for a television appearance. "To me what I do is an act and nothing more. In a girl who plays the part of a prostitute on stage condemned then as a prostitute?"

Miss Covette said her views were not always so liberal, but they had broadened with travel.

Born as Irene Siewert in Onoway, Alta., a tiny community about 40 miles northwest of Edmonton, she went to high school in Sangudo, another 40 miles northwest.

..."We never drank or smoked at home and our morals were instilled," she said. Irene, however, was mentioned often as the grown-up was six-foot-four when she was 13.

"I was always the big discussion. Everybody said 'when is she going to stop growing?' My parents never had to worry about my going out on a date and became nobody asked me."

WHO ME?

She went to business college later, then had a brief fling as a secretary before giving in to her life-long ambition to be in show business. She came to New York, seeking to become a showgirl in a night club chorus, but was rejected as too tall. A club manager suggested exotic dancing.

"Not me," she said she told him, but she changed her mind when an agency offered $175 a week for such an act. She took ballet and modern dancing, borrowed money to buy props and costumes and set out as a one-girl act.

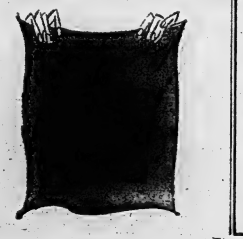
"I've never been without work since," she said.

Miss Covette now acts as her own manager; travels alone to engagements that keep her busy

BIG EXPORT — One of Canada's biggest farm exports is undoubtedly Ricki Covette, well-proportioned blonde who stands six-foot-eight and boasts measurements of 41-23-36. Ricki, whose real name is Irene Siewert, was born in Onoway, Alta., a farming community near Edmonton. She's an exotic dancer — stripper — who plays clubs and theatres nearly 50 weeks of the year, travelling across Canada, the U.S. and to Europe and the Orient. (CP Photo)

40 to 50 weeks each year; invests wisely; finds little trouble with men in her audience, who she says seem to like to look but prefer not to touch; and gets off marriage proposals because "I'm very serious about my career right now and the men don't mix." She has many dates, however.

She says most women in her audience are nice to her and many are, obviously envious, "especially when they see me leave the club in a mink coat."



Her biggest problem, in fact, is maintenance, packing and shipping of the 300 pounds of equipment she uses in the act—equipment she'll take to Montreal and Vancouver dates this fall.

"Considering I end up with so little," the big, big blonde laughed, "I carry a lot of baggage."

Yes, indeed.

Mrs. Fairman was the unanimous choice of the ladies at the post-dinner election of officers. She succeeds Eva Corke who did an excellent job this year.

Also named to the 1954 slate of officers are, Eva Ketchenson, vice president, and Agnes Walker secretary-treasurer.

Committee chairmen are Win McKeown, house; Betty O'Brien, social; Phyllis Dyble, games; Lilyan Mackenzie, press, and Betty Walmsley and Betty Wymark in charge of Thursday tournaments.

BROOKS — DALE

An interesting wedding was solemnized Saturday, Sept. 7, in St. John's Anglican Church, Kingston, when Canon W. J. M. Swan united in marriage Miss Diane Bernice Dale and Lyn Albert Ayre Brooks in a double ring ceremony. Talisman roses and lemons and yellow mums crested the setting, the wedding music was played by Mr. Harry Birchall, organist. Soloist Miss Donalda Heath of Stirling sang "The Marriage Prayer" and "I'll Walk Beside You" and the girls' choir led the procession into the church singing "Praise My Soul The King of Heaven," and retired to "Holy, Holy, Holy."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride took the vows in a floor length gown of satin floral brocade, the skirt flowing into a chapel train and the bodice styled with scoop neckline and lily-point sleeves. The tiered veil was arranged on a cluster of satin roses which matched the lilies roses caught up in the drape of her train. She carried a white Bible crested by a cascade of yellow tongued white orchids and stephanotis.

Miss Patricia Hammell of Belleville was maid of honor. Her gown of frosted green organza over taffeta was styled with a bell skirt and panelled back. Her headdress was a large matching rose and veil, and her flowers cymbidium orchids.

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. James Holland of Kingston as best man and the ushers were Mr. A. Brooks of Trenton and Mr. Guy Fellowes of Kingston.

As the wedding party left the church, Miss Alana Brooks, sister of the bridegroom, presented the women with Jonquil almonds wrapped in white tulle, a Turkish custom observed by the Brooks family during their residence in Turkey. Following the church ceremony a reception was held in LaSalle Hotel. Mrs. Dale received the guests wearing a dress of champagne organza over autumn printed silk, with matching three-quarter length coat, brown accessories, and cymbidium orchids en corsage. Elegant But Easy White Layer Cake

by Mary Moore

On September 20th — last Friday — I promised to give you a recipe for a white layer cake in which you could use up any of the filling you had left-over from making the Coconut Tarts given that day. And that was because the filling called for three egg yolks, the whites from which you would have left-over too. My thrifty kindred spirits will be glad.

Here is the recipe for the white layer cake.

MONDAY
Dinner Menu

Boiled Lamb Shoulder; Onion or Caper Gravy; Mashed Potatoes; Quick-Cooked Shredded Cabbage; Sliced Cucumbers Vinaigrette; Peach Dumplings with Nutmeg Sauce; Coffee.

THREE-EGG-WHITE LAYER CAKE:

½ cup good quality shortening (or ¼ cup each shortening and butter), 1 1-3 cups sugar, 2¼ cups sifted cake flour, 2½ teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup milk, ½ cup water, 1½ teaspoons vanilla, 3 egg whites (⅓ cup).

Cream the shortening (or shortening and butter) until very light then cream the sugar into it until fluffy. Sift and measure the flour and sift it three times with the baking powder and salt. Add the sifted dry ingredients alternately with the milk and water and vanilla, mixed together, beating until smooth. Beat the whites until very stiff and fold in with a rubber spatula. Grease sides and bottoms of two 8" layer cake pans and line bottoms with buttered wax paper. Pour half of batter into each. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 30 to 35 minutes or until tinged with gold and slightly shrunk from sides of pans. Let stand 5 minutes then turn out on cake racks to cool. Peel off wax paper.

Spread cold leftover coconut tart filling over one, cover with top layer. Frost with Butter Frosting: One-quarter cup soft butter, 1 tablespoon pineapple juice and about 2 cups sifted icing sugar. Cream butter and add icing sugar and pineapple juice and beat until smooth. Spread on sides of cake first, then frost top.

15 Councils Attend Arch Diocese Meet

MARMORA — The regional conference of the Arch Diocese of Kingston, Roman Catholic Church was held on Sunday afternoon in Sacred Heart Church with 15 councils attending.

The conference was opened by Dr. R. C. Pickett of St. John's Parish, Kingston who is also Diocesan Director of Area Diocese Kingston. He was welcomed by Rev. W. P. Healey, Parish Priest of Sacred Heart and by Miss Mary Warren, president of Council No. 2.

Dr. Pickett spoke on the revitalization of the Roman Catholic Church. Mrs. W. D. Pearson, Diocesan President of Kingston also spoke briefly.

Following the presenting of Council reports and business, a social hour was spent with Miss Mary Warren and Council No. 2 of Sacred Heart parish as hostesses.

Sprinkle top generously with fine packaged (preferably unsweetened) cocoanut or chopped nuts. This is surprisingly good. Actually the half of it that was leftover tasted and cut better on the second day after being in refrigerator overnight.

MAIL CALL

Question: My daughter was to be married in late September, but my husband had to have an unexpected operation, so the wedding will have to be postponed a month. Fortunately, my daughter wanted only a small, simple wedding and reception, and only 50 people have been invited. Should they be notified with a formal, engraved announcement of the postponement, or would it be correct to simply phone or write informal notes, telling guests about the new date. I'd prefer doing the latter to save additional expense and also to make sure guests the bride's family may know how many to expect at the wedding plans, if necessary, for the ding and reception.

reception. — Mrs. M. K., New Haven, Conn.

Answer: Since there are so few guests involved, it would be possible — and proper — to advise them of the change of date either by telephone or note. If you should decide to change your mind and send out a more formal announcement of the postponement, guests would be required to answer the announcement. Response to the original invitation does not release them from the obligation of responding to the announcement of the postponement, so into a donnybrook over old age pensions with himself and Federal Health Minister Judy LaMarsh at a time when the premier was trying to avoid public tussle over this federal-provincial issue and was harping strongly on good Toronto-Ottawa relations.

TEXTS OF PLANS

Mr. MacDonald, 49, making his third run as Ontario leader, has been concentrating strongly on NDP plans for portable pensions—including qualified acceptance of the federal Canada Pension Plan—and comprehensive medical care through the government. He has done spasmodic scandal-shouting but—in sharp contrast to previous elections—has been outshouted by Mr. Wintermeyer this time.

Premier Robarts, a lawyer from London, Ont., went into the campaign with a comfortable 63 of the 90 seats in the last legislature. Lawyer Wintermeyer, from Kitchener, had 34. Former newspaper man MacDonald had five, with six vacancies existing.

The new legislature will have 108 seats. Ten new ridings were carved out of Metropolitan Toronto territory, much of which went Conservative in the 1959 general election. This gives traditional Tory Toronto (which went Liberal in the last federal election) 20 constituencies. The conservatives took 13 of 19 here in 1959.

While the general drift of the stumping has been in low key, some sprightly language has been tossed around. When blunt Mr. Wintermeyer accused him of trying to torpedo the federal pension plan while giving it lip service, the urbane premier said—in polished language—that he was lying.

PROGRAMS DIFFER

When Roman Catholic Mr. Wintermeyer said his school financing plan was the only one offering Catholic institutions equality with public schools, Anglican Mr. Robarts again said he was lying and dragging a non-political question into politics. Conservative and Liberal programs are aimed at equalizing complex formulas.

Mr. Wintermeyer, who prodded the government into setting up a royal commission on crime in late 1961, has called the commission findings a hoax—and promised to set up a permanent crime investigating commission.

For this, Lands and Forests Minister Kelso Roberts — who was Mr. Wintermeyer's favorite crime target when Mr. Roberts was attorney - general—likened the Liberal leader to "a dog returning to his own vomit." Mr. Roberts was shifted out of the attorney-generalship after the inquiry hearings ended, but subsequently got a clean bill-of-health in its report.

Another Conservative described Mr. Wintermeyer of "trying to ride to Queen's Park (the legislature) on a manure spreader."

Premier Robarts largely stayed out of the crime scrap but at one point accused Mr. Wintermeyer of "degrading and debasing" politics by saying there was something "disgusting and horrible" about the way Provincial Secretary John Yaremko treated his deputy, R. J. Cudney, who resigned late in the campaign saying conditions in his department had become "intolerable."

The Liberals contended Mr. Cudney was getting pushed around because as a royal commission witness he had revealed ministerial laxity in the issuance of social club charters—often used by gamblers — to questionable characters.

MENTION MR. X

In the late stages of the campaign, too, Mr. Wintermeyer was claiming that the gamblers have a "friend" in the secretary's department. The premier and Mr. Yaremko were challenging him to name the official.

Mr. MacDonald also has touched on the crime situation —promising a follow-up to the royal commission if elected—and also has been seeking action on a long-continuing government inquiry into alleged malfeasance in the issuance of municipal coal gas franchises in Northern Ontario several years ago.

But Mr. Robarts has been letting the NDP go its way without reply. He has not publicly mentioned either Mr. MacDonald, his party or his policies, though on occasion he has come out strongly in favor of free enterprise.

Princess Alice Presents Colors To Regiment

OTTAWA (CP) — Princess Alice, colonel-in-chief of the 6th Prince Louis Duke of Connaught's Own Rifle Regiment Canadian Guards, presented a new standard to her regiment in a colorful Parliament Hill ceremony Saturday.

The red and gold standard, approved by Queen Elizabeth in 1959, was paraded before about 2,000 spectators. It replaces the regiment's original standard, lost in a 1943 fire which destroyed the regiment's headquarters.

Sunday the 82-year-old princess greeted members of the regiment and their families on the lawns of Government House where she was chatelaine from 1940 to 1946 while her late husband, the Earl of Athlone, was Canada's governor-general.

It was her last official duty on a four-day visit to the regiment. She plans to stay in Ottawa visiting friends privately until Thursday when she will return to London.

In Washington, about 10,000 Negroes and whites attended a memorial service at Lafayette Square, facing the White House, after many staged a silent two-mile walk to the scene.

A dozen uniformed American Nazi party members, including leader George Lincoln Rockwell, picketed the White House during the memorial service. When the service ended, some of the people there began to counter - picket the American Nazis.

One of the counter-pickets was arrested for spitting.

With the atmosphere tense, police hustled Rockwell and his followers into cars and took them away.

Govt. Refuses To Save Many North Towns - - MacDonald

By DAVID DAVIDSON

SUDBURY (CP) — Premier John Robarts' government refuses to put into effect policies that will save many Northern Ontario communities from becoming ghost towns, NDP Ontario leader Donald MacDonald says.

"Northern Ontario is dotted with pockets of depression which linger on because the Roberts government refuses to shape policies which will rescue these communities from the status of ghost towns," Mr. MacDonald told some 250 supporters at $3-a-plate dinner here Saturday night.

He charged that the time had long since arrived when the government of the province of Ontario should reassess and reallocate Northern Ontario's lumber limits which he said were controlled by timber barons who were not developing them.

"Little towns have seen their population dwindle because the government has refused to reassess and reallocate vast timber limits which have been handed over to absentee licencees, thereby keeping out secondary industries which might be developed to provide jobs and a new prosperity."

HITS TAX GIVEAWAYS

Mr. MacDonald also lashed out at the government for not doing away with "highly discriminatory privileges" granted the mining industry whereby they are freed from municipal taxation.

"Why should mining companies be given these concessions when other businesses are not?" he aked.

He said that in nearby Elliot Lake, which he described as the model ghost town of North America, "the workers have seen their life savings go down the drain" as uranium markets declined.

"Meanwhile, in less than six years, the corporations involved have withdrawn all their original investment of $350,000,000 and a couple of big companies have monopolized the situation."

Mr. MacDonald charged that neither the government nor the corporations have stressed research programs to develop a civilian market for uranium deposits as was done after the First World War with nickel.

FRIENDLY SURPRISES

The NDP leader, in buoyant spirits after enthusiastic receptions from the beginning of his day-long tour that began in North Bay and ended in Sudbury, said there are going to be "some surprises in store" this Wednesday when Ontario voters go to the polls.

"I am confident we are going to have Northern Ontario back in the legislature with a real voice," he told his cheering listeners.

He took swipes at Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer who he said had distorted the whole campaign and was "not only reading his speeches poorly but reading them with a Kennedy accent."

Mr. MacDonald, accompanied by his wife, began his day with a breakfast meeting at North Bay, followed by a brief visit to Sturgeon Falls.

He was met at nearby Wahnapitae Hill by a motorcade of more than 30 cars and toured Sudbury and Nickel Belt ridings.

"It was the best cavalcade ever in my political career," the NDP leader said at the evening banquet.

Mr. MacDonald returned to Toronto Sunday and spoke at election workers rallies in Toronto St. Andrew, where NDP caucus secretary Ellen Adams is a candidate, and in his own riding of York South.

SEES GREAT STRENGTH

"Greater strength than we had ever dared to hope for is emerging for the New Democratic Party in the hometreads of the campaign," he told the NDP workers.

"The longer the campaign has gone on, the more the Conservative propaganda facade of a new and vigorous regime has fallen away to reveal the same old stand-pat, tory regime."

Mr. MacDonald said that "from the outset the public had no confidence in Liberal policies, because they have changed so often as to represent no firm commitment to the voters."

During the campaign Mr. Wintermeyer has proved beyond any shadow of doubt that he is unworthy of any serious consideration as premier of this province."

No Increase In Salaries For Members - - Roberts

By JOHN LEBLANC

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Robarts put in a light half-day of general election campaigning Saturday and then knocked off for the weekend to work on a major closing speech for today.

With Wednesday's voting just ahead, Mr. Robarts holed up at his Lake Huron summer home at Grand Bend to prepare for today's luncheon meeting here, at which Progressive Conservative officials are expecting 2,000 or more listeners.

It will be one of a half-dozen meetings scheduled for today. The others are informal receptions in Metropolitan Toronto ridings.

Mr. Robarts took it easy on the speechmaking Saturday, though he was whisked around to five appearances in Brantford, centre of a district containing two ridings long held by the Liberals.

GO ON THE AIR

He and Mayor Richard Beckett, candidate in Brantford, went on the local radio station CKPC in an hour-long, live program of answering telephone questions from listeners. The premier announced no policies, but emphasized these points:

1. He has no intention of proposing any increase in the salaries of members of the legislature.

2. The government's new program of distributing free textbooks to Grades 9 and 10—and eventually to all high school students—will permit the updating of texts to keep pace with educational developments without burdening parents with costs.

3. The government cannot put unauthorized freelance tobacco growers out of business until a court case testing its authority to allocate growing acreages has been decided.

With Mayor Beckett and Brant Conservative candidate Arthur McNeil, the premier closed his last full week of active campaigning with a visit to a hospital ladies' auxiliary's auction sale, an appearance at city hall to present an "A for Achievement" award to a local firm that has developed a tobacco-leaf-tying machine and a drop-in for coffee with party workers at a committee room.

He spoke only—and briefly—at the award presentation on the steps of city hall, where midmorning buyers at the open air farmers' market outside the building went on bargain-hunting as he talked.

Liberal Leader Gets Welcome In Windsor Area

By CARL MOLLINS

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer flew here Sunday from a rousing sortie into the Windsor area and mapped tactics with advisers for his final shots before Wednesday's provincial election.

The Liberal chief, showing no signs of strain after 23 days and 12,000 miles of hard campaigning, had nothing on his public agenda until a rally in Massey Hall here tonight. But he said he might decide to visit some of the 29 Metro ridings during the day.

Supporters in the four Windsor-area ridings put on a show for their visiting leader Saturday that was rated the biggest and liveliest in the campaign.

Party organizers hit Essex South, where the Speaker of the provincial legislature, William Murdoch, is the only Conservative incumbent in the Windsor area. A 100-car motorcade hooked its way through 90 miles of the riding in support of Leamington dry goods merchant Don Paterson.

LED BY BAND

A 20-piece Leamington trumpet band preceded the motorcade by bus and led the cars on foot through six of the dozen communities visited. Little girls spilled out of cars in each town and turned out to hand flowers and a picture of candidate Paterson to women shoppers.

In Leamington, where Mr. Wintermeyer made one of his brief sidewalk speeches opposite the Liberal headquarters rooms, the motorcade encountered Mr. Murdoch doing some last-minute campaigning. The Conservative candidate waved, smiled bravely and then made for the town of Essex in a sound truck to do some public addressing before the Liberal motorcade hornred in.

Back in Windsor, a crowd of more than 300 turned out for a Saturday-night rally in Cleary Auditorium to be greeted on the doorstep by a 16-piece Dixieland band.

Inside, the audience was warmed up for the Liberal leader by a singsong and a hit-and-wit speech by Arthur Reaume, tart-tongued candidate for re-election in Essex North.

Mr. Reaume had the audience roaring—and Mr. Wintermeyer singing tears of laughter from his eyes—with assorted attacks on the Conservative government.

Defending federal Welfare Minister Judy Lamarsh and the Canada Pension Plan from criticism by Premier John Robarts, Mr. Reaume said the federal minister is "a lady of whom the premier of Ontario is not worthy to shine her shoes."

Lands and Forests Minister Kelso Roberts was said to be so inept that he was "promoted from attorney general to minister of trees."

Mr. Wintermeyer pledged a Liberal government would encourage Detroit workers to make their homes in the Canadian border city through such measures as exempting from succession duties the estates of Americans working in Detroit and living in Windsor.

Windsor—suffering the effects of a diminished automobile industry—would be among communities that would receive swift help from the federal government's new municipal loan fund if a Liberal administration is elected in Ontario, Mr. Wintermeyer said. Ottawa and the municipalities would be given the go-ahead without intervention by the provincial government, he said.

Mr. Wintermeyer was buoyed by Windsor's windup to his campaign tour, which criss-crossed the province by chartered plane and bus in a fashion that touched each major region of the province at least once in each of the four weeks.

Backbiter Is Goodhearted

By DORIS CLARE

DORIS CLARE

DEAR DORIS — One of my neighbors is an exceptionally friendly person to meet. She has a bad fault, however. She is very critical of the others and does a lot of gossiping and criticizing. The way I look at it is, if she'll talk about everyone else to you, she'll talk about you to everyone else. I have heard her gossip about every single person in the neighborhood.

In many ways she is quite goodhearted. She'll offer to do favors for you that others wouldn't even think of doing. But if she has done a favor she'll complain about the extra time it took, etc. She is always saying to everybody to come and visit with her any time at all. Then she'll complain that this person or that came over and she didn't get any of her work done because of them.

Apparently the majority of her friends haven't got wise to her because I still periodically hear about her business, and I certainly feel sorry for them. To say anything to the woman herself would just make her hostile, as I have seen her get quite furious in the past when she received criticism over something. Yet I can't help but like her. — WHAT TO DO?

DEAR WHAT — She spoils the kindheartedness with the unkind talk. And why? Because criticism is her perverse way of inflating her own ego. Probably started way back when.

Next time she talks to you, try this kind of comment: "Well, isn't it wonderful that we are so perfect we can see these faults in others!" — said with a laugh, and seeming to share the habit. Or, "Well, now that we are finished pulling her apart, what else do you hear?" — and another laugh.

Since her own feelings of inferiority are showing, add to this treatment some praise for her good points. See if you can't make a dint.

DEAR DORIS — Could I get your opinion on the subject of electrolysis? It is very expensive if the hair grows in again.— WAITRESS.

DEAR WAITRESS — Some hairs do grow in again. Yet percentage of success is high enough that when the growth is heavy this means should be considered. But only at the hands of a skilled operator.

more automobile and other manufacturing in Canada.

In the Canadian view, it was questioned whether Canada ever would be able to solve its balance of payments and unemployment problems without establishing a bigger industrial base.

Canada found, for example, that a policy of encouraging more home production of automatic transmissions and engine paid off not only with a reduction in import but also in an expansion of exports to the U.S.

The Americans were told at the closed-door conference that the average annual Canadian deficit in transactions with the U.S. amounted to $1,450,000,000 during the 1958-61 period and there was no indication of much change in 1962.

The American group tried to persuade the Canadians that this cross-border deficit could not be considered by itself but had to be related to Canada's world transactions. They maintained that on the whole Canada had a surplus in her international payments account while the U.S. had a deficit. What the Americans did not emphasize was that the small over-all Canadian surplus was achieved through heavy movements into Canada of American capital which resulted in many cases in an expansion of American control over Canadian industry.

ARE CONGENIAL

The two groups showed more congeniality in other fields. They agreed to set up two working committees, one to study better use of energy resources —such as oil and natural gas— from a continental viewpoint and the other to make a thorough examination of the two countries' international payments problems.

More significant, it appeared, was the agreement to work on a new set of economic principles. Participants said this was not to be construed as indicating the two countries would embark on a North American Common Market or similar structure. But there was a view on the American side that the problems of the two countries required special tailor - made, custom - built solutions and it was with this in mind that the reassessment should be undertaken.

The American touched on the need for increased foreign aid and the Canadians said Martin would soon unveil a new three-year aid program to benefit Commonwealth countries in Asia, Africa and the Caribbean and non - Commonwealth countries in Africa and Southeast Asia.

The participants touched on the Cuban issue. The Americans said they raised no objection to Canadian wheat shipments to Cuba but there was an exchange of views on how the two countries could best co-operate in containing communism in the Caribbean.

8 Unions

Marcel Chaput, president of the Quebec Republican Party, and heads of the CLC and the AFL-CIO?

"If so, they have lost all contact with reality.

"The SIU would never submit voluntarily to any really effective housecleaning. As for the AFL-CIO's executive officers, their attitude thus far has been tantamount to condoning the SIU's behavior."

The necessary trusteeship powers could only be granted through government legislation.

The statement said government interference is distasteful to the brotherhood—one of the unions it would be involved. But it added:

"There is no alternative that would not leave Canadian seamen helpless captives of an in dustry-wide company union run by racketeers."

The statement also disclosed, for the first time, that the CLC had played a role in the brotherhood's action last year in blocking shipping on the St. Lawrence Seaway.

It said that after the government ignored repeated CLC requests last year for an inquiry into Great Lakes labor violence, the brotherhood took action "at the request of the congress" to precipitate government intervention.

The brotherhood had acted "as the instrument of the entire Canadian labor movement."

Guy Fouliot, head of another separatist movement, Le Rassemblement pour l'Independence Nationale.

Youths waving separatist and FLQ flags from nearby apartment windows jeered about 300 policemen on hand and some of the demonstrators threw stones, hitting the constables.

Of the 19 arrested, all but one found with a rapier in his possession, are free on bail.

OUTLINE COMPLAINTS

The separatist groups, working in unison for the second time in a day, said they were demonstrating against: Management of the concert hall by a private corporation; hiring of Silas Edman, a U.S. citizen, as its manager and failure of the Montreal Union des Artistes (CLC) to obtain jurisdiction over performers at the centre.

The Artistes agreed to a six-month truce in its dispute with Actors' Equity (AFL-CIO) after the provincial government intervened in the dispute, a respite which allowed a substitute opening program to go on as scheduled.

Le Rassemblement Sunday night issued a statement protesting what it called "provocation" by Montreal police and said this ended "what was going to be a peaceful demonstration."

CARRIERS WILL STAY

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Federated Association of Letter Carriers rejected two disaffiliation motions Saturday and decided to remain as members of both the Canadian Labor Congress and the Civil Service Federation. Jack Cooper of Edmonton was elected president.

The seaway blockage had forced the government to appoint the commission of inquiry under Mr. Justice T. G. Norris.

WINNIPEG (CP) — President Claude Jodoin of the Canadian Labor Congress has shipped a major union merger convention here to fly back east for high-level efforts to resolve the Great Lakes labor dispute without government intervention.

Mr. Jodoin flew to Ottawa Sunday amid growing indications that he will participate in a merger banquet of the new union.

aimed at restoring law and order to the Great Lakes waterfront through trade union means.

Mr. Jodoin left Winnipeg as delegates began gathering for a convention that will merge the National Union of Public Service Employees and the National Union of Public Employees into the body—the 80,000 - member Canadian Union of Public Employees.

The CLC president bowed out of making a speech Tuesday to a merger banquet of the new union.

INDIANS in full Mohawk dress added colorful dash to the Mohawk Fair. Above are four prize winners in a costume contest — Andrew Maracle, Ross Maracle, Elwood D. Brant, John A. Brant. Contest was a highlight of the day.

YOUNG DANCER who got biggest hand of the afternoon was Jackie Cook of Belleville. Dance act was highlight of grandstand show at the Mohawk Fair.

Richard Burton and Liz Taylor May Get Quickie Mexico Divorces

CP from AP-Reuters

MEXICO CITY — An angry Richard Burton arrived with Elizabeth Taylor in this land of easy divorces Sunday night, denying he had said they would wed as soon as legally possible.

Actor Burton will make a movie in Mexico and Miss Taylor will just watch. She hasn't a role.

There was speculation they were going to take advantage of the trip to get quickie Mexican divorces. This speculation was stirred further when the pair were quoted as saying in Toronto they hoped to clear up legal difficulties and marry as soon as possible.

"I made no such statement," Burton snapped when reporters asked him about it.

"He is so mad now you couldn't get him to say anything," an aide to Burton said.

LOOKED TIRED

Miss Taylor would say nothing. She looked tired and irritable after the flight from London via Toronto and Montreal.

Consequently, reporters did not learn whether she had anything to say about a statement attributed to her in Toronto.

"I'm even learning to cook and I'm doing an awful lot of knitting," she was quoted as saying.

As they drove away from the airport here, Miss Taylor's face looked strained. Then she covered her face with her white-gloved hands.

Miss Taylor is wed to singer Eddie Fisher, Burton to former actress Sybil Williams.

Reporters who met them in Montreal asked them whether they planned to get divorces in Mexico.

"I wouldn't tell you if I knew," said Miss Taylor.

"Who knows? I don't," said Burton.

Nearly 100 reporters fired questions at the two stars after they flew here Sunday night. A wild airport scene saw 1,500 screaming, jostling fans greet Cleopatra and her Marc Antony.

MOBBED BY FANS

Accompanied by Miss Taylor's daughter, Lisa, child of late showman Mike Todd, the stars arrived in Montreal travelling under the names of Mr. and Mrs. Hyman and child. But Liz was recognized anyway, was mobbed by dozens of Canadian fans and became separated from Burton.

In Mexico City, Burton seemed irritated by newspaper men firing questions at himself and Liz as they walked from their plane to the immigration office.

Miss Taylor, wearing a white topcoat over a black dress, seemed upset by the crowd and reporters. She took a pill while in the immigration office.

"What's that? This is horrible," Miss Taylor said as they tried to get through the crowd. Lisa looked frightened and clung to her mother.

Police had to force the crowd aside to open a lane for the stars and the child to their limousine, which took them from the airport to their Mexico City hotel.

THREE-MONTH STAY

Burton planned to be in Mexico three months working on the movie version of the Tennessee Williams play Night of the Iguana.

Burton and Miss Taylor said earlier that reporters who met them at the plane in Montreal were among the rudest and most foul - mouthed they had ever encountered.

"They were as bad as the ones in Rome," Burton said.

Between the jet aircraft and a waiting airline limousine, Liz got lost in a crowd of newsmen, photographers and movie fans.

While Mr. Burton escorted her daughter Lisa into the car, Miss Taylor, looking windswept, worried and quite unlike Cleopatra, wandered about trying to find her way.

"Where am I supposed to . . . I'm looking for my daughter," said the bewildered movie queen.

Airline officials came to the rescue by escorting Miss Taylor through the mob and into the limousine.

Mohawk Fair at Council House Features Parade, Varied Program Enjoyed by Large Turnout

The Tyendinaga Mohawks put on their carnival colors Saturday for another annual fall fair whoop-up.

In its 63rd year, the Mohawk Agricultural Exhibition, while still a fledgling on the social calendar of the ancient band, now is the most important community event on the reserve. So much so, it draws a heavy measure of visitors from the surrounding area. They return year after year with relatives of the Mohawks from as far away as northern New York State, for the big day.

Saturday, the crowds had returned as thickly as ever for a show that went with even more snap than previous years. The secret of its attraction is no open one.

While it matches all other small Ontario fairs for country flavor, the Mohawk event has an even more robust sense for fun and relaxation. Even the best-laid plans for the best events can go wrong.

A spectacular flat horse race, with five youthful jockeys up took off with the dash of a Queen's Plate event. Then two ponies suddenly mortified their riders by taking the wrong course and continued to plow steadily through trees and long grass. Another, leading the field by a good 100 lengths refused to take a turn and blithely raced down its own home stretch — straight for the agricultural exhibits building in turn, the other horses attempted to follow suit. It ended in fine style, though what had started as a simple flat race developed into a handicap canter that would have put the Grand National in the shade.

CLAD IN COSTUME

Neither are the Mohawks any different when it comes to being pretentious about their own traditions. Among the most razed figures on the grounds were the band members clad in full tribal regalia for a costume contest.

So much so the master of ceremonies had to warn the crowd he didn't "want any comments from the nickle seats," as the entrants, hung with buckskin, beads and war bonnets, paraded onstage.

"Where did the costumes come from?" shouted a spectator.

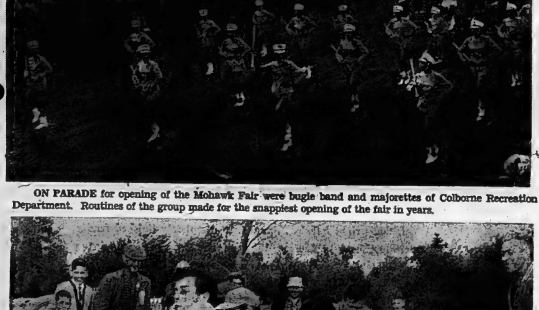
"They're all good deer-hunters," retorted the emcee. One of the contestants was meticulously clad down to the last tribal detail, save for startling black oxfords — a fact that was seized on by another young Mohawk wisenheimer.

"Where did your mocassins go?" he shouted.

"They pinch his feet," came the anonymous crack from the crowd.

However, when the moment of truth arrived with the winners announced, rounds of appreciative applause were handed all the contestants. There was no taking from the dazzling effect of the traditional dress on display. In all of them the total effect wrought as impression of vigorous color and sheer craftsmanship.

VARIED PROGRAM



However, the dash and color was not confined to the stage. So much was going on at once that announcer Lorne Urch, trying to keep track of all events, described it as a three-ring circus.

In one-corner a team from the reserve played softball against the Doyles, of Belleville. Pony races were being run on the track and entertainment on the stage. All over the grounds, visitors viewed cattle, poultry, sheep and swine, on display with produce that ranged from mangel wurtzels to Johnny cake.

All this was introduced to the crowds by the snappiest opening the fair ever had — a half-hour of parading by the majorettes and trumpet band trained by the Colborne Recreation department. Increasing ly familiar to the Quinte district, the group as a combination is among the slickest in the province and gave spectators their money's worth.

On stage, song and dance routines were staged by the Gail Chapman dance studio of Belleville. Among the personal hits of the afternoon was young Jackie Cook, who has piled up as much polish in performance with the studio as a seasoned trouper.

The roster of events for the afternoon was highlighted by a tug-of-war, between the ball teams. (Incidentally, the softball game was won 6-2 by the reserve).

ON PARADE for opening of the Mohawk Fair were bugle band and majorettes of Colborne Recreation Department. Routines of the group made for the snappiest opening of the fair in years.

GRUNT 'N' GROAN finale to special events at the Mohawk Fair came with this tug-o'-war contest between Belleville team (above) and Mohawks. Reserve team won by a groan.

MEXICO BOUND — Elizabeth Taylor travelling with Richard Burton as "Mr. and Mrs. Hayman," chatted with reporters in Montreal between flights on a trip to Mexico City from London. Also along was Lisa Todd, Elizabeth's daughter. (CP Wirephoto)

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

It seems to me there are many Yankee fans in this town, than an old Flatbush beer guzzler could shake a stick at.

Just mention—even in your sleep—that you have a secret yen for the Dodgers, or any National League club for that matter, and you're the target for the taunt and innuendo.

I happened to mention once, as an opinion, that I thought Sandy Koufax, the Dodger ace, was one of the best lefthanded flingers around and that included pitchers by the name of Whitey Ford. A Yankee buff immediately inquired if "Koufax" was the name of a laxative.

The world series fever has struck this strange breed. In the seven years the only anti-Yankee sympathizer I have is city editor Claude Tice. The other day he offered to give five-to-one on the Dodgers. There was a strange silence. Nobody covered or spoke even after he laid the nickel on the desk.

The other night in Memorial Arena after the grunt and groan antics had wound up the season I asked that announcer-deluxe Don Dolan, the name of one of the pachyderms. It happened to be Jack Terry, but dreamy-eyed Donald, steeped in Yankee lore, murmured "Bill Terry."

I asked Morley Ward the price of one of his pint-sized puddle-jumpers. He had a faraway look in his eyes when he answered "$10,000."

This drew a shocked "What?" Morley quickly recovered, figured himself and explained the $10,000 would be the Yankee share of the world series loot.

Pat O'Meara, a "Hawk Eye" in the winter and a Yankee private orb in the baseball season, goes around counting on his fingers. He stops at four then goes on to five. When asked if he was figuring income tax Pat grinned and said, "I'm not sure if the Yankees will take it in four straight or allow it to go to five."

Our man Gary Alexander wrote a story the other day about a trophy room of some eye-athlete. He used the word "mantel" two or three times but spelled it "Mantle."

And so it goes. These Yankee buffs are a cocksure gaggle of Gotham fanatics. They seem to think that nothing short of a miracle or nine broken legs can rob their beloved Bronx Bombers of their fifth world flag in a row.

They apparently take comfort in the fact that the odds are four to one that a runaway winner in its own league meeting on appeared in the world series that has had a tough way to go will keep on running away with the honors.

The advantage of going into the Big Event well rested apparently overcomes the disadvantage of any physical or psychological letdown that might set in during the long interlude between an early pennant clinching and the series opener.

The inherent strength of a team able to win almost as it wills in its own circuit usually is more than sufficient to stand off the momentum of an inspired challenger that has just come through a gruelling down-to-the-wire dogfight in its league.

That's the way the record read.

But records are made to be broken. Perhaps, the Dodgers boast the best pitching staff they've had in years and as Cardinal manager Johnny Keane says "good pitching can always beat good hitting."

I know. I know. The Yankee comeback is the youngsters behind the oldsters on the Yankee mound corps. The question is will they stand up under their baptism of world series fire?

WEIGHT HITS SKULL

SANDUSKY, Ohio (AP) — A four-inch-long wheel weight flew off an unidentified race car at Sandusky Speedway Sunday and was imbedded in the skull of 16-year-old James Holmer, a grandstand spectator. Holmer, from Willard, was listed in critical condition at a hospital here. An Erie County sheriff's deputy said the metal just flew off the wheel. There was no accident on the track.

Dodger Rush Halted But Cards Lose

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Strong pitching has been Los Angeles Dodgers' big weapon all season. But it was strong pitching from the other direction that kept the Dodgers from putting the official clincher on the National League pennant Sunday.

Pittsburgh's Bob Veale and Elroy Face held the Dodgers away from the elusive flag with a two-man three-hit effort in the Pirates' 4-0 victory.

The Dodgers loaded the bases with one out in the bottom of the ninth inning with hot-hitting Tommy Davis and Frank Howard coming up. But Face got both on pop ups, ending the Dodgers string of five triumphs.

Cincinnati Reds had paved the way for the Dodgers by dealing St. Louis' slumping Cardinals their fifth straight loss, 5-3, and reducing the magic number to one. It's still one—meaning the Dodger victory or another Card loss before the flag flies at Chavez Ravine. Actually, the pennant could go to the Dodgers before they swing another bat. The Cards, 5½ games behind with five to go, next play at Chicago Tuesday afternoon and the Dodgers don't resume action until Tuesday night when they open a three-game set with the Mets.

SWAMP THE METS

While the Dodgers and Cards were bowing, San Francisco Giants swamped the Mets 9-4. Willie McCovey paced the romp with three consecutive homers, taking over the NL lead at 43, and driving home five runs.

Also in the NL—Chicago Cubs pushed across six runs in the first three innings and went on to a 7-3 decision over Milwaukee Braves; and Joe Morgan's run-producing single delivered the winner as Houston Colts scored twice in the last of the ninth and edged Philadelphia Phillies 2-1.

New York Yankees, with the American League title safely stashed away as usual, sharpened their rusty pitching hatchet, Al Downing, for a World Series start in a 4-3 squeaker over Kansas City. Joe Pepitone struck the big blow for the Yanks, a two-run homer in the sixth inning, after they had touched loser Dave Wickersham for four unearned runs in the fifth.

Downing, 12-4 since being promoted from the minors in June, spaced nine hits, did not walk a man and struck out six in his 10th complete game.

Minnesota Twins belted three more home runs and Camilio Pascual became a 20-game winner for the second year in a row in a 6-1 victory over Boston Red Sox. Herman Killebrew's 40th homer, Jimmie Hall's 33rd and George Banks' third pushed Minnesota's season total to 224—second highest in big league history. The Yanks' 240 in 1961 is the record.

SOX EDGE TIGERS

In other AL action—homers by Ron Hansen and Floyd Robinson carried Chicago White Sox over Detroit Tigers 2-1; Cleveland Indians swept Los Angeles Angels, winning the opener 5-3 and taking the second game 2-1 in 11 innings on Pedro Ramos' six-hit pitching and John Ramano's decisive pinch single, and Washington Senators gained a split with Baltimore, gaining a 4-3 victory in the second game after losing to the Orioles 6-2.

In Saturday's AL action Minnesota took the first game 13-4 from Boston but lost the second 11-3. Los Angeles downed Cleveland 4-2, Kansas City defeated New York 5-4, Chicago lost 4-3 to Detroit; and the Washington at Baltimore game was postponed by rain.

In the NL, Milwaukee blanked Chicago 4-0, Philadelphia edged Houston 4-3, New York shaded San Francisco 5-4 and Pittsburgh lost to Los Angeles 5-3.

Veale checked the Dodgers on two singles Sunday and was helped by four double plays before weakening in the ninth at Los Angeles. After one - out walks to Lee Walls and Maury Wills, he was replaced by Face. Jim Gilliam kept the rally alive with a bunt single that loaded the bases, but the Dodger reliever then disposed of Davis and Howard—and the threat.

HOMERS LEAD

Singles by Donn Clendenon in the first and Bill Virdon in the sixth knocked in Pittsburgh runs against loser Johnny Podres, and the Pirates finished up with a pair of unearned runs off Bob Miller in the ninth.

Lefty Joe Nuxhall cooled off the Cards with only six hits and struck out 10, while an error by Julian Javier in the third inning led to three unearned runs. Vada Pinson knocked in two with his 200th hit, a triple off loser Curt Simmons. Frank Robinson, out since Sept. 7 because of a spike injury to his arm, returned to action in the eighth as a pinch hitter and doubled in Cincinnati's final two runs.

McCovey homered his first three times up against the Mets, was hit by a pitch on his next appearance, and finally grounded out on his last trip. Willie Mays joined in the Giants' 15-hit attack with a homer, his 37th.

Rookie Sam Bowens got four hits in the Orioles' victory, stretching his two-game streak to seven straight hits, and batted in three runs. The Senators won the second game with three runs in the eighth, thus beating Baltimore for only the third time in their 18 meetings this year.

HITS FOUR HOMERS

In the highlight of Saturday's major league games, Harmon Killebrew of Minnesota hit four home runs in a doubleheader in Boston and took over the major league lead with 44 homers. The killer tied an American League record of most home runs in a doubleheader.

Killebrew hit three in the Twins' 13-4 first - game romp over Boston, catching and pasting Boston's Dick Stuart who slammed No. 43. The Twins' slugger connected for No. 44 in the second game, won by the Red Sox 11-3.

Hamilton Pitcher Beaten 2-1 By Jones Boys

Tosses No-Hitter, Loses Game

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

Mike Buist, a Hamilton juvenile baseball pitcher hurled a no-hitter here Saturday—and lost the game.

His team, the Hamilton D.B.S., dropped a close 2-1 decision to the Belleville Jones in the second and deciding game of the OBA Juvenile A Major semi-finals series.

The "Jones Boys" won the first game 6-0 and met Chatham yesterday afternoon in the first game for the Ontario championship.

PASSED BALLS

Sporadic wildness plus perhaps a little weakness in the catching department cost Buist the decision.

Both Belleville runs were scored on passed balls with runners on third base. The Hamilton battery had four passed balls in all and all of them costly.

One of Belleville's three errors paved the way for the Hamilton run. A two-base throwing miscue by a Jones Boys infielder with none out and two subsequent put-outs at plate.

Buist, a tall righthander deserved a better fate. He had the Belleville batters eating out of his hands and only one long fly went out of the infield. He struck out six and walked five but his momentary lapses in control cost him the ball game.

David Lewis, Jones fine southpaw, was in control all the way. He allowed but four hits, two of them in the eighth, whiffed eleven and walked but one Hamilton batter.

It was a brilliant mound duel between the two fine young hurlers.

Belleville scored its first run in the second when lead off batter Gary McMillan walked, was sacrificed to second, took third on a putout and scored on the first Hamilton passed ball.

The second run came in the fourth when Buist hit Bill Barbarotsch who took second on the pitcher's second passed ball, went to third on a putout and scored on the third Hamilton passed ball.

Hamilton scored in the third when a throwing error put Buist on second base. He scored on infield outs by Crechiola and Tamborine.

Hamilton almost tied the ball game in the eighth when a walk and a double put Hamilton runners on bases. Cunningham the third batter beat the throw to the bag and started for second.

The Belleville infield saw him trapped and made the play when Corning on third sped to the plate. The defensive play switched and Corning was tagged out in the rundown.

The only other Belleville threat came in the seventh when Dave Lewis was hit by pitcher and went to third on a stolen base and passed ball with none out. Larry Lewis whiffed and Goodfellow dribbled the ball to the infield. A brilliant double play, pitcher to first to the plate, nipped the threat.

Ralph Corning with two doubles, Romanowski and Cunningham with singles provided the only hits of the game.

The teams:

HAMILTON	—	Hilson, Fasio, Corning, Romanowski, Cunningham, Agostinelli, Buist, Crechiola, Duffy, Tamborine.
BELLEVILLE	—	Gardiner, Boomhower, Barberstock, Moore, McMillan, Dave Lewis, Larry Lewis, Goodfellow, Rathwell.
The score:
Hamilton	001	000	000	—	1
Belleville	000	200	000	—	2
Umpires	—	Kelleher (P), Tobworth, Barton.

Stamps Crush Argos, Cats Whip Lions

—Brawl In Toronto

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The cheers of Eastern Football Conference followers swelled with pride this weekend—but not loud enough to stop any suspenders.

The glee that followed Hamilton Tiger-Cats' 38-21 win over British Columbia Lions Saturday night lasted less than 24 hours — until Calgary Stampeders Sunday afternoon whooped Toronto Argonauts 50-0.

The Ticats, in an interlocking game that matched the Eastern and Western Conference leaders, struck a blow for the East before a howling mob of 28,563 at Hamilton's Civic Stadium. The Lions had lost only once in eight previous games.

But the Argos, before a booing crowd of 31,214 fans in Toronto's Exhibition Stadium, watched the Stamps offer further proof that the WFC has most of the classy football players.

In 11 interlocking games this season, the West has won eight. EIGHT FIVE

The only excitement in the Toronto game was a brawl. Five players were ejected from the rousing contest, and each faces an automatic $50 fine.

Jim Dillard led the Calgary slaughter with four touchdowns as the Stamps moved to within one point of the Lions in the WFC standings. Toronto, with a 2-6 record, is firmly embedded in the EFC cellar. The Ticats—now 4-4—hold a two-point edge over second-place Ottawa Rough Riders in the East.

The Lions play at Ottawa tonight and the Stamps meet the Alouettes at Montreal Tuesday night.

In addition to Dillard's outburst, Calgary got two touchdowns from Bobby Taylor and one from Lovell Coleman, Larry Robinson kicked six converts and Tom Furlong booted two singles.

Hamilton's scoring ace was fullback Bobby Kuntz with three touchdowns. Newcomer Jim Pace, a late cut from New York Giants of the National League, was impressive and scored one touchdown as did Garney Henley. Dave Viti kicked four converts and a 20-yard field goal. Joe Zuger completed the scoring with a single.

Quarterback Joe Kapp of the Lions tossed three touchdown passes, two to speedy Willie Fleming—one a 106-yard pass-and-run play—and one to Gerry James. Quarterback Peter Kempf kicked the three converts.

BANISH TWO

Don Luzzi of the Stamps and Toronto's Butch Laroue were sent to the sidelines by referee Seymour Wilson after trading elbows in a third-quarter skirmish. But fireworks on a larger scale broke out with two minutes remaining in the game.

Toronto's Ron Brewer went after Coleman with his fists and both benches emptied. Players milled wildly, throwing punches and blocks deep in the Toronto zone. Brewer and two Calgary linemen, Conrad Hilsher and Ed Buchanan, were tossed out.

Statistics best describe the rout. Eagle Day directed the attack for 50 minutes then gave way to Jerry Keeling. They gained 31 first downs compared to only 10 by Toronto. And they connected on 22 of 32 passes to help pile up a total yardage of 498 yards—316 rushing and 182 in the air.

The Toronto quarterbacks—Sandy Stephens and Don Fuell, who took over late in the game—spent most of the afternoon on the seats of their pants. The tenacious Calgary defence, especially guard Ernie Danjean, stampeded every time Argos snapped the ball.

FOR FIRST TIME

It was 44-0 going into the fourth quarter and Argos protested the Calgary score for the first time on the third play in the final quarter.

To make matters worse, Toronto lost linebacker Jerry Wilson in the first half with torn ligaments.

Dillard, Coleman and Buchanan did the most running damage. Dillard picked up 102 yards on 12 carries, Coleman 63 on 16 and Buchanan 48 on seven.

The Lions threw it away early when two costly fumbles and atrocious tackling on a punt return play turned into a 20-0 lead by the Tabbies.

Neal Beaumont fumbled a kick, recovered by Gene Ceppetelli of the Ticats, and it cost a touchdown. Henley then took a R.C. point and romped, unmolested, 55 yards to the Lions' three-yard line. Another touchdown, Fleming bobbled the ball on his own 42 and Hamilton's Angelo Mosca pounced on the ball. Touchdown No. 3.

Defeat Kenmors 8-6

Brockville Evens Series 3-3

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

BROCKVILLE — Belleville Kenmors found a new losing pattern here Saturday afternoon and used it to move one step closer to elimination in the OBA Senior playdowns.

The Kenmors jumped into a 6-0 lead in the second inning then watched helplessly while Brockville Beavers pounded out an 8-6 victory.

Brockville's triumph tied the four-of-seven semi-finals three games apiece. Belleville led the set 3-0 just over a week ago.

The deciding game of this series will be played this Saturday afternoon, at the Belleville Fairgrounds, at 2:00 p.m.

Brockville unleashed a torrid attack on Kenmor pitcher Larry Soden to score four runs in each of the fourth and fifth innings here Saturday. Loose and lifeless play by the Kenmor club failed to help the cause.

The losers pounced on Beaver starter Don Soldier for their half dozen runs in the second inning the game looked to be all but over. Apparently the Kenmors thought so too.

Follwell opened the inning with a single and a error on Brulle's sacrifice bunt put two on. Weston fanned but Clarke beat out an infield hit to load the sacks. Carr hit a double play ball but one run scored when the ball was thrown past first base. Kenmors took advantage of the break. Hunter singled home a second run. Asselstine walking. Elliott doubled in a pair and Soden driving in two more with a single.

Beavers found their batting eye with one out in the fourth. Miller, Pearce and Dexter lined hard singles for one run and Coughlin smashed a three-run homer to make it 6-4.

Soden walked the first two in the fifth and Miller's infield hit loaded the bases. An error on a possible double play ball scored one. Dexter and Coughlin each singled in another and another error made it 8-4.

Rod Spicer took over the Brockville pitching chore to open the third frame and blanked Kenmors on three hits over the remainder. He fanned two, walked two and got excellent support. Starter Soiden got even up six hits while fanning one and walking one.

Soden was left in all the way for Belleville, tagged for ten hits. He struck out eight and walked three.

Jack Coughlin, with his home-run and single, sparked the winners. Keith Miller and Dan Dexter each singled twice, Rod Spicer, Don Soldier, Brian McBride and Art Pearce once each.

Pat Asselstine and Larry Soden each poked a double and single for the Kenmors while Moe Hunter singled twice. Jack Elliott doubled with Glen Clarke and Duffy Follwell getting singles.

In the other half of the semi-finals, Galt and Campbellville are tied 1-1 in a 3-of-5 series. Galt won 1-0 at home Saturday and Campbellville scored a 9-6 win at home yesterday. The deciding game of the series is also scheduled for next Saturday and the Ontario finals may start on Sunday.

Defeats Woods-Horlock At Home

Galt Takes Opener 10-1

Belleville Woods - Horlock finally scored a run against the strong Galt Sires Lumber team in OASA Juvenile "A" playdowns on Saturday, but it didn't do the club much good.

Galt won the opening game of their Ontario semi-final series, in Galt, by a 10-1 count.

Second game in the two-of-three series will be played back here next weekend.

Galt had little trouble against the shorthanded Quinte squad, building a 10-0 lead before the losers got their run in the ninth inning. It was the first run scored against the Galt team in seven playdown games.

Galt plated five runs in the first two innings without the aid of a base hit. Belleville committed seven errors in all, many of them throwing errors in the early frames.

"Kit" Kitzoran pitched the Galt victory, allowing three hits off his assortment of slow pitches. He struck out 13 batters and walked one.

Bob Ethier was the starter and loser, giving way to Don Holway in the sixth. They gave up eight hits, struck out seven and passed three.

Woods - Horlock's lone run came on back-to-back doubles by Bob Ethier and Bob Boyle. The only other Belleville hit was a single by catcher Gene Yorke.

Kitzoran sparked his own attack for the winners, collecting a double and two singles. Faz had a double and single with other base hits going to Hubbard, Currie and Doerfling. A large crowd, said to be around 400, attended the game.

King of the Hill

Ron Saylor captured the "King of the Hill" title from Joe DeGenova with a hot string at the Bowl O Drome on Saturday.

Saylor topped all competitors in the qualifying round with a five-game total of 1414 (362-339-241-290-382) then disposed of DeGenova 868 to 749. Saylor had games of 320, 253 and 290, compared to the losers' 333, 156, and 258.

Wes Andrews was second in the early play with 1187 followed by Ron Elliott with 1104.

No one collected on the eight-strike pot, Saylor coming nearest with four in a row.

'Jones Boys' Defeat Chatham

By GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Sportswriter)

Bobby Boyle cracked a two-run single in the bottom of the eighth inning here yesterday afternoon and provided Jones Motors with the winning runs in a 3-1 victory over Chatham Knights of Columbus.

The game was the first in a 2-of-3 OBA all-Ontario Juvenile "A" championship finals series. Second game of the set is in Chatham next Sunday afternoon.

The Chatham club, 1962 champions, outhit the homesters from start to finish but Bob Moon's pitching and key hits in the right spots told the story.

The teams split a pair of runs in the second frame and it stayed 1-1 until the eighth.

Ethier's liner to third got through Lahey for an error to give Belleville a break and the Jones boys made the most of it. Boomhower hit into a force play for the first out but Moon Millan lashed a double past first base, sending the lead man to third. Boyle then delivered his game-winning hit, a single to right field, that drove in both runners.

Chatham's run came when Wakabayashi singled, stole second, went to third on Cragg's hard infield single and scored on a wild pitch.

Belleville tied it quickly. Boyle led off with a walk and Moon lined a solid triple to right field. Moon was caught in a run down minutes later when Barberstock bounced back to the pitcher.

Bill Barberstock, the big Belleville righthander, scattered eight hits, pitching himself out of several tight spots, to earn the victory. He struck out 12 and walked one.

Herb Wakabayashi toiled well in defeat, touched for five hits. He struck out five and walked two.

Bob Moon's triple, Gary McMillan's double, singles by Boyle and Sid Goodfellow and a two-bagger by Carl Boomhower looked after the Jones boys hits.

Smooth-fielding shortstop Eddie Wright, Keith Chandler and George Van Slyck had two singles apiece for Chatham, Wakabayashi and Mike Cragg each getting one.

Moon's pitch-out play that caught Wakabayashi trying for his third stolen base and Barberstock's fine pitching with two out and one out on two occasions were key plays in the Belleville victory.

Lions Meet Ottawa Tonight

Sasky Riders Edge Eskimos 8-7

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Western Football Conference fans who doubt times have changed need only look at conditions surrounding tonight's Edmonton Eskimos - Winnipeg Blue Bombers tilt in Winnipeg.

For years the two teams have met in crucial battles for the league lead. But tonight both need a victory to stay in the race for third and last playoff spot.

Bombers, with four victories and nine starts, trail third place Saskatchewan Roughriders by three points. Eskimos, who have won only two of eight games, are four points back of Bombers.

British Columbia Lions meet Ottawa Rough Riders at Ottawa tonight. Lions, leaders in the WFC with 14 points, hold a one-point margin over Calgary Stampeders and two over Saskatchewan.

Hamilton Tiger-Cats whipped the Lions 28-21 at Hamilton and Saskatchewan edged Edmonton 8-7 in Regina Saturday. Calgary crushed Toronto Argos auto 50-0 in Toronto Sunday.

TURN THE TIDE

At Regina, halfback Ray Purdin and quarterback Ron Lancaster sparked a late 100-yard touchdown march that turned the tide for the ragged Roughriders before 15,000 fans.

Halfback Dale West caught the touchdown pass to complete the drive then came back to intercept a long, desperation pass by Amedee seconds later to kill Eskimos' last hope to tie the game. Reg Whitehouse converted the touchdown and Martin Fabi kicked a single to complete the Saskatchewan scoring.

Eskimos failed to score a touchdown. A1 A their points came on two field goals and a single by guard Bill Mitchell.

Eskimos led throughout until Dale West's touchdown with 11½ minutes left to play. They held a 4-0 margin at the end of the first quarter. The second was scoreless and Fabi kicked his single in the third. Mitchell's second field goal came on the first play of the final quarter.

For the fifth consecutive game Roughriders' solid defensive unit stopped their opposition from scoring a touchdown.

The Riders gained 144 yards on 12 completed passes in 28 attempts and added another 122 yards rushing. Riders had 19 first downs. Eskimos gained 151 first downs on 151 yards rushing and only four yards passing as Amadee clicked on one of nine pass attempts.

FIRE KILLS FOUR

LONDON (AP) — Fire swept through the five-storey Queensway Hotel Sunday, killing four women and injuring a number of others among the 150 guests. One of the women died of injuries when she jumped from a window.

N.H.L. Exhibitions

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Three-goal splurges led Toronto Maple Leafs, Montreal Canadiens and Detroit Red Wings to victory Sunday as National Hockey League teams continued along the exhibition game campaign.

The Leafs scored three in the second period to break open a close game and went on to defeat Quebec Aces of the American Hockey League, 7-4.

Eddie Litzenberger, Eddie Shack, Frank Mahovlich, George Armstrong, Dave Keon, Bob Pulford and Kent Douglas divided the scoring for the Leafs.

LEADS MONTREAL

Rookie John Ferguson led the Montreal Canadiens with two goals, while Bill Hicks, Jean Claude Tremblay and Ralph Backstrom each added single goals.

Marcel Pronovost and Ed Ehrenverth scored second-period goals for Baltimore to tie the score. Hamilton, Ont., Detroit built up a 3-0 lead and hung on for a 4-2 victory over Chicago Black Hawks.

Eddie Joyal, Gordie Howe and Alex Delvecchio scored the goals for Detroit Red Wings and Norm Ullman scored the clincher into an empty net in the game's final second.

Chicago goals were scored by Bobby Hull and Stan Mikita.

SCORES TYING GOAL

Saturday night in St. Catharines, Ont., the Black Hawks scored twice in the third period to pull out a 3-3 tie with Detroit. Reg Fleming scored the tying goal with less than five minutes to play.

Other Chicago scorers were Murray Balfour and John McKenzie. Parker MacDonald of Sydney, N.S., scored twice for Detroit and Gordie Howe scored the final goal.

In Brandon, Man., Saturday night New York Rangers had two goals from veterans Andy Bathgate and Camille Henry and sophomore Rod Gilbert and rolled to a 10-4 verdict over St. Paul Rangers of the new Central Professional League.

Don McKenney, Phil Goyette, Dent Marshall and Jim Neilson each scored a single goal for New York. Ted Taylor netted two for St. Paul, with Don Johns and Jean Ratelle adding singles.

In another game Saturday, Montreal played to a no-decision tie with Hershey Bears of the AHL in Hershey.

Country Club Golf Chatter

Playing under ideal course and weather conditions over 100 Juniors and senior golfers played their first tournament at the country club on Sunday.

Bob Cochcheon with Betty Ingram won the low gross award for the girls while Gary Pugh partnered dad Ernie Pugh to win the boys low net honors.

Val Smith with daughter Rabbi won the low net for the girls with David Henderson with dad Norman took the boys low net award.

The youngsters displayed plenty of enthusiasm both on the course and the subsequent luncheon. It was so successful, officials said, that the event could well become an annual affair.

The men's closing day followed by the annual dinner-dance is slated for Saturday and members are urged that the starting time for the draw is tomorrow, Tuesday.

Tournament officials said today that preferred starting times will be given those members who have entered by the time the draw is being made.

Post entries will be accepted but those players will have to accept times allotted them by the starter at the first tee.

The draw will be published Thursday.

It's Time To Make A Decision For Ontario

ROY SILLS

WHY does scandal, hints of corruption, conflict of interest continually erupt at this top level of government. Despite assurances every-thing is normal, we have the spectacle of a government behaving thus. Think of the number of alarms turned in since the last election began. ?

WHY are our citizens still living under a creaking system of legislation, if this government is as new as it claims — a system that still unfairly places the burden of welfare and education costs on the local taxpayer while both systems fail to match up to the demands of modern society. ?

WHY is economic expansion in this province still mainly confined to an already overgrown metropolis while such ridings as EAST HASTINGS wither for want of attention to their farmers and labor force. ?

- This is the result of a government in power so long it has lost touch with the grassroots.
- Local representation has come to mean passive membership in a legislative club that seeks safety in numbers.

THE TIME ALSO NEEDS YOUR DECISION ON THESE LIBERAL PROPOSALS:

Pensions — firm support of pay-as-you-go Liberal plan

Sales Tax — abolition on all purchases under $25.00

Local Development — end 20 years neglect of by-passed areas.

Farming — preservation of family farm life; abolition of tax for agriculture purposes.

Medicare — end cost uncertainties of family illness.

It's Time to Meet the Challenge of Change!

Rosewall, who took this title and the $2,800 prize for the fourth successive year, won 6-4, 6-2, 4-6, 6-3.

LEAVE FOR EUROPE

TORONTO (CP) — Eighteen members of the Canadian field hockey team left here by plane Sunday night on a European tour that will take them to the international tournament in Lyon, France starting next Saturday. It will be the first time a field hockey team has represented Canada in an international tournament overseas. All members of the team but one are from Vancouver.

BLIND CANDIDATE Edward Avraman Dunlop, 44, national director of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, is the Progressive-Conservative candidate for the new suburban Toronto riding of Forest Hill in the Sept. 25 Ontario election. Mr. Dunlop lost his sight during a Second World War training camp accident in Scotland.

The Tracks

NEW YORK (AP) — Marion Frankel's Buperx, a $18,500 bargain buy, beat out favored Black Mountain and Count Bud in a furlong thriller at Belmont Saturday to win the $146,196 Futurity Stakes for two-year-olds at Aqueduct.

The photo camera showed Buperx, ridden by Avelino Gomez, winner by a head over Joseph M. Roebling's Black Mountain, unbeaten in four starts coming to this exciting 6½-furlong event.

Count Bud, the pacesetter from the Harbor View Farm, finished only a head behind Black Mountain, the even-money choice of a crowd of 40,387. Another 2¾ lengths back was Breakspear in the field of 12 juveniles.

Buperx, an outsider, paid $33.50, $11 and $8.50. Black Mountain, ridden by Manuel Ycaza, returned $3.10 and $2.50 and Count Bud paid $4 to show.

The winning time was one minute, 17 3-5 seconds, well off the futurity record of 1:16 3-5.

TORONTO (CP)—Abbie Star, a three-year-old colt owned by H. W. Knight Jr. of Toronto, closed with a rush to win the sixth running of the $12,225 Kingarvie Stakes at Woodbine Racetrack Saturday.

Ridden by Ramon Hernandez, Albion Star won by 1¼ lengths over Mr. Hidden Treasure, owned by Mrs. Beverley Lanson. Farms' King Gorm was third in the 1¼-mile race for Canadian-foaled three-year-olds and up.

Albion Star paid $44.60, $12.70 and $6.80. Hidden Treasure returned $4.90 and $3.40 and King Gorm $3.

The Kingarvie was Albion Star's first stakes victory. The winner's share of $7,225 brought his season's earning to $23,455.

The win was his third in 25 starts this season.

Jockey Ron Turcotte won two races to move into first place in the race for leading rider honors at the meeting. He now has 19 wins to his credit, two more than Fitzsimmons and Eric Walsh.

Trainer Andy Smithers of Vancouver saddled two winners, Indian Crossing in the fifth and Unknown Factor in the finale. The fifth was the Quinella event, the combination of Indian Crossing and second-place finisher Arthur H. netting $54.40.

The daily double returned $13.20 when Italy Princess won the first at 26.80 and Charley's Pak the second at $4.80.

Mann Cup Series Now 3-1

St. Kitts Stop Vancouver

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP) — St. Catharines Athletics still are in the Canadian senior lacrosse championships and it's a surprise.

Down three games to none in their best - of - seven series against Vancouver Carlings for the Mann Cup going into Sunday's games, the Easterners had scored only 15 goals against 42 for the high-flying Vancouver club.

But the Athletics turned on a fast-moving attack Sunday that brought them out on the long end of a 19-13 score and kept their hopes alive at least until Tuesday night's game.

"If nothing else we must have the Vancouver team just a little worried," commented Athletics manager Jack McNulty after watching his team score more goals in one game than it had so far in the series.

It was a real reversal of form. The Athletics took three thumpings from the Western champs —19-3 in the first match, 11-3 in the second and 13-7 in Saturday's tilt. In those games St. Catharines proved unable to handcuff the Western offence.

But Sunday, the Athletics uncorked a thundering attack and overpowered the Vancouver club.

Forward Gary Moore was the big gun for the Athletics. He collected five goals. Playing coach Jim McNulty added four, Doug Favell three, Peter Berge, two and singles were added by Don Carr, Gary Elsd, Ted Howe, Skeeter Mower and Doug Smith.

Decide Boxing Titles

Flicking his left with near-perfect timing Retil, an army corporal from Taber, Alta., battered out a victory over Johnny Lapadula of Scarborough, Ont. Lapadula's handlers threw in the towel at 2:35 of the third round as the dazed Ontario boxer reeled hopelessly under a barrage of blows.

The victory was the 66th in a 76-fight career for Retil. The 25-year-old member of the 2nd Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, was a bronze medallist at the 1962 British Empire Games in Australia, Canadian Army champion in 1960, 1961 and 1962 and Alberta champion from 1955 through 1958.

The winners of the nine other titles at the championships were: Billy McGrath, Edmonton, fiveright; Pte. Ray Herrington, Edmonton, bantamweight, Ted Billingsley, Edmonton, featherweight; Albert Reed, Montreal, welterweight; Hartmut Zimmermann, Toronto, light middleweight; L-Cpl. Lawrence (Larry) Cardinal, Victoria, middleweight; Pte. Earl Pilgrim, Edmonton, light heavyweight; Allan Quirk, Montreal, heavyweight; Buddy Palmer, 100 Mile House, B.C., lightweight.

McGrandle won a unanimous decision over Walter Henry of Orillia, Ont., in the outstanding match of the final night. Both fighters stood toe-to-toe and slugged it out.

Four New TV Programs, 3 Specials Vie for Favor

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Four new television programs and three specials bid for public attention during the weekend.

Most imposing was Friday night's taped CBS adaptation of Rosamund Pilcher's starring role of Ingrid Bergman.

After a week dedicated to several dreary corrections, a theatre classic in the competent hands of Miss Bergman, Sir Ralph Richardson, Michael Redgrave and Trevor Howard was as appetizing as a steak after diet of applesauce.

Hedda, as penned by Ibsen, was a creature of compulsive malevolence, destroying all with whom she came in contact—and finally herself.

In Miss Bergman's interpretation she emerged as a suffering creature more to be pitied than hated. The acting, however, was on a high level, and the play, despite its age and occasionally creaky dialogue, was thoughtprovoking drama.

NEWCOMERS ON STRIP

Earlier Friday, ABC presented its completely changed TV format in its whole. Kitsun Zimbalist Jr., has been remodelled into a Stan Spede-type private eye. The series started with the first of a five-part episode and had Zimbalist wandering among a large number of unrelated characters. It was pedestrian.

Burke's Law, another ABC series, has Gene Barry playing a millionaire policeman who rides around in a chauffeur-driven limousine and spends almost as much time with the ladies as chasing wrongdoers. Despite the gimmicks, the show never got out of a well-worn television rut.

Jerry Lewis presided nervously over the premiere of the two-hour live ABC show Saturday night. He complained he has been repeatedly asked how he planned to fill two hours every week.

After his first ragged show, in which comedy was notable by its absence, the question has still to be answered.

Browns Whip Dallas, Giants Blanked

Jimmy Brown Has Field Day

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

At this rate, Jimmy Brown is going to run the mile in nine weeks.

The incredible fullback of Cleveland Browns had his second field day in a row Sunday, as the Browns kept their National Football League record unblemished, 41-24 over the disappointing Dallas Cowboys.

Brown ran for 232 yards, including touchdown jaunts of 71 and 62.

With the season just two weeks old, Brown now has 394 yards, an average of 197 a game. At that pace, he will pass the mile mark in nine games. After the full weekend slate, the Browns were one of only three teams with a 2-0 record in the NFL. The Surprising St. Louis Cardinals and the tough Chicago Bears were the others.

The Cardinals evened their own with the Browns in the Eastern Conference by battling back to a 28-24 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles.

The Bears took over the top spot in the West with a 28-7 mauhandling of Minnesota Vikings.

In other NFL games, Green Bay beat Detroit 31-14, Pittsburgh whipped New York Giants 21-0 and Baltimore knocked off San Francisco 30-14. Washington whipped Los Angeles Rams 27-14 Saturday night.

In the American Football League, Boston beat Oakland 30-14, New York Jets slammed Houston 24-17 and Kansas City and Buffalo played to a 27-27 tie.

The Packers rebounded from their opening defeat by smothering the Lions. Halfback Tom Moore the replacement for suspended Paul Hornung, broke the game open with a pair of touchdown runs, including one 71 yards, and Jim Taylor carried 22 times for 82 yards.

The Steelers made their mark 1-0-1 as they gained their first shutout over the Giants since they came in the league 31 seasons ago. John Henry Johnson and Dick Hoak did the heavy duty running as the Steelers stuck to the ground. The Giants missed injured quarterback Y.A. Tittle, and couldn't get started.

John Unitas had a great day for the Colts, as the 49ers continued their winless ways. San Francisco coach Red Hickey said, "It's tough each week to say how good the other quarterback was—we make them look good."

Los Angeles Rams also remained one of the 0-2 teams with the 49ers and Dallas.

The Redskins came from a 14-13 deficit with a 77-yard third quarter pass play from Norm Snead to Dick James and added 17 points in the last quarter.

Picks Up $4,300 at Portland

Knudson Wins Tourney

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Slender George Knudson of Toronto won out in a battle of two young professionals for the $30,000 Portland open golf tournament championship Sunday in an extra-hole playoff.

The 26-year-old Knudson, winning his first tournament since 1961, sank a 45-foot chip shot on the first playoff hole for an eagle.

At that his shot barely won the prize. The 30-year-old Mexico City pro dropped from almost the same spot as Knudson, hit the back of the cup with his shot, bounced a few feet beyond and he had to settle for second prize of $2,000 while Knudson carried away $4,300.

Rudolph, who represents Lehigh Acres, Fla., had his worst round of the four-day tournament. He started Sunday 16 strokes under par and four strokes ahead of Knudson. He picked up four birdies on his final round, but finished with 69-64-67-71—271, which was 17 under par.

Meanwhile the eager Knudson was picking up five birdies. He did not slip over par on any hole and finished with 66-67-69-67—271.

On the playoff hole he was trying to chip the ball in close enough for one putt and a birdie. Then it dropped.

"I couldn't believe it. I was absolutely stunned," said Knudson.

At Balding of Toronto finished in a three-way tie for 30th place with 18-72-70-70—281 which was good for $305.

Harve Presnell's Buddies Not Happy With His Choice

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Note to Harve Presnell's old opera buddies: The lad is doing right well, though you may not think so.

He's doing well enough to star opposite Debbie Reynolds in the musical The Unsinkable Molly Brown.

"The people I sang with in opera will be prostituting my art," said rugged, rangy Harve. "When I did a musical comedy, they thought that was terrible. They think movies are worse. You know something? I don't care.

Why should he? The ranch boy from Modesto, Calif., is sitting pretty with a showcase role in his first movie, a new recording contract and a deal for four more pictures at MGM.

The Presnell's saga started in the San Joaquin Valley, where his family operated a thriving ranch. Harve went to the country grammar school.

He went to high school and junior college in Modesto, excelling in football, track, basketball, swimming and bronc busting. He also sang, in a lusty baritone that befitted his six-foot-four size. This led him to enrol as a music student at the University of Southern California, then he moved on to the Music Academy of the West in Santa Barbara. There he was exposed to the training of Lotte Lehmann.

WENT TO PARIS

Harve began getting singing jobs and appeared in the opera world at Hollywood Bowl. He went to Paris for the European premiers of the opera, then began appearing with German opera companies in a variety of roles.

"It was great experience; I even did straight plays in German," he said. "For three years I would spend most of the year in Germany, then come back here to earn enough money during the summer so I could go back to Europe."

He was singing in a Rodgers and Hammerstein concert at Hollywood Bowl when Meredith Wilson was in the audience.

When Wilson was preparing his Unsinkable Molly Brown for Broadway, he thought of young Presnell and sent for him in Europe. Partly because of the reputation of his opera colleagues, Harve was unsertain about whether he wanted a go at musical comedy, but he decided to try it and won the part with little effort.

His leading opposite Tammy Grimes for two years in New York and on the road.

The Trots

CAMPBELLVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Karen Sota, a seven-year old mare owned by Al Leverington of St. Thomas, zipped to the front at three three-quarter mark and came home the winner in $1,191.50 featured pace at Mohawk Raceway Saturday night.
